Mr. ERB. Mr. Speaker, at the time we drew this resolution up there was contention all over the State as to the matter of late pay. Since the resolution was drawn up I had a pleasant visit with the new Secretary of Highways, Mr. Schroyer, who in turn is one jump ahead of the Legislature. He has already taken steps to correct this error, and at this time I move, Mr. Speaker that this resolution be recommitted to the Committee on Highways.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. JAMES asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I am introducing today in the House of Representatives, a bill designed to control the expansion of the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Fund within safe and reasonable limits.

Since the enactment of the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Law in 1936, all employers in Pennsylvania, large and small, from the man operating a small service business with a couple of employees to the greatest of Pennsylvania's corporations, have been paying into this fund a percentum of all wages paid or payable, and for all such wages with respect to the years 1938, 1939, 1940 and 1941 this percentum has been two and seven-tenths percent of all such wages.

This is, of course, in addition to three-tenths of one percent which has been paid to the federal government under provisions of the Federal Social Security Act.

Time and experience have contrived to test both the value of unemployment compensation insurance as a social agency and the adequacy of the amount of contributions called for in the Act. It is not the purpose of my bill to question in any way the value of unemployment compensation insurance as a social agency, or to suggest or point out the means of halting the further development of it. My bill does not touch upon or question any matter having to do with benefits to be paid from the fund, or any future possibility of further provisions, such as so-called, "partials"; the reduction of waiting time, or any other likely or enforcable conditions or circumstances relating to benefits.

The unemployed worker cannot be adversely affected in any way.

By reason of the employer's contributions to the unemployment fund at the rate of two and seven-tenths percent on all wages paid, the Pennsylvania Fund has grown to unreasonable and unwarranted proportions. At this time, it stands at well over three hundred millions of dollars, and at no time during the growth of this fund has there been a time when the experience of the State as a whole has made benefit payments even nearly dangerous to the safety of the fund. Our experience in Pennsylvania with unemployment compensation insurance is not unique. In about thirty-eight other states, it has been found not only possible but advisable to change the unemployment compensation law so that contributions by employers to the funds were brought into line with experience.

The method of doing this up to the present time has been, in most cases, through an Experience Rating Plan of one kind or another.

With Pennsylvania's funds well on the way to one-third of a billion dollars, and with a well demonstrated experience behind us, a fund of such magnitude is wholly unwarranted, and the time is immediately at hand to afford relief to the employers of Pennsylvania, large and small, within the limits of safety as proven by our State-wide experience.

My bill will accomplish this in a sound way and with universal justice under a plan of compensation fund control, based upon compensation level experience.

Simply stated, employers of Pennsylvania, under my bill, would contribute only one and eighty one-thousandths percent in any calendar quarter at the beginning of which the Pennsylvania Fund is in excess of two hundred and ninety-nine million dollars. This, and other provisions of my bill, would make the effective time as of July 1, 1943, on which date—unless this war collapses in the meantime, our fund will stand, by a conservative estimate, well over three hundred and sixty millions of dollars.

Thereafter, contributions by employers would be at the rate of one and four hundred and eighty-five percent in any quarter at the beginning of which the fund does not exceed two hundred and ninety-nine million dollars, but is not less than two hundred and forty-nine million dollars, or two and twenty-five percent for any calendar quarter at the beginning of which the fund does not exceed two hundred and forty-nine million dollars but is not less than one hundred and ninety-nine million dollars. And finally, should the fund at any time fall below one hundred and ninety-nine million dollars, the rate would be two and seven-tenths percent for any quarter at the beginning of which that condition prevailed.

This plan might be called a State-wide Experience Plan, as contrasted with certain other plans, some of which take into consideration only a portion of the State-wide experience, and others take into consideration only the experience of the individual contributing employer. This plan is really a quarterly fund level experience control plan, and as such—and unlike all other experience plans—it would not add anything whatever to the cost of administration, nor would it add to the employers' already overwhelming burden of record-keeping, since the records now required under the Pennsylvania Act would serve without change.

This plan—unlike almost every other experience rating plan, would not involve either the State or the employer in a tangle of claims and counter claims as to proper individual ratings, disputes, voluminous accounting and adjustments, together with the attending expenses of these things. This State-wide Experience Fund Control Plan would conform more nearly to the underlying considerations of justice to both the contributors and the beneficiary than any other experience plan presented to date, because it takes into full and complete account that no class of employer is entitled to advantages over any other class of employer.

Almost every experience rating plan under consideration today presumes that because certain employers have peak and valley labor loads, and therefore call upon the unemployment fund to a greater extent than others, such employers should pay more into the fund, and those who do not call upon the fund so frequently or so fully should pay less. Such a presumption is wholly false, for the very reason that those employers having peak and valley loads, almost without exception, have such conditions because, in the nature of their business, they are providing either the processing, the outlet, or the things that make regular employment, possible to myriads of other employers in wide groups of suppliers, growers, merchandisers and contributory producers and transporters. Further, the beneficiary who may be working today for an employer with a low unemployment experience record may find a job tomorrow with an employer whose conditions are exactly the reverse and therefore, by some circumstances, be benefited —through no fault of his own, of course—under the contributions of the wrong experience rating.

I am offering my bill, not only for the consideration of this General Assembly and this administration, but for the consideration of the thousands upon thousands of employers and their employees who are desirous of having the Pennsylvania Unemployment Insurance Fund strong and safe, but who, on the other hand, are desirous of keeping millions and millions of dollars each year working in Pennsylvania.

The Federal Government has no interest whatever in the enlargement of Unemployment Compensation Insurance Funds. It is true that they allow interest on these, but at the same time, the Social Security Act encourages experience rates to the extent that it allows up to ninety percent credit of the taxable item under experience plans.

I want to say further, Mr. Speaker, that I am very well aware the question will be raised on this plan I am submitting in the bill I have introduced, as to whether or not an experience rating plan on a state-wide basis could be made to come into harmony with the Social Security Act. After going into the matter very thoroughly I am at this time unable to find a single person who has experience in these matters who is willing to say that the plan I suggest will not be in accord with the Federal requirements.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY SPEAKER

The SPEAKER. There will be a meeting of the Secretaries to all standing Committees in the new House Caucus room Wednesday, February 17th at 11:30 a. m. The Secretaries are requested to bring their record books with them.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. DAVID P. REESE, Jr. asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, for the information of the Members of the House, I would like to read a communication to them from the Blood Donor Service of the American Red Cross, signed by Mrs. Spencer Nauman, Chairman of the Recruiting Committee. She writes as follows:

"It has occurred to me, as Chairman of the Recruiting Committee of the American Red Cross Blood Donor Service, that many members of the Legislature may not yet have had the opportunity to give their blood to this vital project. No doubt the majority of the Representatives are aware of the tremendous importance of blood plasma in the treatment of our wounded. Realizing that an adequate supply of plasma for transfusions is absolutely essential if countless lives are to be saved, the Army and Navy have requested the American Red Cross to supply 4,000,000 units of blood plasma this year.

"Harrisburg is the smallest city in which the National Red Cross has established a Blood Donor Service. We cannot hope to meet our weekly quota of 500 pints, unless thousands more men and women avail themselves of the privilege of becoming volunteer blood donors.

"The Blood Donor Center at Front and South Streets is open on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 11:45 to 4:30, and on Tuesday and Thursday from 1 to 6. Fifteen donors may be scheduled every half hour; the entire process takes only about an hour, including rest and refreshment.

"Never has there been a time in history when such a privilege has been given the nation. Through this, the greatest mass medical project ever attempted, science has enabled each one of us to participate on the firing line. Pennsylvania has sent thousands of her sons into the armed forces. Many will be returned to their homes and firesides only if we, on the home front, enlist our blood in this great life-saving effort."

I suggest that if any of the Members seek to take advantage of this invitation coming from districts in which there is not this service, or coming from counties where they find the time is inconvenient, that they call the Red Cross Blood Donor Service and ask for an appointment. They will be glad to take care of you during the time you are serving in the House.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. BRETHERICK asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, in order that future historians may not impugn the motives or assail the character of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen, I would like to be absolutely certain that his remarks with regard to House Bill 129, Printer's No. 20, be accurately recorded by the official stenographers.

Mr. Cohen stated that he had taken House Bill 129 to Philadelphia with him, and after reading it for some time he got to "pondering." In the Pitmanic shorthand system "pondering" and "pandering" are written exactly alike, except that one is written in the third position and the other in the first position.

I certainly hope the record will be clear and that it will not be recorded that after Mr. Cohen got back to Philadelphia he got to "pandering."

For that reason I want to ask the official stenographers to be absolutely certain that they wrote the word in the third position rather than in the first position.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would ask the gentleman from Philadelphia in what position he would like to have it written.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, to keep the record straight, instead of the despicable word which the gentleman used, the closest word in my vocabulary that I could use would be the word philandering and I can come no closer.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. MOSER from the Committee on Judiciary General reported as committed Senate Bill No. 24, entitled:

An Act to further amend section nine of the act, approved the ninth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and eleven (P. L. 736), entitled "An act making appropriations to institutions not wholly managed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, liens on the premises of such institutions for the use of the Commonwealth, and providing for the collection thereof," authorizing the use of, and appropriating the proceeds of insurance for rebuilding, reequipping and repairing of property subject to lien.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Legislative Journal.

Session 1943. 135th of the General Assembly.

Vol. 27. HARRISBURG, PA., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1943. No. 16.

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, February 17, 1943.

The Senate met at 11:00 o'clock, a. m., Eastern War Time.

The PRESIDENT (Pro Tempore Charles H. Ealy) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. EDWIN S. WALLACE, D. D., offered the following prayer:

Most gracious God, our Father, source of our life and strength for today, and of our hope for the days that are to come, may we now yield our minds to the Holy Spirit of Truth and our hearts to the power of Thy love.

At this moment, when our attitude before Thee is reverential, take away from us the merely formal, and help us to pray to Thee in spirit and in truth.

At our best moments we believe in human brotherhood and in peace, but ofttimes our faith is shaken by the facts of life. Help us when we doubt to remember that this is Thy world, and that every human being is Thy child. Then we shall not lose faith nor fear as to the result. Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom. Thou, the Eternal, art its creator and sustainer. In working with Thee here and now we shall be true to our best selves and to the best we know. Thou art the best we know.

May the approval of God be given to every effort our nation is making to relieve the people of the world from tyranny and fear, and from hunger of body and of soul.

For our President, our Governor, our Lieutenant-Governor, and for every member of the Senate we pray that their lives be precious in Thy sight, and their work be for Thy glory. In the name of Christ, our Lord. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. HEYBURN and Mr. FARRELL, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. I desire to explain for Lieutenant-Governor Bell that he is presiding over a meeting of the Board of Pardons today and can not be present at this session of the Senate.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Mr. Wade asked and obtained leave of absence for Mr. ZIESENHEIM.

He also asked and obtained leave of absence for Mr. JAMES.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced presented communication in writing from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, which was read as follows:

APPROVED AND SIGNED SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, February 16, 1943.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

I have the honor to inform you that I have this day approved and signed Senate Concurrent Resolution extending the time within which the Anthracite Subsidence Commission shall make its report to the General Assembly until March 15, 1943, and declaring the purpose of the General Assembly to enact suitable legislation more fully to effectuate the resolution.

EDWARD MARTIN.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES

Mr. BECKER, from the Committee on Judiciary General, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 137, entitled:

An Act to validate and quiet the title to real estate in this Commonwealth held by a foreign corporation unauthorized to hold the same and heretofore conveyed to a citizen of the United States or a corporation authorized to hold such real estate.

Mr. FARRELL, from the Committee on Judiciary General, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 80, entitled:

An Act to repeal the act approved the twenty-first day of March, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine, (P. L. 34), entitled "An act authorizing the judges of the courts of common pleas and orphans' courts in counties of the third class to employ stenographers, typists and clerks to facilitate the business of the courts, and to provide for the payment of their compensation by the county, and validating former employments and payments therefor."

Mr. KEPHART, from the Committee on Judiciary General, reported as amended, Senate Bill No. 103, entitled:

An Act authorizing the common pleas judges and the county commissioners jointly to create medical clinics for the examination of certain persons convicted of the commission of a crime prior to the sentencing thereof, as a means of decreasing the number of habitual offenders; providing for the creation of joint medical clinics among the several counties; and imposing the costs of maintaining and operating such clinics upon the county or counties creating the same.

He also, from the Committee on Judiciary General, reported as amended, Senate Bill No. 116, entitled:

An Act to further amend section one of the act, approved the twenty-fourth day of July, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen (P. L. 1013), entitled "An act regulating the issuance of licenses to marry; prohibiting the issuance of such licenses to certain persons; regulating the time during which licenses shall be valid, and the time when returns shall be made of marriages solemnized to the clerk of the orphans' court; and prescribing the duties of the clerk of the orphans' court," by providing that, during the continuation of the present war, the three day waiting period shall not be required in any case in which one of the applicants for a marriage license is in the armed forces of the United States.

Mr. GOURLEY, from the Committee on Judiciary General, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 108, entitled:

An Act to authorize cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships and school districts to file suggestions of nonpayment and averments of default or to sue out writs of scire facias on certain tax or municipal claims and to revive judgments where the lien of such claims or the judgments thereon have been lost, and providing for the reinstatement of the liens of such claims and judgments.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Mr. CRIDER read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 171, entitled:

An Act making an appropriation to the Department of Forests and Waters, to be used for the purchase of lands in the vicinity of the tract now owned by the Commonwealth containing the birthplace of James Buchanan in Franklin County.

Which was committed to the Committee on Appropriations.

He also read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 172, entitled:

An Act authorizing the Department of Property and Supplies, with the approval of the Governor and the Board of Trustees of the Pennsylvania Soldiers' Orphan School to acquire a certain tract of land for the use of said school; and making an appropriation therefor.

Which was committed to the Committee on State Government.

Mr. COX. Mr. President, by way of explanation, as you know, I am very much interested in the defeat of the parole ripper which has been introduced in this body. I have admitted very frankly that there are some defects in our set-up. How serious those defects are we will not know until such time as the Parole Board has had a proper length of time in which to function.

It seemed to me, however, that one of the defects is the fact that civil service examinations were given at a time when thousands of qualified men and women in the State were engaged in the war effort, and therefore did not have an opportunity to take the examination.

In order to correct that unfairness at this time I wish to read in place and present to the Chair a bill which would have the effect, within a year after the cessation of hostilities, that the Civil Service Commission give an examination which would afford everyone in the Commonwealth the opportunity of having employment under the Parole Board. This would include persons who presently are employes of the board; they too would have to take an examination at the end of that period.

Mr. COX read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 173, entitled:

An Act to amend sections thirteen, fourteen and fifteen of the act approved the sixth day of August, one thousand nine hundred forty-one (P. L. 861), entitled "An act to create a uniform and exclusive system for the administration of parole in this Commonwealth; establishing the 'Pennsylvania Board of Parole'; conferring and defining its jurisdiction, duties, powers and functions, including the supervision of persons placed upon probation in certain designated cases; providing for the method of appointment of its members; regulating the appointment, removal and discharge of its officers, clerks and employes; dividing the Commonwealth into administrative districts for purposes of parole; fixing the salaries of members of the board and of certain other officers and employes thereof; making violations of certain provisions of this act misdemeanors; providing penalties therefor; and for other cognate purposes, and making an appropriation," further regulating the appointment, removal and discharge of officers, clerks and employes of the Pennsylvania Board of Parole after the war in which the United States is now engaged, in order to give all persons serving in said war an opportunity to qualify for appointment.

Which was committed to the Committee on State Government.

He also read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 174, entitled:

An Act to further amend section one thousand one hundred thirty-three of the act, approved the eighteenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and eleven (P. L. 309), entitled "An act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, together with the provisions by which it shall be administered and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof; providing revenue to establish and maintain the same, and the method of collecting such revenue; and repealing all laws, general, special or local, or any parts thereof, that are or may be inconsistent therewith," by removing certain limitations on the appointment of district superintendents.

Which was committed to the Committee on Education.

Mr. STIEFEL read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 175, entitled:

An Act to further amend clause sixteen of section one of the act approved the twenty-seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred twenty-three (P. L. 858), entitled "An act establishing a State employes' retirement system and creating a retirement board for the administration thereof; establishing certain funds from contributions by the Commonwealth and contributing State employes, defining the uses and purposes thereof and the manner payments therefrom, and providing for the guaranty by the Commonwealth of certain of said funds; imposing powers and duties upon the heads of departments in which State employes serve; excepting annuities, allowances, returns, benefits, and rights from taxation and judicial process; and providing penalties," providing for the retirement of honorably discharged war veterans on superannuation at age fifty-five.

Which was committed to the Committee on State Government.

BILL ON THIRD READING

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 34, on third reading, entitled:

An Act prescribing temporary emergency war provisions with respect to the administration of certain provisions of the school laws of this Commonwealth relating to days for schools to be in session, closing schools temporarily, assignment and reassignment of teachers and temporary farm and domestic employment certificates for certain pupils, and authorizing boards of school directors (or boards of public instruction), with the approval of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, to put such provisions into operation and to suspend the provisions of existing school laws inconsistent therewith upon findings by such boards and department and the State Council of Defense go over in its order until Monday, as amendments which are now being prepared are not yet ready.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILLS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 62, entitled:

An Act to amend section seven hundred two of the act approved the first day of May one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 905) entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety regulating the use of highways and the operation of vehicles tractors street cars trackless trolley omnibuses bicycles pedestrians and the riding of animals upon the highways of this Commonwealth providing for the titling including liens encumbrances and legal claims registration of certain vehicles and licensing the operators thereof upon payment of prescribed fees prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue the Department of Highways peace officers mayors burgesses magistrates aldermen justices of the peace the courts and the clerks thereof owners of vehicles and garage keepers providing that records are admissible as evidence imposing upon owners counties cities boroughs incorporated towns townships within the Commonwealth liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles imposing penalties imposing certain costs upon counties providing for the disposition of fines forfeitures fees and miscellaneous receipts making an appropriation and providing for refunds" by fixing the annual registration fee of certain motor vehicles

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 Section seven hundred two of the act approved the first day of May one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 905) entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety regulating the use of highways and the operation of vehicles tractors street cars trackless trolley omnibuses bicycles pedestrians and the riding of animals upon the highways of this Commonwealth providing for the titling including liens encumbrances and legal claims registration of certain vehicles and licensing the operators thereof upon payment of prescribed fees prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue the Department of Highways peace officers mayors burgesses magistrates aldermen justices of the peace the courts and the clerks thereof owners of vehicles and garage keepers providing that records are admissible as evidence imposing upon owners counties cities boroughs incorporated towns townships within the Commonwealth liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles imposing penalties imposing certain costs upon counties providng for the disposition of fines forfeitures fees and miscellaneous receipts making an appropriation and providing for refunds" as reenacted without amendment by the act approved the twenty-second day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-one (P. L. 751) is hereby amended to read as follows

Section 702 Motor Vehicles The fee for annual registration of motor vehicles except as provided in this act [shall be at the rate of forty (40) cents for each horsepower or fractional part thereof Provided That the minimum fee payable for such annual registration] shall be ten ($10) dollars

Section 2 This act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment but the registration fee fixed by this act shall first apply to registrations for the registration year commencing the first day of April one thousand nine hundred forty-three The registration fee for the registration of any motor vehicle for any period of time prior to the first day of April one thousand nine hundred forty-three shall remain the same as prior to the passage of this act

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to.

On the question.

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, it may not be good politics to oppose this bill, because on the face of it, it looks as if there is going to be a cut in the license fee, but I believe there is another matter we should consider at this time. First, we all know that rubber and oil are two of the most valuable materials necessary in winning the war.

To me this bill seems to appear as if it will encourage the use of the automobile and at this time we should discourage the use of automobiles, excepting only in absolute necessity.

As far as the fee is concerned, the fee is deductable from your income tax, but there is another point I believe is more important and I give it to members of the Senate from practical experience. I have been for two years Superintendent of Highways in the City of Pittsburgh and I find that the most important thing, the only thing the people consider, is how well their streets are kept. If there is a small hole in the street and their automobile goes over it and anything happens to their tires, they rush madly in and call the administration all the nice words they can think of.

With this bill you are going to take $3,000,000 out of the highway fund. You must admit that the highway fund is going to be cut considerably by the rationing of gas

This $3,000,000 which you will take out of the highway fund in the biennium could be used to fix roads, and I warn that if you cut fees, if you cut this tax and do not fix the roads, the very people whose licenses you cut will campaign against you in the next election. I believe that is logic.

I do not think the cut amounts to anything to the average user of an automobile. The cars in the high brackets do get a material cut of two dollars but the users of the smaller cars will not be given much consideration and I believe this Senate is making a very grave error in passing this bill, and I for one am going to vote against it.

Mr. COX. Mr. President and members of the Senate, yesterday my colleague, Senator Barr, offered certain amendments to this bill which we on the Democratic side of the Senate thought would make the bill an equitable bill. Unfortunately a majority of this Senate thought otherwise and the amendments were defeated.

Today, in voting on this bill, we face this situation, that if we do not vote for the bill then the small cut which is made in the bill will be lost to the persons who use motor vehicles. Although I am not satisfied with the size of the cut, and I know the majority of my colleagues on the Democratic side are not satisfied, we do feel it is better to have some cut rather than none at all, and for that reason we are going to vote for the bill.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I would like to just call attention to the members of the Senate to one of the important things that was mentioned by the distinguished gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Holland, that is, he mentioned the fact that he was Superintendent of Streets in the City of Pittsburgh. I would like to advise the Senate that he was a very good superintendent, and that was the gist of his speech.

I want also to point out to the members of the Senate that nobody in the Senate is satisfied with the cut that we are getting in this bill. In fact, Mr. President, I am not satisfied with the cut I am getting in the Senate. We are also going to vote for this bill because we agree with the gentlemen on the other side that it is a smart thing to get what you can down here, and to get it over, and we figure this is going to do good for the people of Pennsylvania and we are going to vote for it.

I would like to eliminate all taxes and double all appropriations, because that would make popular appeal, but we are just as practical as the gentlemen on the other side.

Therefore, Mr. President, we are going to take this cut because that is the most practical way of doing it, and we appreciate the co-operation and support from the distinguished Senators on the other side.

Mr. JONES. Mr. President and Senators, I would like to express my position on this bill and my opposition to the bill. I believe that this bill is not in conformity with the sentiments of the nation.

It does not propose to support the President and the national government in this war effort. It has been the purpose and object and action of the national government to preserve rubber and to preserve gasoline and to avoid the operation unnecessarily of automobiles and to eliminate from the highways as many automobiles as possible.

This bill encourages the registration of cars by reducing the registration charge, and it encourages the use of cars and the use of rubber and gasoline, and therefore does not cooperate with our national government and war effort.

As a good patriotic citizen I believe that I should vote against anything that contravenes in the least degree or in the slightest way the efforts of the war government, and I say to you all that the measure or value for payment of registration fees has not been the cost to the government of that registration—otherwise the fee would be $1 or perhaps $2 for registration, a nominal fee—but it has always been in accordance with a definite yardstick, namely, horsepower, forty cents per horse-power. That has been recognized, the measure and the value for registration purposes, for many many years.

I have been solicitor of the Hazelton Motor Club for eighteen years, in past years, and I have never heard anybody comment or critize that measure or value for registration purposes. They always recognized that the man with the bigger car and with a higher horsepower should pay more for his registration than a man with a small car with a lesser horsepower, and if that rule were not a correct rule or measure, then it might be based perhaps on weight, because weight upon the highway of a particular car or automobile has much to do with the wear and tear upon that highway, but certainly a flat rate which is introduced for the purpose of raising revenue and additional income, made at $10, would have discrimination and inequality in its application, and in the rights and benefits derived by the individual, and is not a proper measure of determining the rule or is not a proper way of determining the rule to apply to registration, because again I say there is definite inequality in the application of a flat rate because it does not apply equally according to the present standard.

People have been accustomed to a fee upon value by horsepower as a proper measure. That has been a recognized standard, and if we are not going to conform with it, then we ought to set up a correct one, but aside from that the application of this rule, of course, is not alike to the great majority of car owners throughout the State of Pennsylvania, who have small cars. They benefit but little as a result of the cut. Those who own a Plymouth car benefit to the extent of forty cents; those who own a Chevrolet or a Ford car benefit to the extent of $2.40; those who own Pierce Arrows or Packards or larger cars benefit to a more substantial degree.

Further, it would discriminate between rich and poor, and when setting up a new rule I would not make it possible for a man who owns a lesser car, a small car, to be able to make that discrimination and say to himself and to his neighbors and to other citizens "I only get forty cents out of it and there is John Jones, who owns a larger car, and he gets a reduction of ten dollars and he has plenty of wherewith to live, and I have to struggle for my money." The man who gets $2.40 would have a like complaint, and those men are far in the majority in the State of Pennsylvania. Those men are the men who vote, and they are discriminated against, and in our form of government there should be no discrimination, because the very foundation of our government is equality, every man has equal rights and equal opportunities. When you get before a court and a jury that jury does not stand back in handing out equal and even justice to every man, whether he is a car owner or not, who comes before them for justice, and in the legislative halls every Senate should be embodied with the same spirit of equality and measure out cuts in taxation equally so that they shall affect all men equally.

For those reasons, Mr. President and Senators, I propose to vote against this bill.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 84, entitled:

An Act to amend paragraph A of section four hundred one of the act, approved the fifteenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 565), entitled "An act relating to the powers and duties of the Department of Banking and the Secretary of Banking in exercising supervision over, and taking possession of and conducting or liquidating the business and property of, corporations, associations, and persons receiving deposits or otherwise transacting a banking business, corporations acting as fiduciaries, and building and loan associations; providing for the payment of the expenses of the Department of Banking by supervised corporations, associations, or persons, and appropriating the Banking Department Fund; authorizing the Department of Banking, under certain circumstances, to examine corporations, associations, or persons affiliated, or having business transactions with supervised corporations, associations or persons; authorizing appeals to the Supreme Court, and prescribing and limiting the powers and duties of certain other courts and their prothonotaries, registers of wills, recorders of deeds, and certain State departments, commissions, and officers; authorizing certain local public officers and State departments to collect fees for services rendered under this act; providing penalties; and repealing certain acts and parts of acts," by requiring the Department of Banking to examine all institutions thoroughly at least once every two years, instead of each year as now provided.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the sponsor of this bill.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Will the gentleman from Lebanon permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BECKER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I desire to ask the sponsor of this bill whether he introduced this bill through his own initiative or by request of the Banking Department.

Mr. BECKER. This bill, Mr. President, was sponsored by myself, because I had been aware of a situation which I think deserves correction; it is sponsored by the Banking Department, with which I had discussed the bill; and it is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association.

Mr. HALUSKA. I should like to further interrogate the gentleman from Lebanon.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Will the gentleman from Lebanon permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. BECKER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Lebanon tell me the purpose of this bill?

Mr. BECKER. The purpose of this bill, Mr. President, is to make it possible to give more attention to certain banks in Pennsylvania, certain State banks, to the exclusion of other banks, which might be called model banks, which in the opinion of the Department do not require the same recurring attention.

This bill on the face of it purports to extend the time over which examination can be made, whereas the effect of the bill, by making it unnecessary to examine some of those banks—may I again characterize them as model banks—is to afford greater protection to such other banks so that the effect of this bill is not to lengthen the intervals between necessary examinations, but to shorten the intervals.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I desire to further interrogate the gentleman from Lebanon.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Will the gentleman from Lebanon permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. BECKER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, is it not a fact now that banks must be examined at least once each year; is that right?

Mr. BECKER. That is correct, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, under the bill proposed by the gentleman from Lebanon it will be once in two years; is that correct?

Mr. BECKER. That is correct.

Mr. HALUSKA. What is the reason for extending the time from one year to two years?

Mr. BECKER. The reasons which I have just stated, Mr. President. I may not have made myself clear.

Mr. HALUSKA. The gentleman from Lebanon has not.

Mr. BECKER. The reason for extending it to two years, Mr. President, is to permit the Banking Department, with the personnel that it has, to give greater attention to some of the banks needing greater attention and to release that attention from some of the banks where such attention is not so necessary.

Mr. HALUSKA. May I assume then, Mr. President, that the reason is because of shortage of personnel; is that the assumption?

Mr. BECKER. There is definitely, and as a matter of fact this bill is definitely a war measure and carries in the last section the provisions that it shall only be enforced for the duration of the war and for a time thereafter.

Mr. HALUSKA. Is the gentleman from Lebanon in a position to tell us the amount of personnel we have now, bank examiners, in this Commonwealth.

Mr. BECKER. I would not be sure about that. I would rather not venture a statement.

Mr. HALUSKA. Is the gentleman from Lebanon in a position to tell us how many have been taken into the service, to create a demand for this bill?

Mr. BECKER. May I ask the gentleman from Cambria to repeat his inquiry?

Mr. HALUSKA. Is the gentleman from Lebanon in a position to tell us how many bank examiners have been called into the services.

Mr. BECKER. I can not answer that question, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Have any of them been called into the service.

Mr. BECKER. Definitely, yes.

Mr. HALUSKA. Is it not a fact that most of those men are up in years and are not of ages to be inducted.

Mr. BECKER. I would not say so, no.

Mr. HALUSKA. I believe, Mr. President, we are all trying to do what we can to aid the war effort, but sometimes I feel we may go abroad and far afield. Go back ten years. We find a chaotic condition in the banking system of our country. Thousands upon thousands of our friends and many of ourselves have been wiped out, due to the fact that banks were not examined properly and efficiently.

We have now on our statutes a law that calls for examination at least once a year, and sometimes I feel that is too long—many things may happen in twelve months, from one examination to another—and now we have a bill before us that will extend that time from one to two years. You are going back to the same chaotic condition that existed ten years ago, and although we are war minded we should be cautious and I am afraid, gentlemen, this is a bad bill, bad for our depositors, the men and women who save and put away a few dollars and might find themselves wiped out.

I believe that we all agree that two years between examinations is too long a time. Go back to your own practice, go back to your own business and take inventory once in two years and what will happen? You will find an awful mess right in your own store. I think this bill should be defeated. There is no reason for it. There can not be shortage of personnel, because I have met many bank examiners and most of them are up in age, forty-five fifty, or sixty.

I doubt whether more than one per cent of the men now employed in such work have been called into the service. The sponsor is not in a position to tell us how many there are who are now employed, how many have resigned.

At least, before we vote on this bill I think we should have that information, to make it clear to us that there is a shortage of personnel, and if there is, it might throw a different light on this subject, but up until the present time we have no light on this bill, and it is an important bill.

I would like to ask the sponsor of this bill to let it go over in its order until Monday, and by that time we might have more information, if it is possible to get it, which would give us more light on the subject.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 84, on final passage go over in its order.

Mr. McGINNIS. I second the motion, Mr. President.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. HEYBURN. I have no objection to the bill going over in order, Mr. President, but I would like to say to the gentleman from Cambria that I had the same objection to this bill that he now has, when I first saw it, but after conferring with the Secretary of Banking, I found that there is a distinct shortage of personnel, apparently due to employes entering the armed services, and more particularly due to the fact that the salary does not attract men to State positions. Cost plus ten per cent war industries are offering two or three times as much money for accountants as the State Banking Department—and that is a condition that exists, of course, all over the Hill.

This one year provision in the old law is entirely a proper one. However, now, it is working to the opposite purpose, namely, inasmuch as the law requires an annual examination of banks, in their desire to obey the law the examinations are rather inadequate, hastily performed, in order that the banks may be covered each year.

Some banks in the State of Pennsylvania are model banks, as the gentleman from Lebanon so well expressed, so that they do not need frequent examinations. Some banks, however, need examination almost every month, and are now getting it.

This bill would have the effect of permitting the Secretary of Banking to pay more attention to those banks that need more attention, and I suggest to the Senator from Cambria that he call upon the Secretary of Banking, and I am quite sure he will explain the matter to the Senator's satisfaction.

Mr. BECKER. Mr. President, I may say that since I was interrogated by the Senator from Cambria I now have these figures: there are at the present time 65 men in the services of the Banking Department, 10 are now in the service of the country, and of the 65, 20 are between the ages of eighteen and thirty-eight and are subject to the draft.

Another point which I believe I did not make clear in my response to the interrogations of the gentleman from Cambria, and which the Senator from Delaware has also expressed, is that the bill does not mean that banks can only be examined once every two years. That is the minimum. A bank can be examined every month. In fact I could mention five banks at the moment in the State of Pennsylvania which are receiving monthly examinations at the present time, and it is for the purpose of making that possible, so that bank examiners can be released from examining what I first termed model banks, such as in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, large banks which do not require such careful examination, it is for that purpose that this bill is now necessary as a war measure.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I still would like to ask the sponsor of this bill to permit it to go over in order until Monday, so that I may contact the Secretary of Banking and get whatever information he may be able to give me. There is no big rush on the bill and by Monday we can vote on the bill, if that is satisfactory to the sponsor.

Mr. BECKER. As sponsor of the bill, Mr. President, I have no objection to it going over in its order until Monday. I am satisfied to have it go over in order,

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 85, on third reading, entitled:

A Joint Resolution making application to the Congress of the United States to call a convention for proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, prohibiting the imposition of conditions upon grants of moneys and the invasion of the states rights go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 52, on second reading, entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to article nine of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, by adding thereto section eighteen

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. CARR, Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 59 on second reading, entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to article fourteen of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania abolishing the County of Philadelphia as a separate political entity, and providing for administering of county functions by City of Philadelphia be recommitted to the Committee on Constitutional Changes.

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Butler.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Will the gentleman from Butler permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. CARR. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. STIEFEL. I should like to inquire, Mr. President, the purpose of re-referring Senate Bill No. 59 to the Committee on Constitutional Changes.

Mr. CARR. Mr. President, there was no disposition on the part of the committee, when it met on two occasions, to put this bill out for final action. We thought it might be beneficial to have it read one time in order that it might be printed and available for consideration, if anyone so desired, but it was with the distinct understanding that it was to be re-committed that it was allowed to come out on the floor.

Mr. STIEFEL. I do not object, Mr. President; if it is the understanding of the Committee on Constitutional Changes, I am perfectly satisfied.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

BILLS RECOMMITTED

Mr. CARR. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 71, on second reading, entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to section four, article two of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, providing for annual sessions of the General Assembly, salary of members and an annual budget be recommitted to the Committee on Constitutional Changes.

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. CARR. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 99 on second reading, entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to Section one of article Fourteen, of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, by making sheriffs eligible to succeed themselves be recommitted to the Committee on Constitutional Changes.

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE ON EXECUTIVE NOMINATIONS

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. WATKINS, from the Committee on Executive Nominations, reported with a favorable recommendation the following nominations, made by His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth:

EDWARD MARTIN.

RULE 38 SUSPENDED

By unanimous consent,

A motion was made by Mr. WATKINS and Mr. LETZLER

That Rule 38, which requires nominations made by the Governor, to lie on the table one day be dispensed with, and the Senate do now resolve itself into Executive Session, for the purpose of acting upon all the nominations reported at today's session.

Which was agreed to.

Whereupon,

A motion was made by Mr. WATKINS and Mr. LETZLER

That the Senate do advise and consent to the nominations reported.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—39

NAYS—0

Two-thirds of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Governor be informed accordingly.

EXECUTIVE SESSION RISES

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President, I move that the Executive Session do now rise.

Mr. LETZLER. I second the motion, Mr. President.

The motion was agreed to.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE SENATE

Mr. GOURLEY asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. GOURLEY. Mr. President and members of the Senate, I consider it a personal pleasure to be able to comment favorably on the action of the State Council of Defense in the appointment which was made yesterday of Dr. Ralph Cooper Hutchinson, President of Washington and Jefferson College, at Washington, Pennsylvania, as Executive Director of the State Council of Defense.

I feel this appointment is one of the wisest that the State Council of Defense could have made, especially in view of the fact that Dr. Hutchinson is from my county, as also is His Excellency, Governor Martin. Governor Martin, as I understand it, has designated Dr. Hutchinson as a member of his cabinet.

I have had the opportunity and pleasure of knowing Dr. Hutchinson in a business and a professional manner for approximately ten years. I know that he faithfully applies himself to any trust or responsibility to which he might be appointed.

Dr. Hutchinson came to Washington, Pennsylvania, in 1931, in December, thirty-three years of age, and was made President of Washington and Jefferson College, a high honor for a man of such young age.

Dr. Hutchinson has worked with untiring effort, and today I believe in the schools of education it is accepted and known that W. and J. is a school with one of the highest educational standards in the United States.

Dr. Hutchinson is a man forty-five years of age. He is married and has two children. He was graduated from Lafayette College in 1918, with an A.B. degree. He studied at Princeton Theological Seminary and became an ordained Presbyterian minister in 1922. He later earned an M.A. degree at Harvard University and subsequent to that a Ph.D. degree at the University of Pennsylvania.

He has always taken a part in civic affairs. He was an aviator in the United States Navy in the last war. After the war was over he served in Turkey, doing Y. M. C. A. work, and he is a man in whom the people of Pennsylvania can place trust which will never be betrayed.

In short, Mr. President, I believe that Dr. Hutchinson has the three basic qualifications which are necessary for the success of any man, regardless of what endeavor he may pursue. He is intelligent, he is industrious, and he has integrity which is beyond question. I believe that we are fortunate in having a man of the capabilities of Dr. Hutchinson who is willing to sacrifice his time and give his efforts for the welfare of this Commonwealth, and I assure the members of this Senate that the trust which has been imposed in Dr. Hutchinson will never be found to have been misplaced and that he will apply himself in the same untiring manner to his duties as Executive Director of the State Council of Defense as he has done in former manners and efforts and responsibilities in the past.

I thank you.

BILL INTRODUCED

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce a bill at this time.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. COLEMAN read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 176, entitled:

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Messrs. GYGER and DIX.
(Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 21.

In the House of Representatives, February 16, 1943.

Whereas, The man-power of the Nation in relation to agriculture has become critical in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; and

Whereas, Nearly a million farm workers have already been inducted into military service from the farm belts of the Nation; and

Whereas, The agricultural man-power of Pennsylvania has borne its full share in this military effort to the point of depletion of our farm labor; and

Whereas, Agriculture cannot further sustain depletion of its man-power, without seriously impairing the production of dairy products, farm produce and food supplies for our soldiers and civilians; therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth hereby memoralizes the Congress of the United States to pass adequate legislation to insure the retention on the farms of the Nation of young men trained in agriculture, and that farm trained men now engaged in industry shall be returned to the farm; and be it further

Resolved, That work on the farm by men of military age shall be recognized as work essential to the defense of the Nation; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted by the Chief Clerk of the House to the President of the United States, the presiding officers of each House of Congress and to each United States Senator and Congressman from Pennsylvania.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

NAYS—0

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, in order to keep the record clear I do not want to be recorded as voting on this particular bill, as there is a question of personal interest involved.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman has stated that he has a personal interest in the bill and wishes not to be recorded as voting on this bill.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I do not want to be recorded as voting on this bill since there is a matter of personal interest involved in the passage of the bill.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen, also states that he has a personal interest and wishes not to be recorded as voting on this bill. Neither gentleman will be recorded as voting on the bill.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced, presented a communication in writing from His Excellency the Governor, which was read as follows:

APPROVAL OF HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION No. 9

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, February 16, 1943.

To the Honorable, the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

I have the honor to inform you that I have this day approved and signed House Concurrent Resolution No. 9, requiring the Department of Property and Supplies to require and direct that all printing requiring wire stitching that is done by or for the various departments, boards, commissions or other agencies of the State government shall be done subject to the regulations which have been adopted by various printing concerns and book manufacturers.

EDWARD MARTIN.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. LEONARD. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. LEONARD. Last Wednesday, February 10, Mr. Speaker, while the House had under consideration House Bill 62, being in the Hall of the House and answering to my name when my name was called, the records fail to show that I voted on this bill. I would like to be recorded as voting "aye".

The SPEAKER. The remarks of the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Leonard, under his question of personal privilege will be spread upon the Legislative Journal.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. GATES asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I was about to introduce a resolution this morning, but shall postpone it until next Monday. Because of the nature of the resolution it should be concurrent and should also pass the Senate of Pennsylvania.

There came to the shores of America some few weeks ago one of the greatest women of the world. She came here seeking medical attention. Tomorrow this great Christian woman addresses the Senate of the United States and also the House in Washington, D. C. My resolution will put the State Assembly of Pennsylvania on record as asking this great woman to come and speak before the Joint Assembly of the state of Pennsylvania. This is a resolution that my colleague, Mr. Stuart Helm, and I have thought about ever since we learned that this woman would address the Senate and the House in Washington.

It indeed would be a great honor to the state of Pennsylvania to have her speak to the House and the Senate of this state. I want to explain why I have not introduced this resolution today: out of courtesy to the Senate of the State of Pennsylvania I would like to make this resolution concurrent.

Mr. Speaker, I presumed that every Member here knew of whom I was speaking, but in my enthusiasm I forgot to mention that the woman I am speaking about is Madame Chiang Kai Shek, wife of the Chinese Generalissimo, one of the allies of our country in this great cause that we are now in.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. COHEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I want it known that the minority joins with the majority and with my good friend from Armstrong in wishing that the resolution be put through immediately and that the great lady and gracious lady finds time to address us in Harrisburg.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY SPEAKER

The SPEAKER. The Chair wishes to announce that the Governor's reception will be held next Tuesday evening for the Members of the Legislature and their wives.

Many Members feel that because it is a formal affair, they will not be welcome. We want you to feel that though you are not in formal dress you will be welcome.

THANKS EXTENDED TO MEMBERS

The SPEAKER. The Chair desires to thank the Members of the House for their splendid attendance at this Wednesday's session. It certainly is very encouraging to all your officers.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn until Monday, February 22, 1943, at 9 p. m.

The motion was agreed to, and (at 1:53 p. m.) the House adjourned.

SENATE

MONDAY, February 22, 1943.

The Senate met at 5:00 o'clock, p. m., Eastern War Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor John C. Bell, Jr.) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. EDWIN S. WALLACE, D. D., offered the following prayer:

Our Father in heaven, Thou art the God of the nations of the earth. By Thy fiat they begin, continue and end.

We commemorate today the birth of Thy servant whom Thou didst raise up and equip to be the leader of our Nation in its beginning. Under Thy leadership he brought the colonies through the perils of war and the hardships of poverty. A new nation, dedicated to liberty and the equality of all before the law was established. We of today are the beneficiaries of the sacrifices that he, and all those who served with him, made to found our Nation and to start it on its triumphal course.

May we who have entered into their labors be worthy. They were men and women who believed in the sovereignty of Almighty God. There is no other faith.

We thank Thee for Washington, for his faith, for his sterling character, his love of freedom, his belief in the people, his confidence in the survival and continuance of the Nation. May we emulate him. He prayed for victory and gave his all for it. He was answered. Our prayers for our country now will be answered when they are fervent and our lives are devoted as his were.

O God of nations, preserve our nation, dissipate the clouds of war and bring us just and permanent peace. In the name of the Prince of Peace. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. HEYBURN and Mr. FARRELL, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Mr. Wade asked and obtained leave of absence of Mr. ZIESENHEIM.

He also asked and obtained leave of absence for Mr. SNOWDEN.

He also asked and obtained leave of absence for Mr. TALLMAN.

REMARKS BY THE CHAIR EULOGIZING GEORGE WASHINGTON

The PRESIDENT. Members of the Senate, I think before we enter into the real business of the session today, it might not be amiss to say a few words concerning George Washington:

We are met today on a historic anniversary. The Father of our Country can and should be as much of an example and inspiration to us, his descendants, as he was to the patriots of 1776. George Washington and his followers endured hardships, made sacrifices, braved dangers, and overcame difficulties so mountainous as to make ours pale into insignificance. George Washington was a lover of his country, a man who hated regimentation, a man who was willing to fight and to die for freedom. Today America is once again threatened with regimentation and slavery. Today as never before in the last 75 years, our freedom is threatened both at home and abroad. Once again the free men and women of America are rushing to the colors to defend freedom.

All over the world, in the sky, the sea, and the land, in nearly every corner of the globe, American boys are fighting to preserve freedom. We owe these boys a duty; the duty of seeing that there is preserved for them and their children here in America the freedom for which they are risking their lives abroad. I congratulate you members of the Senate upon your willingness to serve our country in its government in these trying times and I urge you and every other patriotic American citizen to recall and be inspired by the free and unconquerable spirit of George Washington, so that we will defend with all our hearts, and minds, and souls, freedom and the American way of life.

HOUSE MESSAGE

HOUSE BILL FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced presented for concurrence bill of the House, as follows:

House Bill No. 40, entitled:

An Act relating to officers and employes of the Senate and House of Representatives; abolishing certain positions, creating other positions; providing compensation for positions created; changing certain existing compensations; making an appropriation; and ratifying action already taken in relation thereto.

Which was committed to the Committee on Appropriations.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. JASPAN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President and members of the Senate, as a result of many protests made to me during the past week, I am about to make these remarks regarding them.

Recently the Governor of Pennsylvania submitted the name of Dr. Frank Parker to the Senate for confirmation to succeed Richard Beamish as Public Utility Commissioner. Immediately there arose a storm of protest, especially by our colleague, Senator Holland. Senator Holland, among other things, pointed out that Parker was a paid henchman of the Hobson utility interests. The Governor, defending his appointment, in effect, said "Pennsylvania must have sound utilities and must give proper rates to the consumer. On the P. U. C. we want nonpartisan men like Dr. Parker, who has been making researches in the utility field for 30 years. I gave his selection many weeks of consideration and the hardest job was to get him to make a big sacrifice to take the place."

Dr. Parker's work in the utility field for 30 years presupposes skill, training and ability. However, we must of necessity inquire into his connections during that period, and it suggests the question, Has he championed the cause of the utilities to the exclusion of the rate-payer? If so, another question presents itsef. Can he rid himself of the prejudice which would naturally flow from 30 years' connection with utilities in matters affecting them?

From what I have learned and observed thus far, I am inclined to believe that this nomination is utility-dictated. The utilities through their lobbyists are working feverishly to bring about confirmation. Further, the utilities have moved heaven and earth to rid themselves of Commissioner Beamish, who has been a thorn in their sides. Needless, to say, they bid fair to succeed, and since Dr. Parker has been nominated, a feeling of elation has come over the utilities—Beamish is on his way out. Let me ask one simple question: why are the utilities so eager to have Mr. Beamish removed and succeeded by Dr. Parker? The answer is just as plain and simple. Commissioner Beamish has been faithful to his trust in serving the public, and Dr. Parker will serve the utilities first and last.

Mr. President and members of the Senate, an appointment to the P. U. C. is a legislative appointment, unlike executive nominations and other appointments. The legislature has the immemorial and exclusive right to fix rates for future application. For practical purposes it was found necessary that the exercise of such functions should be vested in public service or public utility commissions, and the passing on of this authority, it sanctioned as an exception to the general rule that legislative power cannot be delegated. Public Utility Commissioners are, therefore, the instruments of the legislature, and the legislature is in fact the appointing power. Acts of 1937, P. L. 160, Sec. 1, provides the method by which Commissioners are appointed. Mr. Beamish was appointed by Governor Earle to take office on April 1, 1937 by and with the advice and consent of the Senate for a term of six years, and until his successor shall be duly appointed and qualified. Therefore, Mr. Beamish remains in office until that condition is met, whether we be in or out of session. The end of our session does not create a vacancy; in event that Dr. Parker is not confirmed. May I cite the following cases to support my contention. Com. vs. Benn, 284 Pa. 432. Com. vs. Stewart, 286 Pa. 511. Com. vs. King, 312 Pa. 412, and also the Attorney General's Opinion in 33 D and C, 671.

The utilities realize this, and although I am not a Mr. Pearson or a Mr. Allen, I predict the early introduction of a bill designed to hasten the exit of Mr. Beamish and the entrance of Mr. Parker, or one of his ilk. Utilities don't waste time. They suit the actions to the words, and the words to the actions. They want results, no matter whom it hurts.

Mr. President, ours is the appointing power. The P. U. C. is designed to protect the public. It is, however, fast developing into an agent for the utilities without any regard for the rights of the consumer. It has assumed a public-be-damned attitude, Mr. Beamish, and a few others, however, have given due consideration to the ratepayer.

Mr. Beamish has been a faithful and most competent public servant for many years. He has courageously and consistently championed the cause of the ratepayer. Few men in public or private life possess the training and experience of Mr. Beamish in the field of utility regulation. Time and again, he has exposed the machinations, trickery and schemes of the utilities to mulct the ratepayer. Here are some of the highlights of his career:

1. Proceedings against the Associated Gas and Electric Company headed by Howard C. Hopson, commenced when he was counsel for the former Public Service Commission, interrupted when Associated Gas and Electric removed its books from Pennsylvania. Resumed when the Federal Power Commission agreed to joint sessions with the Pennsylvania Commission. Resulted in complete exposure of A. G. and E. conspiracies, bankruptcy of A. G. and E., conviction and imprisonment of Hopson, reduction of costs of seven Pennsylvania subsidiaries of A. G. and E., and consequent benefits to many thousands of Pennsylvania consumers.

2. Initiated proceedings before the Interstate Commerce Commission to reduce freight rates on bituminous and anthracite coal in Pennsylvania. Legislature appropriated $100,000 for this purpose later. Fight still pending.

3. Compelled Reading Railroad to restore service to siding between anthracite stripping and breaker at Morea, Schuylkill County, thereby giving employment to thousands of persons.

4. Successfully opposed extension of natural gas pipe lines into area served by anthracite industry.

5. Compelled abolition of telephone and radio service to race-track gambling establishments in Pennsylvania.

6. Introduced resolution providing for joint investigation by the Federal Communications Commission and State Commissions of rates of the Bell System—salaries and pension costs, licensure fees, manufacturing costs harged by Western Electric Company, free services, and elephone rate structure generally. This nationwide investigation is proceeding and he is a member of the Committee of five representing the State Associations.

7. Initiated prosecuting movement for reduced telephone rates for soldiers from camps to their homes. This was carried successfully through up to the point where t reached the Secretary of War, who stopped it.

8. Investigation and condemnation of buses of Reading Company and also of buses operated by the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company over various passenger routes. P. P. and L. later abandoned that operation and old the route to present operator.

9. Championed cause of rural electric cooperatives hroughout the state and sat in hearings which brought ervice and reduced rates from the P. P. and L. Company, Western Penn Company, and Pennsylvania Edison Company.

10. Succeeded in forcing improvement at Pennsylvania Railroad station in Harrisburg, including twenty-four hour elevator service and extensive improvement to station in its plaza.

11. Compelled abandonment of gouge by P. P. and L. in Harrisburg area whereby house owners who rented one, wo, or three rooms were reclassified and their rates harply increased over household rates.

12. As head of the Law Bureau of the former Public Service Commission in 1936 it became his duty to prepare and supervise the new Public Utility Law. In writing this law he cooperated with the motor truck industry of Pennsylvania and with various organizations representing consumers throughout the state. This new law has proved one of the most efficient and progressive in the United States.

13. Participated directly and vigorously in all manner of rate deductions. The aggregate of these follows:

	Total
Bridge Tolls	$102,000
Electric	23,150,668
Gas	345,826
Steam Heat	40,696
Telegraph	94,000
Telephone	2,918,882
Water	341,684
Total	$26,993.756

14. There is the story of the electric generating plant t Allentown owned by the Lehigh Valley Transit Company, which was affiliated with Pennsylvania Power and ight Company. This plant was leased for approximately 500,000 a year to the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company, and for nine years stood idle, theoretically as stand-by plant.

The principal expert witness for P. P. and L. testified hat the plant could be put into full operation at one hour's otice.

He declared in a notice to Pennsylvania Power and ight that a theoretical breakdown had occurred and the plant must be put into full operation immediately. Engineering and legal observers of the Commission were placed by him in the plant. The company placed their best mechanical and operating experts in charge and used the finest possible fuel, but was unable to get the plant in full operation. After three days of futile effort, only approximately 24,000 kilowatt hours were being produced out of the plant capacity of 37,000. The company then admitted its failure. The plant was overhauled and reconditioned at great cost, and the rental reduced to a fraction of what it had been. The plant is now finally producing at full capacity.

15. At a recent convention of the National Association of Utility Commissions in St. Louis, he denounced the shady depreciation practices of utilities.

Recently when P. T. C., known as the Philadelphia Traction Co., attempted to obtain an increase in fare, notwithstanding improved business conditions, he exposed unfair methods used by them to obtain said increase.

I am not alone in what I say and in that connection, I quote an article recently appearing in the Patriot, one of our Harrisburg newspapers, as follows:

"TERM ENDING FOR PEOPLE'S ADVOCATE

"Among the rank and file citizens of Pennsylvania who pay bills for water, gas, electricity, ride the buses and the trains and otherwise rate as the customers of public utilities, there is going to be no enthusiasm over the fact that Public Utility Commissioner Richard J. Beamish will not be reappointed after his term expires, March 31.

"Commissioner Beamish has been in truth a people's advocate during his years on the Commission. Where obvious extortion, inexcusable service and other flaws marked the course of the utilities, he did not wait until the aggrieved victims came pleading for consideration. He himself initiated the action.

"This responsibility to act of its own motion to correct abuses in public utility practices has not always characterized the Public Utility and the Public Service Commissions of Pennsylvania. That word "Public" was too often a misnomer. Its use by such an agency is merited only when the agency becomes an instrument for the public welfare rather than a cold court to hear evidence without any further sense of serving the public.

"Mr. Beamish has followed the conviction that the public is entitled to an advocate in utility matters. The public knows it and for that reason the legion of rate payers in the State will miss him."

Small wonder is it that the utilities are opposed to him.

The complexities of present-day life and the problems of the post-war period require men of competence and experience to guide our people safely through the dangerous waters which lie ahead. And the P. U. C. has such a vital role in the social and economic well-being of our people, it is most important that our future be entrusted in tried and capable hands. Beamish is the man.

It has long been the practice in our Federal Administration to give proper recognition to the minority political party in all appointments to the important Federal agencies dealing with public utilities, such as the Interstate Commerce Commission, Federal Power Commission, the Securities and Exchange Commission. And during the present emergency, it is common knowledge that appointments to various governmental agencies are being made without regard to political considerations. The rule which now prevails, and most properly so, is that the welfare of the American people transcends party lines. Again I repeat, Beamish is the man.

May I state that our new governor has ushered in his new administration in a singularly auspicious manner. In his inaugural address he evinced a desire to administer the affairs of our state in a most efficient manner, and to promote a cordial and co-operative relationship between Republicans and Democrats in the Legislature during the present national emergency. The Democrats have already demonstrated through their acts their willingness to cooperate. It falls to our lot to appoint and let us do so conscientiously I am quite sure we will.

In conclusion, may I ask, does Mr. Parker measure up to the standards set by Mr. Beamish? Does Mr. Parker properly qualify for the office of Public Utility Commissioner? Can't it best be determined through a committee consisting of 5 Republicans and 5 Democrats to inquire into his qualifications and hold a public hearing for that purpose? I take it that the Governor is sincere, and I hope my friends on the other side will show their sincerity by adopting the following resolution:

RESOLUTION URGING APPOINTMENT OF COMMITTEE TO DETERMINE QUALIFICATIONS OF DR. FRANK S. PARKER

Mr. JASPAN offered the following resolution which was twice read:

In the Senate of Pennsylvania, February 22, 1943.

Whereas, The Honorable Richard J. Bearmish was appointed a member of the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission in 1937, to serve for a term of six years and until his successor should be appointed and qualified, and said six-year term is about to expire; and

Whereas, Governor Edward Martin, on February 15th, 1943, nominated Dr. Frank S. Parker for a full term of ten years from April 1st, 1943, to succeed Mr. Beamish, and has submitted said nomination to the Pennsylvania State Senate for confirmation; and

Whereas, It has been publicly charged and bruited about that Dr. Parker's past record strongly indicates that he is definitely pro-utility, and has little or no regard for the interests of the public; and

Whereas, It has repeatedly been declared by the courts of last resort that the functions of the Public Utility Commission are legislative, and that its members are agents of the General Assembly, in fact, appointed by it; and the present appointment, therefore, vitally concerns us as representatives of the people of the Commonwealth; and

Whereas, The Public Utility Commission, as agent of the Legislature, is to all intents and purposes a representative of the public, and the conduct of its members affects every citizen or non-citizen, either directly or indirectly; and

Whereas, It is essential to the welfare and progress of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania that men be appointed to this particular Commission, who are best qualified to serve the best interests of the public; therefore be it

Resolved, That a committee of ten members, consisting of five Republican Senators and five Democratic Senators, be appointed by the President Pro Tempore, to inquire into and determine the qualifications of Dr. Frank S. Parker that either qualify or disqualify him to or from serving as Public Utility Commissioner, and hold one or more public hearings at which every interested person may have an opportunity to be heard; said committee to report its findings and recommendations to the Senate at its present session; and be it further

Resolved, That the committee shall have power to issue subpoenas under the hand and seal of its chairman requesting and commanding any person or persons to appear before them and to answer such questions touching matters properly being inquired into by the committee, and to produce such books, papers, records and documents as the committee may deem necessary. Such subpoena may be served upon any person, and shall have the force and effect of subpoenas issued out of the courts of this Commonwealth. Each member of the committee shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations to witnesses appearing before the committee. Any person who shall wilfully neglect or refuse to testify before said committee or to produce any books, papers, records or documents shall be subject to the penalties provided by the laws of the Commonwealth in such cases.

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the resolution.

MOTION THAT RESOLUTION BE LAID ON TABLE

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President, I ask that the resolution just read be laid on the table for twenty-four hours, in order that it may be printed during that time, so as to give everybody an opportunity to study said resolution.

Mr. WOODRING. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I am going to object to the resolution being laid on the table and move that it be referred to a committee.

First, however, I would like to state that the resolution is entirely out of order. The matter is now before the Committee on Executive Nominations, whose duty it is to investigate appointments of His Excellency, the Governor of Pennsylvania. Any resolution at this time, when a nomination has just recently come to the Senate, is completely out of order.

I do want to say for the benefit of the gentleman from Philadelphia, however, that the Committee on Executive Nominations has found, up to this point, that the Honorable Luther Harr, key man in the administration of His Excellency, George H. Earle, employed this very man to do a very important job for him during his administration, and paid him a sum of money to do it, and the canceled checks are now in the State Treasury. This man must have some real ability, or certainly a man like Luther Harr would never have appointed him to do an important piece of work for him.

RESOLUTION REFERRED TO COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC UTILITIES

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that the resolution submitted by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Jaspan, just read, be referred to the Committee on Public Utilities.

The PRESIDENT. Does the gentleman from Delaware offer that as an amendment?

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I object to the resolution being laid on the table; therefore of necessity it must be referred to committee.

The PRESIDENT. Before the motion of the gentleman rom Delaware can be acted upon, there is a motion before ie Senate by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. aspan, on this resolution, which must be acted upon, iat the resolution be printed and laid on the table for venty-four hours, which has been duly made and econded.

MOTION WITHDRAWN

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President, I withdraw my motion to ay the resolution on the table. I realize that we do not ave the votes on this side, and it is just a question of asting time.

However, Mr. President, I do feel the resolution is an mportant one and it should be printed. I will go along vith the motion of the gentleman from Delaware, that he resolution be referred to a proper committee; is that atisfactory?

The PRESIDENT. The motion of the gentleman from hiladelphia is withdrawn.

Does the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Heyburn, iave a motion that he desires to make?

MOTION RENEWED

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I have made a motion hat this resolution be referred to the Committee on ublic Utilities.

The PRESIDENT. Does the gentleman from Delaware vish to press his motion?

Mr. HEYBURN. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. TAYLOR. I second the motion, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. It has been moved and duly seconded hat the resolution submitted by the Senator from Philadelphia, Senator Jaspan, be referred to the Committee on ublic Utilities.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President, I think that this resolution should be printed for the benefit of all Senators. As I understand, there is no objection to that.

The PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Delaware iave any objection to the request of the gentleman from hiladelphia, Senator Jaspan.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, according to my understanding of the rules, the resolution would be printed when reported from committee. However, I have no objection to this resolution being printed, as long as there are not two many copies—I do not think many people would like to read it—as that would just be creating a lot of useless expenditure.

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President, to my mind this is something a little more than literature; this is something which affects every family in the State of Pennsylvania; I dare say ten million people will be affected, and therefore it is something a little more than literature.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

The PRESIDENT. The motion is carried and the resolution is referred to the Committee on Public Utilities.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE SENATE

Mr. HOLLAND asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. HOLLAND. Last Monday, the name of Dr. Frank Parker, of Philadelphia, was sent to the Senate by the Governor as nominee for membership on the Public Utility Commission of Pennsylvania.

At that time, I told the Senate that investigation would show that Parker was manifestly unfit for the office to which he had been named—and I further stated that this body would fail in its duty to the people of the State should it concur in his nomination.

I inquired what "influence" had handed the Governor this professional "special pleader" for public utilities companies, including the companies operated and exploited by Howard Hopson, the utilities racketeer sent to Federal prison for his fraudulent dealings with utilities investors and utilities consumers. I wondered who had convinced the Governor that this "fee-fattened" witness—who always bore witness for higher rates—would make a fit member of a body whose duty to the Commonwealth is the regulation of utility rates in the protection of the public interest.

I still don't know the answers to those questions—but I do know a good deal more about Parker—much of it from Parker's own lips in sworn testimony in courts of record.

Parker is a funny-money man—employed by public utility companies to do tricks with a dollar. He comes equipped with charts, with graphs, with cycles, with tables of logarithms—all to prove that utility rates should go up. He says that—for anybody who pays him—in Idaho, in Utah, in Oregon, in New York, in West Virginia, and in Pennsylvania.

He can pump more water into a valuation than flows down the Susquenhanna in flood time!

Setting him up as a watch-dog of utility rates is like putting a weasel in charge of a hen-house.

For him to regulate utilities in the public interest is a psychological impossibility. He would have to admit to himself and to the world that his testimony in a score of cases was not the truth, not the whole truth, not any part of the truth, so help him God.

He would have to serve on a Commission which has unanimously decided that his hired testimony is—"highly theoretical and based neither upon knowledge of the actual experience of the company, nor upon investigation of the particular conditions which would determine the cost of financing."

The Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission said these words in an order on May 13, 1940—and the Republican members of the Commission, John Siggins, Jr., and Ralph W. Thorne, concurred in the order which B. Frank Morgal, the third Republican Member—then Chief of the Bureau of Accounts, and a one-time student of Dr. Parker, recommended to the Commission.

The P.U.C. said further:

"We believe acceptance of the estimate of respondent's engineer computed at 2 per cent of reproduction cost, rather than the 10 per cent determination of respondent's witness Parker, is also more consonate with 3 per cent allowance of the Pennsylvania Superior Court."

In this case, it was the Perkasie Sewer Company which paid Dr. Parker his witness fee—and the good doctor was so grateful that he went five times as far as the company's own engineer, and more than three times as far as the Superior Court in estimating the costs of financing a utility development.

I wonder if Mr. Siggins and Mr. Thorne and now Mr. Morgal have since changed their minds about the qualifications and the intellectual honesty of the man whom the Chief Executive of their party now wishes to put on the tribunal beside them?

I now present Dr. Frank Parker—described by himself to the United States Third Circuit Court of Appeals: Dr. Parker speaks:

"I was employed at various times to make studies of the cost of obtaining money and certain of the non-physical elements of value of the Idaho Power Co., an electric light and power company with extensive properties in Utah, Idaho and Wyoming; the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company in Pennsylvania; and the Peoples Natural Gas Company of Pittsburgh . . . I made investigations into the financial affairs of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway Company, the Missouri Pacific Railroad System, the Pere Marquette Railway Company, the Virginia Railway Company, the International Railway Company of Buffalo, New York, the Dayton Power and Light Company of Ohio, and the Natural Gas Company of West Virginia for the purpose of ascertaining the intangible elements of value of these utilities."

And I further quote Dr. Parker:

"In all the foregoing cases, the results of my investigations were presented to the courts or public utility commissions before which the rate or valuation proceeding took place."

Only one thing Dr. Parker forgot to add. His valuations were always directed at the establishment of higher rates to the utility company's customers.

Let's look into some of the companies who hired Parker to inflate their valuations.

We find a series of strange coincidences by which every company he mentioned to the court which operates in Pennsylvania, now is in litigation before the Public Utility Commission—litigation which can mean millions of dollars in extra profits to the companies which employed Parker—or—millions of dollars in savings to the people of this State.

First—the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company.

This huge corporation extends through Luzerne, Schuylkill and Northumberland counties. It goes from Harrisburg to Stroudsburg, dips down to Lancaster, includes Lehigh and Northampton counties in its rich territory. The City of Bethlehem in 1935 began proceedings to force this Company to reduce its rate proceedings, in which the Commission joined. After eight years, the case is now in its final phase, almost ready for decision—a decision which will, as I said a moment ago, mean either great profits to the company or great savings to the consumers.

Like "Superman," Frank Parker arrives just at the critical moment when his old employer is in difficulties

Next, take the Peoples Natural Gas Company—another company whose valuations Frank Parker was paid to inflate.

The Commission has ordered this company to pay an enormous rebate to the consumers of Pittsburgh and the other districts in Western Pennsylvania which it serves The company has $4,000,000 in escrow in a Pittsburgh bank ready to pay out to customers it overcharged if the Commission successfully defends its order before the Superior Court.

The Peoples Natural Gas case will be a yardstick by which other companies in its service area will be judged—and as that case goes, so will the fortunes of those families in Western Pennsylvania which buy their gas from Manufacturers Light and Heat and from the Equitable Gas Company.

Right in the middle of this critical case, who should appear as the Governor's nominee to the Commission but the gas company's old and trusted friend—Frank Parker.

The Republican Party has been going up and down the country burying Horatio Alger—but that hero can't be dead, not while men like Parker can come up from nowhere to the rescue.

The County of Allegheny, the City of Pittsburgh, the City of Altoona, the Borough of Tyrone and many other municipalities are all officially concerned in the Peoples Natural Gas Company case. I wonder if the Governor ever thought to consult the elected representatives of the people in these communities, or any community in the State, as to the type of man that mayors, and city councilmen, and burgesses believe can best protect the public interest which is reposed in their hands?

Now we come to Philadelphia, having gone east to Bethlehem and west to Pittsburgh.

In Philadelphia, the traction company is called the Philadelphia Transportation Company and it is operated by Mitten Men and Management. Mitten Men and Management want an increase in fares—in bus fares, in trolley fares, in subway fares, in elevated fares in Philadelphia. They are enjoying the enormous increase in traffic which comes with war industry and with the shutdown on private cars—but—please, Mr. Commissioners, we would like an increase in fares too. Wars only come once in every generation and we haven't much time to lose, say Mitten Men and Management.

The P. U. C. has very rightly rejected their demand for an increase in fares—and the company is fighting the P. U. C. order in the Superior Court.

Where does Parker come in? I'll tell you. Remember that Buffalo company he worked for—the International Railway Company of Buffalo, it was called. Wonders will never cease—it happens to be a Mitten operated system too.

And, in the Buffalo case, where Parker was a witness, the Public Service Commission of New York disregarded his testimony and ordered his clients out of New York State. The New York Court of Appeals has recently upheld the Commission's order.

But, if the nomination of the Governor should be allowed to stand—the Mitten Management's rejected pleader in New York will be transfigured into its stern regulator in Pennsylvania.

Here are three important cases in litigation—the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company; the Peoples Natural Gas Company; the Philadelphia Transportation Company.

Parker has served every one of these companies. Can he serve the people too? Is there more than "coincidence" in his arrival just at the time when every one of these cases is in its most critical phase?

Here is a man who, through his active life, has maintained a point of view and has accepted payment for expressing that point of view. Will he change his whole outlook if this body consents to his appointment to the Public Utility Commission?

Most of his breath for the last 20 years has gone into blowing up balloons called "utility valuations." Is he going to begin letting the air out of his windbags now?

He opposed the Wheeler-Rayburn Act, breaking up the huge and crooked holding companies which mulcted utility customers and investors. He testified that the act to break up holding companies which had no operating unity or excuse for existence was "a sharp and specific stumbling block to public utilities in their search for money with which to build and extend their properties."

He believes that bankers should be allowed to skim off $12.35 out of every $100 they advance to finance public utility construction, and he has so testified. Then he believes that this financial "squeeze" should be figured in the monthly bill that goes to the utility's customer. He so testified in the Cheltenham and Abington Sewerage Company Case, where he flatly said that the "bedrock minimum cost of financing . . . would be at lease 10 per cent."

He believes that the section of our Public Utility Act which directs public utility companies to make repayments to rate payers, whom they have over charged, is unfair to the utilities. He believes that the rebate should come in some kind of a boloney or "commodity" dollar instead of in the same kind of U. S. currency in which the overcharge was paid.

This Senate will be untrue to itself and false to the people of this State if it advises and consents to the nomination of Frank Parker to be a Member of the Public Utility Commission.

I have given you some of the reasons why he is unfit for the office. There are more—but investigation takes time. I expect to give you additional data on Parker as the facts of this strange selection come to light.

These things are established—and they are damning.

Parker is a professional witness for utility companies—and one of his clients was a company controlled by the notorious Howard Hopson.

Parker has served as a paid witness for the three companies whose cases are now in litigation before the Commission, namely, the Pennsylvania Power and Light, the Peoples Natural Gas, and the management of the Philadelphia Transportation. These cases are the most important now pending.

His philosophy in utility matters has been repudiated by the P. U. C. itself and by the Courts of Pennsylvania and by the Courts of the United States.

He opposes the Federal laws regulating utility holding companies and he is not in sympathy with one of the most vital sections of our State Act regulating public utilities.

His appointment is incredible except on the theory that it takes a thief to catch a thief—and we have, as yet, no evidence that Dr. Parker is ready to turn State's evidence.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE SENATE

Mr. BARR asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I see that the Majority Floor Leader is in his seat and I was hoping that the Republican State Chairman would be in his seat while I made these remarks.

I do not agree entirely with my colleague, Senator Jaspan, I do agree with what he says about Richard Beamish.

I would like to tell the majority party I believe that this appointment does belong to the Republican party, and just as soon as they send a man's name over who has the qualifications, I think that they will have no trouble in getting the votes on this side.

NOTICE OF COMMITTEE MEETING

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, I am not sure that what I am about to say comes under the present order of business, under which the Chair has been kind enough to permit me to address the Senate.

I wish to say, as everybody knows, that the Committee on Labor and Industry will hold a meeting tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, at which time we will consider Senate Bill No. 46, introduced by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Woodward, which relates to labor unions.

Since the previous announcement of this meeting was made, a great many people representing labor have come to me and said that Room 401, where this meeting is scheduled to be held, is too small to accommodate the people who will attend this meeting.

I therefore move you, Mr. President, that permission be granted to the Committee on Labor and Industry to hold a meeting tomorrow morning in the Senate Chamber, at 10 o'clock a. m.

Mr. McQUIDDY. I second the motion, Mr. President.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. STIEFEL, from the Committee on Appropriations, reported as amended, House Bill No. 40, entitled:

An Act relating to officers and employes of the Senate and House of Representatives; abolishing certain positions, creating other positions; providing compensation for positions created; changing certain existing compensations; making an appropriation; and ratifying action already taken in relation thereto.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. HALUSKA asked and obtained unanimaus consent to address the Senate.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, this has been a Philadelphia show up until now, but now I thought I might inject a little country stuff into it.

Speaking of committee meetings, I must disagree with my colleague from Philadelphia, Senator Stiefel. One time during this session I have been approached by the chairman of a certain committee asking for my consent to report a bill out. I see no reason why any chairman of any committee should approach Senators individually. Up until this session, notice of every committee meeting was posted, we were notified in advance. Many of us have work back home, the session has been very dull up until now and I find no fault with anyone going home. If we know in advance that there is important business to come before this body, if we are informed beforehand that the following day we might have a meeting, it will give us opportunity to prepare for that meeting, and I think in the future we should follow out the procedure of this Senate, as we did during previous sessions, give us opportunity to know just when committee meetings will be called and we will have a right to be present.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Mr. HOMSHER read in his place and presented to the Chair, Senate Bill No. 177, entitled:

An Act to amend section three hundred one of the act, approved the fifth day of December, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six (1937, P. L. 2897), entitled "An act establishing a system of unemployment compensation to be administered by the Department of Labor and Industry and its existing and newly created agencies with personnel (with certain exceptions) selected on a civil service basis; requiring employers to keep records and make reports, and certain employers to pay contributions based on payrolls to provide moneys for the payment of compensation to certain unemployed persons; providing procedure and administrative details for the determination, payment and collection of such contributions and the payment of such compensation; providing for cooperation with the Federal Government and its agencies; creating certain special funds in the custody of the State Treasurer; and prescribing penalties," providing for the payment of contributions by employers in accordance with an experience rating system; and providing for and regulating such experience rating system and the terms and procedure to effectuate the same.

Which was committed to the Committee on Labor and Industry.

Messrs. MALLERY, COLEMAN and STEVENSON read in their places and presented to the Chair, Senate Bill No. 178, entitled:

An Act making an appropriation to the McKeesport Day Nursery, McKeesport, Pennsylvania.

Which was committed to the Committee on Appropriations.

He also read in his place and presented to the Chair, Senate Bill No. 185, entitled:

An Act to further amend clause (c) of paragraph nineteen of section one thousand two hundred ten of the act, approved the eighteenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred eleven (P. L. 309), entitled "An act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, together with the provisions by which it shall be administered, and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof; providing revenue to establish and maintain the same, and the method of collecting such revenue; and repealing all laws, general, special or local, or any parts thereof, that are or may be inconsistent therewith," by providing that school districts of the third class which are in townships shall hereafter be entitled to receive annual payments from the Superintendent of Public Instruction for certain closed or discontinued schools.

Which was committed to the Committee on Education.

Mr. KEPHART read in his place and presented to the Chair, Senate Bill No. 186, entitled:

An Act to add section one thousand one hundred and nine to the act approved the twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine (P. L. 872), entitled "An act to consolidate, amend and revise the Penal Laws of the Commonwealth," by prescribing additional penalties in the case of the commission of certain crimes during blackouts, or air-raids, and the confusion resulting thereafter.

Which was committed to the Committee on Law and Order.

Messrs. STEVENSON and COLEMAN read in their places and presented to the Chair, Senate Bill No. 187, entitled:

An Act amending, revising and consolidating the law providing when, how, and upon what property, and to what extent liens shall be allowed for taxes and water rents or rates, lighting rates, power rates, sewer rates and sewer rental charges, the filing of claims therefor, the adjudication of such claims, the entry of judgment thereon, sales of real property, including seated and unseated lands, subject to the lien of such judgments and tax claims, the disposition of the proceeds thereof, including state taxes and municipal claims recovered and the redemption of property; regulating judicial sales and the distribution of the proceeds thereof; providing for the discharge and divestiture by tax and rate sales of all estates in property and of mortgages and liens on such property and the proceedings therefor; creating a Tax and Rate Claim Bureau in each county, except a county of the first class, and in each city of the first class, to act as agent for taxing districts; defining its powers and duties with respect to the administration of this act, including sales of property, the management of property taken in sequestration, and the management, sale and disposition of property sold to counties and cities as trustees, and of property heretofore sold to the county commissioners, taxing districts and trustees at tax sales; providing a method for the service of process and notice on certain nonresidents of this Commonwealth; imposing duties on taxing districts and their officers, and on tax collectors and receivers of taxes and certain expenses on counties and cities of the first class in connection with the administration of this act and for their reimbursement by taxing districts; providing a procedure for the determination of the uniform system of law to be employed in cities of the first class and in counties by all taxing districts thereof for the collection of delinquent taxes and rates; and repealing existing laws.

Which was committed to the Committee on Municipal Government.

Messrs. GOURLEY and DENT read in their places and presented to the Chair, Senate Bill No. 188, entitled:

An Act to further amend subsection (f) of section forty-nine of the act, approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred and seventeen (P. L. 447), entitled, as amended "An act relating to the administration and distribution of the estates of decedents and of minors, and of trust estates; including the appointment, bonds, rights, powers, duties, liabilities, accounts, discharge and removal of executors, administrators, guardians, and trustees, herein designated as fiduciaries; the administration and distribution of the estates of presumed decedents; widow's and children's exemptions; debts of decedents, rents of real estate as assets for payment thereof, the lien thereof, sales and mortgages of real estate for the payment thereof, judgments and executions therefor, and the discharge of real estate from the lien thereof; contracts of decedents for the sale or purchase of real estate; legacies, including legacies charged on land; the discharge of residuary estates and of real estate from the lien of legacies and other charges; the appraisement of real estate devised at a valuation; the ascertainment of the curtilage of dwelling houses or other buildings devised; the abatement and survival of actions, and the substitution of executors and administrators therein; the survival of causes of action and suits thereupon by or against fiduciaries; investments by fiduciaries; the organization of corporations to carry on the business of decedents; the audit and review of accounts of fiduciaries; refunding bonds; transcripts to the court of common pleas of balances due by fiduciaries; the rights, powers, and liabilities of nonresident and foreign fiduciaries; the appointment, bonds, rights, powers, duties, and liabilities of trustees durante absentia; the recording and registration of decrees, reports and other proceedings, and the fees therefor; appeals in certain cases; and, also, generally dealing with the jurisdiction, powers and procedure of the orphans' court in all matters relating to fiduciaries concerned with the estates of decedents," by increasing the amount of wages due a deceased employe which may be paid to certain persons by the employer without the necessity for the issuance of letters testamentary or letters of administration.

Which was committed to the Committee on Judiciary General.

Mr. GOURLEY read in his place and presented to the Chair, Senate Bill No. 189, entitled:

An Act to amend section five hundred twelve of the act, approved the second day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 1278), entitled "An act relating to counties of the second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth classes; and revising, amending and consolidating the laws relating thereto," by clarifying the provisions thereof which prohibits the taking, by eminent domain, of any church property, graveyard or cemetery.

Which was committed to the Committee on County Government.

TIME OF NEXT MEETING

Mr. HALUSKA, offered the following resolution, which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, February 22, 1943.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That when the Senate adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday evening, March 1, 1943, at four o'clock; and when the House of Representatives adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday evening, March 1, 1943, at nine o'clock.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

COMMUNICATION REFERRED

The Chair cleared his table and laid before the Senate Assembly Joint Resolution No. 5 of the Forty-first Session of the Legislature of Nevada, memorializing the Congress of the United States to amend the Social Security Act to permit old age pensioners to perform casual labor, as follows:

ASSEMBLY JOINT RESOLUTION No. 5 of the
FORTY-FIRST SESSION OF THE LEGISLATURE OF NEVADA

Memorializing the Congress of the United States to amend social security act to permit old-age pensioners to perform casual labor.

Whereas, Our American people, collectively as a nation, are waging the greatest all-out contest of all time; and

Whereas, The able-bodied manhood of America is either under arms or engaged in producing the sinews of war; and

Whereas, This has resulted in an acute labor shortage, threatening curtailment of the vital food supplies of our nation, and increasing the cost of living; and

Whereas, It is next to impossible for old-age pensioners to live on what they are now receiving; and

Whereas, They desire as patriotic American citizens to do their part by contributing to this great war effort to the best of their abilities; now, therefore, be it.

Resolved by the Assembly and the Senate of the State of Nevada, Jointly, That the Congress of the United States be and it is hereby memorialized, to amend, or at least suspend for the duration of the war and a reasonable time thereafter, the present restrictions in the social security act to the end that any person who receives or is eligible to receive old-age assistance shall be permitted to do and perform odd jobs of labor, caretaking, and similar classes of casual work not in the general course of a trade or business, at such rates of pay commensurate with their abilities to perform the same, but in any event, in an amount not to exceed twenty-five ($25) dollars in any one month without being penalized therefor; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this joint resolution be transmitted by the secretary of the State of Nevada to the president of the United States, to the vice-president of the United States, to the speaker of the House of Representatives, to our congressional representatives in the Congress of the United States and to the presiding officers of each state legislature now in session.

DENVER DICKERSON,
Speaker of the Assembly.

VAIL PITTMAN,
President of the Senate.

E. C. MULCAHY,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

F. BUCKINGHAM,
Secretary of the Senate.

State of Nevada—EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT
Approved February 10, 1943, at 3:50 p. m.
E. P. CARVILLE, Governor

Which was referred to the Committee on Labor and Industry.

The PRESIDENT. Perhaps the Chair should add that this resolution came in an envelope without any accompanying communication, addressed to the President of the Senate.

COMMUNICATIONS FROM THE GOVERNOR

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced presented communication in writing from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, which was read as follows:

APPROVED AND SIGNED SENATE BILL No. 55 PRINTER'S No. 9

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, February 18, 1943.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

I have the honor to inform you that I have this day approved and signed Senate Bill No. 55, Printer's No. 9, entitled "An Act To amend section one of the act approved the fifth day of August one thousand nine hundred forty-one (P. L. 802) entitled 'An act creating a commission to make a study and investigation of the various problems related to the surface subsidence frequently caused by the mining of anthracite coal; directing such commission to make a report and recommendations to the General Assembly; conferring certain powers upon such commission, including the power to issue subpoenas, administer oaths and affirmations, retain employes and expend funds, and making an appropriation' extending the time within which the commission is required to make its report."

EDWARD MARTIN.

NOMINATION BY THE GOVERNOR

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE ON EXECUTIVE NOMINATIONS

He also presented communication in writing from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, which was read as follows, and referred to the Committee on Executive Nominations.

MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, February 22, 1943.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

In conformity with law, I have the honor hereby to nominate for the advice and consent of the Senate Charles H. Young, 314 Wallace Avenue, New Castle, Lawrence County, for appointment as a member of the Board of Trustees of Slippery Rock State Teachers' College, until the third Tuesday of January, 1945, and until his successor shall have been appointed and qualified, vice Thomas W. Dickey, deceased.

EDWARD MARTIN.

NOMINATIONS BY THE GOVERNOR

NOTARIES PUBLIC

He also, presented in writing from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, nominations for appointment as Notaries Public.

CONSIDERATION OF NOTARIES PUBLIC

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now proceed to the consideration of nominations for appointment as Notaries Public, sent to the Senate, by His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, on February 22, 1943.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The nominations were read as follows:

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,

CALENDAR

BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. BECKER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 84, on final passage entitled:

An Act to amend paragraph A of section four hundred one of the act, approved the fifteenth day of May one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 565), entitled "An act relating to the powers and duties of the Department of Banking and the Secretary of Banking in exercising supervision over and taking possession of and conducting or liquidating the business and property of, corporations, associations, and persons receiving deposits or otherwise transacting a banking business, corporations acting as fiduciaries, and building and loan associations; providing for the payment of the expenses of the Department of Banking by supervised corporations, associations, or persons, and appropriating the Banking Department Fund; authorizing the Department of Banking, under certain circumstances, to examine corporations, associations, or persons affiliated, or having business transactions with supervised corporations, associations or persons; authorizing appeals to the Supreme Court, and prescribing and limiting the powers and duties of certain other courts and their prothonotaries, registers of wills, recorders of deeds, and certain State departments, commissions, and officers; authorizing certain local public officers and State departments to collect fees for services rendered under this act; providing penalties; and repealing certain acts and parts of acts," by requiring the Department of Banking to examine all institutions thoroughly at least once every two years, instead of each year as now provided

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. BECKER. In view of the discussion which took place with respect to this bill on second reading, I think I should state that the purpose in asking that it go over in its order is for the purpose of inserting what seems to be a necessary amendment as to the form but not as to the substance of the bill.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Becker.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Lebanon permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BECKER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, in view of the statement made by the Senator from Lebanon, Mr. Becker, would it not be wise to send this bill back to committee and have it amended in committee.

Mr. BECKER. I feel, Mr. President, that it is not necessary to send the bill back to committee for the purpose of making the proposed amendment. The bill now provides that the proposed amendment shall be effective for the duration of the war and six months thereafter. It appears that provision has been written into this amendment in such a way that there may be some question as to whether or not the duration of the war and six months thereafter will not terminate the effect of the entire section of the bill, instead of merely the amendment.

I think that type of amendment, as I have said, as to form and not to substance of the bill, can readily be made on the floor. Therefore, Mr. President, I am obliged to object to the bill returning to committee.

Mr. HALUSKA. The bill, Mr. President, is now on final passage and a bill can not be amended on final passage; the vote by which it passed third reading must be reconsidered. It could be amended on the floor, of course, but the vote by which it passed third reading must be reconsidered.

Mr. BECKER. That is correct, Mr. President. I voted with the majority and when amendments are prepared I propose to move that the vote by which this bill passed third reading be reconsidered.

And the question recurring.

Will the Senate agree that Senate Bill No. 84 go over in its order?

It was agreed to.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 34, on third reading, entitled:

An Act prescribing temporary emergency war provisions with respect to the administration of certain provisions of the school laws of this Commonwealth relating to days for schools to be in session, closing schools temporarily, assignment and reassignment of teachers and temporary farm and domestic employment certificates for certain pupils, and authorizing boards of school directors (or boards of public instruction), with the approval of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, to put such provisions into operation and to suspend the provisions of existing school laws inconsistent therewith upon findings by such boards and department and the State Council of Defense go over in its order, as the amendments are not quite ready.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 85, entitled:

A Joint Resolution making application to the Congress of the United States to call a convention for proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, prohibiting the imposition of conditions upon grants of moneys and the invasion of the states rights.

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his point of order.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I am a little confused as to how to proceed on this bill, because the bill appears on the third reading calendar and it is my recollection it was on the second reading calendar last week and went over in its order.

If it is proper, I should like to move that the vote by which this bill passed second reading, and which appears on the third reading calendar, be reconsidered, so as to get it back on the second reading calendar again for the purpose of amendment.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator from Philadelphia vote.

Mr. KEPHART. With the majority, Mr. President. No vote was taken on second reading. The bill went over in its order and now appears erroneously on the third reading calendar. If there was a vote taken, I voted "aye".

The PRESIDENT. The Chair has had the record checked and the record shows that this bill passed second reading and is properly on third reading. If the Senator from Philadelphia desires to offer an amendment, the vote by which this bill passed second reading must be reconsidered.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Cambria will state his point of order.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. Prseident, if my memory serves me correctly, when this bill passed second reading, the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, was not present, and therefore he is not in a position to make a motion to bring the bill back to second reading.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair again asks the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, how did he vote on this bill on second reading.

Mr. KEPHART. It never passed second reading, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair has ruled that it did pass second reading.

Mr. KEPHART. All right then, Mr. President, I voted "aye" on the passage of this bill on second reading, and I was here last week.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I have a very vivid recollection of the action of the Senate on this bill last week, when it came up on second reading. I have in mind that I think the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, had intended to ask the sponsor of the bill a question or two. I rose to my feet to ask that it go over on second reading, but some one of my colleagues on the Republican side beat me to it.

I think, Mr. President, there was an error on the part of the Clerk, if I may so suggest, as my record shows that the bill went over in order on second reading.

The PRESIDENT. For the information of the gentleman from Lackawanna, I have had the matter looked up, but if the gentleman wishes it again verified, I will have it verified again. Is that what the gentleman from Lackawanna desires?

Mr. COLEMAN. Yes, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. I have again had the record checked, and the bill appears on third reading.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, may I direct the attention of the distinguished gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, to page 399 of the Legislative Journal?

The PRESIDENT. Which states, does it not, that the bill passed second reading?

Mr. WALKER. On that page, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, addressed the Chair and said, Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 85, on third reading, go over in its order.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, the Calendar shows that the last day, on which this bill was on second reading was Wednesday, February 3. It first appeared on third reading on Monday, February 8.

The PRESIDENT. The Journal shows does it not, that it passed second reading.

Mr. GELTZ. I have not seen the Journal, Mr. President, I just have the Calendar before me.

The PRESIDENT. For the information of the gentleman from Lackawanna, Senator Coleman, the Chair has twice had the record checked and the Journal shows that on February 3, this bill passed second reading.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I am on my feet to admit my error. I think what happened, Mr. President, is that on Tuesday, February 16, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, moved that it go over on second reading, and on February 17, the day after, when it was on third reading, I asked that it go over on third reading, so that the error was that it still should be on second reading. It was on third reading last Wednesday in error, because it should have remained on second reading. I am in error when I say that I asked that it remain on second reading. I asked last week that it go over in order on third reading, but I think it was there as the result of an error.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair has had the record examined twice and must rule that the Journal is correct.

RECONSIDERATION OF SENATE BILL No. 85

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 85, passed second reading.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I voted "aye".

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I voted "aye".

The motion was agreed to.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second reading.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I desire to offer amendments to Senate Bill No. 85.

The amendments were read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend bill, page 2, line 9 by inserting between the words "condition" and "as" the word "except"; Amend bill, page 2, lines 12 and 13 by striking out the words "or the making of such grant or part thereof"; Amend bill, page 2, line 13 by inserting after the words "impose any" the word "such".

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

They were agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section as amended?

It was agreed to.

The second section was read and agreed to.

The title was read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

BILLS OVER IN ORDER

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, in absence of the sponsor I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 52, on second reading, entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to article nine of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, by adding thereto section eighteen.

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. JONES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 80, on second reading, entitled:

An Act to repeal the act approved the twenty-first day of March, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine, (P. L. 34), entitled "An act authorizing the judges of the courts of common pleas and orphans' courts in counties of the third class to employ stenographers, typists and clerks to facilitate the business of the courts, and to provide for the payment of their compensation by the county, and validating former employments and payments therefor."

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 103, on second reading, entitled:

An Act authorizing the common pleas judges and the county commissioners jointly to create medical clinics for the examination of certain persons convicted of the commission of a crime prior to the sentencing thereof, as a means of decreasing the number of habitual offenders; providing for the creation of joint medical clinics among the several counties; and imposing the costs of maintaining and operating such clinics upon the county or counties creating the same.

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President in absence of the sponsor I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 108, on second reading, entitled:

An Act to authorize cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships and school districts to file suggestions of nonpayment and averments of default or to sue out writs of scire facias on certain tax or municipal claims and to revive judgments where the lien of such claims or the judgments thereon have been lost, and providing for the reinstatement of the liens of such claims and judgments.

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 116, entitled:

An Act to further amend section one of the act, approved the twenty-fourth day of July, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen (P. L. 1013), entitled "An act regulating the issuance of licenses to marry; prohibiting the issuance of such licenses to certain persons; regulating the time during which licenses shall be valid, and the time when returns shall be made of marriages solemnized to the clerk of the orphans' court; and prescribing the duties of the clerk of the orphans' court," by providing that, during the continuation of the present war, the three day waiting period shall not be required in any case in which one of the applicants for a marriage license is in the armed forces of the United States.

And said bill having been read at length the second time,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I desire to offer the following amendment.

The amendment was read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend bill, page 2, line 24, by striking out the word "courts" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "court."

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section as amended?

It was agreed to.

The second section was read and agreed to.

The title was read and agreed to.

And said bill as amended having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 137, entitled:

An Act to validate and quiet the title to real estate in this Commonwealth held by a foreign corporation unauthorized to hold the same and heretofore conveyed to a citizen of the United States or a corporation authorized to hold such real estate.

And said bill having been read at length the second time,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I desire to offer the following amendments.

The amendments were read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend Senate Bill No. 137, Printer's No. 34, Section 1, page 1, line 3, by striking out the word "April" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "February"; Amend Section 1, page 1, line 4, by striking out the word "one" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "three".

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

They were agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section as amended?

It was agreed to.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, as to Senate Bill No. 137, I can not see the purpose of it, because the Corporation Act of the Business Corporation Law of 1933 gives foreign corporations the right to hold title to real estate just as any domestic corporation, and therefore this bill seems to be unnecessary.

Up until 1933, we had validating acts every two years, but since that time we do not need validating acts, and I should therefore like to interrogate the sponsor of the bill, Mr. Mallery, to find out whether there is any particular special case which is not covered by the corporation law that makes necessary this bill.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I am not prepared to answer the question of the Senator from Philadelphia. Perhaps the Senator from Northampton, Mr. Woodward, would be able to answer. I do not know whether he is or not.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, if this amendment had been to change the year referred to, to prior to 1933, there might be some purpose in the bill, if some prior validating act was not effective as to any transaction before 1933, but since this act is amended now, this proposed act as amended—and I waited to see if that was what was intended—covers from 1943 back, it seems to me that we are confusing unnecessarily a situation that is already well taken care of.

Therefore, Mr. President, may I suggest to the gentleman from Blair that the bill go over in order before it passes second reading, so that it may be properly amended to cover any particular situation that might not be covered by the existing law.

Mr. MALLERY. That is agreeable to me, Mr. President.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 137, on second reading, as amended, go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

MOTION TO READ BILLS THE FIRST TIME

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now proceed to the first reading of all bills reported from committee for the first time at today's session.

Mr. CARR. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL ON FIRST READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the first reading and consideration of House Bill No. 40, entitled:

An Act relating to officers and employes of the Senate and House of Representatives abolishing certain positions creating other positions providing compensation for positions created changing certain existing compensations making an appropriation and ratifying action already taken in relation therto.

And said bill having been read at length the first time,

Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now adjourn until Tuesday, February 23, 1943, at 3:00 o'clock p. m. Eastern War Time.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate adjourned at 7:22 o'clock p. m. Eastern War Time until Tuesday, February 23, 1943, at 3:00 o'clock p. m. Eastern War Time.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

MONDAY, February 22, 1943

The House met at 9 p. m.

The SPEAKER (Ira T. Fiss) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. Lester C. Updegrove, offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, Father of mankind and Lord of all nations, we thank Thee for the favor Thou has shown to our country and the blessing Thou hast richly poured upon her. Especially at this time we render praise to Thee, because Thou didst raise up for America in her day of need an incomparable leader and commander of the people, in the person of Thy servant, George Washington. For his sound manhood, high courage, and generous devotion to the cause of liberty and justice; for the skill in arms with which he defended our country and won victory from defeat; for his loyalty to friends, his forbearance toward enemies, and his deep solicitude for those who fought and worked with him we thank Thee, O Lord. For the unselfish spirit with which he put aside the offer of a crown in the hour of triumph and the patient wisdom with which he labored on the foundation of this great Republic; above all, for his firm faith in Thee, his humble reliance upon Thy help, and his same love of his fellowmen we thank Thee, O Lord. We pray that his memory may never be dimmed, his example never be forgotten in the councils of America. These prayers we humbly offer in Thy name, Father, Son and Holy Spirit. Amen.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Messrs. FINNERTY and O'DARE.

(Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 22.

In the House of Representatives, February 17, 1943.

The presence of vast numbers of American boys in Ireland at this time stresses the necessity for Americans to acquire a more complete knowledge of Irish customs and manners.

This knowledge can best be acquired by a closer association of Irishmen and with Irishmen.

The birthday of St. Patrick, the patron Saint of Ireland, occurs on March 17th, and no more fitting time could be selected for the start of a study of Irish customs; therefore be it

Resolved, (if the Senate concur), That a legislative committee is hereby created consisting of sixteen members of the House of Representatives to be appointed by the Speaker and ten members of the Senate to be appointed by the President pro tempore of the Senate whose duty it shall be to arrange for a fitting and suitable celebration of the birthday of St. Patrick by the members of the General Assembly and their guests.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. WALTON. RESOLUTION No. 23.

In the House of Representatives, February 17, 1943.

Whereas, It is the present war time selective service plan to call for military service all men between the ages of 18 and 38, without regard to the marital or paternal status of the individual; and

Whereas, Hardships will result from the taking of the sole breadwinner away from his wife and children, far greater than in taking of single men and of married men without children; and

Whereas, There is now pending in the Congress of the United States a bill, popularly known as the "Kilday Bill", designed to defer the calling of married men with children until all unmarried men and all married men without children have been called; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby memorializes Congress to enact into law, without delay, the Kilday Bill, so that the deferment of fathers will become effective forthwith, and before men with children have begun to be called; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be forwarded by the Chief Clerk of this House to the President and Vice-President of the United States, to the Speaker of the House of Representatives of Congress, and to each Senator and Congressman from this Commonwealth.

Referred to the Committee on Federal Relations.

By Messrs. LICHTENWALTER and COHEN.

(Not Printed.)

In the House of Representatives, February 17, 1943.

Resolved, That Monday, March 15, 1943 be fixed as the last day for introduction of bills in the House of Representatives, during this Regular Session, except bills for the raising of Revenue and Appropriation Bills.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

House Bill No. 63, Printer's No. 16, entitled, "An Act to further amend the act act approved the first day of May one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 905) entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety regulating the use of highways and the operation of vehicles tractors street cars trackless trolley omnibuses bicycles pedestrians and the riding of animals upon the highways of this Commonwealth providing for the titling including liens encumbrances and legal claims registration of certain vehicles and licensing the operators thereof upon payment of prescribed fees prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue the Department of Highways peace officers mayors burgesses magistrates aldermen justices of the peace the courts and the clerks thereof owners of vehicles and garage keepers providing that records are admissible as evidence imposing upon owners counties cities boroughs incorporated towns townships within the Commonwealth liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles imposing penalties imposing certain costs upon counties providing for the disposition of fines forfeitures fees and miscellaneous receipts making an appropriation and providing for refunds" changing the definition of "chassis" as it applies to certain commercial motor vehicles thereby changing the classification of such vehicles.

RESOLUTION

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

The SPEAKER. This being the anniversary of the birthday of George Washington, commonly known as the Father of his country, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Schuylkill, Mr. Wagner.

The Chair requests the gentleman from Schuylkill, Mr. Wagner to come to the rostrum to read the resolution which he is about to present.

Mr. WAGNER offered and read a resolution as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 22, 1943.

We pause today to celebrate the two hundred and eleventh birthday of the first President of this Nation, to whose prudence, valor, wisdom and sacrifice we owe our liberty and our independence; and to pay tribute to his greatness, to acknowledge his accomplishments and from his life to draw inspiration and help and guidance.

His complete poise—an alliance of coolness and determination with unconquerable energy—was the secret of his many successes.

His willingness to sacrifice position and fortune and life, if necessary, in order to win the freedom and liberty of which he dreamed, coupled with his ability to withstand hardship and privation won for him the love and admiration and respect of the men who made up his army.

These were natural qualities of greatness, fostered, not by books or schools, but by an active life in the outdoors with strong, courageous men and in hazardous undertaking.

It was in 1777 at Valley Forge, that he was put to the most severe test of his courage, his energy, his determination to win, and his willingness to sacrifice.

It was then that his army was prostrated by sickness and rife for mutiny. He was faced with popular apathy, military cabals and the disaffection of the Continental Congress, but his strength of character, his ability to hold the confidence of his soldiers and his courage and endurance combined to maintain the flame of national unity.

On February 22nd, 1842, just one hundred and one years ago today, Abraham Lincoln, the other of our two great national heroes, at a celebration of his same birthday, said: "On that name an eulogy is expected. It can not be. To add brightness to the sun or glory to the name of Washington is alike impossible. Let none attempt it. In solemn awe pronounce the name, and in its naked, deathless splendor, leave it shinging on."

In the annals of modern greatness, he stands alone. Nature made him great and he made himself not only the outstanding citizen of his time, but made his greatness immortal; therefore be it

Resolved, By this House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, that, as we pause in our labors for that Commonwealth and its people, to pay tribute to our first President, we will, from his life, draw inspiration to make our work and our lives and our willingness to sacrifiec more closely resemble his, and that as he survived Valley Forge through courage and fortitude and his abiding faith in his God, so will we seek, in these, our perilous days, to find the right road to victory and peace and happiness and, finding it, to carry on undauntedly and courageously until that end is reached.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from York, Mr. Bentzel, and requests the gentleman to come to the rostrum.

Mr. BENTZEL. Mr. Speaker, Members of the House, whether it be in time of peace or in time of war, it is unthinkable that we in America should or could let the birthday anniversary of the first president of the United States pass without examining him in a new light. But in doing so, we also, directly or indirectly, take a new inventory of ourselves: our failures and our achievements. Considered against the staggering obstacles and discouragements that confronted General Washington and President Washington, and observing how he surmounted them, he stands out more prominently each year. He assumes the proportions of a mountain of greatness. We stand in the valley below, often ashamed and certainly humble.

Few characters in our history grow in stature and meaning under the merciless ravages of time. Washington is one of them.

He has captured the imagination of the common man in every country where his name and fame have entered.

Several years ago there appeared in the Atlantic Monthly a poem by a young immigrant—a young man who fled the country of his birth, Poland. He struggled with our language and learned to read and love our history. He also learned to write English and to write it well, as I believe you will agree. He wrote this poem. It is his evaluation of George Washington:

I see him, he is before my eyes,
The rider who is hurrying to free his beloved.
Over fields and rivers he is flying on his horse.
A sword in his hand but his face is soft.

Not great is the number of his knights,
But great is their spirit that binds them together tight.
He is flying forward, forward, he is the commander, the eagle.
And they, the knights after him, hearing his command, hearing his call.

Conquering the enemy left and right,
Blood is running from them but their faces are bright
And he the commander, the eagle,
Doesn't care that a son of his father's family falls.

Falls dead, not to live here again.
It doesn't matter to him, only one thing is in his brain,
To tear the chain, and the beloved set free
And with the leader's mind who send him to agree.

He is flying forward, forward,
The commander, the eagle.
And they, the knights after him, hearing his command, hearing his call,
Are pushing the enemy and breaking the wall.

There must be real qualities, human qualities, in George Washington, the man, if a young man from poor, war-torn, and trampled-down Poland can envision him so quickly, clearly, and with so much adoration.

Historians and biographers have for ages tried to find the real Washington beneath all the glamour that so often enshrouds him. I do not now pose before you, my colleagues, as either historian or biographer. I am merely one who loves the Father of Our Country because he is bigger than I can comprehend. I am simply trying to evaluate him in my own humble way. To me he is real, and I offer you a few of my reasons for seeing reality in him, in these days of our greatest national crisis.

Washington had a hot-temper, even as you and I. When I know that, I know he was human in that respect.

A man with a temper may be charming or at least admirable. It is the colder, more calculating aspect of Washington that impedes the effort to humanize him as Lincoln has been humanized. He has a passion for detail and for order, counted his pennies, and exacted all that was due him—in business transactions, at least. To Silas Deane, who saw him at the beginning of the Revolution, he seemed to have a "hard countenance." This was the countenance he turned on poachers, squatters, loafers and people who would not do their duty or pay their debts.

He was business-like even during his darkest days. From Valley Forge he wrote to John Parker Custis, in May, 1778: "Lands are permanent—rising fast in value—and will be very dear when our independence is established." He did not care at all for the New England "policy . . . to level men as much as possible to one standard." He was just toward his inferiors in rank, but hardly sympathetic. He was one of the largest land owners—if not the largest—in the United States, and announced his "fixed determination that no person whatever" shall hunt upon his grounds or waters . . .

But the search for Washington's compromises, doubts, and resitations leads, like the famous frontier highway up a tree and into a squirrel hole. It merely brings out the respects in which he was a man of his own time, and supplies few clues as to the sources of his achievements. Perhaps an analysis of the character of his mother—that doughty old lady who made up what she lacked in tenderness by what she possessed in pride and determination—would yield something. From her, Irving says, he took his "spirit of command." He had, at any rate, from the very beginning, a tremendous amount of will-power and a self-confidence that inspired confidence in others.

His life from his youth upward seems, in retrospect, a training for the responsibilities that were to devolve upon him. Whether or not he ever threw a silver dollar across the Potomac or a stone across the Rappahannock is immaterial. He was an athlete from his earliest years, and from the age of 16 a woodsman. In the wilderness of Ohio he learned, from his own mistakes as well as from those of others, something of the so-called art of war and much more about the art of managing men. On the plantation at Mount Vernon, through long, peaceful years, he became a supremely competent executive. With the possible exception of Benjamin Franklin, there was no better business man in America than this plain Virginia farmer.

When he came to the command of the Continental armies and to the Presidency of the United States he administered the affairs of his country as he had those of his planation. His grasp of detail was amazing. His order books show that his hand was felt directly in every phase of the army's activities and by almost every officer in it.

In reading the narrative of the long, bitter years of his campaigns, it is almost impossible to realize that victory was to come at the end. He began with raw troops whose fitness for the duties of a soldier was confined to the ability to shoot straight. They were undisciplined and at first would not stand fire in the open. He had to quell mutinies; once he thrust himself into the heart of a riot between Virginia riflemen and Marblehead fishermen and broke it up by main force. He had to preserve the morale of an army that was underfed, wretchedly lodged and insufficiently clothed while the country was fat with prosperity.

He had to retreat before an enemy to whom, for many months, he dared not give battle. He had to deal with treason, conspiracy, vile personal attacks and the persistent grumbling of sectional jealousy and disunion. The great-man theory of history is under a cloud at present, yet a calm reading of the records intensifies the belief that if Washington had weakened, the British would have won the war.

He had the gift of whipping an army into shape and the greater gift of using it intelligently afterward. The amiable Cornwallis said to him, after the surrender at Yorktown: "Your Excellency's achievements in New Jersey were such that nothing could surpass them." That hundred-mile retreat, without serious loss of men or supplies, in the face of a confident and disciplined enemy, impressed Europe. Frederick the Great, no mean fighter himself, called it the most brilliant exploit of the century. Brilliant, too, was his sudden shifting of the army from New York to Virginia, enabling him to win the campaign of Yorktown.

But it was determination ever more than brilliancy that won the war. In his appeals to Congress, and very often in his personal letters, Washington painted the most gloomy pictures of the Nation's prospects, but his pessimism—perhaps a constitutional trait—never paralyzed him in action. His army could be beaten again and again, and at the end, as at Princeton and Trenton, he could turn it against the enemy with the dash and spirit of troops that had never known defeat.

In peace even more than in war he was a rallying point at a time when no one knew where to turn. He was an inspirer of confidence when it seemed that the thirteen Colonies were destined to be, not a united nation, but thirteen continuous quarrels. One does not know how to describe this ability except as in the word, character. He had impressed upon men's imaginations a conviction of unfailing trustworthiness. By this force of character, rather than by adroit statesmanship, he brought the new Government through the worst part of the internal dissensions provoked by the French Revolution.

Perhaps he loved power, as in early youth he had boasted that he loved the whistle of bullets. Perhaps its irritations and disappointments made it bitter to him. At any rate, he laid it down with Roman dignity when he gave up the command of the Continental Army, and again when he retired from the Presidency.

It was his farm toward which this plain old man turned his most cheerful countenance. And it was there, wrestling with problems which every man who had ever scratched the earth with a plow in some measure understood, that he grew most firmly into the hearts of his countrymen. Few who saw him in those later years were unwilling to concede his claim to greatness. Yet it is possible that he was as proud of the fact, as Weems states it, that "his cattle never had the hollow horn," as he was of his victory at Trenton.

"The character of Washington," said Washington Irving, "may want some of those poetic elements which dazzle and delight the multiude, but it possessed fewer inequalities and a rarer union of virtues than perhaps ever fell to the lot of any other man."

Where virtues lie within a human character, they shine forth and stand out not when the waters are untroubled and placid. They become mighty bulwarks against the ravages of adversity, treachery, disappointment, and failure. Washington suffered on this earth every passible agony that can assail the human heart.

Yet, like our great Lincoln, not even death itself could conquer him and all that he fought for.

Perhaps he suffered most and was most sorely tried right here in Pennsylvania during those far away, formative years of our Revolution and our new government.

Every school boy knows about the reverses Washington and his ragged army suffered at the battle of Brandywine and later at Germantown. And we know that the Continental Congress had to leave Philadelphia and locate elsewhere. Lancaster was thought of as a likely town to become the place of meeting. But soon it was decided that "the Susquehanna River should flow between Congress and the enemy."

Thus it came about that the legislative body of the struggling colonies adjourned to the town of York. Washington was still in his mean and snow-bound headquarters at Valley Forge, thirty miles northwest of Philadelphia. These unpromising events occurred in the dark winter of 1777-78. In York, the Continental Congress held its sessions in the Provincial Court House, on Center Square. There was issued the first Thanksgiving Proclamation. There the Articles of Confederation, doomed to failure, were adopted.

And in my home town of York, during that perilous winter, occurred also the famous "Conway Cabal." It had its origin in the thwarted ambitions of two men, Thomas Mifflin, a quarter-master, and Thomas Conway, an Irish soldier of fortune. Both had been criticized by Washington regarding the mismanagement of their respective posts, especially the latter, who was refused promotion on the grounds of his previous rank in the French army. Accordingly, both of these men began insidiously to turn members of Congress and others holding government positions against the commander-in-chief. The defeat of Washington at Brandywine and Germantown, and the dazzling victory of General Gates at Saratoga lent weight to their contention. Although it is now well established that this victory was won by Arnold and Morgan, who carried out instructions laid down by Washington himself, nevertheless, the conspirators eagerly pounced upon this success as a conclusive proof of General Gates' superior ability. These things progressed until Lafayette arrived in York to receive his commission of major-general in the army. He was invited to a banquet which was held in the apartment of General Gates. During the course of the evening many toasts were drunk but the name of the great leader was ommitted. When the company was about to leave, Lafayette arose and said: "Gentlemen, one name has been omitted; I now propose a toast to our Commander-in-Chief, General Washington."

Only the influence of unconquerable traits of character could crush such a plot and raise its intended victim from the lowest depths to the heights of fame.

The final biography of Washington, if it is ever written, will not portray a Greek God. It will reveal, among other things, the man who kept a drunken overseer at work on his plantation because the fellow's family needed the wages; the man who loved discipline, yet hated military executions almost as much as Lincoln did; the man who could take time, in the heart-breaking emergency created by Arnold's treason, to send word to Mrs. Arnold that her husband was safe. It will reveal the man who could pause in his Presidential duties to write Nelly Custis a tender, jesting letter of advice as to falling in love; the man who was supposed to be cold and unemotional, yet could not control his voice when he bade farewell to his officers at Fraunces Tavern; and who, as he felt his last illness coming upon him, would not let his wife get out of bed in the chill of the night to go for help.

He had an emotional ebb and flow in keeping with his physical and intellectual strength. Underneath the austere garments of his dignity was a very human heart. If, some day, biographers succeed in revealing that hidden Washington, he will be not any the less the Father of his country. Indeed, he will be a parent more after the modern manner, more comprehensible and more lovable.

And now, in 1943, as another birthday anniversary of our beloved Washington slips away from us, he is more of a reality to me than he ever was before. The first reason is that the war clouds of Valley Forge threaten us again and make dark our pathway. The second reason is that the light he saw beyond the clouds in the terrible winter of 1777-78 was the light of his own unconquerable spirit. It would not be snuffed out then. Pray God we can find it within ourselves today. And pray God he is leading us again, holding high the torch of his spirit of liberty, so that the voices of a hundred million Americans can unite in this battle song written by the Polish lad:

He is flying forward, forward,
The commander, the eagle.
And they, the knights after him, hearing his command, hearing his call,
Are pushing the enemy and breaking the wall.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. Stockham and requests the gentleman to come to the rostrum.

Mr. STOCKHAM. Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, stirring hymns and songs, deathless poems and prose are the precious jewels formed in the fiery crucible of struggle and tribulation.

The Golden Age of Grecian city-state democracy developed a marvelous culture which Alexander welded with that of the East to lay the foundation of the great Roman Empire of law and order. The resultant structure of Europe destroyed feudalism and lighted the way for the long struggle to personal liberty.

Columbus set the course to a new world where restless spirits and brave escaped continental oppression, impatient of the slow processes of Old World progress.

A hundred fifty years of struggle with nature and the Red Man developed a people who wove a wonderful fabric of governmental ideals which the oppressive arm of Europe reached out to destroy.

But a wild and beautiful land stirred stout hearts who knew their God and walking in His ways, with the spirit of service, pondered a new government.

Out of this crucible the heat of tyranny formed the greatest jewel of them all, The Declaration of Independence.

When in the Course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the Powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security.—Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his Assent to Laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his Assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their Public Records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions to cause others to be elected; whereby the Legislative Powers, incapable of Annihiliation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise; the State remaining in the meantime exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the Laws for Naturalization of Foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands.

He has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary Powers.

He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our People, and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, Standing Armies without the Consent of our legislature.

He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to the Civil Power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his Assent to their Acts of Pretended Legislation:

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:

For protecting them, by a mock Trial, from Punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States:

For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world:

For imposing taxes on us without our Consent:

For depriving us in many cases, of the benefits of Trial by Jury:

For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offenses:

For abolishing the free System of English Laws in the neighboring Province, establishing therein an Arbitrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies:

For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws, and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Governments:

For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with Power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated Government here, by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our Coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of Cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow Citizens taken Captive on the high Seas to bear Arms against their country to become the executioners of their friends and Brethren, or to fall themselves by their Hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian Savages, whose known rule of warfare, is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

In every stage of these Oppressions We have Petitioned for Redress in the most humble terms: Our repeated Petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A Prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free People.

Nor have We been wanting in attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow those usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our Separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War, in Peace Friends.

We, therefore, the Representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the Name, and by Authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be Free and Independent States; that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as Free and Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do. And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the Protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.

JOHN HANCOCK,
Pennsylvania:
ROBT. MORRIS,
BENJAMIN RUSH,
BENJA. FRANKLIN,
JOHN MORTON,
GEO. CLYMER,
JAS. SMITH,
GEO. TAYLOR,
JAMES WILSON,
GEO. ROSS.

On this, the birthday of the Great Father of our Country, let us reaffirm these sacred pledges and as we give our lives on fields of battle and our fortunes for winning this war, may we pledge our sacred honor to maintain our independence; resisting the onslaughts of peculiar ideals foreign to our own, prosecuting the racketeers in both labor and industry and crushing unnecessary and dangerous encroachments upon our liberties.

America with that same firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence must now resolve in her great strength to accept new responsibilities, when the tyrannies of this day have been crushed, to lead the nations, slowly maybe, along the way to world peace.

May the great Jehovah of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and the same God of our fathers brood over us and lead us into the ways of righteousness and universal peace.

On the question recurring,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

It was unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent leave of absence was granted as follows:

Mr. Grant for Mr. SWOPE for the week on account of illness.

JOINT STATE GOVERNMENT COMMISSION APPOINTMENTS

L. 1043), entitled "An act establishing a public school employes' retirement system, and creating a retirement board for the administration thereof; establishing certain funds from contributions by the Commonweath and contributing employes, defining the uses and purposes thereof and the manner of payments therefrom, and providing for the guaranty by the Commonwealth of certain of said funds; imposing powers and duties upon boards having the employment of public school employes; exempting annuities, allowances, returns, benefits, and rights from taxation and judicial process; and providing penalties," further extending the time for present employes, as defined in the act, to elect to be covered by the retirement system; and granting retirement rights to certain additional persons who have withdrawn from and returned to school service.

And said bill having been read at length the first time,
Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,
The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 36, entitled:

An Act abating certain tax penalties and interest on unpaid county (except counties of the second class), city (except cities of the first and second class), borough, town, township, school district (except school districts of the first class), poor district (except in counties of the second class), and county institution district (except in counties of the second class) taxes, prohibiting the sale of real property for the nonpayment of any such taxes for a certain period, and preserving certain tax liens and providing for the extension thereof.

The first section was read.
On the question,
Will the House agree to the section?

Messrs. COOPER and MIHM offered the following amendments:

Amend section 1, page 1, line 2, by striking out the words "(except counties of the second class)"
Amend section 1, page 2, line 2, by striking out the words "(except in counties of the second class)"
Amend section 1, page 2, line 3, by striking out the words "(except in counties of the second class)"

On the question,
Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. CORDIER. Mr. Speaker, as sponsor of this legislation, I wish to state for the information of the House that I have no objection to the amendments offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia and the gentleman from Allegheny, and I ask the House to adopt them in their entirety.

On the question recurring,
Will the House agree to the amendments?
They were agreed to.
On the question,
Will the House agree to the section as amended?

Messrs. SALUS and COHEN offered the following amendments:

Amend section 1, page 1, line 3 by striking out the words "(except cities of the first and second class)"
Amend section 1, page 2, lines 1 and 2 by striking out the words "(except school districts of the first class)"

They were agreed to.
The section was agreed to as amended.
The second to the tenth sections inclusive were separately read and agreed to.
The title was read.
On the question,
Will the House agree to the title?
Messrs. COOPER and MIHM offered the following amendments:

Amend the title, page 1, line 2, of the title by striking out the words "(except counties of the second class)"
Amend the title, page 1, line 2, of the title by striking out the words "(except in counties of the second class)"
Amend the title, lines 6 and 7 of title by striking out the words "(except in counties of the second class)"

They were agreed to.
On the question,
Will the House agree to the title as amended?
Messrs. SALUS and COHEN offered the following amendments:

Amend the title, page 1, lines 2 and 3 of the title by striking out the words "(except cities of the first and second class)"
Amend the title page 1, lines 4 and 5 of title by striking out the words "(except school districts of the first class)"

They were agreed to.
The title was agreed to as amended.
And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to as amended.
Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,
The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 187, entitled:

An Act validating county treasurers' sales for delinquent taxes where the reports and returns of such sales were not made to the court of common pleas, and such sales were not confirmed by the court.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.
Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,
The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 235, entitled:

An Act authorizing the State Board of Medical Education and Licensure to issue temporary permits to doctors of medicine legally licensed in other states to practice medicine and surgery under certain conditions for a limited period of time.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.
Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,
The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 236, entitled:

An Act reducing for a limited period of time the training period of medical internship in hospitals in order to qualify for examination for license to practice medicine and surgery and suspending inconsistent laws.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.
Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,
The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 281, entitled:

An Act to amend section one of the act, approved the second day of May, one thousand eight hundred ninety-nine (P. L. 163), entitled "An act legalizing, and making it lawful to build, fences constructed in whole or in part of wire along the public highways, and as division fences," by authorizing the use of barbed wire and electric fences along highways.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate either one of the sponsors of this bill.

Mr. SPEAKER. Which one of the sponsors of this bill will permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GYGER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman tell me what type of fence is the fence referred to and used under the act as it now stands.

Mr. GYGER. Mr. Speaker, it has not been permissible to use barbed wire on public roads and in order to use electricity to fence in cattle, it is necessary to use barbed wire. Everybody is using it and it is merely making legal what the common practice is. Under the present shortage of labor and so on it is necessary to fence cattle with as little labor as possible.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman tell me whether or not the amount of electricity or voltage used is such as might be dangerous to humans using the highways?

Mr. GYGER. It is not, Mr. Speaker, if it is constructed as it should be.

Mr. COHEN. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Speaker.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The title was read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection Senate Bill No. 24, Printer's No. 13, was passed over at the request of Mr. Walter E. Rose.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. GATES asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, last Thursday at noon, as we were all gathered around our radios to catch inspiration from the address to be made to the Congress of the United States by one of the most wonderful women that the world has so far produced, Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, and as we listened for the first word of her address we were amazed and we were delighted with the wonderful applause that came from the loudspeaker of our radios, signifying that this lovely and gracious woman had made her appearance in the Chamber of the Congress.

As the applause continued I sat in my room wondering why the men of the dignified body of Congress would pay so much attention to a foreign lady. My mind was carried back and the pages of time were turned to 1777, when a small army was gathered at Valley Forge, an army that was poorly equipped, an army that was poorly clothed, an army that was poorly fed. But, my friends, that army had a great leader, and that leader was none other than George Washington, whose birthday we commemorate this day. I am proud that this great leader was able to issue an order to that army that on every Sabbath day they were to gather at eleven o'clock in prayer and adoration of the heavenly Father, to whom he looked for guidance and help. I can almost visualize and hear the answer that came to him as he arose from his knees:

"Fear thou not, for I am with thee; be not dismayed for I am thy God, I will strengthen thee. Yea, I will help thee, yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness."

History has recorded the valor, the bravery, the sacrifices and the ultimate victory of that little army.

As I stand here speaking to you tonight, Members of the House, I go back to a scene, similar to that at Valley Forge, across the broad expanse of the great Pacific Ocean, thousands of miles away in Asia, China, China, our beloved ally in this World War, which has been set upon by a strong, powerful, well-equipped and ruthless enemy. She has been fighting a glorious and magnificent fight for over five years, and tonight as I speak with you, over two-thirds of her territory has been taken, practically all of her seaports have been conquered, practically all of her large cities and industrial plants have passed into the hands of her enemies, but that army that fights so courageously is similar to that army at Valley Forge because they are poorly equipped, poorly clothed, poorly fed, but thank God tonight, they continue to fight on.

They, like that army at Valley Forge, also have two great outstanding Christian leaders at their head, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and his lovely and gracious wife, Madam Chiang Kai-Shek.

My friends, out of the bloodshed, out of the misery, out of the suffering, I can vision tonight rising up a new China, a victorious China, which will stand justified and dedicated to the great ideals which our own boys and our own girls are fighting all over the world to preserve.

Mr. Speaker, tonight we Members of this House should anew dedicate ourselves to these great principles, and it is about time for the duration that we forget that there are two sides of this House; we should forget that we are Democrats, forget that we are Republicans and emerge united as a solid body of real Americans to give our all in every way and anyway that we possibly can to end this terrible conflict and hasten the day, when our boys and girls shall come home. What a glorious day that will be! But, my friends, there will be a tinge of sadness on that day because from many homes all over the country have gone boys and girls who have already paid the supreme sacrifice to preserve for us the rights of liberty and independence.

Mr. Speaker, the Hon. W. Stewart Helm, of Armstrong County, and I present a non-privileged concurrent resolution, calling upon His Excellency, the Governor of this great state, to invite that lovely and gracious woman, Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, to appear here in Harrisburg before a joint session of the Senate and the House and deliver to us an address on that occasion.

Mr. Speaker, we present this resolution, and ask unanimous consent to have it read and for the immediate consideration of the same.

RESOLUTION

The SPEAKER. Will the House give its unanimous consent for the introduction of the resolution and for its immediate consideration? Is there objection?

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. COHEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, the statement just made by our colleague from Armstrong, Mr. Gates, is timely, and I think it is the urgent wish of every one of us here both officially and unofficially, that Pennsylvania should be honored by the presence of Madame Chiang Kai-Shek.

After all, Pennsylvania is not only the arsenal for democracy in that it is supplying the munitions and the money to fight this war, but its mothers and fathers have given and will give of their sons and daughters, numbering probably six hundred to seven hundred thousand, who will utilize the materials of war which we are unstintingly giving.

I think, Mr. Speaker, it would be a great boost for the morale, not only of the nation at large, but it will be a great boost for the morale of this arsenal of democracy if the good lady could find time in her tour of this nation to come to Harrisburg and address us.

Therefore, I urge and ask that this resolution be adopted immediately, and there is certainly no objection from either side of the House to such action's being taken.

The SPEAKER. The Chair hears no objection and consent is granted.

The resolution was read, considered and unanimously adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 22, 1943.

In spite of what a poet wrote years ago, the "East" and the "West" have met, and last week the East's most versatile, comely and charming woman, Madame Chiang Kai-shek, addressed a joint session of the House and Senate of the Congress of the United States.

The wife of China's fighting Generalissimo, she has stood with him in directing that country's heroic defense against the invading Jap.

The United States is not new to this remarkable woman, for she spent many years of her life attending school in this country, and her vast knowledge of our institutions has assisted greatly in creating and cementing ties of friendship between her "East" and our "West."

Famous for her wit and beauty, China's most famous, admired and cultured citizen is now sojourning in the United States, and this Legislature would indeed be honored if she could be persuaded to address its members as she addressed the Congress of the United States; therefore be it

Resolved, (if the Senate concur), That His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, is hereby requested to invite the Honorable Madame Chiang Kai-Shek to be the guest of this Commonwealth and to address a joint session of the House and Senate whenever convenient to her; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of this House shall immediately transmit a copy of this Resolution to His Excellency, the Governor.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

FORMER MEMBER WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes a former Member of the House who is with us tonight. He was formerly a Democrat but who has now become a Republican, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Charles Melchiorre.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. CULLEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, last week Mr. O'Brien of Philadelphia and Mr. Leonard of Allegheny addressed this House concerning a Lincoln Day speech made by the Honorable Hugh D. Scott, Congressman from the 7th Congressional District. And incidentally this district is reputed to be the possessor of more worldly goods than the other districts in Philadelphia. The speech I am referring to was reported as being delivered in the 22nd Ward Republican Club and I am informed the club is a very congenial host. Which may account for the bombastic remarks by the Congressman.

Originally it was not my intention to comment on the Congressman's speech, feeling that there was a possibility that the Congressman may have been misquoted, but since that time the Congressman has seen fit, in a letter, which appeared in the "Mail Bag" of the Philadelphia Record to categorically deny certain alleged quotations which appeared in that newspaper under a date line of February 15, 1943. But there were other quotations which were alleged to be made by the Congressman in his bombastic address and which he has not seen fit to deny.

The alleged quotation to which I am referring at this time, is where the Congressman told his audience, that the "Republicans are of the best stock, and represent the real grit, brains and backbone of America." Now such public utterances by a Representative of the people are definitely in bad taste and they certainly are not in keeping with the character or teaching of the great man to whom the Congressman was supposed to be honoring.

The Congressman's contention of the Republicans being of the "Better Stock" sounds like the rantings and ravings of a certain Austrian born paperhanger who is attempting to foster on the world a similar ideology. I sincerely hope and firmly believe that such bleeting and bragging does not reflect the sentiment of the rank and file of the Republican party.

I am somewhat amused at the contention of the Congressman that his party has a monopoly of brains. Among other things it appears that the gentleman of whom I am speaking of so kindly has had a lapse of political memory; otherwise he would know that the brains of a political party is usually reflected in government when that party holds the reins of government, and I am confident the American people, as well as the Republican rank and file, do not want a repetition of that brainy era which had for its reward, apple vendors on street corners, closed banks, sheriff sales, general discontentment and a battle cry of "around the corner".

In my humble opinion all political parties could stand a little improvement in the brain department and that also applies to some Congressman.

The real reason for my taking up the valuable time of you gentlemen this evening, is that portion of the Congressman's address in which he was quoted as saying "That the Republicans represent the real grit and backbone of America".

One of the definitions given for grit in the dictionary is:

"Firmness of character, especially in pain or danger; pluck and courage". As the Congressman was referring to human beings; that is the American definition which fits the word.

As an American citizen and as one who does not bear the same political label as the Congressman I resent his implication. I resent it on behalf of my three sons in the armed forces and I resent it for all those fine men and boys in the service who carry a political label different from the Congressman of the 7th District.

Of the many millions of men in the armed forces, no doubt half of them are Democrats and they, together with their Republican comrades-inlarms, are ready to make the supreme sacrifice for their country and as you well know some of them have already made that sacrifice. And when a Congressman implies that the heroes who died on Bataan, Corregidor, Guadalcanal, New Guinea, in Africa, on the seas and in the air, lack grit and backbone just because they don't adhere to the same political faith as the Congressman. Then I advise the Congressman to study that brand of Americanism which is taught by the veterans of the first World War, and this war.

No American can look at these men, soldiers, sailors, Marines, and airmen without great emotion and great pride and a very deep sense of responsibility to them regardless of their political affiliations and I sincerely suggest that the Congressman from the Germantown section of Philadelphia change his brand before delivering his next address.

RESOLUTION

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

Mr. FOOR offered a privileged resolution which was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 22, 1943.

We are unspeakably grateful to be citizens of this great free Nation. May it never lack men who will stand with unwavering strength in its days of trial. Men like Lincoln, Franklin, MacArthur, Washington, men whose faith in the promises of God, and the right, never faltered, even in their darkest hours.

This same faith that was theirs, must be ours, to strengthen our hearts, and the hearts of our brave young men who are fighting our battles in many lands and on every sea, to save our Democracy from those who would destroy it.

We thank God for the American fighting men, the finest in the world. Every man among them is fighting for the ideals for which our Constitution stands. We are no less grateful that we are members of the church of Jesus Christ, with a citizenship in that Other Kingdom. May the church—your church—our church—never want for men and women who understand its worth, and whose devotion will cause them to sacrifice for it in its days of trial. Men like those who founded the church in this land, men like the Son of Man, who "Loved the church and gave His life for it," now therefore be it

Resolved, That on this, the birthday of "The Father of our Country," we pledge anew our loyalty to the "Stars and Stripes," the Constitution and to make a still greater effort to our individual part towards the winning of the war, for which our young men are offering their lives.

CONDOLENCE RESOLUTION

Mr. CORRIGAN offered a privileged resolution which was twice read, considered and unanimously adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 22, 1943.

Whereas, Our popular fellow-member from the twenty-fourth Legislative District in Philadelphia, the Honorable Edward P. Green is at present unable to be with us because of an attack of pneumonia; and

Whereas, We of the House truly miss his congenial presence; and

Whereas, We note that the day of St. Patrick is fast approaching and feel that such a good Irishman as Edward Green must by all means be back in harness to help in the celebration of that glorious day; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the Chief of the House direct a copy of this resolution to the Honorable Edward Green, impressing upon him the urgencies of the situation and extending to him our wishes for a speedy recovery from his present illness.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. HOFFMAN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, we tonight have been living in the solemn past, and it is right and appropriate, both from the satisfaction that this occasion gives to our minds as well as it creates an inspiration for our faith, that we should be in the spirit of those who are responsible for the foundation of our Nation, and who have brought to pass as our heritage this land that we call America, giving to us the richest privileges and blessings that any people of any nation have ever enjoyed. It is heartening to our souls to feel that we are privileged to live in the past and to take from the past those fine emoluments and characteristics that these men of the old-fashioned faith gave to us and to our posterity, that we might likewise, not under the same conditions of suffering and sacrifice that they bore, aid in establishing this land of the free and the home of the brave.

So, Mr. Speaker, I feel in my own spirit tonight very proud to know that I am an American living under the Constitution of these United States, and I want, if I can, in a brief way and humbly to bring to my own mind and to your minds too, the preamble of the Constitution of the United States, which reads as follows:

> "We the People of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity do ordain and establish this constitution for the United States of America."

At this time I want to emphasize, if I can, the danger that we are confronting in the Constitutional detours of our American way of life, and I begin by saying if America should gain the whole world in political and social domination, what would it profit our people if they lost, or surrendered, or abridged any of the staid and true principles and fundamentals of its own one hundred fifty-six years of constitutional government of liberty and freedom. These must never be sacrificed—no matter how utopian may be our dreams for federation of the world.

No nation under God's sun has achieved so much in every way since that immortal charter—that we call the Constitution of the United States of America—became the moral, legislative and economic compass to guide the destiny of its people.

Now, we are engaged in a global war. We must and we will, with our Allies, win this war. And I believe we all are in common agreement that the terms of winning the war must be upon the basis of unconditional surrender of our enemies who are responsible for promoting this war. To that end, it is the privileged and bounden obligation of every true American to repledge his or her fullest devotion and at whatever sacrifice. We owe that fullest measure of consecration and allegiance to the brave boys who are now on the front lines and to the millions of others who are in home bases in training and preparation for the baptism of shot and shell and sacrifice that they must meet as they are moved across the seas to join their comrades in arms on foreign soil. But, in a larger way, we owe our fullest measure of rededicated devotion and sacrifice to our country and its institutions—America—the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Now, why do I speak to you tonight on the subject of "Constitutional Detours" when this country is at war? It is because

First. We are in a state of complete "emergency." And at no time is there the need for eternal vigilance more than when emergency supercedes normal governmental functioning. That is the dangerous period for idealists to create detours to take our mind off the well tried, proven and safe constitutional path along which our nation has trod to success and prosperity for more than 150 years. To them, the simple, rugged faith and fundamentalism of our fathers and the framers of our Constitution are outmoded and antiquated, and they want to detour from the old paths to a new ideology, more modern in its teaching, and with a new spirit, called the new order. I repeat—eternal vilgilance is the price of liberty. Let us be careful that, under the changes that are now and will be taking place in the name of emergency, we don't lose our American way of constitutional life, no matter how alluring or idealistic that detour called the new order, or new spirit or new world federation may promise to be.

Second. Because I observe, under the cloak of emergency, legislation, state and national, is becoming influenced by such an ideology, with a strong tendency to liberalize our Constitution and the laws of the state and the nation, the result of which inevitably must weaken the structure of our moral and civic life and invade and break down the honor and sanctity of the American home. And on these matters, in this time of emergency, I caution again, my fellow citizens, to remember how important it is to observe the precept of "eternal vigilance" if we want to keep intact the "old land marks" of our American way of life.

Third. Because I observe that there are statements, and tendencies of thought, among certain groups to detour from the fundamentals of our Constitution and to construct a new order, or a new spirit, not only for the people of America, but for the whole world—after duration of the war.

It appears sane and practical for me to say that winning the war—definitely and unconditionally—is our first consideration and primary responsibility. The problem to undertake to govern the habits, and tastes, and living, socially, politically, economically, and, maybe spiritually, of millions of foreign people whom we don't understand and whose inherent training, teaching, and civilization over the centuries is not compatible to the complete understanding of, or acquiesence in, the fundamentalism of our civilization and institutions, and the principles of our American way of life, under the Constitution of the United States of America, is of such serious and grave importance that only "eternal vigilance" should be the impelling factor to guide that determination.

However much the four great leaders in our present war struggle may have to say in dictating terms of peace at the conclusion of the war, and in formulating treaties, let us be assured, that so far as America is concerned, it will not be a one-man job—for we will have to reckon with the suffering soul and spirit of the unnumbered mothers whose sons paid the supreme sacrifice, and with the millions of boys returning to their native land, whose voice will not be stilled, and whose concept of what kind of peace must supplant war cannot go unchallenged.

Thank God—America still holds and reveres the Constitution of these United States, and that Constitution explicitly states that treaties with foreign nations must be ratified by and with the advice and consent of the Senate of the United States—two-thirds of the Senators present concurring.

Notwithstanding how much our leaders presently may seek to determine the peace or write the peace, I say to you there are millions of mothers whose sons will have paid the final price and sacrifice, and the millions of boys who will come back to their native land, their voice will be heard and it cannot go unchallenged.

Political world peace or political world union is no guarantee of immunity from future wars.

Peace, to be real and abiding must be moral and spiritual, and these are the essentials that are under fire today through so-called emergencies. The nature of people and nations living in selfishness and greed and undue desire for temporal or political power cannot conceive peace until and unless the hearts of nations are spiritually changed.

Now, I believe that our best contribution to our country from the inspiration that we are receiving tonight, as we gather it from the past of the faithful, who have been true to their obligation, is for us in this time of national distress, first, to give our fullest loyalty and sacrifice to win the war. Second, to establish a high moral plane of individual and national living, so that we will really and indeed practice the concept of the American Constitution so far as justice is concerned, and establish and safeguard the sanctity of our home and at the same time establish a sure foundation upon which true and righteous civic virtue will prevail. Third, evaluate more highly and reverently the things that belong to God. Whether you agree with me, gentlemen, in the final analysis this war today is something deeper than mere surface conditions. I think it would be well for us at this time, as we reflect upon the spirit of our fathers, to engage in our own heart and soul the faith and simplicity of the fathers and in these days of trying emergencies adapt us and ourselves to the things that belong to God.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

The SPEAKER. The Chair has been requested by the editor of the Pennsylvania Manual, to urge the Members of the House who have not already done so, to send in their photograph and biographies for publication in the Pennsylvania Manual.

Please send this information to the Chief Clerk's office promptly.

The Chair also wishes to thank the gentleman from Schuylkill, Mr. Wagner, the gentleman from York, Mr. Bentzel and the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. Stockham for their participation in our Washington birthday program.

COMMITTEE MEETINGS

There will be meetings of the Committees on Agriculture, Tuesday, February 23, at 10 a. m. in Old House Caucus Room.

Boroughs, Tuesday, February 23, at 10:30 a. m. Room 552.

Cities—First Class, Monday, February 22, after session, in Conference Room in rear of House.

Forestry, Tuesday, February 23, at 10:30 a. m. Room 331.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Legislative Journal.

Session 1943. 135th of the General Assembly.

Vol. 27. HARRISBURG, PA., TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1943. No. 18.

SENATE

TUESDAY, February 23, 1943.

The Senate met at 3:00 o'clock, p. m. Eastern War Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor John C. Bell, Jr.) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. EDWIN S. WALLACE, D.D. offered the following prayer:

Help us, O God, to bring our thoughts into captivity to Thee during this brief period that we give to prayer. By the cleansing breath of Thy Spirit empty our minds of everything that is offensive to Thee, that we may think Thy thoughts and be in harmony with the Author and Sustainer of all good and the Opponent of all evil.

If Thou will answer this prayer, the Senators, Thy servants, will be prepared to take up the duties of the day; to consider wisely and decide justly all matters that come before them. Free us, all of us, from the ignorance, the prejudice and the selfishness that too often dwarf the stature of our manhood and keep us from the enjoyment of "the more abundant life" of friendliness and kindly service. Inspire us with hatred of every kind of injustice. Make us intolerant of every policy that starves the bodies or demeans the souls of men.

We pray that we may all have the kind of patriotism that will cause us to dedicate ourselves and all that we have to the defense of our beloved nation. With such consecrated patriotism we can pray with faith for victory over all our enemies.

For all our soliders and sailors of every rank who have staked their lives in the battle zones we pray Thy protection and Thy sustaining grace.

For those in high position in the Nation and the State we pray divine wisdom and guidance. In the name of Christ, our Lord. Amen.

JOURNAL

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session.

REMARKS EXPUNGED FROM THE LEGISLATIVE JOURNAL

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President, I move that all remarks made by the gentlemen from Philadelphia, Senator Stiefel, Senator DiSilvestro and myself, yesterday, February 22, 1943, immediately after the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Stiefel, reported a bill from the Committee on Appropriations, be expunged from the record.

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. I second the motion, Mr. President.

It was agreed to.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The Clerk again proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. HEYBURN and Mr. WADE, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Mr. Wade asked and obtained leave of absence for Mr. ZIESENHEIM.

Mr. McGinnis asked and obtained leave of absence for Mr. MUNDY.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have inserted into the record a very brief and very impressive story.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none. Permission is granted.

Mr. COLEMAN. This story was given to an American by a young English student of Trinity College. It is captioned "One Solitary Life," and is as follows:

"ONE SOLITARY LIFE

"Here is a Man who was born in an obscure village, the Child of a peasant woman. He grew up in another village. He worked in a carpenter shop until He was thirty, and then, for three years, He was an itinerant preacher. He never wrote a book. He never held an office. He never owned a home. He never had a family. He never went to college. He never put his feet inside a big city. He never traveled 200 miles from the place where He was born. He never did one of the things that usually accompany greatness. He had no credentials but himself.

"While still a young man the tide of private opinion turned against him. His friends ran away. One of them denied him. He was turned over to his enemies. He went through the mockery of a trial. He was nailed to a cross between two thieves. His executioners gambled for the only piece of property he had on earth while he was dying, and that was his coat. When he was dead he was taken down and laid in a borrowed grave through the pity of a friend.

"Nineteen wide centuries have come and gone and today he is the centerpiece of the human race and the leader of the column of progress.

HOUSE MESSAGE

GOVERNOR REQUESTED TO INVITE THE HONORABLE MADAME CHIANG KAI-SHEK TO BE THE GUEST OF THE COMMONWEALTH

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, presented an extract from the Journal of the House of Representatives, which was twice read.

In the House of Representatives, February 22, 1943.

In spite of what a poet wrote years ago, the "East" and the "West" have met, and last week the East's most versatile, comely and charming woman, Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, addressed a joint session of the House and Senate of the Congress of the United States.

The wife of China's fighting Generalissimo, she has stood with him in directing that country's heroic defense against the invading Jap.

The United States is not new to this remarkable woman, for she spent many years of her life attending school in this country, and her vast knowledge of our institutions have assisted greatly in creating and cementing ties of friendship between her "East" and our "West."

Famous for her wit and beauty, China's most famous, admired and cultured citizen is now sojourning in the United States, and this Legislature would indeed be honored if she could be persuaded to address its members as she addressed the Congress of the United States; therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concurs), That His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, is hereby requested to invite the Honorable Madame Chiang Kai-Shek to be the guest of this Commonwealth and to address a joint session of the House and Senate whenever convenient to her; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of this House immediately transmit a copy of this Resolution to His Excellency, the Governor.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

SUSPENSION OF RULE 39

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Rule 39, which requires resolutions be referred to an appropriate committee, be dispensed with and the Senate proceed to the consideration of the foregoing resolution.

Which was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

COMMUNICATIONS

RESOLUTION FROM THE FRANKLIN BOROUGH PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The Chair cleared his table and laid before the Senate resolution from the Board of Directors, Franklin Borough Public Schools, Conemaugh, Pennsylvania, dated February 19, 1943, which was read by the Clerk as follows and referred to the Committee on Education:

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

FRANKLIN BOROUGH PUBLIC SCHOOLS

CONEMAUGH—PENNSYLVANIA

Conemaugh, Pa., February 19, 1943.

Members of The Senate
c/o Honorable George F. Holmes
Secretary of the Senate
Harrisburg, Penna.

Gentleman:

A copy of the resolution adopted by the Senate on February 1, 1943 was received today by our teachers. They are very much gratified at the recognition given them by the Senate body for the cooperation, time and work contributed by them in the National program of salvage and rationing.

The honorable members of the Senate may rest assured that the teachers will continue to give of their time and substance wherever needed in any National or State program.

However, the teachers of our School District—a 4th class School District—pray that the honorable members of the Senate give them sincere consideration with regard to the matter of an adequate salary adjustment to meet the increased cost of living, and an adequate long range salary schedule when this matter comes before your honorable body. We believe that the salary problems of teachers and supervising officials of School Districts of the 4th class have been presented or will be presented to you in a very factual manner.

Sincerely yours,

H. C. TILLEY (signed)

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

RESOLUTION URGING INVESTIGATION OF Dr. FRANK S. PARKER

Mr. MALLERY from the Committee on Public Utilities to which was referred resolution offered by Mr. Jaspan on February 22, 1943 reported the same as committed as follows:

In the Senate of Pennsylvania, February 22, 1943.

Whereas, The Honorable Richard J. Beamish was appointed a member of the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission in 1937, to serve for a term of six years and until his successor should be appointed and qualified, and said six-year term is about to expire; and

Whereas, Governor Edward Martin, on February 15, 1943, nominated Dr. Frank S. Parker for a full term of ten years from April 1, 1943, to succeed Mr. Beamish, and has submitted said nomination to the Pennsylvania State Senate for confirmation; and

Whereas, It has been publicly charged and bruited about that Dr. Parker's past record strongly indicates that he is definitely pro-utility, and has little or no regard for the interests of the public; and

Whereas, It has repeatedly been declared by the courts of last resort that the functions of the Public Utility Commission are legislative, and that its members are agents of the General Assembly, in fact, appointed by it; and the present appointment, therefore, vitally concerns us as representatives of the people of the Commonwealth; and

Whereas, The Public Utility Commission, as agent of the Legislature, is to all intents and purposes a representative of the public, and the conduct of its members affects every citizen or non-citizen, either directly or indirectly; and

Whereas, It is essential to the welfare and progress of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania that men be appointed to this particular Commission, who are best qualified to serve the best interests of the public; therefore be it

Resolved, That a committee of ten members, consisting of five Republican Senators and five Democratic Senators, be appointed by the President Pro Tempore, to inquire into and determine the qualifications of Dr. Frank S. Parker that either qualify or disqualify him to or from serving as Public Utility Commissioner, and to hold one or more public hearings at which every interested person may have an opportunity to be heard; said committee to report its finding and recommendations to the Senate at its present session; and be it further

Resolved, That the committee shall have power to issue subpoenas under the hand and seal of its chairman, requesting and commanding any person or persons to appear before them and to answer such questions touching matters properly being inquired into by the committee, and to produce such books, papers, records and documents as the committee may deem necessary. Such subpoena may be served upon any person, and shall have the force and effect of subpoenas issued out of the courts of this Commonwealth. Each member of the committee shall have power to administer oaths and affirmation to witnesses appearing before the committee. Any person who shall wilfully neglect or refuse to testify before said committee or to produce any books, papers, records or documents shall be subject to the penalties provided by the laws of the Commonwealth in such cases.

RESOLUTION RE-REFERRED

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, with the approval of the sponsor, and with the authorization of the Committee on Public Utilities, this resolution is reported out with the recommendation that it be re-referred to the Committee on Executive Nominations.

The PRESIDENT. It is so ordered.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES

Mr. CRIDER, from the Committee on Forests and Waters, Game and Fish, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 121, entitled:

An Act to further amend the title and sections one and three of, and to add section four to, the act, approved the tenth day of April, one thousand nine hundred thirty-one (P. L. 23), entitled as amended "An act providing for the acceptance by the Commonwealth of a gift of lands from the American Petroleum Institute, located on the left bank of Oil Creek, in Oil Creek Township or Cherry Tree Township, or both, Venango County, to establish the Drake Well Memorial Park, under the control and supervision of the Department of Forests and Waters; empowering the Department of Property and Supplies to acquire additional lands for such Memorial Park without cost to the Commonwealth; and making an appropriation," changing the name of said memorial and placing it under the supervision and control of the Pennsylvania Historical Commission, defining the powers and duties of the commission relative thereto, authorizing the employment of certain employes and the payment of their salaries; and making an appropriation.

which was re-referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. THOMAS, from the Committee on Forests and Waters, Game and Fish, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 130, entitled:

An Act to amend section two hundred thirteen of the act, approved the second day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-five (P. L. 448), entitled "An act relating to fish; and amending, revising, consolidating, and changing the law relating to fish in the inland waters and the boundary lakes and boundary rivers of the Commonwealth," by prohibiting the sale of or offering for sale of bait-fish or fish-bait taken from the waters of this Commonwealth, when not artificially propagated and sold pursuant to an artificial propagation license granted by the board.

Mr. BARR, from the Committee on Forests and Waters, Game and Fish, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 135, entitled:

An Act to amend section seven hundred sixteen of the act approved the third day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven, (P. L. 1225), entitled "An act concerning game and other wild birds and wild animals; and amending, revising, consolidating, and changing the law relating thereto," authorizing the sale and purchase of hides of lawfully killed deer under certain circumstances.

Mr. WOODRING, at the insistence of the Committee on Forests and Waters, Game and Fish, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 78, entitled:

An Act to further amend sections two hundred twenty, and two hundred eighty-five of the act approved the second day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five (P. L. 448), entitled "An act relating to fish; and amending, revising, consolidating, and changing the law relating to fish in the inland waters and the boundary lakes and boundary rivers of the Commonwealth," increasing the resident fishing license fee and limiting the use of the money derived from such increase.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE ON EXECUTIVE NOMINATIONS

Mr. WATKINS, from the Committee on Executive Nominations reported with a favorable recommendation the following nomination, made by His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, which was laid on the table for one day, in accordance with the rules of the Senate.

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, February 22, 1943.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

In conformity with law, I have the honor hereby to nominate for the advice and consent of the Senate Charles H. Young, 314 Wallace Avenue, New Castle, Lawrence County, for appointment as a member of the Board of Trustees of Slippery Rock State Teachers' College, until the third Tuesday of January, 1945, and until his successor shall have been appointed and qualified, vice Thomas W. Dickey, deceased.

EDWARD MARTIN.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON CO-OPERATIVE RESEARCH PROGRAM ON ANTHRACITE AND BITUMINOUS COAL

Mr. LETZLER. Mr. President, I would like to make a brief statement before I submit a report entitled, "Progress in the Co-operative Research Program on Anthracite and Bituminous Coal."

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Clearfield may proceed.

Mr. LETZLER. Mr. President, coal, during this emergency, has become an exceedingly important commodity. Over a period of years there has been in progress at the Pennsylvania State College a program of research for the purpose of determining new uses for coal, as well as increasing its efficient use for the heating of homes and buildings generally.

The General Assembly, in 1941, provided for the continuation of this program by a new act. As finally signed by the Governor, this act, No. 77-A, provided an appropriation of $60,000 for the biennium, which sum had to be matched by a sum of $30,000 to be provided by the anthracite and bituminous coal industries. Both of these industries have co-operated fully in the program by providing the matching sum above stated, and by active participation through various committees upon which members from labor and industry and the Department of Mines are serving.

Mr. President, it is our pleasure and our privilege to present to this honorable body a report of progress on the research on anthracite and bituminous coal during the biennium 1941-1942.

The wisdom of the action of the General Assembly in sponsoring this program will be evidenced from the progress that has been made.

Just a few weeks ago, Dr. Gauger, who heads this program at State College, was here and suggested that a report of this type be made, and on behalf of my colleague, the Senator from Schuylkill, Mr. Watkins, and myself, I am pleased to present this report, and ask that it be printed in the Journal.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection. The Chair hears none. Permission is granted.

The report is as follows:

REPORT BY THE HONORABLE A. H. LETZLER
Senator from the 34th District

THE HONORABLE G. HAROLD WATKINS
Senator from the 29th District

Progress in the Cooperative Research Program on Anthracite and Bituminous Coal

At Pennsylvania's School of Mineral Industries and Experiment Station The Pennsylvania State College

Under Act No. 77-A of the General Assembly of 1941

The importance of Pennsylvania's anthracite and bituminous coal industries during the present global conflict needs no elaboration. Suffice it to say that these two industries are being called upon to meet the energy demands of an ever-expanding war production as well as the increased requirements for domestic purposes caused by the shortage of fuel oil. As a result of the present world situation the mines are working, tonnage is increasing and the general situation is quite the reverse from that which existed during the previous decade. At that time the unemployment, decline in real estate values, loss of revenue to the Commonwealth and staggering costs of unemployment relief which resulted from the decline of these two great industries furnished a most serious economic and social problem.

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth, realizing this situation, and seeking to alleviate the then existing conditions, passed an Act (No. 392) in 1939 which provided for a research program on anthracite and bituminous coal to be conducted at the School of Mineral Industries and Experiment Station of The Pennsylvania State College under the supervision of the Department of Mines of the Commonwealth. The Act, as finally approved by the Honorable Arthur H. James, then Governor of the Commonwealth, appropriated $35,000 for the biennium 1939-1941 contingent upon the provision of the like matching sum by the industry.

Both the anthracite and bituminous coal industries of Pennsylvania co-operated whole-heartedly in this program and substantial progress was reported to the Senate on February 24, 1941.

The General Assembly of 1941 provided for the continuation of this program by a new act. As finally signed by the Governor, this Act, 77-A, provided an appropriation of $60,000 for the biennium which sum had to be matched by a sum of $30,000 provided by the anthracite and bituminous coal industries. Both of these industries have cooperated fully in the program by providing the matching funds and by active participation through Advisory Committees upon which members from labor, industry and the Department of Mines are serving. An interim progress report was presented to the House on March 30, 1942, at the special session of that year.

It is our pleasure and privilege to present to this Honorable Body a report of progress of the research on anthracite and bituminous coal during the biennium 1941-1943. The wisdom of the action of the General Assembly in sponsoring this program will be evident from the progress made.

At the present time two Research Advisory Committees are cooperating with the Department of Mines and College staff in the effective furtherance of the research projects. Members of these Committees are as follows:

Anthracite Research Advisory Committee

Name	Affiliation
Richard Maize	Secretary of Mines
Joseph J. Walsh	Deputy Secretary of Mines
Mart F. Brennan	Pres., Dist. No. 9, U. M. W. A.
J. F. K. Brown	Asst. Gen. Mgr., Engr., Hudson Coal Company
Andrew Drummond	Engineer, Lehigh Valley Coal Sales Company
H. S. Gilbertson	Personnel Director, Lehigh Navigation Coal Company
Edward Griffith	Vice-Pres., Glen Alden Coal Company
Louis C. Madeira, III	Exec. Director, Anthracite Institute
Donald Markle	Pres., Jeddo-Highland Coal Company
Dr. H. J. Rose	Vice-Pres., Anthracite Industries, Inc.
H. G. Turner	Research Engr., Anthracite Equipment Corporation
Edgar C. Weichel	Asst. Gen. Mgr., Hudson Coal Company
F. C. Wright	Vice-Pres., Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company

Bituminous Research Advisory Committee

Name	Affiliation
Richard Maize	Secretary of Mines
W. Garfield Thomas	Deputy Secretary of Mines
C. B. Baton	Gen. Supt., Baton Coal Company
B. H. Canon	Sec., Western Pennsylvania Coal Operators Association
Patrick T. Fagan	Pres., Dist. No. 5, U. M. W. A.
Henry F. Hebley	Product Control Mgr., Pittsburgh Coal Company
W. A. Jones	Sec., Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers Association

J. B. Morrow	Pres., Pittsburgh Coal Company
E. J. Newbaker	Vice-Pres. and Gen Mgr., Berwind-White Coal Mining Company
Dr. Charles J. Potter	Preparation Manager, Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal Company

At the present time nine full-time research men are working on the project and these investigators are aided by four shop, laboratory and office assistants. The work is under the direction of A. W. Gauger, Professor of Fuel

Technology and Director of Mineral Industries Research. C. C. Wright, Professor of Fuel Technology, is charged with active supervision of the program.

A review of the purpose, method of attach and progress on each project is outlined briefly in the following paragraphs.

Gasification of Anthracite

As was pointed out in the report made to this body in 1941, prior to and during the first world war an appreciable tonnage of anthracite in the larger sizes was used for manufacture of water gas. Following the world war this was largely replaced by coke and the gas making practices were so modified and equipment developed to favor the use of fuels other than anthracite for this purpose.

The Advisory Committee on anthracite research met in the summer of 1939 and selected as the major project for investigation the use of anthracite as generator fuel for the water gas process. A threefold attack was made upon the problem. This consisted of laboratory studies on the properties of anthracite of importance in water gas manufacture, plant scale tests using anthracite conducted at Pottsville and Carlisle, and a survey of operating methods and data for gas plants using anthracite successfully.

This investigation was carried as far as was feasible during the past biennium. The results of the three phases have been made available to the anthracite industry and to the gas companies in five cooperative publications of the Mineral Industries Experiment Station as follows:

Plans and Progress of Anthracite Research, Technical Paper 57;
Anthracite Fuel Beds in Water Gas Generators, Technical Paper 68;
The Resistance of Anthracite to Mechanical and Thermal Shock,
Bulletin 31; Test Results on the Use of Anthracite in Heavy-Oil Water-Gas Operation at the Pottsville Gas Works, Bulletin 32; Test Results on the Use of Anthracite in Gas-Oil Water-Gas Operation at the Carlisle Gas Works, Bulletin 36.

In addition, numerous discussions and papers were presented before various gas associations. Technical information has thus been made available to the gas and anthracite industries, and also to interested governmental agencies, regarding satisfactory fuels, methods for the most efficient utilization, and operating techniques which have given good results. Some experiments were made in larger generators but these were not carried to completion before the engineer in direct charge of this investigation was called to Washington by the War Production Board. The Advisory Committee felt that the investigation had been carried as far as was feasible at the time, hence the work was stopped in the spring of 1942.

Anthracite as Cupola Fuel

The Committee selected in the spring of 1941 a second major project, namely, the use of anthracite as a fuel in the melting of iron in foundry cupolas. This possible industrial use of anthracite has not been exploited to any appreciable extent during the past half century. It employs the larger sizes, such as egg and broken coal. Because of the diversity of its products and the relatively small size of the individual foundries, it is not generally realized that the foundry industry is so extensive and uses such large quantities of fuel. A recent survey, however, indicates that in the anthracite marketing territory alone approximately 2 thousand plants with an annual melting capacity of roughly 10 million tons consume approximately ½ million tons of cupola fuel per year. This market, if available to the anthracite industry, would consume a substantial portion of the large, egg and broken, sizes which until recently have suffered from inadequate markets.

The melting of iron in foundries is accomplished in a relatively simple piece of equipment consisting essentially of a vertical shaft furnace which may vary from about 20 to 100 inches in diameter and from about 8 to 14 feet in height. A bed of carbon in the form of coke or coal is placed on the bottom of the furnace followed by alternate layers of scrap and pig iron and carbon until the cupola is fully charged. The carbon is burned and the heat thus released melts the iron which in molten form is tapped out at the base of the cupola into containers in which it can be transported to the molds where the desired castings are produced. Despite the apparent simplicity of the process, there are a great many variables that affect the economic performance of the process and it has been the purpose of this research program to discover what conditions of operation are most suitable when using anthracite rather than the coke which has been used almost exclusively during the past 40 or 50 years.

Because of physical limitations of equipment or of floor space available for castings, the method of operation and the results desired by different foundries vary appreciably. Likewise, the desired physical and chemical properties of the metal and the temperature of the molten iron from the cupola differ at different plants because of the variations in the specifications for the castings produced. With such a range of conditions and limitations, it is obviously impossible to duplicate experimentally all the possible variations that may be encountered in individual plants, but as a result of a comprehensive study of the major variables when using anthracite as fuel, basic information is now available which indicates the conditions of operation which will best produce a given result. This study was originally initiated in the foundry of the Hudson Coal Company and was continued by the College staff with the active cooperation of this company. Nearly 100 plant scale tests in which over 600 tons of iron were melted have been completed under a variety of conditions. The results of the various tests were entirely satisfactory, both with respect to quality of castings, all of which were actually used, and in the cost and efficiency of operation.

In general, it has been found that the major conditions of operation, such as ratio of fuel required to iron melted, air rate required to produce a desired temperature of metal or rate of melting, fluxing of the slag, etc., were substantially the same as for coke operations in a cupola of similar size and design. In order to obtain the best results with anthracite, however, it was found desirable to modify some of the standard operating methods, such as the method of building the bed and the height of the bed to take into account the fact that anthracite contains almost twice as much carbon per unit of volume as does coke, and that heated lump anthracite tends to break down in size under adverse loading conditions.

For cupolas of small and medium size, such as was used in the experimental investigations, the results with respect to mental temperature, melting rate and overall efficiency compared very favorably with the results obtained in a number of commercial foundries where operation using coke was observed.

The results of this investigation are now being compiled in a form suitable for general distribution so that individual foundries will be in a position to adopt the methods of operation with anthracite most nearly applicable to their specific conditions and requirements. Although the work has yet to be extended to operations in large cupolas, the information thus far secured should be of assistance to the smaller foundries throughout the anthracite marketing territory who may be interested in using a lower cost and readily available fuel.

Active Carbon from Anthracite

The secondary project of the cooperative anthracite research dealt with the production of active carbon. Active carbon is a special form of carbon that possesses the property of selectively absorbing other materials, especially liquids and gases. It is used for a variety of purification processes such as deodorizing, decolorizing, clarifying and filtering gases and liquids.

An activation furnace was designed and constructed for the continuous production of approximately one pound per hour of active carbon. Experiments have been made with a number of anthracites. The results have shown that all coals are not equally well adapted for the process and that considerable variation is possible in coal from a given colliery. The various factors effecting activation results have been studied and the preparation of both gas mask and water purification carbons has been investigated. Attempts to interest the War Department in the possibility of gas mask carbon from anthracite have been unsuccessful because the government felt it has sufficient substitutes to make gas mask carbon to take up any shortage of adsorbing carbon due to source of supply of coconut shells being cut off.

Investigations on the production of water purification carbon from anthracite have been quite successful and a product has been made which compares favorably in efficiency with a number of commercially available carbons now marketed. It must be cautioned, however, that the true evaluation of any active carbon lies in large plant scale tests of the product on the material being purified. The laboratory test used to indicate the water purifying ability of the anthracite carbons is the iodine value. Two of the carbons, one from the Southern and one from the Northern field, show values of 335 and 368 respectively using this test, while four commercially used carbons now marketed show values of 210 to 392 on the same test. The research has been carried to the stage where pilot plant operations are justified. Active carbons are so specific in their properties that further work in the laboratory is only warranted if a specific problem of purification is attacked. The results of this work are available to the anthracite industry through the Anthracite Institute.

Federal Interest in Anthracite Research

Interest in the problems of the anthracite industry and in anthracite research has become so widespread since the inception of this work in 1939 that congressional action has been taken recently enabling the establishment of an anthracite experiment station by the U. S. Bureau of Mines. This action followed an investigation made in the region by the Federal Anthracite Coal Commission consisting of two members of the Senate, two from the House of Representatives, the Director of the Bureau of Mines, a member of the National Resources Planning Board and a member of the Interstate Experiment Station was the only one that had been continuously active over a long period of years, it was natural for this Experiment Station to offer to cooperate with this Commission in its work. This was done in a letter to the Chairman from which the following is quoted:

"The School of Mineral Industries and Experiment Station has been interested in the anthracite industry for many years. We have made a number of economic studies and have been engaged in a research program which has yielded results of considerable benefit to the industry. Since 1939 the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the industry acting through the Anthracite Institute have sponsored a cooperative research program in the Mineral Industries Experiment Station under the supervision of the State Secretary of Mines. We believe that the Federal Government also has an interest in such a program. We also believe that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania could be prevailed upon to cooperate with the Federal Government in such a research program in a manner similar to that in which it now cooperates with the Department of Agriculture in research in that field.

"In view of the fact that the Commonwealth now has an active experiment station, well equipped and well staffed, with a promising program of research on anthracite under way and with active contacts, both with other state departments and with industry, it seems desirable to give consideration to the use of our technical staff and facilities in any future program of research on anthracite."

The Experiment Station also prepared a brief for the benefit of the Commission which was submitted at a public hearing in Scranton on January 29, 1942. This brief was supplemented by a letter to the Secretary of the Commission, Dr. R. R. Sayers, Director of the U. S. Bureau of Mines. which cited the advantages of establishing the proposed anthracite research station at the College and offering its facilities and cooperation. Acceptance of this proposal would have been an economical procedure. The Mineral Industries Experiment Station is a pioneer in research on anthracite. It has active cooperation of management and labor in the industry. All types of facilities and equipment, both physical and mental, are available. The Commonwealth is already supporting a program there. In view of these considerations it would be logical and economical for the Federal Government to support the going research program in the Mineral Industries Experiment Station. More progress can be accomplished in less time and at a lower cost. With the mounting costs of war, consideration ought to be given to such items as these.

Automatic Comfort Heating with Bituminous Coal

I turn now to the progress in the research program on bituminous coal. It will be recalled that the Bituminous Coal Research Advisory Committee selected as the major project the study of automatic comfort heating with Pennsylvania bituminous coal. There is a trend toward automatic heating of residential homes which has led to the development of a small stoker. Unfortunately, the existing small stokers have not performed satisfactorily with most Pennsylvania coals. In general, the Pennsylvania bituminous coals are strongly coking and are not adapted to use in such stokers which, after all, were designed for other coals.

The research staff has completed a very comprehensive investigation of this problem. A new principle of combustion has been developed and stokers have been built in which the bad features of conventional stokers have been entirely eliminated. In the existing stokers the heavily coking coals produced large masses of coke known as "coke trees" in the furnace. The combustion was inefficient and frequently the fire was entirely extinguished. The new stoker developed as part of this program has entirely eliminated the coke-tree problem. Furthermore, a device has been developed which will eliminate virtually all of the smoke that may result from normal stoker operation, and low cost, compact settling chambers have been designed; these have proved effective for the reduction of the fly-ash nuisance inherent in all types of stoker operations. Plans are now being made to get this stoker into production immediately following the war or as soon as materials of construction are again available. Automatic comfort heating with Pennsylvania bituminous coal will then be available to the homeowner and the bituminous coal industry will be able to regain a market to which it is entitled by virtue of its proximity.

The results of this program have been brought to the attention of industry and the public in two cooperative publications of the mineral Industries Experiment Station, namely, Technical Paper 79, Control of Coke-Tree Formation in Domestic Underfeed Stokers and Bulletin 35, The Performance of a Completely Automatic Domestic Bituminous Coal Stoker in Laboratory and Home Installation Tests. The results of investigation of other phases of the program will be published in the near future.

The work has aroused considerable interest, so much in fact that the Advisory Committee has decided to expand this program to include the development of larger stokers employing the same firing principle as is embodied in the new domestic stoker. A large manufacturer of industrial stokers of this class is cooperating in this work which is now being organized.

Fly-Ash Studies and Smoke Control

In recent years much publicity has been given to the problem of atmospheric pollution by fuel burning equipment. The staff has attacked this problem in a realistic manner and has conducted experiments both in the laboratory and in household installations. The emission of fly-ash from the firebox of furnaces fired with domestic underfeed stokers varies with a number of factors which depend both on the coal and the equipment used. Since almost all domestic furnaces available to the average householder are designed primarily for hand fired operation and are inadequately designed and equipped to take care of the fly-ash production normally encountered when used in conjunction with small underfeed stokers, some type of accessory equipment is needed to control or remove the fly-ash.

Such a device was designed by the staff. It consists of a baffled settling chamber small enough to fit conveniently into almost any domestic installation. Laboratory and home tests have shown that the use of such a settling chamber is both practicable and efficient.

Similiarly, a device has been designed that greatly reduces the smoke normally produced when firing some types of bituminous coals. Tests on its operation indicate that smoke emission is negligible.

Service Hot Water

Studies have been completed on the operation of an indirect service hot water system used in connection with hot water, vapor or steam boilers. The performance of such a system installed in a hot water boiler fired with a stoker modified to operate on the new preoxidation principle of combustion was entirely satisfactory during complete year-round operation. Inasmuch as it is possible to operate the new stoker at rates as low as 0.5-0.7 pound of coal per hour, the summer operation for heating of hot water is entirely feasible without overheating of the basement. As a matter of fact such operation is desirable since it keeps the cellar from becoming damp and prevents corrosion of the furnace installation.

Experimental work is being continued on the development of a domestic service water for use with hot air furnaces. This is a very important phase of the program since there is a marked trend towards forced warm air heating in this country.

The ultimate objective of the automatic comfort heating program is the design of a unit that will burn bituminous coal with a minimum of attention and without smoke, and will furnish hot water the year around and heat during the normal heating season.

Non-Fuel Uses of Bituminous Coal

Recognizing the need for long-range research on the nature of bituminous coal and the possibilities of making useful materials of commerce from it by chemical treatment, the Bituminous Coal Research Advisory Committee recommended this as a secondary project. In this phase of the program certain dyes and wood stains have been made in the laboratory by treatment with chemical reagents. These dyes range from pale yellow through a variety of shades to deep brown.

A number of different fibers, including cotton, linen, wool, rayon, celanese, nylon, silk and jute have been dyed with these materials. Laboratory tests for quality of the dyes, using all the standard methods commonly employed, show that very satisfactory products have been obtained. They are now being tested by various agencies in an effort to bring the process to a point of commercial development. The program is being extended along the lines of developing plastics from bituminous coal. The experiments are still in the preliminary stage and we are unable to report progress at the present time.

Conclusion

In conclusion it may be stated that the Mineral Industries Experiment Station under the supervision of the Department of Mines is making substantial progress toward the development of new and improved uses for anthracite and bituminous coal. Emphasis is now being placed on problems that have a direct bearing upon the war effort and the nation's fuel problems resulting therefrom. The laboratory has cooperated with governmental agencies, and technical services and facilities have been offered to those interested in specific problems relating to the use of Pennsylvania anthracite and bituminous coal. Much technical information has been made available to the industry and every effort is being made to provide the solid fuel industries and consumers with maximum technical service.

As stated already this program was initiated by the General Assembly to alleviate a condition in the anthracite and bituminous coal industry that is familiar to all of you. At the present time the situation is different, it is true. However, there will come a time when the pendulum will again swing in the other direction. The Commonwealth and the industries have now a period of grace in which to prepare against the time when the war is over and we face the period of reconstruction. Research done now not only aids the nation in its war efforts but is a form of insurance to protect these industries and the citizenry of the Commonwealth in the aftermath of the war.

The Commonwealth has in its School of Mineral Industries and Experiment Station one of the finest research laboratories for study of all mineral industrial problems that exists in this country. The facilities made available through the General State Authority are excellent. In addition to the staff in fuel technology there are men in the Experiment Station who are expert in other branches of the mineral industries, expert mineral engineers and technologists who can be called upon to advise in connection with problems incidental to the research program on authracite and bituminous coal.

The progress to date has been splendid. The facilities are available. There should be no slackening now. It is our recommendation that the General Assembly continue sponsorship of this cooperative research program on anthracite and bituminous coal and that an appropriation of $100,000 be made for this purpose during the biennium 1943-1945.

REPORT BY JOINT STATE GOVERNMENT COMMISSION ON THE ISSUANCE OF CERTIFIED COPIES OF BIRTH CERTIFICATES

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, on behalf of the Joint State Government Commission, I present to the Chair and to each member of the Senate a copy of The Report to the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania on the Bureau of Vital Statistics, Department of Health, Relative to the Issuance of Certified Copies of Birth Certificates.

The PRESIDENT. Receipt of the report will be noted in the Journal.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Mr. WALKER read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 203, entitled:

An Act making an appropriation to the Children's Aid Society of Western Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Which was committed to the Committee on Appropriations.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. SHAPIRO asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. SHAPIRO. When he was Governor of this Commonwealth, the Honorable George H. Earle appointed a commission to investigate and report on a city charter, and that committee prepared and submitted to the Legislature and to the Governor recommendations with respect to a charter for the City of Philadelphia.

In 1939, there was presented to this Legislature a city charter which was the result of, and based on, the recommendations of that committee. That bill passed the Senate but did not survive the House. It contained provisions for a city manager and for proportional representation. The basis of the defeat of the bill in the House, and most of the argument in the Senate—although the bill passed here—was against a city manager and proportional representation.

In the 1941 session of the Legislature there was introduced in the Senate a bill calling for a city charter for the city of Philadelphia which did not provide for city management or for proportional representation. That bill did not arrive on the floor of the Senate.

There has been a great deal said about a new city charter for Philadelphia, and nothing done. Many suggestions have been made as to how a new charter can be prepared. I have come to the conclusion that, no matter what method you adopt for the preparation of a new charter, I doubt very much whether the charter, basicly, could be improved upon unless you accept the provisions of the charter recommended by that commission, which I think, upon a fair reading, will show is an unbiased recommendation, based on what would be good city management and economical city management for any city, and so I examined that charter again this session and I have prepared another charter along the same lines.

In view of the fact that the bill is a large bill, I have tried carefully to avoid mistakes; I do not claim perfection, but I think it is free of mistakes generally. It is the same as the bill introduced in 1941, except it gives the voters the right to say whether they want proportional representation. If they do, then the main provision of the charter, which provides for the election of eleven councilmen at large, will fall, and members of council will be elected upon proportional representation, the method for which is set up in this charter, which was not contained in the last bill.

It also provides, Mr. President, that the people of Philadelphia shall say whether or not they want this charter, so that, in my opinion, the bill is of essence home rule, because the bill contains the recommendations of a group of Philadelphia citizens who have gone into every phase of city government, and from the recommendations have eliminated what they think are expensive, wasteful methods of city government, and have presented to this Legislature a charter which I think could be a model for any city, not alone for Philadelphia.

Secondly, it gives to the people of Philadelphia the right to say whether they want that charter.

Thirdly, it gives them the right to say whether they want their councilmen elected upon proportional representation or at large.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Mr. SHAPIRO read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 204, entitled:

An Act for the better government of cities of the first class of the Commonwealth, by providing, among other things, for the election of a mayor and a council at large, and, in the alternative, if adopted, by proportional representation; the creation, abolition and change of departments, and the addition to departments of certain functions pertaining to parks, detention and correction, planning within the city, weights and measures, and dependent, neglected, incorrigible and delinquent children, transferred from certain county offices to the extent of the performance of such functions within such cities; improvement of the civil service; increased control over finances, by requiring balanced current and capital budgets, and by greater control over the collection of charges, fees and taxes, and over payments of salaries and other expenditures out of the city treasury; improvement in the making and revision of assessments; the grant of home rule to such cities; and penalties.

Which was committed to the Committee on Municipal Government.

Mr. WOODWARD read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 205, entitled:

An Act making an appropriation to the Chestnut Hill Hospital, 8835 Germantown Avenue, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Which was committed to the Committee on Appropriations.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. KEPHART, from the Committee on Judiciary General reported as amended, Senate Bill No. 53, entitled:

An Act relating to the practice, procedure, regulations, and adjudications of departments, departmental administrative boards and commissions, independent administrative boards and commissions, officers and other administrative agencies of this Commonwealth, and judicial review thereof; and preserving equitable jurisdiction in certain cases.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. JAMES asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President and members of the Senate, I suppose you are all aware of the untimely death of the late ex-Senator Clarence J. Buckman, who was buried yesterday, and that there was in attendance at his funeral, representing this body, Senator Scarlett, Senator Tallman, Senator Ruth and myself.

In order, Mr. President, to commemorate his memory, I desire to offer the following resolution which I now send to the desk and ask the Clerk to read.

RESOLUTION

CONDOLENCES EXTENDED TO THE FAMILY OF CLARENCE J. BUCKMAN

Mr. JAMES offered the following resolution which was twice read, as follows:

In the Senate of Pennsylvania, February 23, 1943.

Senator Clarence J. Buckman was born in the Township of Middletown, Bucks County, on October 31, 1879. He was the son of John B. Buckman and Sara Hibbs Buckman. He was reared on his father's farm and received his education in the public schools of his native township, graduating from the Hulmeville High School in 1894. He prepared for college at the State Model School of Trenton, New Jersey, from which he graduated in 1897. He then entered the law school of the University of Pennsylvania, and was graduated from there in 1900, at the age of only twenty years. Upon his graduation from law school, the firm of Buckman and Buckman of Bucks and Philadelphia Counties was founded, his associate being his brother, J. Hibbs Buckman. He soon became an active practitioner, recognized as a leader in politics, and public affairs in Bucks County.

In 1907 he served as a delegate to the Republican State Convention and to the Republican National Convention in 1916. In 1909 he was elected as a member of the House of Representatives. In 1910 he was elected to the Senate and served brilliantly in that body until 1938. During his service in the Senate, he served as President Pro Tempore in 1917 and in 1919.

Much of Senator Buckman's renown is derived from his activities on behalf of the Washington Crossing Park and the Commission for the elimination of toll bridges over the Delaware River between Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and the establishment of a system of improved highways throughout the State. He was also a director of the Farmer's National Bank of Bucks County at Bristol, and a member of numerous professional, fraternal and social organizations and clubs.

He was one of the most prominent political and public figures in Bucks County and throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and his forceful and genial personality endeared him to his many friends.

Senator Buckman is survived by his widow, Ada L. Buckman and his two children, Lt. Clarence J. Buckman, Jr., of the United States Army Air Force, now serving overseas, and a daughter, Mrs. Wynne Curtis, of Dallas, Texas; therefore be it

Resolved, That by reason of the untimely death of the said Senator Clarence J. Buckman on February 18, 1943, the County of Bucks has lost one of its most prominent and public spirited citizens, the Bar of Bucks County one of its most prominent, able and beloved members; and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, one of its most eminent citizens, and be it further Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the family of Clarence J. Buckman, to whom our sincerest sympathy is extended in their bereavement.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, a number of members upon both sides of this house served with Senator Buckman and knew him very well in his lifetime, knew the type of man he was, admired him for his ability and sterling qualities. He was, in my opinion, one of the ablest legislators we have had in this body for many, many years.

He was born and bred in my county and I am very proud of what he accomplished, not only for the county but for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania as well. An honored member of our Bar, he was always helpful to younger men. I recall very distinctly, when I came in as his successor to this body, he was here and he aided and helped me; he helped my friend, Senator Thomas; he helped other younger members—in point of service, not in years—and he was always very kind to those he could aid and benefit.

I am proud of his accomplishments. I am proud of the fact that he belonged to Bucks County, was born and bred in Bucks County.

He lies interred in a quiet little graveyard, which was in accordance with his desire, with no ostentation, a little quiet country graveyard, the Friends Cemetery, and there he is resting today.

He has brought honor and distinction upon my county in which he was born and bred and where he lived all his life, and when you come to think of it, Mr. President, here was a man that gave up twenty-eight continuous years of his life—yes, more than that, I think nearly thirty years, taking the period he served in the House—which he contributed towards the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in unselfish service. We are all proud of him. As Senators, we are proud of the record he has accomplished in this Commonwealth.

May God rest his soul.

RULE 39 SUSPENDED

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Rule 39, which requires resolutions be referred to an appropriate committee, be suspended and the Senate do now proceed to the consideration of the resolution just read.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

It was agreed to.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I voted "aye".

The motion was agreed to.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second reading?

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section as read?

Mr. BECKER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to offer the following amendments.

The amendments were read by the Clerk as follows:

On page 3, line 15, strike out "every two years" and insert in lieu thereof, the following: "each year"; On page 3, line 29, insert the following at the end thereof: "Provided however that for the duration of the present war and six (6) months thereafter the department shall not be required to make such examination more than once every two years."

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the amendments?
They were agreed to.
On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the section as amended?
It was agreed to.
The second section was read.
On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. BECKER. Mr. President, I desire to offer the following amendment.

The amendment was read by the Clerk as follows:

On page 4, line 6 and 7, strike out the following: and shall remain in force until six months after termination of the present war.

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment?
It was agreed to.
On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the section as amended?
It was agreed to.
The title was read and agreed to.
And said bill as amended having been read at length the second time and agreed to,
Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,
The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 34, entitled:

An Act prescribing temporary emergency war provisions with respect to the administration of certain provisions of the school laws of this Commonwealth relating to days for schools to be in session, closing schools temporarily, assignment and reassignment of teachers and temporary farm and domestic employment certificates for certain pupils, and authorizing boards of school directors (or boards of public instruction), with the approval of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, to put such provisions into operation and to suspend the provisions of existing school laws inconsistent therewith upon findings by such boards and department and the State Council of Defense

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,
On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the bill?

RECONSIDERATION OF SENATE BILL No. 34

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 34 passed second reading.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?
Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, I voted "aye".
Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I second the motion.
The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?
Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I voted "aye".
The motion was agreed to.
And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the bill on second reading?
The first section was read.
On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, I desire to offer the following amendments.

The amendments were read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend section 1, page 2, line 1 by inserting after the word "by" and before the word "the" the figure: "(1)"; Amend section 1, page 2, line 3 by striking out, with boldface brackets, the words "[by the Superintendent of Public Instruction and]"; Amend section 1, page 2, line 4 by striking out, with boldface brackets, at the beginning of the line the words: "[by the State Council of Defense]"; Amend section 1, page 2, line 6 by striking out near the beginning of the line, with boldface brackets, the word: "[in]"; and inserting in lieu thereof the words: "certified to"; Amend section 1, page 2, line 6 by inserting near the end of the line, after the word "Instruction" and before the word "that" the words: "or (2) the Superintendent of Public Instruction in the first instance"; Amend section 1, page 2 by striking out at the end of line 9, line 10 and at the beginning of line 11, with boldface brackets, the words: "[such board of]"; "[school directors (or board of public education) shall have]"; "[power subject to the approval of]"; Amend section 1, page 2, line 12 by inserting after the word "Instruction" and before the word "to" the words: "by his proclamation shall have power"; Amend section 1, page 2, line 12 by inserting after the word "put" and before the word "into" the words: "or cause to be put".

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the amendments?
They were agreed to.
On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the section as amended?
It was agreed to.
The second section was read.
On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, I desire to offer the following amendments.

The amendments were read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend section 2, page 2, by striking out lines 20 to 29, inclusive, with boldface brackets; Amend section 2, page 3 by striking out lines 1 to 17, inclusive, with boldface brackets; and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

Section 2. Subject to the provisions of the foregoing section of this act, the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall have power to authorize any board of school directors (or board of public education) to—

(a) Keep the schools of the district in session such days and number of days per week as they shall deem necessary or desirable, but no present provisions of law requiring a minimum of one hundred eighty (180) session days as a school year shall be affected by this act.

(b) Extend the length of the school days in such manner as to make it possible to complete and to accredit a calendar day as a full school day and a fractional portion of an additional school day.

(c) Suspend temporarily the regular session of any class or classes, or to close temporarily any school or all the schools of the district as an emergency war measure or when the Governor by proclamation so directs. The days on which the regular sessions of classes or schools are so suspended or closed shall be recorded and credited as if they were days taught.

(d) Adjust the assignment and reassignment of teachers in such fields, subjects, schedules and semesters or other periods of work and in such schools as their preparation, experience and certification may qualify them. No such temporary emergency assignment or reassignment shall reduce the rate of compensation any teacher now receives nor shall the emergency assignment, reassignment or the return to the original type of assignment when the emergency has ended be deemed to be a demotion under the tenure provisions of the school laws of this Commonwealth.

(e) Grant temporary increases in salaries of professional employes without thereby incurring the obligation to continue the said temporary increases beyond the period covered by the provisions of this act.

(f) Grant farm and domestic employment permits to pupils who have attained the age of fourteen years and have completed the sixth grade or equivalent thereof.

(g) Accept the certification of the family physicians of any child as satisfactory proof of suitable physical condition for the issuance of any farm or domestic permit or labor permit granted during the period of emergency.

(h) Make such arrangements for extending the use of school buses or other school transportation facilities as may seem desirable for the transportation of teachers as well as pupils or for otherwise furthering the war effort.

(i) Provide in lieu of transportation required by law tuition to a school in another district when educational facilities can thus be made available without requiring such pupils to walk more than one and one-half miles by the public highway from the nearest point where a private way or private road connects the dwelling house of the pupil with the said highway to the nearest point where said highway touches the school grounds of the school to which the pupil has been assigned.

(j) Obtain the full State subsidy provided for fully and regularly certificated teachers when, at the request of the responsible local district or county superintendent of schools, the Superintendent of Public Instruction has issued to a teacher temporarily employed a Special Emergency Wartime Certificate to teach in the subject or field for which wartime emergency conditions make it necessary to employ such teacher.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, before the adoption of these amendments, I would like to interrogate the sponsor of the amendments, the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Homsher.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Lancaster permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HOMSHER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I notice in the bill as it now appears on the Calendar, the words, "the days on which the schools are so closed shall be recorded and credited as if they were days taught," and I notice that in the amendments those words are retained.

Mr. HOMSHER. That is correct.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Is that intended to cover a situation, where, irrespective of whether or not a full term of attendance has been earned by a pupil, he is to receive full credit?

Mr. HOMSHER. It means, Mr. President, that they will be treated as days taught the pupil. The pupils receive their credit for the full term and the teachers are paid their wages for the full term, even though there is a temporary closure.

Mr. SHAPIRO. I can understand that, as far as the teacher is concerned, that provision would be unobjectionable, but as far as the student is concerned, I was wondering if that was intended to cover them, because under this bill there can be a closing of the schools for three to six months, and yet under this bill the student would receive credit for full attendance. Is that the intention of this bill?

Mr. HOMSHER. As I understand it, it is.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. SHAPIRO and Mr. COX, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—30

Becker,	Heyburn,	Ruth,	Tyler,
Bowers,	Homsher,	Scarlett,	Wade,
Carr,	James,	Snowden,	Walker,
Chapman,	Jaspan,	Stevenson,	Watkins,

Farrell,	Mallery,

NAYS—11

Coleman,	Haluska,	McGinnis,	Stiefel,
Cox,	Holland,	McQuiddy,	Woodring,
Gourley,	McCreesh,	Shapiro,

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section as amended?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to be recorded as voting "no."

Whereupon,

A voice vote having been taken, the Chair declared the question to have been decided in the affirmative.

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, I desire to offer the following amendment, to be known as section 3.

The amendment was read by the Clerk as follows:

Section 3. This act shall become effective upon its final enactment.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

The title was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the title?

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, I desire to offer the following amendments.

The amendments were read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend page 1, line 4 of the title, by inserting after the word "schools" and before the first two syllables "tempor-" the words: "and suspending classes"; Amend page 1, line 5 of the title, by inserting after the word "teachers" and before the word "and" the words: "transportation facilities and allowances, temporary increases in salaries of professional employes, State subsidies"; Amend title, page 1, line 8 of title, by striking out the word "instruction" and inserting in lieu thereof "education"; Amend page 1, line 9 of the title, by inserting after the word

"approval" and before the word "of" the words: "or upon the direction"; Amend page 1, lines 12 and 13 of the title, by striking out at the end of line 12 and all of line 13, with boldface brackets, the following: "[and depart-]" "[ment and the State Council of Defense]"; and inserting in lieu thereof the words: "or by the Superintendent of Public Instruction."

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the amendments?
They were agreed to.
On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the title as amended?
It was agreed to.
And said bill as amended having been read at length the second time and agreed to,
Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILLS OVER IN ORDER

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, with the consent of the sponsor, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 85, on third reading, entitled:

A Joint Resolution making application to the Congress of the United States to call a convention for proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, prohibiting the imposition of conditions upon grants of moneys and the invasion of the states rights

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. CRIDER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 116, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to further amend section one of the act, approved the twenty-fourth day of July, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen (P. L. 1013), entitled "An act regulating the issuance of licenses to marry; prohibiting the issuance of such licenses to certain persons; regulating the time during which licenses shall be valid, and the time when returns shall be made of marriages solemnized to the clerk of the orphans' court; and prescribing the duties of the clerk of the orphans' court," by providing that, during the continuation of the present war, the three day waiting period shall not be required in any case in which one of the applicants for a marriage license is in the armed forces of the United States

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,
The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,
The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 40, entitled:

An Act relating to officers and employes of the Senate and House of Representatives abolishing certain positions creating other positions providing compensation for positions created changing certain existing compensations making an appropriation and ratifying action already taken in relation thereto.

The first section was read and agreed to.
The second section was read.
On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, I desire to offer the following amendments.

The amendments were read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend Section 2, page 2, line 5 by striking out the words "In addition to the employes of the House of"; Amend Section 2, page 2, by striking out all of lines 6, 7, 8 and 9; Amend Section 2, page 2, line 10 by striking out the words "hundred dollars ($1,200) per annum."

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the amendments?
They were agreed to.
On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the section as amended?
It was agreed to.
The third section was read and agreed to.
The title was read and agreed to.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that House Bill No. 40 on second reading, as amended, go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objeciton? The Chair hears none.

Agreeably to order,
The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,
The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 52, entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to article nine of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, by adding thereto section eighteen

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, according to the recorded vote there are nine absentees of the Senate, on Tuesday, and tomorrow being Wednesday, there may be nine more, so, with the indulgence of the Senate, I would like to take about two minutes to make my remarks on second reading, although I understand that is not exactly etiquette, but there may be no one here tomorrow.

The PRESIDENT. Is there any objection to hearing Dr. Woodward today instead of tomorrow? The Chair hears none. Permission is granted.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, I have been talking on the telephone to Dr. Logan, who is the budget officer, and I asked him how many special funds there are. This bill creates a special fund. Dr. Logan did not have time to count them at that sitting, but he named several, Game and Fish, the Motor Fund, the Banking Fund, the Milk Fund, Forests and Waters, Workman's Insurance Fund, and so forth.

I wish to make two points. In the first place, not so very long ago there were 33 special funds, and to my way of thinking every special fund is a kind of insult to the intelligence of the Legislature, because it means that we can not do anything about it. Well, of course, Game and Fish, I know they would never give up their fund, but these others, take Forests and Waters, for instance, they have no right to a special fund at all, and we certainly ought to be intelligent enough to allot money to Forests and Waters without having it earmarked. That is the first point.

The second point is—well, I do not know how many years ago it was—but the Commonwealth owed money to school teachers and did not have the money to pay them, and there on the top shelf of the Treasury, were all these special funds, but they were all earmarked. Therefore, the State could not take a penny out of them and the State had to go out—these special funds, as you may not know, drew then two per cent, whether they draw it now or not—they certainly do not draw more than two per cent from the banks—and the State went out and borrowed money at five or six per cent in order to pay the teachers, when there was plenty of money up on the top shelf.

Therefore, Mr. President, I am opposed to this bill putting more money on the top shelf.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second reading?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. Shapiro and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—32

Becker,	Gourley,	Mallery,	Thomas,
Bowers,	Haluska,	McGinnis,	Tyler,
Carr,	Heyburn,	Ruth,	Wade,
Chapman,	Homsher,	Scarlett,	Walker,
Coleman,	James,	Snowden,	Watkins,
Dent,	Jaspan,	Stevenson,	Wilson, H. I.,
Ealy,	Jones,	Tallman,	Wilson, T. B.,
Farrell,	Letzler,	Taylor,	Woodring,

NAYS—9

Crider,	Kephart,	McQuiddy,	Stiefel,
Crowe,	McCreesh,	Shapiro,	Woodward,
Holland,

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILL ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 80, entitled:

An Act to repeal the act approved the twenty-first day of March, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine, (P. L. 34), entitled "An act authorizing the judges of the courts of common pleas and orphans' courts in counties of the third class to employ stenographers typists and clerks to facilitate the business of the courts, and to provide for the payment of their compensation by the county, and validating former employments and payments therefore."

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, with consent of the sponsor I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 103, on second reading, entitled:

An Act authorizing the common pleas judges and the county commissioners jointly to create medical clinics for the examination of certain persons convicted of the commission of a crime prior to the sentencing thereof, as a means of decreasing the number of habitual offenders; providing for the creation of joint medical clinics among the several counties; and imposing the costs of maintaining and operating such clinics upon the county or counties creating the same

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 108, entitled:

An Act to authorize cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships and school districts to file suggestions of nonpayment and averments of default or to sue out writs of scire facias on certain tax or municipal claims and to revive judgments where the lien of such claims or the judgments thereon have been lost, and providing for the reinstatement of the liens of such claims and judgments.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 137, entitled:

An Act to validate and quiet the title to real estate in this Commonwealth held by a foreign corporation unauthorized to hold the same and heretofore conveyed to a citizen of the United States or a corporation authorized to hold such real estate.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. WOODRING. Mr. President, I desire to offer the following amendment.

The amendment was read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend Section 1, page 1, line 5, by striking out after the word "to" the following words: "hold the same" and inserting in lieu thereof: "transact business in Pennsylvania."

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section as amended?

It was agreed to.

The second section was read and agreed to.

The title was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the title?

Mr. WOODRING. Mr. President, I desire to offer the following amendment.

The amendment was read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend the title of the Act, page 1, line 3, of said title by striking out after the word "to" the following words:

"hold the same" and adding in lieu thereof: "transact business in Pennsylvania".

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the title as amended?

It was agreed to.

And said bill as amended having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILL INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce a bill at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. KEPHART read in place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 206, entitled:

An Act making an appropriation to the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia.

Which was committed to the Committee on Appropriations.

HOUSE MESSAGE

COMMITTEE TO ARRANGE CELEBRATION FOR ST. PATRICK'S BIRTHDAY

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, presented an extract from the Journal of the House of Representatives, which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the House of Representatives, February 17, 1943.

The presence of vast numbers of American boys in Ireland at this time stresses the necessity for Americans to acquire a more complete knowledge of Irish customs and manners.

This knowledge can best be acquired by a closer association of Irishmen and with Irishmen.

The birthday of St. Patrick, the patron Saint of Ireland, occurs on March 17th, and no more fitting time could be selected for the start of a study of Irish customs; therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That a legislative committee is hereby created consisting of sixteen members of the House of Representatives to be appointed by the Speaker and ten members of the Senate to be appointed by the President Pro Tempore of the Senate whose duty it shall be to arrange for a fitting and suitable celebration of the birthday of St. Patrick by the members of the General Assembly and their guests.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

MOTION TO READ BILLS THE FIRST TIME

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now proceed to the first reading of all bills reported from committees for the first time at today's session.

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS ON FIRST READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the first reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 53, entitled:

An Act relating to the practice, procedure, regulations, and adjudications of departments, departmental administrative boards and commissions, independent administrative boards and commissions, officers and other administrative agencies of this Commonwealth, and judicial review thereof; and preserving equitable jurisdiction in certain cases.

And said bill having been read at length the first time,

Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the first reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 78, entitled:

An Act to further amend sections two hundred twenty, and two hundred eighty-five of the act approved the second day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five (P. L. 448), entitled "An act relating to fish; and amending, revising, consolidating, and changing the law relating to fish in the inland waters and the boundary lakes and boundary rivers of the Commonwealth," increasing the resident fishing license fee and limiting the use of the money derived from such increase.

And said bill having been read at length the first time,

Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the first reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 130, entitled:

An Act to amend section two hundred thirteen of the act, approved the second day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-five (P. L. 448), entitled "An act relating to fish; and amending, revising, consolidating, and changing the law relating to fish in the inland waters and the boundary lakes and boundary rivers of the Commonwealth," by prohibiting the sale of or offering for sale of bait-fish or fish-bait taken from the waters of this Commonwealth, when not artificially propagated and sold pursuant to an artificial propagation license granted by the board.

And said bill having been read at length the first time,

Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the first reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 135, entitled:

An Act to amend section seven hundred sixteen of the act approved the third day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven, (P. L. 1225), entitled "An act concerning game and other wild birds and wild animals; and amending, revising, consolidating, and changing the law relating thereto," authorizing the sale and purchase of hides of lawfully killed deer under certain circumstances.

And said bill having been read at length the first time,

Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now adjourn until Wednesday, February 24, 1943, at 11:00 o'clock a. m. Eastern War Time.

Mr. TYLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate adjourned at 5:14 o'clock p. m. Eastern War Time until Wednesday, February 24, 1943, at 11:00 o'clock a. m. Eastern War Time.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

TUESDAY, February 23, 1943

The House met at 1 p. m.

The SPEAKER (Ira T. Fiss) in the Chair.

PRAYER

Rev. Francis A. Kirchner, guest of the Chaplain, Assistant Rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral of Harrisburg, offered the following prayer:

We pray Thee, O God of might, wisdom and justice, through Whom authority is rightly administered, laws are enacted, and judgment decreed, assist with Thy Holy Spirit of counsel and fortitude the members of this assembly.

Grant that in their legislative work they may be useful to the people of this great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, by encouraging due respect for virtue and religion and by a faithful execution of their duties in justice and honesty.

Let the light of Thy Divine Wisdom direct their deliberations; let it shine forth in all the proceedings and laws framed for our rule and government.

Inspire them to remember always that every man is their brother, and that Thou art the common Father of all, to Whom some day they must give an account of all their thoughts, their words and their acts, of this day and every day.

May these, our representatives, with Thy divine guidance, proceed to the recovery and preservation of peace, the promotion of happiness and the increase of industry, sobriety and useful learning, and perpetuate to us the blessings of equal liberty.

We recommend likewise to Thy unbounded mercy, all our brethren and fellow citizens throughout the United States, that they may be blessed in the knowledge and sanctified in the observance of Thy most holy law, that they may be preserved in union and in that peace which the world cannot give, and after enjoying the blessings of this life, be admitted to those which are eternal. In the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the Journal of Monday, February 22, 1943.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of Monday, February 22, 1943, when, on motion of Mr. HOOPES, unanimously agreed to, the further reading was dispensed with and the Journal approved.

Referred to the Committee on Public Health and Sanitation.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. SARRAF. RESOLUTION No. 24.

In the House of Representatives, February 22, 1943.

Appropriations are now made to the various hospitals within the Commonwealth for maintenance thereof and for medical and surgical services rendered to and maintenance of persons treated therein at the rate of three dollars for each person entitled to free service.

This rate was established years ago when the actual cost of any service was much lower than it is today.

The hospitals receiving aid from the Commonwealth at this rate of three dollars per day for each person entitled to free service cannot furnish the same kind of service that was rendered for that amount when the rate was fixed.

As a result of the increased cost of the necessary treatment of such persons, the various hospitals cannot render the same service as was given when three dollars was sufficient; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Appropriation Committee of the House shall investigate the cost of the treatment now rendered in those hospitals of the Commonwealth that receive State-aid in order to ascertain whether a raise in the amount paid per day is necessary in order to render the kind of free service that Pennsylvania should furnish to its people.

Referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. McMILLEN. RESOLUTION No. 25.

In the House of Representatives, February 23, 1943.

Whereas, The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, as a preeminent industrial State, normally has over three-quarter million women and one-quarter million minors employed in industry; and

Whereas, The number of such women and minor workers is constantly increasing during the present war, particularly in the war industries and in occupations formerly performed by men, due to the enlistment of men in the armed forces and the patriotic response of women and minors to meet their country's call for maximum production; and

Whereas, The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has in the past been one of the foremost states in establishing standards of employment for women and minors in order to safeguard the health and efficiency of such workers and to promote the general welfare of the Commonwealth; therefore be it

Resolved, By the House of Representatives, that:

1. Labor standards which safeguard the health and efficiency of women and minor workers, as expressed in legislation heretofore adopted by the General Assembly, and as recently demonstrated to be necessary to maximum production in the war effort, shall continue to be the declared policy of this Commonwealth;

2. Special care to be taken during this war period to prevent the exploitation of child labor caused by the shortage of other labor supply; and that work of reviewing accidents to employed minors be continued, to determine the existence of illegal employment and the minor worker's eligibility for payment of additional compensation under the Child Labor Law, and the Workmen's Compensation Law, and that work of reviewing accidents to employed women be continued; that the public continue to be advised of such employment and their cooperation obtained in bringing to light violations of the Child Labor Law and Woman's Law;

3. Requests from employers in war industries for exemptions from provisions of the Woman's Law continue to be investigated, and the need for exceptions determined in accordance with established Federal and State policy of maintaining basic labor standards and obtaining maximum production; that cooperation of all individuals and groups be secured in carrying on the war effort and safeguarding the best interests of woman labor and the welfare of employed minors;

4. Data on wages be collected in accordance with the Minimum Wage Law; that legal minimum wage rates be enforced as the law provides; that investigations be carried on in specific industries and occupations where conditions detrimental to women and minors are known to exist; and that minimum wage rates be established for industries paying oppressive wages as a means of stabilizing such industries and safeguarding the livelihood of women and minor workers in the post-war period;

5. Investigations of industrial homework be continued in order to enforce payment by employers of fees fixed by the Homework Law; that sanitary conditions in places where homework is performed be inspected for protection of the public health; that the public and employers continue to be informed concerning the evils of industrial homework;

6. The Bureau of Women and Children and Hours and Wages be commended for its valuable work in carrying on these and other related activities during the past three years under the direction of its able Director, Mrs. Mary Rice Morrow; that the bureau continue to function within the Department of Labor and Industry as the agency officially charged with the responsibility of promoting and safeguarding the welfare of employed women and minors; that recognition be given to the fact, that the employment of such workers in industries and occupations so vital to the war effort has tremendously increased the responsibilities and duties of the bureau; and that the welfare of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania demands that the personnel and facilities of the bureau be augmented and expanded to meet the needs of the present emergency.

7. A copy of this resolution shall be immediately transmitted by the Chief Clerk of the House to His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth and to the Honorable William H. Chestnut, Secretary of Labor and Industry.

Referred to the Committee on Labor.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY SPEAKER

The SPEAKER. The Chair would request that members answer to their names when the roll is called in a clear distinct voice, so that the clerks can correctly record you. Most errors on roll calls are due to the Clerks being unable to hear the member's vote.

The Chair calls your attention to the fact that one member missed ten roll calls, which was called to our attention this morning, and which we are trying to rectify.

There will be a caucus of Republican members immediately following recess.

RECESS

The SPEAKER. If there is no objection the Chair is about to declare a recess until 2:15 p. m. Are there objections? The Chair hears none and a recess is declared.

AFTER RECESS

The House reconvened at 2:15 p. m.

The SPEAKER (Ira T. Fiss) in the Chair.

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 24, entitled:

An Act to further amend section nine of the act, approved the ninth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and eleven (P. L. 736), entitled "An act making appropriations to institutions not wholly managed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, liens on the premises of such institutions for the use of the Commonwealth, and providing for the collection thereof," authorizing the use of, and appropriating the proceeds of insurance for rebuilding, reequipping and repairing of property subject to lien.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 89, entitled:

An Act to further amend section eight hundred and six of the act, approved the ninth day of April, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 343), entitled "An act relating to the finances of the State government; providing for the settlement, assessment, collection, and lien of taxes, bonus, and all other accounts due the Commonwealth, the collection and recovery of fees and other money or property due or belonging to the Commonwealth, or any agency thereof, including escheated property and the proceeds of its sale, the custody and disbursement or other disposition of funds and securities belonging to or in the possession of the Commonwealth, and the settlement of claims against the Commonwealth, the resettlement of accounts and appeals to the courts, refunds of moneys erroneously paid to the Commonwealth, auditing the accounts of the Commonwealth and all agencies thereof, of all public officers collecting moneys payable to the Commonwealth, or any agency thereof, and all receipts of appropriations from the Commonwealth and imposing penalties, affecting every department, board, commission, and officer of the State government, every political subdivision of the State, and certain officers of such subdivisions, every person, association, and corporation required to pay, assess, or collect taxes, or to make returns or reports under the laws imposing taxes for State purposes, or to pay license fees or other moneys to the Commonwealth, or any agency thereof, every State depository and every debtor or creditor of the Commonwealth," by changing and restricting the right of the Commonwealth to impose interest on unpaid tax and bonus when such tax and bonus are not settled within a certain period of time.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 90, entitled:

An Act to further amend sections five hundred three and eleven hundred eight of the act, approved the ninth day of April, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 343), entitled "An act relating to the finances of the State government; providing for the settlement, assessment, collection, and lien of taxes, bonus, and all other accounts due the Commonwealth, the collection and recovery of fees and other money or property due or belonging to the Commonwealth, or any agency thereof, including escheated property and the proceeds of its sale, the custody and disbursement or other disposition of funds and securities belonging to or in the possession of the Commonwealth, and the settlement of claims against the Commonwealth, the resettlement of accounts and appeals to the courts, refunds of moneys erroneously paid to the Commonwealth, auditing the accounts of the Commonwealth and all agencies thereof, of all public officers collecting moneys payable to the Commonwealth, or any agency thereof, and all receipts of appropriations from the Commonwealth and imposing penalties; affecting every department, board, commission, and officer of the State government, every political subdivision of the State, and certain officers of such subdivisions, every person, association, and corporation required to pay, assess, or collect taxes, or to make returns or reports under the laws imposing taxes for State purposes, or to pay license fees or other moneys to the Commonwealth, or any agency, thereof, every State depository and every debtor or creditor of the Commonwealth," by allowing interest on certain cash and credit refunds due from the Commonwealth; further regulating the procedure relative to refunds; providing an appeal to court from an adverse decision of the Board of Finance and Revenue on petitions for refund in certain cases; providing for appellate review of adverse decisions in such appeals; further defining the right to pay accounts without prejudice to the rights of resettlement, review and appeal; and providing for payment of interest by the Commonwealth on certain overpayment or credits.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 96, entitled:

An Act to further amend section seven of the act approved the fifth day of January one thousand nine hundred thirty-four (1933-34 P. L. 223) entitled "An act providing compensation to certain persons who served in the military or naval forces of the United States during the World War the war between the United States and Spain the China Relief Expedition or in the Philippines or Guam providing the method of making payment to representatives of persons who because of death or incapacity cannot personally receive compensation imposing certain duties on the Adjutant General making an appropriation and repealing inconsistent legislation and providing penalties" extending the time during which application may be filed for veterans' compensation.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 132, entitled:

An Act to amend the title and sections one and two of the act approved the twenty-sixth day of May one thousand eight hundred ninety-seven (P. L. 106) entitled "An act prohibiting the discharge from public positions of Union soldiers without a reasonable cause and prohibiting the abolishment of or changing the emoluments of public offices occupied by Union soldiers except for good reason" by extending the provisions to all honorably discharged persons who served or shall hereafter serve in the military or naval service during any war in which the United States was engaged or may hereafter engage and fixing penalties

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 147, entitled:

An Act to further amend section two hundred and fifty-four of the act approved the second day of May one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five (P. L. 448) entitled "An act relating to fish and amending revising consolidating and changing the law relating to fish in the inland waters and the boundary lakes and boundary rivers of the Commonwealth" limiting the right of certain lessees or holders of certain rights in property for fishing purposes to exclude the general public from fishing from such property.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Fisheries for the purpose of further study.

The motion was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 155, entitled:

An Act to further amend section two hundred twenty of the act approved the second day of May one thousand nine hundred twenty-five (P. L. 448) entitled "An act relating to fish and amending revising consolidating and changing the law relating to fish in the inland waters and the boundary lakes and boundary rivers of the Commonwealth" exempting persons in the armed forces from the payment of a fee to the Commonwealth for resident fishing licenses.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 170, entitled:

An Act to further amend the act approved the ninth day of April one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 177) entitled "An act providing for and reorganizing the conduct of the executive and administrative work of the Commonwealth by the Executive Department thereof and the administrative departments boards commissions and officers thereof including the boards of trustees of State Normal Schools or Teachers Colleges abolishing creating reorganizing or authorizing the reorganization of certain administrative departments boards and commissions defining the powers and duties of the Governor and other executive and administrative officers and of the several administrative departments boards commissions and officers fixing the salaries of the Governor Lieutenant-Governor and certain other executive and administrative officers providing for the appointment of certain administrative officers and of all deputies and other assistants and employes in certain departments boards and commissions and prescribing the manner in which the number and compensation of the deputies and all other assistants and employes of certain departments boards and commissions shall be determined" by changing the name of the Pennsylvania Motor Police to the Pennsylvania State Police

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I should like to interrogate the gentleman from Somerset, Mr. Hare.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Somerset permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HARE. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inquire whether this bill provides for the consolidation of the duties of the various departments or parts of the Motor Police setup.

Mr. HARE. The only change this bill provides is dropping the term "Motor" and the insertion of the name "State."

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, there has been some real protest concerning what apparently is a most inocuous sort of amendment. I think that the older Members here, and possibly some of the newer Members might remember some years back there was a great deal of controversy that raged around the general setup of the police department of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

It is past history, and I think rather well known, that a certain division of the State Police setup, which I believe went under the title of State Police did not do the name of the Commonwealth much good among people in various parts of the state by reason of the tactics and the manner in which these men were compelled to perform their duties.

Past history in the coal mining and other industrial areas, I think, is sufficient proof that these people were more or less directed by certain interests through, I should say, possibly proper channels to carry on the work of strike breaking, and in those areas of this Commonwealth, Mr. Speaker, a great many people learned to hate the name of State Police. I suppose in their inner consciousness that they must have regarded the State Police as a sort of Gestapo, if I may use the term.

The objection to returning the State Motor Police to the undignified and feared name of State Police is in the minds of many of these just plain citizens and voters; they don't want to bring back to Pennsylvania something that Pennsylvania can well do without. The term Motor Police is at least in the minds of many of those people an acceptable police force and at least has greatly dignified, in the minds of many people, this arm of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

I feel that the gentlemen who are on the Police Force are carrying out their duties efficiently, carrying out their duties properly, and I think they are very happy to be a part of that great body of men, and I do not believe that a great number, possibly the greatest number of those men would like to bear again the label of State Police, which in so many parts of the State is a hated term.

I think no great thing could be accomplished to call them State Police again, because they are doing a swell job of policing the Commonwealth and they are getting a tremendous amount of respect from these people under the name, designation and title of Motor Police.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT

Mr. COHEN. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, while I do not like to disagree with my good friend from Somerset, I think he is pretty sure of that—he is as sure of that as I am, but I must ask that this bill be recommitted to the committee on State Government for further study.

The SPEAKER. Is that a motion?

Mr. COHEN. That is a motion, Mr. Speaker.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. HARE. Mr. Speaker, I listened with a great deal of interest to my friend from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen, and his remarks concerning the recommittal of this bill, and the thought of the old—

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Somerset yield?

Mr. HARE. I will, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. Would the gentleman from Philadelphia withdraw his motion temporarily, until after debate on the bill?

MOTION TO RECOMMIT WITHDRAWN

Mr. COHEN. I will withdraw the motion, Mr. Speaker.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, as I understand it, the bill introduced by the gentleman from Somerset, House Bill No. 170, Printer's No. 41, is now on second reading.

The SPEAKER. That is correct.

Mr. LEVY. As I understand it, Mr. Speaker, the procedure would be that the argument on House Bill No. 170 would take place on third reading.

The SPEAKER. Bills may be debated on second reading.

Mr. LEVY. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HARE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Philadelphia for withdrawing his motion to re-commit during the debate on this bill.

One of the outstanding police forces in all the world, and recognized as one of the best units for many years has been the Pennsylvania State Police as a valuable asset to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, regardless of the dissension reiterated by small minorities in the past. This bill would drop the term "Motor" which is not at all definitive of the work of these men, and insert the terminology "State".

Motor Police to most of us means just exactly what it says. Motor Police have to do with important laws concerning motor vehicles, when in reality the ramifications of their work extend far into the criminal field, and they have a very specialized bureau setup.

My friend from Philadelphia has said that the term "State" is obnoxious, not defining police powers, and yet "State" is the proper definition of police powers in this state, because they enforce the laws of this state.

In a little research work this morning I found that of the forty-eight states of the United States, thirty-nine of them use the word "State" in defining their state police units, and the fortieth one uses the term "Bureau of Criminal Investigation".

Now, it would be just as well to say to the city of Philadelphia, "We will call your Philadelphia City Police the Philadelphia Traffic Police, and under the Traffic Police you will have the various criminal divisions," or to say to any metropolitan area in Pennsylvania "We will term yours by some other name than that which it actually is".

This is a very simple bill, not at all holding forth any terrors for any group of people other than the underworld and those who deliberately violate the law.

With Mr. Cohen I hold this force of men in high regard. They do a valiant piece of work; they are on duty twenty-four hours a day. Many of these men with whom I am personally acquainted have beseeched me to remove the term "Motor" and to reinstate the term "State", making it "Pennsylvania State Police".

For the benefit of the record I would like to insert the thirty-nine states, beginning with the Alabama state setup and continuing through the Wyoming state group.

States having State Police or Highway Patrol Forces

Alabama	Alabama State Highway Patrol
Arizona	Arizona State Highway Patrol
Arkansas	Arkansas State Police
California	California Highway Patrol
Colorado	Colorado State Highway Courtesy Patrol
Connecticut	Connecticut State Police
Delaware	Delaware State Police

Florida	State Dept. of Public Safety, Highway Patrol Division
Georgia	Georgia State Patrol
Idaho	Idaho State Police
Illinois	Illinois State Highway Maintenance Police
Indiana	Indiana State Police
Iowa	Iowa State Highway Patrol
Kansas	Kansas State Highway Patrol
Kentucky	Kentucky State Highway Patrol
Louisiana	Louisiana State Police
Maine	Maine State Police
Maryland	Maryland State Police
Massachusetts	Massachusetts State Police
Michigan	Michigan State Police
Minnesota	Minnesota Highway Patrol—also: (Bureau of Criminal Apprehension)
Mississippi	Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol
Missouri	Missouri State Highway Patrol
Montana	Montana Highway Patrol
Nebraska	Division of Highway Safety and Patrol
Nevada	Nevada State Highway Patrol
New Hampshire	New Hampshire State Police
New Jersey	New Jersey State Police
New Mexico	New Mexico State Police
New York	Division of State Police—New York State Troopers
North Carolina	State Highway Patrol
North Dakota	North Dakota State Highway Patrol
Ohio	Ohio State Highway Patrol
Oklahoma	Oklahoma State Highway Patrol
Oregon	Oregon State Police
Pennsylvania	Pennsylvania Motor Police
Rhode Island	Rhode Island State Police
South Carolina	State Highway Patrol
South Dakota	Division of Motor Patrol
Tennessee	Tennessee Highway Patrol
Texas	State Highway Patrol—also: Texas Rangers (a separate force)
Utah	Utah State Highway Patrol
Vermont	Vermont State Highway Patrol
Virginia	Virginia State Police
Washington	Washington State Patrol
West Virginia	West Virginia State Police
Wisconsin	Unknown—Force organized for patrol purposes 1941 and 1942
Wyoming	State Highway Patrol

Now, in some cases they call them State Highway Patrols, as in Ohio, the Ohio State Highway Patrol. But in Ohio their work is absolutely limited to highway patrol work and is not carried over into the criminal field.

I do not believe, Mr. Speaker, that the term "Motor" properly defines the work of this fine body of men, and I am not at all ashamed of my Commonwealth or my state, and I want the name Pennsylvania State Police to be restored to its rightful position. I do not believe any unfortunate acts that might have occurred in the past should be carried over to the present, and I would ask the Members of the House to vote "aye" on this measure.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I do not want to prolong the discussion on the bill, but I would like to point out a little thing; the use of the word "Motor Police" does not make patroling the highways their sole duty. In the Army, in this Army at least in this World War, we have motorized divisions, and I am told by military authorities that the motorized soldiers do not confine their efforts to directing traffic. They fight, and motor police can also fight; motor police can also do their jobs.

It has not been demonstrated either, Mr. Speaker, that any one of these other states that uses the term that they care to use has ever had such a bad situation that they sought to correct either, administratively or psychologically as has this State Motor Police.

Mr. Speaker, I would like permission to interrogate the gentleman from Somerset, Mr. Hare.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Somerset permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HARE. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, when the gentleman first began his remarks, and prior to the raising of the point of order, he was about to quote a poet. I wonder if he would like to continue with the quotation.

Mr. HARE. Mr. Speaker, "A rose by any other name would smell just as sweet."

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Somerset, Mr. Hare.

Mr. SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Somerset permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HARE. I shall, Mr. Speaker, with mental reservations.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Somerset, Mr. Hare, does he have any idea what this change-over will cost.

Mr. HARE. It will probably cause some mental agony on the part of those who have always unfavorably looked upon Pennsylvania State Police, but as the Harrisburg Patriot said this morning editorially, "The Pennsylvania State Police is an outstanding body of men—"

Mr. O'BRIEN. No, Mr. Speaker, I mean the expense in connection with the change-over. I am sure the gentleman did not understand.

Mr. HARE. I beg pardon, Mr. Speaker. The printing of the change in the law.

Mr. O'BRIEN. No, Mr. Speaker, I mean the change from the Pennsylvania Motor Police to the Pennsylvania State Police, the stamps in connection therewith and the printing of the necessary printed material that they use every day.

Mr. HARE. Not to the penny, Mr. Speaker. Most of that work is carried on by the Department itself. However, I will be glad to get those figures for the gentleman tomorrow.

Mr. O'BRIEN. I thank the gentleman from Somerset. Mr. Speaker, I ordinarily would not oppose this bill, but I do not think it is opportune at this time to put this cost on the Commonwealth when it is so unnecessary just for a simple change.

Mr. LEONARD. Mr. Speaker, I want to put my one hundred percent O.K. on the remarks of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen, in reference to this bill and the change asked for.

I have listened very carefully up until now, and nobody has told us definitely why we should go back to the old name, that our children today yet remember were referred to as "Cossacks." The State Police record is a shameful record, and shamed this state throughout the length and breadth of this country all the years that it functioned up until 1937.

Up to that time it was an out and out strike-breaking agency, paid by the taxpayers of Pennsylvania. There were enough liberal minded members of the House in 1937 to at least try to eradicate the reputation that these policemen made, and they amalgamated both forces into what is known as the Motor Police.

Now then, will those who are in favor of the enactment of this bill explain to this body whether from 1937 to 1943 it has been detrimental to the best interests of the state of Pennsylvania for these police to be serving as Motor Police? Or have the citizens of Pennsylvania lacked the protection that they will now get if this bill passes?

Those who are in favor of changing the name back to State Police should be fair to all of us and to the citizens of Pennsylvania—and when I say citizens I do not mean the minority, I mean the majority of the citizens of Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania is referred to as the "Arsenal of the Democracy." And who operates these plants? Farmers, lawyers, doctors? No, just the common herd operates all these plants. In Pennsylvania the great majority of the people are working people, and the working people are carrying scars today caused by the acts of this department under the name of State Police.

Rarely referred to towards the end of their regime, they were the Cossacks to the working people of this state, and if there is a good reason given here why it would be to the benefit of the citizens of Pennsylvania to change the name back to State Police, I am fair enough to say that it is all right, but unless you can give me a reason, or unless you can tell me that they were lax in their duties under the present regime, I do not see any reason why we should change the bill or change the name.

I believe in fairness to all in wanting to cooperate, at least that is the way I feel about it—we should let this bill go back to the committee for further study, and it is possible that amendments that might be satisfactory to the majority of the members of this House can be worked out.

Mr. HARE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his extended remarks on this very serious change that is being made in the law. I might say in the beginning, that the Cossacks of whom he speaks in Russia are doing a very fine job today, and I think the men in the State Police have done a fine job. It is a common term here in our country, we call them State Police. We are way ahead of that. Let us face the facts; they are State Police. As far as using ambiguous terms, in referring to illegal acts that these men might have done, used in the past, might I say that they never acted except under orders, yet you are trying to hold a great body of men responsible for acts they might have committed under direct orders. The Pennsylvania Motor Police, so called, today are a great law enforcing agency, are performing a great deal of good work in this Commonwealth in the way of maintaining peace and order.

I have heard nothing to the contrary in the remarks of these gentlemen as to why the name should not be changed. I might cite from the Governors' message the following quotation:

> The Pennsylvania State Police had a world-wide reputation not only with honest people but with the underworld for efficiency, integrity and fearless impartiality. The name Pennsylvania State Police Force had become an extremely valuable asset to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. It carried with it a wealth of honorable history and tradition. The discontinuance of that name for the State police agency of the Commonwealth was a tragic mistake. During the past four years the whole Force, including the Commissioner to the last recruit, has by study and devotion to duty done everything in its power to be worthy of that name and tradition. It is, therefore, recommended that the name Pennsylvania State Police Force be substituted for the name Pennsylvania Motor Police by legislative amendment.

Again I say—and I have never read this message until this day, that this bill was in the hopper before I knew this reference in the Governor's message was in existence, and I urge upon you as my last word on this subject, to oppose any motion to recommit.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, in order to clear the air I raised the point of order a few minutes ago and the Speaker informed me, and ably so, that bills on second reading were debatable.

I recall in the session of 1941, and I have since received a copy of the Pennsylvania Manual of 1941, when the question arose as to debate on second reading. The Parliamentarian and the Speaker agreed that the point was not well taken, that debate could take place on second reading bills provided, however, that an amendment had been offered, and it has always been my impression that there was no debate on bills on second reading unless in the particular instance an amendment or amendments had been offered. For the information of the Speaker permit me to refer, if I may, to page 735 of the 1941 Pennsylvania Manual "Decisions of the House", where the point of order was raised in that particular session, and the Speaker's decision was very emphatic and clear, that the point was not well taken in view of the fact that an amendment had been offered, and he said it was in order to debate a bill on second reading, the question before the House being "Will the House agree to the bill on second reading as amended?"

Now, Mr. Speaker, in view of that fact and in view of the fact that the former decision of the Speaker of the House of Representatives was such, I again raise the point of order of debating second reading bills.

The SPEAKER. For the information of the House the Chair will read the ruling referred to by the gentleman from Philadelphia Mr. Levy:

> "The point of order was raised that a bill would be debated on second reading. The Speaker ruled that it was in order to debate a bill on second reading, the question before the House being 'Will the House agree to the bill on second reading as amended?"

The only other rule of the House which prevents debate on reading bills is Rule No. 43, and for the information of the House the Chair desires to read that rule:

> "When bills on first reading are in order, the Speaker shall take up the calendar and announce each bill in the order in which it appears on the calendar. They shall be severally read at length, and agreed to without amendment or debate, and journalized accordingly No bill after it has once been reported from committee shall be re-committed until it has been read the first time."

The Chair would further inform the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, that it is very essential to have debate on second reading in order that bills may be amended. Debate might produce suggestions that might call for amendments to bills, and of course the time to amend the bill is on second reading. It has always been permissible to debate a bill on second reading, either with or without amendments.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I did not raise the question as to whether or not the debate was proper with or without amendments as much as I raised the question that it was unusual procedure in the House, during my experience as a Member of this House, for ordinary third reading debate to take place on second reading.

Now, if the Speaker will recall, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen, attempted to and did debate the bill on second reading prior to his motion to recommit the bill.

I have no quarrel with the ruling of the Speaker; I have no quarrel with debate on second reading bills, but I thought we had a ruling prohibiting debate on second reading without a motion being made to recommit or an amendment offered, in view of the fact that if the House on every bill that came before it were to debate it on second reading and also third reading, that we might be here for much longer than a five or six months' session.

It seems to be unusual procedure for me, and during the debate I inquired of other men who had been here during previous sessions, and they informed me likewise that it was unusual to debate bills on second reading without amendments or a motion to recommit.

I say to you, Mr. Speaker, if that is the ruling of the Chair, and if the ruling from now on is definitely to be that we are to debate bills on second reading, then I want to know the ruling, and possibly we will debate a lot more bills than we have previously.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would inform the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, that while it is the exception to permit debate during the second reading of bills, yet it is permissible, and there is no ruling or rule to the effect that the Chair can prohibit debate on the second reading of bills.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, on the motion to recommit I should like to interrogate the gentleman from Somerset, Mr. Hare.

The SPEAKER. For the information of the gentleman from Westmoreland, the gentleman from Philadelphia temporarily withdrew his motion to recommit, so that the motion to recommit is not now before the House.

Mr. LOVETT. I would like then, Mr. Speaker, to interrogate the sponsor of the bill, Mr. Hare.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Somerset permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HARE. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I should like to ask the gentleman, does the Motor Police now use horses?

Mr. HARE. Mr. Speaker, I haven't seen any lately except in the Governor's parade.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, in discussing this particular point as to the Motor Police, I remember as a boy, when the State Police were mentioned I thought immediately of a horse, because the State Police usually rode around on a horse.

The term "Motor Police" today doesn't mean to me that the Motor Police is only a part of the police force of the state of Pennsylvania, and therefore, only police to the motoring public. I would say that to my mind Motor Police now take the place of all other types of police on horseback or otherwise. Is that correct?

Mr. HARE. In answer to the gentleman's question, I might say under the present rationing program we are rapidly coming back to the horse days.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, has the gentleman had any requests from any of the members of the Motor Police or the officers of the Motor Police for this change?

Mr. HARE. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman from Westmoreland, I might say that I have had numerous requests and that the former Commissioner himself, prior to his successor's appointment, has made mention of it many times and made a very serious request for the bill.

Mr. LOVETT. May I ask, Mr. Speaker, if those particular men who made this request were originally affiliated with the State Police of Pennsylvania?

Mr. HARE. Mr. Speaker, in response to the gentleman's question, I might say that the bill that changed the men's name in 1937 did not change the personnel; this bill does not change the personnel, and both groups have asked me to have this change made.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman mean when he says "both groups," men that originally were—

Mr. HARE. The Highway Patrol, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. The Highway Patrol made this request, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. HARE. That is right, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. Does the gentleman have any of the names of these men who were originally with the Highway Patrol that made the request to change the name to State Police?

Mr. HARE. I do, Mr. Speaker, but I do not intend to insert their names into a public record. I might say more than one hundred.

Mr. LOVETT. One hundred of them, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. HARE. More than one hundred, Mr. Speaker, have requested it.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman feel that this change would have any effect at all upon the pensions of these men who are now known as the Motor Patrol?

Mr. HARE. I do not, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. Has the gentleman made any particular study of that, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. HARE. I have, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. Does the gentleman feel that it would make no difference whatever?

Mr. HARE. I feel that it makes no difference, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. That will be all, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I feel that while we are wasting an awful lot of time in regard to this particular bill and the very simple wording of the changing of the name, I do not feel that my good friend Mr. Hare on the other side has very clearly demonstrated to me that the words Motor Police would signify that they would apply only to men doing highway duty, or patrol duty on the highways of Pennsylvania.

He says we are very rapidly coming back to the horse and buggy days. I question that somewhat, although at this particular time the gasoline shortage may seem to indicate that. I therefore cannot find any good reason for any expense whatever at this particular time in the changing of stamps, uniforms, and so on and so forth, and I ask the Members of this House to consider on this particular bill the motion to recommit, if such a motion is going to be made, and if not that we defeat the bill introduced for that purpose.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on State Government.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. HARE. Mr. Speaker, I ask the membership of this House to vote "No" on that motion.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The second to the ninth sections inclusive and title were separately read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 225, entitled:

An Act to further amend section four hundred twenty-one of the act approved the second day of May one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 1278) entitled "An act relating to counties of the second third fourth fifth sixth seventh and eighth classes and revising amending and consolidating the laws relating thereto" by clarifying the term "deceased service men"

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 23, entitled:

An Act to further amend section one and to amend section four of the act, approved the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven (P. L. 2460), entitled "An act creating a Joint Legislative Commission, to be known as the Joint State Government Commission; providing for the appointment of its members; and defining its powers and duties," changing the number of members and providing further for the terms thereof; and further defining its powers and duties and amplifying the provisions relating to appropriations.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. LEVY offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 2, line 10, by striking out the following: "[ten] twelve" and inserting in lieu thereof "ten".

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 2, line 12, by striking out the following: "[seven] twelve" and inserting in lieu thereof: "seven".

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, before debating the amendments offered to Senate Bill No. 23, I desire to interrogate the Majority Floor Leader, the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Lichtenwalter.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lehigh permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to inquire of the gentleman from Lehigh if this is an amendment to the original act creating the Joint State Government Commission in the Session of 1937.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. That is right, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to inquire of the gentleman from Lehigh as to what was the number of the membership on the Joint State Government Commission as created by the Legislature in 1937?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I believe there were ten members from the House and seven members from the Senate.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to further interrogate the gentleman from Lehigh as to what the number of the membership on the Joint State Government Commission was in 1939 under the Act of Assembly.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, there were ten members from the House and seven members from the Senate.

Mr. LEVY. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, we have on the calendar today this particular bill, Senate Bill No. 23, which I assume is an administration measure, and that is the reason I desired to interrogate the leader of the majority party.

In his answer to the first question I might inform the gentleman from Lehigh that he was a trifle incorrect. In 1937, when this legislative body created the Commission, it provided for six members to be appointed by the Speaker of the House and five members to be appointed by the President pro tempore of the Senate. In addition the Speaker of the House and the President pro tempore of the Senate made up the full membership of that committee. In other words, in 1937 the membership from the House was seven and the membership from the Senate was six. I might in addition, explain that in 1937, as most of you know, as a matter of political history, the House was predominantly Democratic and the Senate likewise was predominantly Democratic.

However, in 1939 we saw a change take place. In 1939 we had a Republican governor in office, we had a House predominantly Republican and a Senate predominantly Republican, and in that particular session of the Legislature the Republican party decided, and I say justly so, that a membership comprised of two hundred and eight members was entitled to a little more consideration on a joint bureau or commission than a membership that comprised only fifty, and in that session the General Assembly passed and the Governor signed an act amending the original commission to read eleven members from the House and eight members from the Senate.

In the 1941 session, however, being a Democratic House and a Republican Senate, there was no agreement on a change in membership, and I believe a bill designed to that effect was buried in committee both in the House and in the Senate. But in this session, unlike the session in 1939, we again have the situation of a Republican Governor, a Republican House and a Republican Senate, and from over in the Senate comes a bill reported out of the House Committee and now on second reading, which deprives the House membership of two hundred eight members, the right given in the original bill and in the bill amended by a Republican House and Senate in 1939, it deprives it of the right to have upon that commission a majority of the members representing the House of Representatives.

I do not know what the Republican majority in this House is thinking about. I do not know why we as Members of the House must give up the right to the Senate on this Commission. I do not know why, if we sit here as two hundred and eight members we do not enjoy a majority of the Commission, the same as we enjoyed in 1939, even though at that time the commission was predominantly Republican.

I am not thinking of that, gentlemen; I am thinking of the right that the House today in passing this bill on second reading is giving the Senate of Pennsylvania.

And then again, in studying the measure, I thought perhaps that I knew the reason why. Perhaps the Republican majority in this House knows that the majorities attained in the last election were attained through an emergency proposition. Maybe they realized that the national administration in power being Democratic during war time was compelled to suffer in political elections immediately after the declaration of war or during it, and maybe the Republican majority feels that they not only want to control the Joint State Government Commission for the Session of 1943 and 1944, but they are looking ahead, as Republicans sometimes do, and they want to keep in power in the Commission until over the next legislative session.

I don't know whether many of the Republican Members who were recently elected feel that they are going to have the wrath of the electorate in a Presidential election descend upon their heads—perhaps they do, Mr. Speaker, but I say even if that reasoning is correct, even if the majority party is attempting to secure this non-partisan commission for another two years, I say to them they are doing themselves an injustice because they are depriving themselves of a majority vote on that commission to which they are justly entitled.

I say, Mr. Speaker, in view of this argument, and if it is the only argument in support of the amendments that I have offered both to Section 1 and to the title of the bill, I say that the Republican majority should join with the Democratic minority and vote this bill down on second reading, or not agree to it.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I think the majority Members of this House disagree with the arguments of the gentleman from Philadelphia. There is certainly no intention on the part of the majority in any way to control this particular Commission in sessions which are in the offing. We certainly feel that the Senate of Pennsylvania should have equal representation upon a Commission which is granted the authority that the Joint State Government Commission has.

After all, the Senate of Pennsylvania sits as a law-making body, the same as we do here in the House. Reports that come from the studies of the Joint State Government Commission are to be incorporated into acts of legislation. In the Senate of Pennsylvania it is true there are fifty members, but it requires a Constitutional majority of those men in the Senate in order to pass legislation. It requires a Constitutional majority over here in the House to pass legislation, so I certainly feel that even though they do not number in men the same number that we have over here in the House, they certainly should have equal representation on a Commission of this kind to make these studies and to help to enact into legislation the problems that are studied within the Commission and recommended to both the House and the Senate for their consideration at the sessions of the Legislature.

I do not see any particular reason, Mr. Speaker, why the Senate should not have the same membership on the Joint State Government Commission as the House, because if we are going to enact legislation to carry out the studies and to correct problems as recommended by this Commission, the same procedure must be followed in the Senate as is followed here in the House as far as passing that legislation is concerned.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I ask the majority Members of this House to vote down this amendment.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Lichtenwalter.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lehigh permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I shall Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to inquire from the gentleman from Lehigh whether or not he was a member of the 1939 session of the Legislature.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I was, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to further ask the gentleman from Lehigh as to whether or not he remembers the work performed by the 1939 Joint State Government Commission, and whether he was not a member of the Republican party that approved the work of that Commission.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I was, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LEVY. I would like to further inquire of the gentleman from Lehigh as to why, and he has not answered the question yet, the Republican party in the House is willing and ready to give up this full quota of membership on the Commission when in 1939 the same party voted for a ratio of eleven to eight.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I don't know that the membership of the House is giving up its quota under this particular bill.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I do not want to relinquish my right to interrogate the gentleman, but to answer a direct question that he has raised, I might refer the gentleman to Senate Bill No. 23, Printer's No. 18, which we are now discussing, and have him read the bill in our presence, and I will ask him whether we are not giving the right that we enjoyed in former sessions of the ratio of eleven to eight in favor of the House, when this bill distinctly gives to the Senate the right to appoint twelve members, identically the same number that it gives the Speaker of the House the right to appoint. If that is not depriving the House of its due quota on the Joint State Government Commission I want to know what the bill does.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, this bill, as I read it, would increase the membership on the Commission from the House to twelve members, and it would, of course, increase the membership on the part of the Senate from seven to twelve members. I think in my statement before I have explained that I certainly feel the Senate should have equal representation upon that Commission. I do not feel that we are in any way losing anything as members of the House, as far as our representation on that Commission is concerned.

Mr. LEVY. Then, Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman from Lehigh, if it is not the will of the majority to prolong the life of the Joint State Government Commission for another two years, then why the change of heart on the part of the members of the House?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the question, because we feel now, if we haven't in the past, that certainly in order to efficiently conduct the work of this Commission, the Senate should have equal representation with the House on this Commission.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman's argument, I only want to say to the members of the majority that the arguments offered by the Majority Leader are in my opinion not sufficient to warrant the giving away of our quota. I only want to say to the Republican leadership in the House if it is the sincere intention on their part to give to the Senate, a small body, the right to the full compliment of the Committee that the House enjoys, then during the last four years there has been a terrific change of heart in the minds of the Republican party.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman, you will note, did not stand upon this floor and argue the possibility that the 1939 Joint State Government Commission failed in its duty. He was a Member of the House when the Hon. Ellwood Turner, a former Member, and who was at that time the Speaker of the House of Representatives, in the Session of 1941 was lauded by every Republican Member of this House on the magnificent job the Commission had done on the question of relief and on the question of administration. If you will recall, the volumes were this high (indicating), gentlemen, and every Republican lauded the work of that Commission, and now the excuse to take away from the House its full quota of membership is the apology that the Republican Joint State Governmen Commission, genelemen, did not perform its duty to the fullest extent in 1939. Well, that is good news for every Democrat to hear. I thank you.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

They were agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The second and third sections and title were separately read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 146, entitled:

An Act to further amend clause one of section three and section twelve of the act approved the eighteenth day of July one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 1043) entitled "An act establishing a public school employes' retirement system and creating a retirement board for the administration thereof establishing certain funds from contributions by the Commonwealth and contributing employes defining the uses and purposes thereof and the manner of payments therefrom and providing for the guaranty by the Commonwealth of certian of said funds imposing powers and duties upon boards having the employment of public school employes exempting annuities allowances returns benefits and rights from taxation and judicial process and providing penalties" further extending the time for present employes as defined in the act to elect to be covered by the retirement system and granting retirement rights to certain additional persons who have withdrawn from and returned to school service

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 187, as follows:

An Act validating county treasurers' sales for delinquent taxes where the reports and returns of such sales were not made to the court of common pleas and such sales were not confirmed by the court

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 Whenever heretofore any land has been sold by the county treasurer of any county for the purpose of securing the payment of delinquent taxes which were assessed and levied against such land and the deed to the purchaser of such land was properly executed and acknowledged but the said county treasurer failed to make a report and return of such sale to the court of common pleas and failed to publish a notice of such report and the said sale was never confirmed by the court as required by law such sale shall not be invalidated by reason of such failure to comply with existing law if in all other respects the laws relating to such sales were fully complied with and all such treasurers' sales are hereby ratified confirmed and validated and the title to any such land purchased by any person or by the county commissioners of any county at any such treasurer's sale is hereby declared to be as valid as if such failure to make the aforesaid report and return and confirmation of such sale had not been made

Section 2 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

Barrett,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 235, as follows:

An Act authorizing the State Board of Medical Education and Licensure to issue temporary permits to doctors of medicine legally licensed in other states to practice medicine and surgery under certain conditions for a limited period of time

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 The State Board of Medical Education and Licensure of Pennsylvania may issue temporary certificates authorizing doctors of medicine legally licensed in other states to practice medicine and surgery in Pennsylvania during the present war between the United States and any foreign country and six months after the cessation of hostilities. Such certificate shall be issued only to doctors of medicine who submit satisfactory proof to the Board that they possess a license issued by the authorized agency of the state in which they are licensed and that such license is still in effect and has not been revoked or suspended

The provisions of this act are intended to supply medical services in communities where because of the drain of war needs on such services that are normally available there exists a need for medical services that may become a threat to public health In order that this purpose shall be most effectively carried out the Board of Medical Education and Licensure in applying the provisions of this act shall cooperate with the Procurement and Assignment Service in Pennsylvania of the War Man Power Commission and with the committee on War Participation of the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania and shall act only on the recommendation of either of such agencies

There being no objection House Bill No. 281, Printer's No. 31 was passed over at the request of Mr. Walter E. Rose.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 36, entitled:

An Act abating certain tax penalties and interest on unpaid county city borough town township school district poor district and county institution district taxes prohibiting the sale of real property for the nonpayment of any such taxes for a certain period and preserving certain tax liens and providing for the extension thereof

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Municipal Corporations for the purpose of further study and possible amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from York will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, in the Legislative Journal of February 10th my name is not recorded as having voted on any of the bills on the final passage calendar. I was present and voted "aye" on all of the bills which came before the House for pasage on that day.

I am particularly desirous that the records show that I was present and voted "aye" on House Bill 62 and House Bill 63. This error occurred through a misunderstanding that a leave of absence had been asked for me for the balance of the week, whereas I was absent only on Tuesday, February 9th.

The SPEAKER. The remarks of the gentleman under his question of personal privilege will be noted upon the Journal of the House.

RESOLUTION

REPORT FROM SLATE COMMITTEE

Mr. BOWER asked and obtained unanimous consent to offer the following resolution from the Slate Committee and for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted:

In the House of Representatives, February 23, 1943.

Resolved, That the following named persons shall be elected employes of this House, for the positions as designated.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. MINTESS asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I sadly announce the death of a former Member of this House, the Hon. Edward Young, of Philadelphia, who was a Member of this House during the last session.

RESOLUTIONS REPORTED FROM COMMITTEE

RESOLUTION NO. 22

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE asked and obtained unanimous consent to report from the Committee on Rules House Resolution No. 22 and for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 17, 1943.

The presence of vast numbers of American boys in Ireland at this time stresses the necessity for Americans to acquire a more complete knowledge of Irish customs and manners.

This knowledge can best be acquired by a closer association of Irishmen and with Irishmen.

The birthday of St. Patrick, the patron Saint of Ireland, occurs on March 17th, and no more fitting time could be selected for the start of a study of Irish customs; therefore be it

Resolved, (if the Senate concur), That a legislative committee is hereby created consisting of sixteen members of the House of Representatives to be appointed by the Speaker and ten members of the Senate to be appointed by the President pro tempore of the Senate whose duty it shall be to arrange for a fitting and suitable celebration of the birthday of St. Patrick by the members of the General Assembly and their guests.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

RESOLUTION SERIAL NO. 32

Mr. LICHTENWALTER asked and obtained unanimous consent to report from the Committee on Rules House Resolution Serial No. 32 and for its immediate adoption:

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 17, 1943.

Resolved, That Monday, March 15, 1943 be fixed as the last day of introduction of bills in the House of Representatives, during this Regular Session, except bills for the raising of Revenue and Appropriation Bills.

(Signed) FRANKLIN H. LICHTENWALTER, Majority Leader.

(Signed) REUBEN E. COHEN,
Minority Leader.

CONGRATULATORY RESOLUTION

Messrs. CHUDOFF and SAMUEL ROSE offered a privileged resolution which was twice read, considered and unanimously adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 23, 1943.

Whereas, The members of the House of Representatives have recently learned of the marriage on December 27th, 1942 of our fellow-member, Joseph Skale to Kate Zalles; and

Whereas, We are convinced that the new bride must be a most beautiful and charming lady to have led "Joe" to abandon his long career as a man about town and a breaker of feminine hearts; and

Whereas, The steadying influence of married life will no doubt render "Joe" even more diligent than in the past in the performance of his legislative duties; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives extends its congratulations and felicitations to the Hon. Joseph Skale, and wishes him and his bride a long and successful married life; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the happy couple immediately.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Skale.

Mr. SKALE. Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, I want to thank each and every one of you for this resolution. It is very kind of you, and of course, the introduction of the resolution was entirely unexpected. As a matter of fact, I feel myself flabbergasted, but I do want to say that while I waited long I did find something I could be happy about. I know that in the past, at least on one occasion, one of the Members of the House from Philadelphia tried to beat me to the gun, when he observed me sitting in the rear with a member of the feminine sex. He immediately telephoned to the Lgislative Reference Bureau to prepare a resolution of this nature. About an hour later the Page boy dropped on my desk a resolution, and much to my amazement it was a resolution congratulating me upon my marriage about two years before. If that resolution had not been placed upon my desk by mistake it might have proven very embarrassing even at that time, not saying what it might have proven at this time.

I have not been sentenced to a term of happiness for life, and let me recommend it to the Members of the House who are "batching" it, as the proper thing to do.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. COHEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I am happy that the House now agrees officially that we ought to be on our way home permanently. We adopted a resolution this afternoon in which we went back to the time honored custom of this House of establishing a deadline for the introduction of bills except those pertaining to revenue and appropriations. It gives the Members of the House a period of about three weeks within which they can gather all their thoughts and all their ideas, put them into concrete form and present them to the Members of the House for consideration.

It seems to me there has not been too much activity in introducing bills, and I don't know that there is going to be a great avalanche of bills to come before March 15, because in my conversations with Members of the House on both sides I have found that there is just one problem that has them really stymied really excited, and this goes for both Democrats and Republicans, whether or not we are going to keep our promise to reduce taxes in Pennsylvania.

I took the trouble to make some inquiry and found that going back almost to the time when memory of man runneth not to the contrary, the Governor's budget message was in the hands of the Members of the House by at least February 15. The law makes ample provision for the gathering of this information by His Excellency; as a matter of fact this year, as a practical matter, something even more was done. Almost immediately, even before election day last year, a special committee of persons who were anticipating being elected and those who had just been elected and only needed to wait until they were sworn in to do their duties, got together and semi-officially, up until the time this Administration took over, began to study the tax structure of Pennsylvania and began to study the budgetary items. So that this group had the jump on most other groups who really did not get started until January 1, when the Budget Secretary put the machinery into motion. It seems to me from statements published by State officials that most of the budget items have been discussed, they have been hashed and rehashed, and one thing only is certain and that is we are going to have a budget, but what the budget is going to contain we don't know. We are only going to have a short time to think about the budget and try to put our thoughts into concrete form for presentation. We don't know how to sound out the sentiment of our constituents, as to whether they favor one type or another. We have no idea how to go back home and sound out the sentiments of our people, as to the departments, commissions and employes as to what economies can be effected.

It seems to me that His Excellency ought to give us a budget one of these days. We are pretty much marking time. We are sitting only three days a week, and we all promised each other that we would get out of here by March 15, or maybe April 15 at the very latest. It we are not to have a budget this week I wonder whether or not we are going to have a budget next week. I rather think it would be a bad thing, if we could not have one this week or at the very latest next Mondty, and I urge that the Members of the House ought to continue their efforts, talk to their people about everything and try to get some ideas about some things. Let us come back here on Monday, and if we do not have a budget by Monday let us accept the invitation of the Governor to go in and sit down at the round table and talk with him. Let us ask the Governor in the things he is doing on this subject as to whether he wants our cooperation; whether he would want to have some Democrats sit down with him around the table to talk things over, because if there is any difficulty in getting a program set, why not get the minds and brains of the Legislature over there to see whether or not we might suggest something that might be acceptable to him. I think if it is cooperation the Governor wants from this side, we want to give it to him, and I think we ought to be invited to come in if there seems to be no chance of getting the budget message by next Monday night.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. LICHTENWALTER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, for the information of the Members of the House, and the minority particularly, I agree that the program in the Legislature here is somewhat stymied because of delay in the budget message. I am sure as far as cooperation from the Governor's office is concerned, the suggestion of the Minority Leader in settling the problems in sitting around the table, that there will be opportunity presented and they will be invited to come in and sit around the table and discuss our mutual problems.

I do want to say that I think the budget message will be here and be heard by all the Members of the House and Senate within the very near future.

I think you will all agree that preparing a budget in these very abnormal times is very very difficult because of the anticipating of revenues and many of the problems with which we are not confronted in normal times, and that is the reason for the delay in receiving the budget message from the Governor.

USE OF HOUSE CAUCUS ROOM GRANTED

The SPEAKER. The State Council of Defense has requested the use of the House Caucus Room tomorrow forenoon, February 24, 1943. Will the House grant permission to the State Council of Defense to use the House Caucus Room? Is there objection? The Chair hears none and permission is granted.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. BRETHERICK asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to say a few words to you on behalf of a very important segment of the people of the state of Pennsylvania. On February 2, 1943 there was introduced into this House by the gentleman from Lackawanna, Mr. Cordier, House Bill 136. The substance of that act was to provide for a bonus to the Pennsylvania school teachers in the sum of three hundred dollars each.

Since the introduction of that legislation I, and I suppose most of the other Members of this House, have been overwhelmed with an avalanche of letters and telegrams urging the passage of that legislation. Those communications have come not only from school teachers but from teachers' associations, and also from civic associations and from members of school boards.

The situation confronting these school teachers, gentlemen, is a serious one. I wonder if I may read to you a typical communication or two that I have received with regard to this particular piece of legislation? I shall read a letter which has come to me from the principal in charge of the School District of the Township of Nether Providence, which reads as follows:

"I would like to ask you to support House Bill 136 which provides for a $300 state bonus for each teacher in our Commonwealth, for the following reasons:

"1. Since the taxing unit is based on political subdivisions rather than on taxable wealth because of taxes levied on real estate rather than income, many districts cannot afford to increase their taxes to the point where they could make proper provisions to care for the increased cost of living of their teacher personnel.

"2. The weekly earnings of factory workers have increased 59%, while the weekly earnings of teachers have only increased 7%, while the cost of living has increased about four times in comparison with the raise in teachers' salaries.

"3. Industry which pays far better salaries is taking many of our superior teachers because teachers find it impossible to even buy the necessities of life on their teaching salaries.

"4. Although we cannot estimate the loss of pupils in tangible percentages, everyone recognizes that if youth is not given the proper training, they will not be fitted to meet the challenges that the post war period will offer.

"I would appreciate any consideration you can give this matter."

I would like to read to you a resolution which has been sent to me by the Eddystone Teachers Association, adopted at a meeting of that association held February 18, 1943.

"Whereas, we are now in a teachers' depression and every district is losing members from its teaching staff and competent replacements are very limited. In our particular case, four teachers have been forced to leave the district—three to the armed forces and one to industry.

"Whereas, the war and its industries are taking teachers away from the schools in such numbers that salaries should be raised in an effort to prevent greater losses. In our history department, it was necessary to replace one teacher with five substitutes during a one-year period.

"Whereas, teachers salaries have dropped far behind industrial wages and in many instances school students are earning greater salaries than their public school teachers.

"Whereas, teachers are forced to hold other jobs in addition to their teaching duties in an effort to meet the rising cost of living; and in doing so their efficiency, as teachers, is being impaired. At present, five members of our faculty are thus employed.

"Whereas, the loyalty of a teacher who has remained on the job in the interest of education and for the welfare of his pupils should be rewarded.

"Whereas, discontent on the part of a teacher reflects in the pupils, and the morale of both teacher and pupil is greatly lowered.

"Whereas, there has been no state-wide adjustment of teachers' salaries since the spiral of increased living costs began; therefore be it

"Resolved, That our organization earnestly urges that the members of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the State of Pennsylvania adopt House Bill 136."

I would like to read an excerpt of a letter received by me from the Superintendent of Public Schools of Delaware County, in which he states:

"In my own districts, we had on June 1942, seven hundred sixty teaching positions. Of this number, it was necessary to secure one hundred seventy-six new teachers by January 26, 1943. In other words, there was a turn-over up to that time of 23.2 per cent. Since January 26 there has been at least seven additional resignations, and I know that some of these positions have not been filled."

Gentlemen, the situation is one that cries aloud for legislative action. House Bill No. 136 at the present time is in the Committee on Education. The Chairman of that Committee is a teacher and I think probably has the welfare of the teachers at heart as much as any man living within this Commonwealth.

We have no right to anticipate what the Governor's budget message is going to contain in regard to increased emoluments for these teachers, but I say to you that the matter is one that requires the urgent and careful thought of every Member of this Legislature.

If public schools are to continue to function efficiently and well in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania they can only do so by having a satisfied group of teachers. At the present time in our own county boys of seventeen and eighteen are leaving our high schools and making twice as much in one week as our teachers are making who have been teaching school for as many as eight to ten years.

For twelve years I was a member of the School Board in the Borough of Upper Darby, and I think I know something about the problems of the school teachers and realize the difficulties inherent in raising money by taxation. It is always a difficult problem to meet, and therefore the only solution to this problem is by increasing the grants to the local school boards by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

We have heard a great deal during the past two or three weeks about the reduction of taxation. I read a publication by the Pennsylvania Alcoholic Beverage Studies Group, in which they recommended the removal of the emergency taxes on liquor.

Gentlemen, I say to you that if there is to be a choice between lowering taxes on liquor and paying our teachers more salary in order to give our children the education they deserve, then I say by all means let us not remove that taxation, but let us allocate it definitely to increases for our teachers.

Gentlemen, I want to urge upon each and every one of you on both sides of the House to act on this matter in order that our school system may be preserved and that our children may continue to have the type of education that they have gotten down through the years.

SENATE MESSAGE

RESOLUTION CONCURRED IN BY SENATE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has concurred in the resolution from the House of Representatives, as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 22, 1943.

In spite of what a poet wrote years ago, the "East" and the "West" have met, and last week the East's most versatile, comely and charming woman, Madame Chiang Kai-shek, addressed a joint session of the House and Senate of the Congress of the United States.

The wife of China's fighting Generalissimo, she has stood with him in directing that country's heroic defense against the invading Jap.

The United States is not new to this remarkable woman, for she spent many years of her life attending school in this country, and her vast knowledge of our institutions has assisted greatly in creating and cementing ties of friendship between her "East" and our "West."

Famous for her wit and beauty, China's most famous, admired and cultured citizen is now sojourning in the United States, and this Legislature would indeed be honored if she could be persuaded to address its members as she addressed the Congress of the United States; therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, is hereby requested to invite the Honorable Madame Chiang Kai-shek to be the guest of this Commonwealth and to address a joint session of the House and Senate whenever convenient to her; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of this House shall immediately transmit a copy of this Resolution to His Excellency, the Governor.

COMMITTEE MEETINGS

There will be meetings of the Committees on:

Counties, Wednesday, February 24, at 11 a. m., Room 522.

Highways, Wednesday, February 24, at 11 a. m., Room 324.

Motor Vehicles, Wednesday, February 24, at 11 a. m., Room 329.

Ways and Means, Wednesday, February 24, at 11:30 p. m., Room 327.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. HOLMES. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn until Wednesday, February 24, 1943, at 1 p. m.

The motion was agreed to, and (at 4:23 p. m.) the House adjourned.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Legislative Journal.

Session 1943. 135th of the General Assembly.

Vol. 27. HARRISBURG, PA., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1943. No. 19.

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, February 24, 1943

The Senate met at 3:00 o'clock p. m., Eastern War Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor John C. Bell, Jr.) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. EDWIN S. WALLACE, D.D., offered the following prayer:

It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord and to show forth His loving kindness. This good thing we would now do, for Thy loving kindness has been shown forth to us through the course of our lives. Give us the grace to appreciate, and with hearts of faith to acknowledge our indebtedness, for this is the only payment we can make.

The life each of us now enjoys is God's investment in us. In the guarding of that investment we reveal the value we put upon it. Help us to make the most of it, for Thy name's sake as well as for our own. Thou hast honored us by calling us sons. May we honor Thee by the sacred observance of the duties of sonship. This is fidelity to the best, and the best we know is God.

In all that comes before the Senate may the Senators be led by the Spirit of truth and have the faith and courage to follow that leadership. Thus they will honor God and themselves, and truly represent the best interests of their constituents and the Commonwealth.

Lead our chosen leaders, O God, in all civil and military affairs, to the end that Thy kingdom may come and Thy will be done on earth. In the name of our Lord, the King. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. HEYBURN and Mr. SCARLETT, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Mr. Wade asked and obtained leave of absence for Mr. ZIESENHEIM.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR

JOINT SESSION

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced presented a communication in writing from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, which was read as follows:

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, February 24, 1943.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

If it meets with the approval of the General Assembly, I should like to address the Members in Joint Session Monday evening, March 1, 1943, at nine-thirty o'clock.

An Act to amend paragraph A of section four hundred one of the act approved the fifteenth day of May one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 565) entitled "An act relating to the powers and duties of the Department of Banking and the Secretary of Banking in exercising supervision over and taking possession of and conducting or liquidating the business and property of corporations associations and persons receiving deposits or otherwise transacting a banking business corporations acting as fiducaaries and building and loan associations providing for the payment of the expenses of the Department of Banking by supervised corporations associations or persons and appropriating the Banking Department Fund authorizing the Department of Banking under certain circumstances to examine corporations associations or persons affiliated or having business transactions with supervised corporations associations or persons authorizing appeals to the Supreme Court and prescribing and limiting the powers and duties of certain other courts and their prothonotaries registers of wills recorders of deeds and certain State departments commissions and officers authorizing certain local public officers and State departments to collect fees for services rendered under this act providing penalties and repealing certain acts and parts of acts" by requiring the Department of Banking to examine all institutions thoroughly at least once every two years instead of each year as now provided

Section 1 Paragraph A of section four hundred one of the act approved the fifteenth day of May one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 565) entitled "An act relating to the powers and duties of the Department of Banking and the Secretary of Banking in exercising supervision over and taking possession of and conducting or liquidating the business and property of corporations associations and persons receiving deposits or otherwise transacting a banking business corporations acting as fiduciaries and building and loan associations providing for the payment of the expenses of the Department of Banking by supervised corporations associations or persons and appropriating the Banking Department Fund authorizing the Department of Banking under certain circumstances to examine corporations associations or persons affiliated or having business transactions with supervised corporations associations or persons authorizing appeals to the Supreme Court and prescribing and limiting the powers and duties of certain other courts and their prothonotaries registers of wills recorders of deeds and certain State departments commissions and officers authorizing certain local public officers and State departments to collect fees for services rendered under this act providing penalties and repealing certain acts and parts of acts" is hereby amended to read as follows

Section 401 Examinations of Institutions A The department shall examine all institutions thoroughly at least once each year and more frequently if it deems such action necessary or advisable to safeguard the interests of depositors other creditors or shareholders of such institutions This examination shall include a complete review of the property assets and resources of the institution the loans and discounts made by it and the collateral deposited with it as security for such loans the mode of conducting its affairs the investment of its funds the interest taken in its affairs by its officers directors and employes if a corporation or by its employes and the partners or individuals owning it if a person its compliance with the law and with the terms of its charter or license if it has either and any other matters bearing any relation to its condition which the department shall prescribe Provided however that for the duration of the present war and six (6) months thereafter the department shall not be required to make such examinations more than once every two years

The department may also make special examinations or investigations of any institution at any time the department deems such action necessary or advisable to protect depositors other creditors or shareholders thereof

Section 2 This act shall become effective imemdiately upon its final enactment

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, as I tried to point out last Wednesday, Senate Bill No. 84 certainly is a backward step. Since last week I have made a number of contacts. I have talked to some outstanding business men and I have yet to find one person who will agree with the sponsor that this bill should be passed. I have talked to a number of bankers and I must say that every banker in the Commonwealth is for this bill. Certainly they are for it. One man told me, he said, "I would be happy if you would amend it further and make it once in five years." Certainly he would be happy.

We know what happened ten years ago; we know that practically every bank in the country was on the verge of closing, and they were closing. We know that thousands upon thousands of persons have lost their life's earnings in banks.

If, as I have pointed out last week, any of you gentlemen here who are manufacturers, lawyers, or what not, should take inventory of your business only once in two years, I am fearful that might be the last time. And still it seems apparent we are willing to vote for a measure to give men who handle public funds the right to handle those funds without any check, only once in two years.

As my friend from Lebanon pointed out, we have model banks, and those model banks need not be checked once a year. I found that some of those model banks ten years ago, with beautiful fronts, beautiful structures, were the first ones to be closed, and some of our small country banks kept going and are still in operation, so I am not enthused in any way about these model banks.

The larger the bank the more personnel; the more personnel, the more money they handle; the more money they handle, the more chance of misplacement and more chance of fraud.

As I said a moment ago, the bankers are for it; the common man can not be for it. I am interested in the common man and I believe you are. However, we might find this condition. We do have a new Secretary of Banking—I do not know him—he comes to me highly recommended and I think he knows what he is doing but he, like many, many new men in public office, is enthused. They wish to make a record, they want to practice economy—I might say penny wise and dollar foolish.

He is probably trying to make a record and, maybe, a sincere record, but, gentlemen, he is new in this game and you men here are seasoned, well seasoned. Just because he wishes to make a record by reducing personnel, are we going to give him that right?

I do not know of many bank examiners who are in the ages between twenty and thirty; most of them are men up in years, and I say now there is no shortage of personnel. You can obtain sufficient men in this Commonwealth to take these jobs, even if you must put up a sign, "Help Wanted," because, gentlemen, one of the most important institutions in this Commonwealth is the banking institution. This is certainly a step backward. You can not be proud of this movement and I am only fearful this might be the forerunner of other bills to follow; with all our enthusiasm we might go overboard, and you shall regret this move.

So, Mr. President, I trust that you gentlemen will weigh this bill carefully again before you vote. It is improperly written, the title is not right; many corrections should be made.

Had this bill passed last Wednesday, six months after the war the entire act would have been out. Because we opposed it last week, you found corrections had to be made, and many, many more should be made. This bill should go back. Finally if you intend to pass a bill, pass a bill that will stand up.

This bill cannot be constitutional as it is today. I am not a lawyer, but that is my version of the bill.

I do not expect to change any votes, but I say this is a step backward and I think you are making a mistake, a serious mistake, and the people of Pennsylvania will certainly lose faith in us if we start passing this type of legislation.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Lebanon.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Lebanon permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BECKER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. As I understand this bill it is a permissive act; it does not prevent the Department of Banking from examining once a year if it so desires.

Mr. BECKER. That is correct, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Do I understand, Mr. President, that basically—the necessity for this bill is because of the inability of the department to get sufficient help to make examinations every year.

Mr. BECKER. That is correct.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I propose to vote for this bill, for the reason that the responsibility, according to this bill, is where it belongs, in the Banking Department. If, as a result of failure by the Banking Department to examine banks, any bank fails, they will have to take the responsibility.

If the banking department says to us at a period like this, "you are really passing emergency legislation to meet a situation which is beyond our control, we have not sufficient help to make examinations which we are required to make under the law," and if we do not give them the relief asked for, the result will be that they will make examinations or approve banks which should not have been approved, they will have to do the work haphazardly, and they will be unable to perform their duties and assume their responsibilities.

It seems to me that if this bill is favored by all the banks, it shows the banks prefer a good examination once in every two years rather than two bad examinations in two years, so that they themselves do not know where they stand.

I think the gentleman from Cambria was sincere in his objections, but that he is misinformed or misunderstands the basic reason which makes necessary this legislation. And because I am informed that the Banking Department is willing to take the responsibility, because I believe it is better to have one good examination rather than two bad examinations, I shall vote for this bill.

Mr. BECKER. I shall not endeavor, Mr. President, to add anything to what has been said on the floor of the Senate this morning in connection with this bill. It was rather thoroughly and adequately discussed on second reading.

There were some statements made by the Senator from Cambria which I might well answer. However, I believe that all of the Senators are familiar with and thoroughly understand the reason and the purpose for this bill.

I therefore ask my colleagues to support it.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Certainly, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Philadephia tell me what makes him feel that under this act, as proposed, one good examination will come out of a two year term.

Mr. SHAPIRO. I say, Mr. President, that it is impossible for the Banking Department to get the help today that is necessary to make examinations of all the state banks once every year. I have been so informed by people who know, and therefore, if they are compelled under the law to make examinations every year, the examinations that they will make will be made with an inadequate force, and probably not with a competent force, and therefore will be as effective as no examinations.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, can the gentleman from Philadelphia tell me how many employes we have now as bank examiners.

Mr. SHAPIRO. No, Mr. President, I can not.

Mr. HALUSKA. Can the gentleman from Philadelphia tell me, Mr. President, how many of them have been inducted into the service.

Mr. SHAPIRO. No, Mr. President, but if the same percentage follows in that department as it has in other departments, and in business, I imagine probably half of them have gone into other vocations.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, does the gentleman from Philadelphia have knowledge of any men leaving the employ of the banking department to go into the service.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Not at all, Mr. President. I have the statement of the Banking Department and also a statement by our former banking commissioner, the Honorable Lieutenant-Governor, whose experience in this field I consider very great, and he tells me that this bill is an essential bill from his experience in the Banking Department.

Mr. HALUSKA. Then, Mr. President, am I to understand from the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, and also from the gentleman from Lebanon, Mr. Becker, that the one and only reason that we are trying to pass this bill today is that the Banking Department can not employ the required help? Is that correct.

Mr. SHAPIRO. That is the basic reason, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Lebanon.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Lebanon permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BECKER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Will the gentleman from Lebanon tell me whether or not bonding companies which write bonds for these banks will cover a bond for a two year period or a one year period under this act.

Mr. BECKER. Mr. President, I am not sure I understand the import of that question. Will the Senator from Cambria please repeat it.

Mr. HALUSKA. To be more explicit, Mr. President, each bank must carry a bond, is that correct, a blanket bond.

Mr. BECKER. Not necessarily, Mr. President, a blanket bond. A bank is required by the Department of Banking to carry fidelity coverage for its employes but not necessarily a blanket bond.

Mr. HALUSKA. Does the gentleman from Lebanon know of any bank in this Commonwealth that does not carry a blanket bond?

Mr. BECKER. I am sorry, Mr. President, I do not understand the question.

Mr. HALUSKA. Can the gentleman from Lebanon tell me whether he knows of any bank in this Commonwealth that does not carry a blanket bond.

Mr. BECKER. I would not be prepared, Mr. President, to answer that question, but I can readily conceive of any number of banks not having blanket bonds.

Mr. HALUSKA. If the gentleman from Lebanon were in the insurance business, would he write a bond in amount $25,000, $50,000, or $100,000, knowing full well the bank so covered would be examined possibly once in two years?

Mr. BECKER. Mr. President, I have plenty of trouble with my own profession. I am not an insurance company, and I do not know what I would do if I were. We have some competent, experienced insurance men here.

Mr. HALUSKA. Can the gentleman from Lebanon tell me how often Federal banks are examined.

Mr. BECKER. I would say there again, Mr. President, it depends to some extent upon the necessity for an examination. I think at the present time the intervals are approximately the same as they have been for state bank examinations.

Mr. HALUSKA. I must correct you, because the Federal Banking law states they must be examined at least twice a year.

Mr. BECKER. Mr. President, that is what I mean, that they are examined approximately the same now as State banks are.

Mr. HALUSKA. Does the gentleman from Lebanon know whether they have the same difficulty in keeping help to examine Federal banks as the gentleman states there is in examining State banks.

Mr. BECKER. I have heard it discussed, Mr. President, yes.

Mr. HALUSKA. Is there such a bill in Congress, Mr. President, or a proposed bill, which the gentleman from Lebanon might know of, which leads him to sponsor this bill?

Mr. BECKER. Will the gentleman from Cambria repeat the question?

Mr. HALUSKA. Does the gentleman from Lebanon know of any bill in Congress now reducing the time of examinations of Federal banks?

Mr. BECKER. I can not answer that, Mr. President. I am not aware of any bill in Congress at the present time.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, would the gentleman from Lebanon say there is much difference between Federal and State banks in their functioning?

Mr. BECKER. Well, Mr. President, that is a pretty wide subject. There are some differences. The policy of the Comptroller of the Currency and the State Banking Department is to maintain Federal and State institutional functioning as nearly on equal terms as possible.

Mr. HALUSKA. That is correct, Mr. President. Does the gentleman from Lebanon think this is a good bill?

Mr. BECKER. I think it is a good bill.

Mr. HALUSKA. Because of lack of personnel?

Mr. BECKER. Lack of competent personnel.

Mr. HALUSKA. Competent personnel?

Mr. BECKER. Yes—, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. And the gentleman from Lebanon is satisfied that competent personnel can not be hired to continue examinations once a year.

Mr. BECKER. I am so satisfied, Mr. President. I might say that since the Senator from Cambria has again inquired as to the figures, they were stated on the floor of this Senate by myself when this bill was on second reading. The normal examining personnel of the Department of Banking is approximately 65. Of those 65, ten have already been inducted into service, and an additional twenty are in the draft, awaiting call.

Mr. HALUSKA. How long would the gentleman from Lebanon say it takes to make a careful examination of an ordinary bank, not a model bank.

Mr. BECKER. Mr. President, the question is too general; I am unable to answer that.

Mr. HALUSKA. Somebody said "Oh"—I do not know who it was—but I will give you the answer.

Mr. BECKER. I would say, Mr. President, it might require two months to examine the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, but I represent a bank with half a million dollars of deposits in Lebanon County, and it requires about three days to examine that bank.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the country lawyer from Pittsburgh, Mr. Walker.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WALKER. Gladly, Mr. President, and I was one of those who said "Oh," just plain "Oh."

Mr. HALUSKA. That is fine. Someone said "Oh"; I heard the gentleman. Will the gentleman from Allegheny tell me whether he has any knowledge of how long it might take to make a bank examination.

Mr. WALKER. I do not know, Mr. President. The reason I said, "Oh" reminds me of that question, how far is up or how old is Ann. It depends on the bank, it depends on the condition of the bank and it depends on the number and efficiency of the personnel making the examination. As the distinguished gentleman from Lebanon just stated, he has given a concrete example of how long it takes to examine one of the banks of which he happens to have some information in his own county.

I would not even attempt to estimate how long it would take to make an examination. For example, as to the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, which has millions and millions of dollars of deposits, and with the ramifications of that tremendous banking institution, it probably takes a lot of time.

I think if, by some maneuvering of parliamentary procedure, the Lieutenant-Governor could come down from the rostrum and onto the floor of the Senate, we could get some authentic information as to how long it takes to make bank examinations. I have been told, Mr. President, that some of the banks should be examined every month and that the Banking Department exercises very careful scrutiny and supervision over the banks in Pennsylvania, and that this proposed reduction in the required number of examinations does not mean that every bank will be examined only once every two years. It means that the Banking Department will only be required to examine once in every two years, but they may examine every month or every two months or six times a year or once a year. There is no maximum number of examinations the Banking Department can make of these banks, and I think that lends itself to the situation that is confronting us.

As yet the gentleman from Cambria has not convinced me that my notes in the banks in Pittsburgh would be endangered if we examined them only once every two years.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his point of order.

Mr. BARR. My point of order, Mr. President, is that the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Haluska, has the floor.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I am sorry, but the gentleman from Cambria asked me a question.

Mr. HALUSKA. I just let him go, Mr. President; he said "Oh," his mouth was open and I let him go.

Mr. WALKER. Words came out too, Mr. President.

The Senate was at ease.

The PRESIDENT. The Senate will come to order. Is there any further debate on this bill?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Not by way of debate, Mr. President, but by way of information for the purpose of the record, in view of the importance of this bill and the interest of the public, I think it ought to be stated that even though this bill passes, it does not mean that any bank will not be examined every year, because most banks, if not all, are members of the Federal Reserve System of the National Government, and every bank that is a member of that system, which has its deposits insured, is examined by the Comptroller of the Currency at least once a year, so that even though the State Banking Department does not examine these banks once a year, they will have been examined by the Federal Government.

Another contributing factor to this whole picture is the fact that we in the State are competing with National bank examiners, or rather, with the Comptroller of the Currency, by paying employes in the Banking Department from $400 to $600 a year less than they could get from the Comptroller of the Currency. They at the same time have civil service, which means tenure of office, which we do not have in the State.

With those two elements existing before the war, and the additional element now that any bank examiner of any competence can walk into any accounting office and get at least a minimum salary of $5,000 a year, it is understandable that the people who get $1,800 to $2,500 a year from the State are going to jump at the first offer that they can get which is above that rate. The situation in Pennsylvania requires the Banking Department to give examinations, wherever they give them, properly. If we insist on the present law, every bank will get a cursory examination, which is dangerous. If we pass this law, banks needing it will get competent examinations, and banks which are Federal Reserve members will get examinations from the National Government.

Mr. McCREESH. Mr. President, I intend to vote against this bill. I do not know what came out of the side bar conference, but someone asked on the floor how often a bank should be examined. I just received notice from a bank at Fortieth and Market Streets, Philadelphia, that the bank examiners are still examining, after fifteen years, and the depositors have not gotten any money from that bank yet.

I think it is wrong to say to bank examiners that they should forget about the banks and go back home.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 130, entitled:

An Act to amend section two hundred thirteen of the act, approved the second day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-five (P. L. 448), entitled "An act relating to fish; and amending, revising, consolidating, and changing the law relating to fish in the inland waters and the boundary lakes and boundary rivers of the Commonwealth," by prohibiting the sale of or offering for sale of bait-fish or fish-bait taken from the waters of this Commonwealth, when not artificially propagated and sold pursuant to an artificial propagation license granted by the board.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 135, entitled:

An Act to amend section seven hundred sixteen of the act approved the third day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven, (P. L. 1225), entitled "An act concerning game and other wild birds and wild animals; and amending, revising, consolidating, and changing the law relating thereto," authorizing the sale and purchase of hides of lawfully killed deer under certain circumstances.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 34, on third reading, entitled:

An Act prescribing temporary emergency war provisions with respect to the administration of certain provisions of the school laws of this Commonwealth relating to days for schools to be in session closing schools and suspending classes temporarily assignment and reassignment of teachers transportation facilities and allowances, temporary increases in salaries of professional employes state subsidies, and temporary farm and domestic employment certificates for certain pupils and authorizing boards of school directors (or boards of public education) with the approval or upon the direction of the Superintendent of Public Instruction to put such provisions into operation and to suspend the provisions of existing school laws inconsistent therewith upon findings by such boards or by the Superintendent of Public Instruction, which I previously asked to go over in order, temporarily, now go over in its order until Monday, as there is some new material in the bill and some of the Senators want an opportunity to study it.

I therefore ask that this bill go over in its order until Monday.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

MOTION TO READ BILLS THE FIRST TIME

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now proceed to the first reading of all bills reported from committees for the first time at today's session.

The SPEAKER (Ira T. Fiss) in the Chair.

PRAYER

Rabbi David Watchfogel, a guest of the Chaplain, of B'nai Israel Synagogue, Shamokin, offered the following prayer:

Our Father, Who art in Heaven:

We stand before Thee in reverence, devotion and love, to re-affirm our faith in Thee and Thy wise guidance of our destinies. We thank Thee from the depths of our hearts for all Thy goodness to us.

The chosen representatives of this state have assembled, this afternoon, in prayer to devote themselves unselfishly to the welfare of their constituents. Endow them with the spirit of wisdom that they may administer the affairs of our state in justice and righteousness, and that they establish a happy and healthy social order. Grant them, O God, the gift of unbending rectitude and wise-hearted statemanship that they truly serve our state and nation in these critical days.

Bless the President of these United States, the Governor of the state, its representatives and all those who serve loyally and selflessly our state and nation.

Shield and protect our armed forces engaged in battle. Bless them that they may emerge victorious from all their engagements. Speed the day when lust of power, intolerance of bigotry and narrowness of vision will be purged from the hearts and souls of men; and Thy kingdom of justice, righteousness, freedom and peace shall be established upon this earth. Amen.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. SORG. (Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 26.

In the House of Representatives, February 23, 1943.

The call of the Nation for civilian help in the successful prosecution of the war and the defense of our homeland has resulted in the enlistment of hundreds of thousands of Pennsylvania's citizens in civilian war service.

For more than two years these patriotic men and women have faithfully and conscientiously served the Nation. Heedless of the time and effort and sacrifice required and intent only upon performing some service for the Nation in its hour of need, they have assumed important positions in State, County and Local Councils of Defense, Selective Service Boards, War Price Boards, Rationing Boards, Red Cross Chapters, including Blood Banks and Nurses' Aide Corps, Aircraft Observation Posts, Civil Air Patrol, Reserve Defense Corps, and auxiliaries thereof, or with some particular work connected with other agencies or boards of the Federal or State Government engaged in furthering the war effort.

The persons performing this patriotic work are prominent citizens of their respective communities, they serve without compensation and perform a necessary and valuable service.

The unselfish devotion of these men and women who have so generously changed their method of life and have sacrificed time, money and often friendships in order to be of assistance to their country deserves public recognition, therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, recognizing the importance of the patriotic work being performed by these men and women for the common good and for the successful prosecution of the war, hereby extends to them the thanks of the Commonwealth and assures them of the lasting gratitude of its people; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of this House of Representatives shall forward sufficient copies of this Resolution to the State Council of Defense to provide for transmittal thereof to the various boards, organizations and agencies in which these persons are performing their duties.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Messrs. SARRAF and HAMILTON. (Not Printed)

In the House of Representatives, February 24, 1943.

America is still the greatest melting pot in the world.

Poured into this cauldron for refinement, the immigrant is mixed with the spirit of democracy, is subjected to the cleasing fires of freedom and liberty, and is thrilled with the realization of equality, until all that was there before is changed and fused into Americanism.

Into that cauldron years ago went a couple from the Free State of Lebanon in Syria, and the secret alchemy of the American way of life quickly produced two more citizens who today rank as the equal of any who trace their lineage from Revolutionary times, in their love of country and their true patriotism.

This couple is known in their home at Ambridge in Allegheny County as Mr. and Mrs. Charles Farrah, and their Americanism and their patriotism is best exemplified by their contribution to the nation.

Here is that contribution:

George, 20, a staff sergeant with a Field Artillery unit at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

Regis, 24, staff sergeant with the Glider Infantry at the Maxton (N. C.) Air Base.

Benjamin, 35, a private serving with a photographic unit in Iceland.

Joseph, 28, an infantry private at Camp Blanding, Florida.

Abie, 22, an Air Force private at Amarillo, Texas.

Harry, 41, a private in the Medical Corps at Camp Carson, Colorado.

James, 37, a private with a Tank Destroyer Battalion at Camp Bowie, Texas.

On the wall of the Farrah home in Ambridge hangs a framed letter, signed by Secretary of War, Henry L. Stimson, expressing the appreciation of the War Department for the fact that their seven sons were serving in the Army of the United States.

"Such patriotism" wrote the Secretary of War, "must reflect the loyalty and patriotism which they have learned at home." therefore be it

Resolved, By this House of Representatives of the General Assembly that in behalf of all the people of Pennsylvania, we extend to Mr. and Mrs. Farrah the thanks of the Commonwealth for the credit brought it by the example of patriotism they have set for the Nation. So long as such a spirit of devotion to duty and love o country exists in the land, no harm can come to our sacred institutions and so long the American way of life is safe; and be it further Resolved, That in evidence of our gratitude to the parents of these seven sons who are in the Nation's service, we direct that the Chief Clerk of this House shall immediately transmit a copy of this resolution to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Farrah, at 1403 Merchant Street, Ambridge, Pennsylvania.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

SENATE MESSAGE

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I move that the resolution be amended as follows: "Amend last line by striking out the word "nine" and inserting in lieu thereof the words "eight-thirty."

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution as amended?

It was adopted.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

SENATE MESSAGE

RESOLUTION CONCURRED IN BY SENATE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has concurred in the resolution from the House of Representatives, as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 17, 1943.

The presence of vast numbers of American boys in Ireland at this time stresses the necessity for Americans to acquire a more complete knowledge of Irish customs and manners.

This knowledge can best be acquired by a closer association of Irishmen and with Irishmen.

The birthday of St. Patrick, the patron Saint of Ireland, occurs on March 17th, and no more fitting time could be selected for the start of a study of Irish customs; therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That a legislative committee is hereby created consisting of sixteen members of the House of Representatives to be appointed by the Speaker and ten members of the Senate to be appointed by the President Pro Tempore of the Senate whose duty it shall be to arrange for a fitting and suitable celebration of the birthday of St. Patrick by the members of the General Assembly and their guests.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced, presented a communication in writing from His Excellency the Governor, which was read as follows:

REQUEST TO ADDRESS JOINT SESSION

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, February 24, 1943.

To the Honorable, the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

If it meets with the approval of the General Assembly, I should like to address the Members in Joint Session Monday evening, March 1, 1943, at nine-thirty o'clock.

EDWARD MARTIN.

GOVERNOR INVITED TO ADDRESS JOINT SESSION

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker I move that the Governor be invited to address the General Assembly in the Hall of the House at a time to be fixed by concurrent resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives.

The motion was agreed to.

SENATE MESSAGES

JOINT SESSION

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced presented an extract from the Journal of the Senate, which was read as follows:

In the Senate, February 24, 1943.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That the Senate and House of Representatives will meet in joint convention Monday, March 1, 1943, at nine-thirty o'clock p. m., for the purpose of listening to an address by His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for its concurrence.

On the question,

Will the House concur in the resolution of the Senate?

It was concurred in.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

COMMITTEE TO ESCORT GOVERNOR

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced presented an extract from the Journal of the Senate, which was read as follows:

In the Senate, February 24, 1943.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That a committee of three on the part of the Senate be appointed to act with a similar committee on the part of the House of Representatives (if the House shall appoint such committee), to escort His Excellency, the Governor, to the Hall of the House to address the Members of the General Assembly in Joint Session on Monday, March 1, 1943, at nine-thirty o'clock p. m. pursuant to a resolution already adopted by the Senate and House of Representatives.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for its concurrence.

On the question,

Will the House concur in the resolution of the Senate?

It was concurred in.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent leave of absence was granted as follows:

Mr. Royer for Mr. ALSPACH for today's session because of a birth in the family.

INTERROGATION

Mr. SARGE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Royer.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lancaster permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ROYER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SARGE. Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that the gentleman from Lancaster has a good many friends in my county and in view of the fact that I was not listening very closely when the gentleman presented his resolution, and to make matters entirely clear to some of my associates, I would ask the gentleman whether he was speaking about himself or about someone else when he presented that resolution.

Mr. ROYER. Mr. Speaker, for the information of the gentleman from Lebanon, I did not introduce a resolution.

Mr. SARGE. Oh, Mr. Speaker, it was leave of absence?

Mr. ROYER. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SARGE. In other words, Mr. Speaker, there is no likelihood of the gentleman's asking for a leave of absence?

Mr. ROYER. Absolutely not, Mr. Speaker.

Section 9 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. LEONARD. Mr. Speaker, I arise again to oppose the passage of this bill because I see no necessity for the changing of the name after the excellent service these police have given under this present name, and I am asking my friends and all those who are satisfied with the Police Department to vote "no" on this bill.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, as far as I am concerned, I am not much interested in what you call the State Police, whether they are the State Police or whether they are Motor Police, but I would like to interrogate my good friend, Mr. Hare, for just a few minutes.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Somerset permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HARE. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, getting down to the matter of the State Police, yesterday the gentleman from Somerset said that these men are on duty twenty-four hours a day. Is that right?

Mr. HARE. They are subject to duty twenty-four hours a day, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, I know that a large majority of those who are left on the force work anywhere from twelve to fifteen or eighteen hours a day, making their pay an average of twenty-two and a half cents an hour. Will this change in name shorten their hours or give them any better pay?

Mr. HARE. This bill, Mr. Speaker, is primarily and solely and wholly to change the name of "Motor" to "State."

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, as far as the State Police are concerned, whom they use to take care of these horses that Mr. Lovett talked about, I do know of one barracks where they have about fourteen horses that have not been out of the barn more than twice in about six years, but they are being taken care of and exercised, fed and cleaned by the Pennsylvania Motor Police. May I inquire of the gentleman if this bill would change that setup?

Mr. HARE. No, Mr. Speaker, if they continue the rationing, as I said yesterday, we will probably have all the horses in use.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Then, Mr. Speaker, the only thing I have in mind is that in fact the policeman is not going to benefit by a real honest-to-God police department, of which everybody could be proud. What I mean by that is that they are not going to be satisfied with the job that they have got. The only thing is that instead of being called Motor Police they are going to be called State Police.

Mr. HARE. Mr. Speaker, this is primarily the same department which we had in 1937. When you changed the name of this organization you did not change any part of the personnel and this bill will not affect the personnel of the organization.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I think that as far as those Policemen are concerned, they have been called a whole lot of things besides Motor Police and State Police, and getting down to the men in the Department I will say that they have the finest bunch of men that there are in the State and we have lost some of the best Motor Policemen, some of the best men that you can find, for the simple reason that they are only working today for an average pay of eighteen or twenty cents an hour, and I do not think it makes much difference what you call them. What we should do, in my opinion, Mr. Speaker, is decide on shortening their hours and giving them a pay that will make it an honest-to-God Police Department.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

NAYS—0

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 23, as follows:

An Act to further amend section one and to amend section four of the act approved the first day of July one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven (P. L. 2460) entitled "An act creating a joint legislative commission to be known as the Joint State Government Commission providing for the appointment of its members and defining its powers and duties" changing the number of members and providing further for the terms thereof and further defining its powers and duties and amplifying the provisions relating to appropriations

Section 1 Section one of the act approved the first day of July one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven (P. L. 2460) entitled "An act creating a joint legislative commission to be known as the Joint State Government Commission providing for the appointment of its members and defining its powers and duties" as amended by the act approved the twenty-sixth day of June one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine (P. L. 1084) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same that the Speaker of the House of Representatives shall appoint [ten] twelve members of the House and the President pro tempore shall appoint [seven] twelve members of the Senate who together with the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives shall constitute a continuing joint legislative commission to be known as the Joint State Government Commission The members of the commission shall be appointed during each odd-numbered year and shall continue as members of the commission until the first day of February of the next odd-numbered year and until their respective successors shall be appointed Said commission shall organize by the selection of a chairman The commission shall have power to employ a director and such professional technical clerical and other assistance as may be deemed necessary Said commission shall have power to call upon any department or agency of the State Government for such information as it deems pertinent to the studies in which it is engaged Said commission shall also have the power to designate members of the General Assembly to such sub-committees as it shall create for the purpose of making investigations and studies and to designate persons other than members of the General Assembly to act in advisory capacities

Section 2 Section four of said act is hereby amended to read as follows

Section 4 Biennially an item of appropriation shall be inserted in the General Appropriation Bill to pay the expenses of the members of the commission constituted by this act and for the salary of the director clerical and other hire and incidental expenses

Section 3 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, the Joint State Government Commission was originated in the first term that I served in this House. I was not a member of that Commission in either the first or the second terms in which I served, but I had the privilege of serving on this Commission for the last couple of years, having been appointed by the previous Speaker.

My examination of the activities of the Commission in its first two spans of life proved to me that the commission did perform a great deal of service to the Members of the House and the Senate on a non-political and non-partisan basis. My service on the Commission last year proved beyond any doubt that the absence of politics and the absence of partisanship in its make up and personnel permitted it to continue its great service to us, and I trust that the Commission will continue and I believe that the Commission will continue, no matter what its make up may be, to serve on a non-political and non-partisan basis.

My only objection to this bill in its present form is that the number of Members of the House represented on the Commission is but eleven. That would mean that the Members of the House would not have a truly representative number to advise with them and to work with them on the many matters that come before the Commission for its study, because after all we do take our orders from the House and the Senate. I feel that true proportions should be kept, that a fairly solid basis for proper representation should be on the numbers of persons involved, and since we in the House have two hundred and eight Members, and since on the other side there are but fifty, a fair proportion of the men to serve on the Commission should be allocated on the basis of our voting strength or on the basis of our numerical strength. I do not think that could be bad because it has been proven beyond any question of doubt that the deliberations of that body have been on a non-political and a non-partisan basis.

I believe, as one of the gentlemen said yesterday, we should not give up our prerogative to have representatives on this Commission, or in fact on any commission that may be created by this body or the body or by joint action, that we should give up our right to an equal proportion of representation so that we would have an equal amount of work to do and an equal spread of the responsibilities and duties, and it is for that reason alone that I oppose the passage of this bill.

I know that those who vote "no" on the bill with me will do so with the full knowledge and understanding that the vote does not imply or carry with it any suspicion or any doubt, either past, present or future, that the Commission will not continue to remain a Commission of service to us and not a political commission.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I just want to make a brief statement in reply to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen.

As I stated yesterday, I believe that it will make for better efficiency in the operation of this Commission to have equal representation between the House and the Senate. The Senate is a legislative, law making body just the same as we are here in the House, and even though they are fewer in number they require the same provisions in passing legislation as we do over here.

I would like to remind the gentleman on the other side that I believe for the past few sessions we have created and recreated the Local Government Commission, which is making a study of local problems just the same as the Joint State Government Commission has undertaken the study of various state problems, and that Commission, which was created again in the 1941 Session by Legislation passed in the House, when the now minority was then in the majority, and gave equal representation to the House and the Senate. That Commission has had four Senators and four Members of the House comprising the personnel of that Commission, and I do not think that any Member of the House would say that in any way the work has been hampered or jeopardized or that there has not been efficiency in the work of the Commission. I am sure that with equal representation on the Joint State Government Commission we will continue in a non-partisan fashion the studies of the various problems of the state of Pennsylvania and that we will expedite the matters that come before that Commission to the satisfaction of all.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the same to the Senate with information that the House of Representatives has passed the same without amendment.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 146, as follows:

An Act to further amend clause one of section three and section twelve of the act approved the eighteenth day of July one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 1043) entitled "An act establishing a public school employes' retirement system and creating a retirement board for the administration thereof establishing certain funds from contributions by the Commonwealth and contributing employes defining the uses and purposes thereof and the manner of payments therefrom and providing for the guaranty by the Commonwealth of certain of said funds imposing powers and duties upon boards having the employment of public school employes exempting annuities allowances returns benefits and rights from taxation and judicial process and providing penalties" further extending the time for present employes as defined in the act to elect to be covered by the retirement system and granting retirement rights to certain additional persons who have withdrawn from and returned to school service

Section 1 Clause one of section three of the act approved the eighteenth day of July one thousand nine hundred seventeen (P. L. 1043) entitled "An act establishing a public school employes' retirement system and creating a retirement board for the administration thereof establishing certain funds from contributions by the Commonwealth and contributing employes defining the uses and purposes thereof and the manner of payments therefrom and providing for the guaranty by the Commonwealth of certain of said funds imposing powers and duties upon boards having the employment of public school employes exempting annuities allowances returns benefits and rights from taxation and judicial process and providing penalties" as last amended by the act approved the twelfth day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine (P. L. 332) is hereby further amended to read as follows

A School Employes' Retirement Association

Section 3 An employes' retirement association is hereby organized the membership of which shall consist of the following

1 All present employes including employes in the Pennsylvania Institution for the Instruction of the Blind Overbrook Philadelphia Pennsylvania the Western Pennsylvania Institution for the Blind Pittsburgh Pennsylvania the Pennsylvania Institution for the Deaf and Dumb Mount Airy Philadelphia Pennsylvania and the Western Pennsylvania Institution for the Instruction of the Deaf and Dumb Wilkinsburg Pennsylvania except those specifically excluded by paragraph three of this section who by written application to the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall elect before the first day of July nineteen hundred and [forty] forty-five to be covered by the retirement system Provided That such employe shall at the time of making such application pay into the School Employes' Retirement Fund to the credit of the employes' annuity savings account as provided for in paragraph number six of section eight of this act an amount equal to what would have been at that date the contributions from the salary of such employe had the election to be covered by the retirement system been made prior to the first day of July nineteen hundred and nineteen

Section 2 Section twelve of said act as last amended by the act approved the first day of July one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 2601) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Withdrawal

Section 12 Should a contributor by resignation or dismissal or in any other way than by death or retirement separate from the school service or should such contributor legally withdraw from the retirement system he or she shall be paid on demand from the fund created by this act (a) The full amount of the accumulated deductions standing to his or her individual credit in the annuity savings account or in lieu thereof should he or she so elect (b) an annuity or a deferred annuity which shall be the actuarial equivalent of said accumulated deductions His or her membership in the retirement associations shall thereupon cease

2 Should an employe so separated from the school service return within five years and restore to the School Employes' Retirement Fund to the credit of the annuity savings account his or her accumulated deductions as they were at the time of his or her separation the annuity rights forfeited by him or her at that time shall be restored

Each employe who separated from school service prior to the first day of July one thousand nine hundred and [twenty-five] thirty-eight and who subsequently returned or shall return to school service prior to July first one thousand nine hundred and [thirty-four] forty-three after more than five years' absence shall at retirement for superannuation be entitled to have full credit for each year of service in the public schools of Pennsylvania Provided

(a) He or she shall have rendered not less than [twenty] fifteen years of service in the public schools of Pennsylvania prior to the retirement and

(b) He or she shall have restored to the School Employes' Retirement Fund to the credit of the annuity savings account his or her accumulated deductions as they were at the time of his or her separation

Each employe who separates from school service after the first day of July one thousand nine hundred and [twenty-five] thirty-eight and who returns to school service after a longer absence than five years shall have his or her annuity rights restored in accordance with the provisions of this paragraph provided he or she fulfills the conditions named in paragraphs (a) and (b) of this clause and in addition thereto (c) shall have left with the retirement board at least twenty per centum of his or her accumulated deductions at the time of his or her separation and (d) shall return to service prior to the age of fifty-nine years

In no case shall an employe who has separated from school service and who later returned to school service after five or more years of absence be eligible to retirement on account of disability until he or she shall have rendered at least three years of service subsequent to such return

In any case the restoration of the accumulated deductions provided herein may be made by the payment of a lump sum or any actuarial equivalent approved by the retirement board

Subject to such rules and regulations as the retirement board may adopt the provisions of this act shall be applicable beginning July first one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five to all who are on the retired list of Pennsylvania public school employes at the time this bill becomes a law

3 Should a contributor die before retirement his or her accumulated deductions shall be paid to his or her estate or to such person as he or she shall have nominated by written designation duly executed and filed with the retirement board

Section 3 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

SENATE MESSAGE

AMENDED RESOLUTION CONCURRED IN BY SENATE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced informed that the Senate has concurred in the amendments made by the House of Representatives to Senate Resolution as follows:

In the Senate, February 22, 1943.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That when the Senate adjourns this week, it reconvene on Monday evening, March 1, 1943, at four o'clock, and when the House of Representatives adjourns this week, it reconvene on Monday evening, March 1, 1943 at eight-thirty o'clock.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. MADIGAN. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. MADIGAN. Mr. Speaker, the Legislative Journal of February tenth does not show that I was present and voted on the bills which were on final passage, whereas I was present and did vote and I wish to have the record so indicate, particularly as to House Bills 62 and 63, on which I voted "aye".

The SPEAKER. The remarks of the gentleman on his question of personal privilege will be spread upon the Journal of the House.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. HOFFMAN. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Northampton will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. HOFFMAN. On February 10, 1943 I was present in the House and voted on House Bills 4, 60, 34, 109, 108 and 17.

The Journal indicates that I did not vote on those bills. I voted "aye" on all those bills, so if you please, I wish to be so recorded.

The SPEAKER. The remarks of the gentleman on his question of personal privilege will be spread upon the Journals of the House.

RESOLUTION REPORTED FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. LICHTENWALTER asked and obtained unanimous consent to report House Resolution No. 26 from the Committee on Rules and for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 23, 1943.

The call of the Nation for civilian help in the successful prosecution of the war and the defense of our homeland has resulted in the enlistment of hundreds of thousands of Pennsylvania's citizens in civilian war service.

For more than two years these patriotic men and women have faithfully and conscientiously served the Nation. Heedless of the time and effort and sacrifice required and intent only upon performing some service for the Nation in its hour of need, they have assumed important positions in State, County and Local Councils of Defense, Selective Service Boards, War Price Boards, Rationing Boards, Red Cross Chapters, including Blood Banks and Nurses' Aide Corps, Aircraft Observation Posts, Civil Air Patrol, Reserve Defense Corps, and auxiliaries thereof, or with some particular work connected with other agencies or boards of the Federal or State Government engaged in furthering the war effort.

The persons performing this patriotic work are prominent citizens of their respective communities, they serve without compensation and perform a necessary and valuable service.

The unselfish devotion of these men and women who have so generously changed their method of life and have sacrificed time, money and often friendships in order to be of assistance to their country deserves public recognition, therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, recognizing the importance of the patriotic work being performed by these men and women for the common good and for the successful prosecution of the war, hereby extends to them the thanks of the Commonwealth and assures them of the lasting gratitude of its people; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of this House of Representatives shall forward sufficient copies of this Resolution to the State Council of Defense to provide for transmittal thereof to the various boards, organizations and agencies in which these persons are performing their duties.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

COMMITTEE OF LEGISLATIVE SONS OF ST. PATRICK APPOINTED

The SPEAKER. The following members are appointed to serve on the Committee of the Legislative Sons of Saint Patrick's Celebration: Messrs. Bretherick, Irvin, O'Dare, McAtee, Lyons, Flack, McClester, Moore, Stockham, Tiemann, Finnerty, Moran, Munley, Heatherington, Corrigan, O'Neill.

RESOLUTION

THANKS EXTENDED

Messrs. WALTER E. ROSE and LOVETT offered a resolution and asked unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The SPEAKER. Will the House give its unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the resolution? Is there objection?

Mr. DENNISON. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Rose.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Cambria permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. No, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. DENNISON. Mr. Speaker, the evidence is incriminating.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is inclined to agree.

The Chair hears no objection and consent is granted.

The resolution was twice read, considered and unanimously adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 24, 1943.

His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, and his gracious wife, the first lady of the Commonwealth, last night tendered a reception to the Members of the General Assembly, which was attended by most of the members of this House and their wives to their great delight and their complete enjoyment.

It was a relief to leave the hall of this House and to get temporarily away from the work of legislating, and spend the evening with charming women amid different surroundings; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Members of the House extend their thanks to His Excellency, the Governor, and to Mrs. Martin, for their gracious hospitality and for the opportunity it afforded them to meet and become acquainted with others who labor with us in conducting the affairs of the Commonwealth, and, in evidence of our appreciation of that hospitality, the Chief Clerk of the House is directed to transmit a copy of this resolution to our host and hostess of yesternight.

REPORT OF JOINT STATE GOVERNMENT COMMISSION ON BUREAU OF VITAL STATISTICS

Mr. READINGER asked and obtained unanimous consent to present a report to the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania on the Bureau of Vital Statistics, Department of Health, relative to the issuance of certified copies of birth certificates by the Joint State Government Commission.

The report was read by the Clerk.

The SPEAKER. Copies of this report have been placed on the desks of the Members.

The report will be noted in the Journals of the House and printed in the Appendix to the Legislative Journal.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. COHEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, the first speech I ever made in this House was made on Washington's birthday, February 22, in the year 1937. On that occasion I saw fit to take to task the City Fathers in Philadelphia for their then notorious neglect of housing conditions in Philadelphia. The day before that there had been a collapse of houses, incidentally in my own district, and I believe what I had to say did at least begin something in Philadelphia that did result in some measure in a wave of relief in housing conditions in that city.

Last Monday night I wanted as a matter of record to make an address to this House, since it would have been on the anniversary date of my first speech, but since the hour was late and that you hear from me quite frequently I knew you would excuse me if I did not take the occasion to commemorate my anniversary, so I let it go.

Peculiarly enough, Mr. Speaker, I read in this morning's Philadelphia Record an account of another collapse of houses in my district. The people of Philadelphia have been living in a city which they love, in a city which they have grown up in and which they want to stay in, but they have to put up with housing conditions which I think, and I shamefully admit, are probably as bad if not worse than any other city in this country, if not in the world.

Since 1937 because of the impetus given to the movement for better housing by the Federal authorities the City Fathers in most instances begrudgingly went along and permitted the building of slum clearance projects which have been of great benefit to Philadelphia's people.

But it seems as if the Bureau of Building Inspections or the Department of Safety or whichever Department is controlled by the City fathers have continued blissfully upon their merry way in their habit of not inspecting and not condemning homes that are not fit to live in.

I am wondering if they are afraid that if they should condemn homes which are unsafe and unfit to live in it would become necessary to get more Federal Aid for housing? Many housing projects such as the Allen homes and the James Horden Wilson homes and others have been of immeasureable benefit, but I also shamefully have to say for my City Fathers that most of these projects were obtained by the people over their protests, both mild and violent, and their violent protests made it impossible to start many other projects in other parts of the city.

The district in which I live could stand a lot of slum clearance, and I might suggest to some of the Members of this House who are interested in the reapportionment of Philadelphia and in the reapportioning of the state, legislatively speaking, that I wouldn't mind if proper facilities were given to the people in my district, and that it would be well probably to wipe it off the slate as it now stands and rebuild completely later on, or if necessary wipe it out completely and move the people to better housing and let them go to other places.

I think that my protest must be loud, and I think that the Members of this House should think about it at least, if not do something about it, to try to remember that with all its faults, Philadelphia's greatest fault is its neglect of its little people; Philadelphia's neglect of the essential things that these people need. It did not just happen in 1937 that we discovered we had bad housing. We knew it back in 1931 when the Wickersham report was presented to President Hoover. That report picked out my district again, and named it and titled it the "Bandbox" district of Philadelphia, which name it now has, and pointed it out as probably the worst housing in the world.

I do not know what the City Fathers have in mind; I don't know whether they are just afraid to economize where they should and spend money for the people's benefit. I don't know whether they are afraid that building new houses is giving little people too much at a time.

It may be that they have in mind that over the next hundred years they may make some change in Philadelphia's housing, that I don't know. The problem was left open to quite some conjecture and great wonderment because there seems to be no concerted or concentrated effort to wipe out the evil.

Incidentally, my district is not the only one that suffers. They were worried about ripping out Vine Street to make an approach to the Delaware River Bridge, and despite the fact that the City Fathers did not see fit to try to raise money or save money or put aside money for helping to clean up the Schuylkill River or putting in sewage disposal plants, the moment the State Department of Highways suggested or ordered them to rip down Vine Street, compelling the expenditure of some eight million dollars, they immediately got to work to rip out Vine Street to accommodate greater traffic at a time when traffic in that artery has lessened on account of war needs and war conditions, but when it comes to going in where the little people are and finding out how horrible conditions are, how bad and how dangerous the housing condition is, the City Fathers cannot find ways to raise the money. In fact I think they do not care.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Legislative Journal.

Session 1943. 135th of the General Assembly.

Vol. 27. HARRISBURG, PA., MONDAY, MARCH 1, 1943. No. 20.

SENATE

MONDAY, March 1, 1943

The Senate met at 4:00 o'clock, p. m., Eastern War Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor John C. Bell, Jr.) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. EDWIN S. WALLACE, D. D., offered the following prayer:

O God, our Father, in whom we live and move and have our being, we lift our hearts in grateful prayer, and call upon all that is within us to bless and magnify Thy holy name. Because we live in Thee, we live, for apart from Thee there is no life.

By Thy good providence we have been kept through the days since we assembled in this house. Continue to us, we pray Thee, that gracious providence that we may be able and willing to serve Thee and our fellowman, whoever he is and in whatever way we can. This will be the best evidence of our gratitude to Thee.

We pray for the members of the Senate who are sick. The Lord restore them to health and service, if it be Thy will.

We pray for our loved ones at home, or wherever they may be. Put underneath them "the everlasting arms."

We pray for our beloved country. Strengthen us to meet and overcome all her enemies.

We pray for our President, our Governor and our Lieutenant-Governor. Hold Thou them up and they and the nation shall be safe. All in the name of our Lord and Saviour—Jesus Christ. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. HEYBURN and Mr. CARR, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

with the information that the House has passed the same without amendments.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. HOLLAND asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. HOLLAND. Today I rise to give the Senate yet another interesting chapter taken from the "Life and Times of Dr. Frank Parker"—the utilities' "poll-parrot" whose name is before the Senate as the nominee of the Governor for membership on the Public Utility Commission.

In Chapter I, I told you how this man Parker had testified—for a fee—in favor of a utility company controlled by the notorious Howard Hopson, the swindler and utilities racketeer, who is now ensconced in a Federal Penitentiary.

In Chapter II, I told you of Parker's admitted connections with the Peoples Natural Gas Company, the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company, and Mitten Men and Management—three utilities whose cases are now in litigation before the P.U.C. I told you, in this same Chapter, how Parker had been rebuked and discredited by the Public Utility Commission of Pennsylvania, and, I told you of his "funny-money" theories for raising utility rates. And, finally I told you of his opposition to laws—Federal and State—now regulating public utilities.

Today, in Chapter III, we enter a new locale. We discover more surprising incidents in the life of this seemingly respectable university professor.

The new locale is the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

Into this Court comes a character new to our story—a character who comes into Court to accuse Dr. Frank Parker.

This time, Dr. Parker is not in Court to plead the special interest of some utility company. This time Dr. Parker is in Court for himself.

And—this is indeed ironic.

Frank Parker, the professor of finance—the man who teaches students all there is to know about money and credit, real estate, banking and commercial credit, corporation finance, public utilities, business cycles—Dr. Frank Parker, who writes voluminously about sound finance practices, about good banking, about how to stay solvent—Dr. Frank Parker is in Court to have himself declared bankrupt!

While it is no disgrace to go bankrupt—it seems that the doctor apparently gagged on the financial prescriptions he counseled others to swallow.

Into Court comes this new member of our dramatic personae. He comes with a challenge—a challenge to Parker. He comes cloaked with the majesty of this Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to issue this challenge. He comes, indeed, as the representative of that distinguished gentleman, who—as Lieutenant-Governor—presides over this Body, but who was then Secretary of Banking, John C. Bell, Jr.

The man who came to Court was Frank Glatfelter of Lansdowne, in the County of Delaware, Deputy Receiver for John C. Bell, Jr. who—as Secretary of Banking—was Receiver of Lansdowne Bank and Trust Company.

Mr. Bell's Deputy came into Court to ask that Dr. Parker be denied the discharge of his debts. Mr. Bell's Deputy said that the public interest warranted his intervention. Mr. Bell's Deputy was specific.

Mr. Bell's Deputy charged:

1. That Parker had—and I quote—"mutilated, destroyed, and concealed books of account or records from which his financial condition and business transactions might be ascertained."

2. That Parker had—and I quote—"failed to keep books of account or records from which his financial condition and business transactions might be ascertained and that such failure was not justified under all the circumstances."

3. That Parker—and I quote—"obtained money on credit from the Integrity Trust Company, by making and issuing a materially false statement in writing respecting his financial condition." And—

4. That Parker had—and I quote—"failed to explain satisfactorily losses of assets and a deficiency of assets to meet his liabilities."

Those are the charges which the Deputy of John C. Bell, Jr., now Lieutenant-Governor, made against the man, chosen over all the citizens of Pennsylvania by the Governor, to be a member of the Public Utility Commission. The Secretary of Banking—through his Deputy—came into Court to call Dr. Frank Parker a cheat and a deceiver.

And—surely a professor of finance cannot plead ignorance of proper bookkeeping methods.

I have on my desk the record of the Referee's hearing in the bankruptcy of Frank Parker.

I shall be glad to share it with any Senator so that he may read the whole story. Because I know that some of you may be too busy to read the full record—I will give you a few highlights.

The hearing heard Dr. Parker admit that in a letter of application for a loan from the Integrity Trust Company he had lied about his income. He said he did so because he took—and I quote—"the words he (meaning the President of Integrity Trust) put in my mouth." That is a man speaking who wants the job of regulating the immense public utility system of Pennsylvania—and I ask—will he then "parrott" for the utilities the words they put in his mouth?

The hearing heard Dr. Parker admit that he went into bankruptcy because he could not get a compromise from the State Department of Banking in settlement of a debt he owed the closed Lansdowne Bank and Trust Company.

The hearing heard Dr. Parker state that he had preferred one creditor against another because he preferred an open bank against the closed bank for—and I quote—"they are going concerns as opposed to dead horses." He said that the question of loss to the depositors—and I am quoting—"had nothing to do with the equity of the thing."

That is a man speaking who would—under his nomination by the Governor—be charged with guarding the interests impartially of every utility rate payer in Pennsylvania.

The hearing heard the Referee declare that the stock of a company which Parker had put up for collateral was "absolutely worthless."

There is a lot more interesting material in the hearing and I again say to you Senators that it will well repay the time you spend in reading it.

The upshot of the whole matter was that Parker was granted his discharge—and he now stands a bankrupt. And—a nominee to a ten year term on the Public Utility Commission of Pennsylvania.

You gentlemen of the majority love to make speeches about "incompetent bureaucrats who never met a payroll."

How do you like a professor of finance—a so-called expert in money—who goes broke, who makes false statements to banks, who promotes worthless investment companies, who pleads bankruptcy so that he may not have to pay the depositors of a bank which had lent him money?

Bernard Shaw once said that "He who can, does. He who can't, teaches." I know that remark doesn't apply to most teachers, but it does apply to Parker.

Incompetent to run his own affairs, he seeks jurisdiction over the public utilities of Pennsylvana—over enterprises which do a far greater business than the Commonwealth itself and which, in many ways, are more important to the people.

This Senate owes it to itself to get the facts—all the facts—before it acts on Parker's nomination.

I tell you that the record shows that he is tied up by present belief—and past obligations—with the very public utility corporations he would be supposed to regulate.

I tell you that the record shows some curious—some very fishy—business in his private business life, and, that this business aroused the suspicion of Mr. Bell's deputy.

I tell you that the record shows this man Parker is disqualified and unfit to hold the office to which the Governor has nominated him.

Dr. Parker wrote an article for the University of Pennsylvania Law Review, Volume 74, page 419, in which he said:

> "Certain commissions deluded by notions of public policy maintain that the consumers should not be burdened with a rate of return on imaginary values."

Deluded, says Parker, because they cast out imaginery values.

Get that, Senators, deluded because they don't add imaginary values to your light bill and mine.

Confirm Parker to the Public Utility Commission and his imaginary values will run riot.

And—so will the utility bills of the people of Pennsylvania.

I suggest, Mr. President, that if the Senate still persists in presenting the name of Dr. Frank Parker for confirmation as a member of the Public Utility Commission, that we go along with the resolution as presented by my colleague from Philadelphia, Senator Jaspan, and when this hearing takes place, I ask the Senate to call by subpoena to appear and give testimony at this hearing Mr. H. M. Ellis, Mr. Frank Glatfelter, and that very mysterious man, Edward H. Burgess, Chief Counsel of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, and I know that what we will hear will convince us that Dr. Parker should not be placed on the Public Utility Commission.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. JASPAN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President, over the weekend I have had many protests on the confirmation of Dr. Parker, and I feel, in view of that, that this statement I am about to make is absolutely in order.

This chamber is composed of gentlemen who have been compelled by our democratic process to subject themselves to the rigid test of public opinion and approval. And they have been entrusted with the responsibilities of their office for a period of only four years. Shall we require a less rigid test for a man who aspires to one of the most important positions in our State Government for a period of ten years? Are not the people of our State, who will be directly affected by the decisions of Dr. Parker, entitled to the courtesy of expressing their opinion concerning the man? If there is nothing in his character or professional activities which can not withstand the spotlight of public scrutiny, why should there be any fear on the part of any of my colleagues on the other side of this chamber to approve my resolution for a public hearing bi-partisan committee of the Senate. The vigorous efforts of Dr. Parker's utility supporters to avoid a public hearing indicates most strikingly that they are afraid the nominee cannot pass the test required of a public utility commissioner in this State.

I sincerely hope that the members of the Senate will not acquiesce in this conspiracy of the utilities. Serious charges have been made. They have not been answered. And unless Dr. Parker clears himself publicly of these charges, no Senator can conscientiously vote for his confirmation.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Mr. BECKER read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 211, entitled:

An Act to further amend section nine hundred eight, subsection A of section one thousand six and subsection A of section one thousand twelve of the act, approved the fifteenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 624), entitled "An act relating to the business of banking, and to the exercise of fiduciary powers by corporations; providing for the organization of corporations with fiduciary powers, and of banking corporations, with or without fiduciary powers, including the conversion of National banks into State banks, and for the licensing of private bankers; defining the rights, powers, duties, liabilities, and immunities of such corporations, of existent corporations authorized to engage in a banking business, with or without fiduciary powers, of private bankers, and of the officers, directors, trustees, shareholders, attorneys, and other employes of all such corporations or private bankers, or of affiliated corporations, associations, or persons; restricting the exercise of banking powers by any other corporation, association, or person, and of fiduciary powers by any other corporation; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the courts, prothonotaries, recorders of deeds, and certain State departments, commissions, and officers; imposing penalties; and repealing certain acts and parts of acts," further regulating the amount and maintenance of reserve funds by banks and banks and trust companies; and authorizing certain loans by banks and banks and trust companies which are guaranteed against loss by certain Federal agencies, and investments in second liens in cases and under conditions herein specified.

Which was committed to the Committee on County Government.

Mr. SHAPIRO read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 219, entitled:

An Act to license and regulate, and to promote competition in the business of purchasing contracts arising out of retail installment sales; prescribing the form of such sales; imposing said licensing and regulation in the Department of Banking; imposing duties in, and granting powers to the Department of Banking in the classification of retail installment sales and contracts arising therefrom, and in fixing and prescribing maximum charges for the extension of credit in retail installment sales and prescribing penalties.

Which was committed to the Committee on Banking.

RESOLUTIONS

EMPLOYE OF SENATE

Mr. TAYLOR offered the following resolution which was twice read, considered and agreed to.

In the Senate, March 1, 1943.

Resolved, That the following person be appointed an employe of the Senate, as prescribed by Act of Assembly:

ASSISTANT MESSENGER

Alfred O'Neal, 158 Downer Avenue, Uniontown, Pa.

CONDOLENCE TO THE FAMILY OF THE HONORABLE ELMER WARNER

Mr. CROWE offered the following resolution which was twice read considered and agreed to:

SENATE RESOLUTION

In the Senate, March 1, 1943.

The Honorable Elmer Warner, a former member of this Senate and a political and business leader in Carbon County, died February 17th at his home in Weatherly.

Surviving are his widow and the following children: Floyd and Stanley Warner, Mrs. Harry Gangwer, Weatherly; Mrs. Harriet L. Ferguson, Chester, Pa.; Mrs. Walter Learn, Dushore, Pa.; Mrs. Harry Wistrich, Bethlehem; Mrs. Donald Farrel, Hornell, N. Y.; Mrs. Walter Keen, Wilmington, Del.; Dr. George Warner, Shippensburg, Pa.; Lieut. Elmer Warner, Rantoul, Ill.; John P. Warner, Wilmington, Del. He was the last survivor of a family of four, two brothers and two sisters.

The deceased was a native of Tannersville, Monroe County, having been born April 30, 1861, son of Peter and Lavina (Sitler) Warner. He obtained his education in the schools of the village and embarked in a business career with his father, who conducted a general store. Later he opened his own store in Tannersville and also served as postmaster from 1885 to 1889.

Mr. Warner moved to Weatherly in 1891 where he purchased the late David Kintz store which prospered. He was very successful and took a very important part in the development of the town. He acquired the Weatherly Foundry and Manufacturing Co. in 1900 and became president and treasurer. He also organized the First National Bank and was the first President. Later he bought the Allen Candy Company which developed into one of the most important industries in the town. He was also financially interested in the Onoko Silk Company and the Weatherly Steel Company.

The deceased was an ardent Democrat and was elected State Senator and is credited with securing the first concrete highway in the district. He also served as Chief Burgess of Weatherly, member of the borough council and school board and was one of the largest holders of real estate in the town of his adoption.

Resolved, By the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, that the death of Senator Warner marks the passing of a prominent Democrat and an outstanding resident of the Borough of Weatherly whose work for his party and his borough brought benefits to both; and be it further

Resolved, That the Senate extends its sincere sympathy to his widow, his sons and his daughters, and that in evidence thereof, the Secretary of the Senate shall transmit a copy of this resolution to them.

TIME OF NEXT MEETING

Mr. BARR, offered the following resolution, which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, March 1, 1943.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That when the Senate adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday evening, March 8, 1943, at four o'clock; and when the House of Representatives adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday evening, March 8, 1943, at nine o'clock.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

BILL ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 52, entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to article nine of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by adding thereto section eighteen

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby resolves as follows

Section 1 The following amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania be and the same is hereby proposed in accordance with the eighteenth article thereof

That article nine of the Constitution be amended by adding thereto section eighteen to read as follows

Section 18 All proceeds from gasoline and other motor fuel excise taxes motor vehicle registration fees and license taxes operators' license fees and other excise taxes imposed on products used in motor transportation after providing therefrom for (a) cost of administration and collection (b) payment of obligations incurred in the construction and reconstruction of public highways and bridges shall be appropriated and used under the direction or supervision or both of an agency of the State solely for construction reconstruction maintenance and repair of and safety on public highways and bridges and air navigation facilities and costs and expenses incident thereto and shall not be diverted by transfer or otherwise to any other purpose except that loans may be made by the State from the proceeds of such taxes and fees for a single period not exceeding eight months but no such loan shall be made within the period of one year from any preceding loan and every loan made in any fiscal year shall be repayable within one month after the beginning of the next fiscal year

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I should like to interrogate the sponsor of this bill, the gentleman from Lehigh, Senator Tallman.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Lehigh permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. TALLMAN. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. If I have read this bill correctly, Mr. President, it proposes to freeze the motor license fund or, in effect, restrict the use of the motor license fund for specific purposes; is that correct.

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, that is correct.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I should like to know whether I am correct in my interpretation of this bill, that the effect of this bill, if adopted, will be to preclude repayment to the cities of the portion of the gasoline tax which they now get, in view of the fact that the purpose for which this tax may be used is limited specifically in the amendment.

Mr. TALLMAN. I call the attention of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, to the language of the act, on lines three and four, page two, which state, "shall be appropriated and used under the direction or supervision or both of an agency of the state—" and the purpose of that language, Mr. President, is to make positive that moneys may be appropriated to the municipalities and political sub-divisions which now receive portions of the highway fund for highway purposes.

Mr. SHAPIRO. In other words, Mr. President, it is true then, that the existing law under which money comes to a city, without an appropriation or special act, will be superceded by these amendments and it will be a matter of course of decision by the persons named as to whether or not the city will get any, or how much of the funds they will get.

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, as I understand it, the funds that are now directed back to the political sub-divisions under existing legislation are to be used for highway purposes or for the payment of land damages

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I shall vote against this bill because from the answers I have received, and from reading this bill, I have come to the conclusion that while the municipalities today get, I think it is one-half cent per gallon return on the amount of tax collected on gas in their respective communities, this amendment will annul that act and will place the municipalities in the position where they will get for the same purpose for which they use the half-cent now, such sums as the legislature may deem advisable to give them, upon recommendation of the persons named, because this bill specifically provides the money shall only be paid out for the specific purposes mentioned and in the manner mentioned.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, I propose to vote against this bill and I would like briefly to explain why.

If, for any reason, the Commonwealth had no funds with which to meet its obligations, which has happened in the past, this removes another large sum from the jurisdiction of the administration.

The simile which I used the other day, is that there was a top shelf on which we have been proceeding to put moneys entirely out of our reach.

This is the biggest special fund, the Motor fund—and of course there is the Banking fund and the Game fund and the Fish fund and Forest and Water fund, so if the Commonwealth, as it did a few years ago, has to go to a bank to borrow money to pay teachers, it has no access to this money which, as I say, is on the top shelf, beyond reach.

I call that a very bad situation and I call that bad legislation, to permit any such condition.

What really happened in the instance I mentioned, not being able to pay teachers, was that since the special fund was deposited in a bank in Harrisburg, drawing two per cent interest and being beyond the reach of the administration to meet its obligations, there had to be a loan, probably negotiated through that same bank, at five per cent, so it is not so very fantastic to imagine that the same money which belonged to the State and which was on deposit in this bank, at two per cent, was loaned to the State at five per cent, which seems to me a very ridiculous situation, and one I would not like to get into again, and this bill invites that same situation.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, as I understand it, there may be some counties in the State of Pennsylvania that do not have any State highway roads or bridges which would put them in the category of being an agency of the State, and under that particular interpretation of this bill, I do not believe they would be entitled to moneys that they now receive under the distribution plan now in effect, and you see, although they receive this money for road purposes, it is sometimes used by a county to pay off interest on loans, on bonds, and on moneys that they had borrowed in times past to build roads.

I know in my particular county they have used it to reduce the amount of bonded indebtedness that may have been in existence twenty or thirty years ago, and I doubt very much whether this constitutional amendment is broad enough in its scope to take in all the various ramifications of highway financing.

Mr. President, although I am committed to and believe in the program of keeping the money paid by motorists for road purposes, I still believe that the counties and municipalities that receive a quarter cent per gallon refund ought to be allowed to use it to reduce their bonded indebtedness, when that bonded indebtedness was created for road purposes in the beginning.

Therefore, Mr. President, I believe this could be made a more proper amendment to the act and would probably take care of the specific objections that I have received to the bill from members of the commission and so forth.

I believe, Mr. President, that the sponsor of this particular bill has in mind the very thing that we have, but you must realize that if there is any error in the construction of this bill, that its passage is absolutely useless, because it takes two biennial sessions of the Legislature, as I understand it, two consecutive sessions, to pass this bill before it can come before the people for a vote, and it must pass in the identical form the second time as it does in the first instance, and if we are wrong now in some of the terms that we put in it, then it would be useless to pass it in order to get it before the people.

I therefore suggest to the sponsor of this bill, Mr. President, that although I spoke to him earlier and he told me that he had information this would meet certain objections, I just received a letter after I talked with him, giving me these other objections, which I believe raise a valid objection, and I think the proper thing to do is to study this bill a little further.

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I should like to direct the attention of the gentleman from Westmoreland to the fact that the bill does take care of the objection which has been raised, on the first line of page two, where there is a specific exception as to moneys to be used for payment of obligations incurred in the construction and reconstruction of public highways and bridges.

I take it that in any such case as the gentleman has in mind, where there are existing obligations which have been incurred in the past that this bill adequately takes care of the repayment of those obligations, in that very exception, which is exception "B" in the bill.

I would further like to say in connection with this bill, Mr. President, that the language of the bill, specifically, I think, takes care of the situation which the gentlemen have in mind for permitting the one-half cent now paid to municipal political sub-divisions to continue to be paid under this bill, and I assure the Senator that the bill has been carefully studied and carefully gone over and has been very carefully discussed, with particular attention to that phase of it.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I tried to bring out the point that if a municipal government is no longer an agency of the State, inasmuch as it has no supervision over a State highway route in the county or a State bridge, then it can no longer receive the moneys, because as I understand the bill, page two, line three, it says, "shall be appropriated and used under the direction or supervision or both of an agency of the state"—an agency of the State. Now, Mr. President, what is an agency of the State? Is the County Commissioner's Board of Westmoreland County an agency of the State of Pennsylvania, if they do not have any State roads under their supervision, or is it not an agency of the State? If it is, well and good, it can come under the provisions of this bill, but if it is not a specific agency of the State and designated by law as such, it can not receive the moneys that they are now receiving for highway purposes.

Mr. SHAPIRO. I want to make it clear, Mr. President, that I do not think there is any question about the fact that under the present existing law the payment to municipalities of the one-half cent of the gasoline tax collected by the municipalities is an obligation of the State, and the use of that money is a privilege of the municipality for the specific purposes mentioned in the tax collecting and levying act.

This amendment in effect says that all moneys received from taxes imposed by the State shall be spent in two ways: (a) for the cost of administration and (b) for the payment of obligations incurred in the construction and reconstruction of public highways and bridges and shall be appropriated—I am reading from the bill, Mr. President—and shall be appropriated and used under the direction or supervision or both of an agency of the State solely for construction, reconstruction, maintenance and repairs and safety of public highways and bridges.

I take it, Mr. President, that that means the State may from time to time appropriate money from the building of State highways in municipalities and may appoint the municipality as its agent for the purpose of construction, but it does not mean that there is any specific sum, as there is now, that must be paid to the municipality out of its gasoline fund, and that means each municipality must depend upon the generosity of the Legislature as to how much money shall be spent in these municipalities for the construction of roads.

For instance, Mr. President, Philadelphia and Allegheny counties collect the major portion of the State taxes on gasoline, and they may be in the position of getting less money than a county which collects very much less in gasoline taxes, depending upon the complexion or the feeling of the Legislature.

Now, Mr. President, it seems to me that there can be no other interpretation of this amendment, and it seems to me, under these circumstances, coming from a city which contributes one of the major portions of this tax, that I have to vote against it.

Secondly, Mr. President, I am in absolute accord with what has been said by our colleague from Philadelphia, Senator Woodward. This fund ran as high as $174,000,000 in one biennium. That much money restricted to highway construction is an invitation to build highways, whether you need them or not, in the face of any crisis that may strike the State.

We may have relief funds necessary again which would be much more appropriate and necessary to feed the hungry than to build a highway in some out-of-the-way spot that we do not need or at least can get along without until that crisis is over—but this is "forever" legislation. This bill says you may never use this money—you can only borrow but you must borrow from yourself to pay back to yourself, and I agree that economically really it is nonsense to have any fund, certainly of this size, running up as high as $170,000,000, earmarked for only one purpose, for one sole purpose, that is, to build roads, as we will always have to maintain a Secretary of Highways with instructions to him to be sure that he spends this $174,000,000 for roads, and roads only.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I asked the sponsor of this bill to allow it to go over in its order until I can talk with my county commissioners about the matter tomorrow, inasmuch as they got in touch with me rather late.

However, Mr. President, he says he feels this bill ought to be voted on now and that if any changes are to be made they can be made over in the House.

Under those circumstances, Mr. President, I feel inclined to vote "no." I would rather vote for the bill but under those circumstances I intend to vote "no."

And said bill having been read at length the third time and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

(During the calling of the roll the following occurred.)

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, under the rules of the Senate once a vote is determined it will be impossible to verify the vote.

VERIFICATION OF THE ROLL

Mr. DENT. Therefore, Mr. President, I ask that the roll be verified, as if I am correct in my tally here, I believe the bill has been lost and I therefore ask for a verification of the roll at this time.

The PRESIDENT. The request of the gentleman from Westmoreland will be complied with.

The Clerk will call the affirmative roll.

The affirmative roll was called by the Clerk as follows:

Becker,	Farrell,	Ruth,	Thomas,
Bowers,	Geltz,	Scarlett,	Tyler,
Carr,	Heyburn,	Snowden,	Wade,
Chapman,	Homsher,	Stevenson,	Walker,
Crowe,	Kephart,	Tallman,	Wilson, H. I.,
Deitrick,	Letzler,	Taylor,	Wilson, T. B.,
Ealy,	Mallery,

The PRESIDENT. Are there any corrections in the affirmative vote? The Chair hears none. The affirmative vote will stand as verified.

The Clerk will call those voting in the negative.

The negative roll was called by the Clerk as follows:

Barr,	Dent,	Holland,	McQuiddy,
Coleman,	DiSilvestro,	Jaspan,	Shapiro,
Cox,	Gourley,	McCreesh,	Woodring,
Crider,	Haluska,	McGinnis,	Woodward

The PRESIDENT. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The negative roll will stand as verified.

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—26

Becker,	Farrell,	Ruth,	Thomas,
Bowers,	Geltz,	Scarlett,	Tyler,
Carr,	Heyburn,	Snowden,	Wade,
Chapman,	Homsher,	Stevenson,	Walker,

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I have been requested to ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 80, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to repeal the act approved the twenty-first day of March, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine, (P. L. 34), entitled "An act authorizing the judges of the courts of common pleas and orphans' courts in counties of the third class to employ stenographers, typists and clerks to facilitate the business of the courts, and to provide for the payment of their compensation by the county, and validating former employments and payments therefor"

go over in its order,

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 85, entitled:

A Joint Resolution making application to the Congress of the United States to call a convention for proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, prohibiting the imposition of conditions upon grants of moneys and the invasion of the states rights

On the question,

Shall the bill pass on third reading?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, state whether I am correct in assuming that the purpose and effect of this bill would be to prevent the Federal Government from at any time granting any money to the State without any strings to it?

Mr. KEPHART. I would say that is not correct, Mr. President. The Federal Government, under this amendment, could grant funds to a state for highway purposes, although they could not attach to that grant conditions that the State of Pennsylvania would have to meet otherwise.

Mr. SHAPIRO. In other words, Mr. President, the Federal Government would not be able to make a grant for construction of highways or for relief if they would attach any conditions to the grant?

Mr. KEPHART. They could give it outright to the State, Mr. President, for highway purposes or for relief, and not attach other strings to it.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Therefore, Mr. President, the Federal Government could not make a grant, for instance, with the condition that before any money would be granted for relief, there would have to be taken from relief a certain percentage of the people.

Mr. KEPHART. They could not, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. I am wondering whether the members of the Senate and the gentleman who proposed this bill realize that in the year 1938 the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania spent $109,000,000 for relief, in addition to which it got $15,000,000 from the Federal Government for relief, directly, for various sub-divisions of relief, like the blind, mother's assistance and old age pensions, and that the Federal Government spent in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania alone $167,000,000 for relief by allocations to W.P.A. and other forms of relief work, and that under the provisions of this bill the Federal Government could not grant that money to the Commonwealth unless it was willing to allow the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to spend it itself without any restrictions and without any conditions?

We have just heard, Mr. President, the sponsor of this bill admit that if the Federal Government should in the future, as it has in the past, insist that these moneys spent for W.P.A. be used, first, by taking a certain number of persons from the relief rolls, that the government could not impose that condition, I think it is folly to assume, certainly silly to assume, that the Federal Government is going to dump into the various states—sums like those sums I have been talking about, without the right to regulate the use of the money so as to see to it that the money will be used for the purpose for which it was granted.

There was spent over $270,000,000 for relief in 1939, and the Federal Government contributed $126,000,000 and $20,000,000 or $146,000,000, and I think, in 1940, there was spent for relief in Pennsylvania $244,000,000 and the Federal Government contributed $120,000,000.

During this last month, February, the Federal Government has reduced expenditures in Pennsylvania to $1,600,000, and the State of Pennsylvania has spent $5,200,000, of which the government gave the State $2,000,000.

We are in a position now where we are spending on the basis of around $72,000,000, we ourselves, our own money, for relief, and most of that money goes to what I term unemployables, for the want of a better term, because there are 171,000 cases in the Commonwealth, of which only 31,000 are on relief; the rest of the cases are receiving aid through the three agencies I mentioned, mother's assistance, blind pensions and old age, and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is not paying that total bill. $2,000,000 of the bill that the Commonwealth spent came from the Federal Government last year for those three last named agencies—rather, for two of those agencies, because the government does not contribute to blind pensions, since that is not given on the basis of need but is given as a pension.

This strikes me, Mr. President, as a rather dangerous piece of legislation. If the relief situation after the war should change and return to the situation with which we were confronted in 1933, 1935, 1937 and 1939, it seems to me that before we vote favorably on a piece of legislation like this we should have in mind that undoubtedly when this war is over and war industries cease operating on the basis they are operating on now, and when the boys come back from the war, and when the men leave factories that are making war instruments now, then we will have a relief roll, and if we are going to have a relief roll on the basis I am talking about, with $240,000,000 a year as a necessity, we are not going to be able to raise it ourselves, and I say that if we are going just to get spitey and angry about it because we do not like the administration or because we do not like the Federal Government or because we do not like the President, and we are going to pass a bill which says that you cannot give us any money if you are going to put any kind of strings on it, I say that is silly legislation, and I shall vote against it.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, for many years I have known of the inconsistency of politicians, but I never saw it expressed so ably as it is being expressed here today, by these two bills, one following the other, if you please.

The vote taken just previously shows that there are twenty-six men in this Senate who believe that the highway department should have jurisdiction and supervision over the money that goes to the municipalities out of the rightful returns from the gas fund, and yet you come along right on the next bill, right on top of that, to pass a bill which says that the Federal Government can not have any supervision or any jurisdiction over money that they give to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, although the Pennsylvania highway department must have supervision over moneys spent by local governments.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I would like to remind the Senator from Westmoreland, Mr. Dent, that in this country of ours we have a system of dual sovereignty, the Federal Government and the State Government, and in the case he has just talked about, the highway department constructs the roads in the state as a state function, whereas the Federal Government comes into the state and says we will give you so much money if you will pass such and such legislation, and thereby bribe the state to give away its state rights, which is an entirely different matter.

As far as the remarks of the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, are concerned, as I have stated previously in my answers to his questions, the bill permits, of course, the Federal Government to express for any fund they wish to give to the state, the public purpose for which it is to be used, but they can not set up a table of methods of supervision over a fund and require state employes to come up to certain standards.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I should like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. BARR. I should like to ask the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, if he is familiar with the requirements of the Federal Government in connection with Federal aid to highways.

Mr. KEPHART. Not specifically, Mr. President, no. I know that they do give money to states for highway purposes, but what other conditions they impose on them, I do not know.

Mr. BARR. I will answer that question for the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart. The only regulation the Federal Government imposes on the highway department is that they do not allow a certain degree of curve. In other words, we go throughout the country seeing billboards on our state highways and in every state in the nation in which they say, drive carefully, eliminate grade crossings, watch curves, and the only regulation the Federal Government has imposed is to make this kind of a state road program safe by saying that you can not have more than a certain degree of curve, in other words, a two percent—I do not know what the degree is—but that is the only thing, and after this war is over I think we are going to have quite a road building program in this state, and I do not think we ought to put ourselves in a position where if the Federal Government is willing to give us any money that we will not be able to accept it.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I think anybody who has ever spent any time in school or in the political field knows about the old argument of state rights. You know, during the depression, there was quite an argument over state rights in the southern states, which have always been leaders in the fight for state rights, and they were the first to forget all about it, in order to get Federal funds for necessary expenditures during that time.

You know, Mr. President, the money that is being given by the Federal Government could be put into the State of Pennsylvania and if there were no restrictions at all upon it, then political organizations might be able to have a lot of fun with it.

I know what is proposed by the administration in the State of Pennsylvania by this bill, and everybody else knows it; we know why they want no restrictions imposed by the Federal Government, so that there will be absolutely no standards for civil service in the unemployment compensation law and other such matters, where Federal funds are spent in the State of Pennsylvania, and I can easily see why the State of Pennsylvania and every other state in the union would like to be relieved of restrictions on such money to be spent, when you stop and figure what a beautiful political organization you could build up by having a free hand on the purse and the money being appropriated by the Federal Government, I can easily see where the Federal Congress would say they will not spend any money in the various states if they are to be restricted in their expenditures, and I know and you know that the Federal Government will not call a convention on the strength of this resolution.

We are only wasting a lot of valuable time and doing absolutely no good.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President,: I feel that this is a very dangerous piece of legislation. We do not know what we may face in the future. I experienced the crisis, as we all did, in 1932. I saw sheriffs busy in every county in the United States selling farms and homes. We do not know what crises may arise again. There is not a municipality, I do not think, in Pennsylvania but what has roads or streets or sewers built or schools repaired or hospitals built or repaired by grants from the Federal Government.

Just because there is now an administration at Washington that is concerned about people in the State we ought not rise up here and block these grants to the State.

I know that if I go to a bank to borrow money, the banker is going to find out how I am going to use that money, whether I want to pay a mortgage on a home, and he will want to have strings tied to it.

Mr. President, I think it is just silly to think that the Federal Government, or any other government, would hand out money to states without some regulation over it. It is not good business and we should not accept it.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I do not imagine that this bill is going to be passed to the point where it will be adopted as an amendment to the Constitution. I am not speaking on this bill because I fear that eventually it will become an amendment to the Constitution. I am speaking on it because I have noticed in the last two or three months a certain pattern that seems to be pervading the atmosphere in the public and in the legislative halls, a pattern to tear down things that have been built up, not to destroy them immediately because that would be too obvious, but to begin to peck at them.

We are met every legislative day in this session with a new bill which, when examined, seems innocuous, but when examined in view of what is going on seems to fit into this whole pattern: there is now too much money in the Unemployment Compensation Fund and therefore there ought to be a merit system—no one would dare stand up today and say we ought to repeal the Unemployment Compensation Fund, but now that this large sum of money is in it, we can take care of these manufacturers who have a good employment record, and never mind what will happen when the war is over, and Allegheny County and the western counties that have miners, who will have an extremely heavy unemployment record, never mind what will happen then to this fund of the Commonwealth; now that we have the money, let us distribute it.

Next we have here now a bill which says that the Federal Government shall not put strings on the money it gives. No one said anything about that when it was giving $200,000,000 a year to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and when, if it did not give it, people would have been rioting here. Nobody said anything about it when the Home Owners Loan Corporation came into Pennsylvania and loaned money to save these homes that the gentleman from Allegheny just talked about, from sheriff sales, and everybody was crying about how the government was going to go bankrupt, and now those very Home Owner Loan bonds are selling above par.

Nobody in this Senate from the Republican side did anything about it when there was a law passed saying that unless by January 1, 1936 we passed an unemployment compensation bill the money that would be paid by manufacturers, by industry in Pennsylvania, which the first year would have amounted to $25,000,000, would go to the Federal Government, nobody did anything about that, in 1935, when a Special Session of the Legislature was called and the Democratic Administration passed an act for civil service. But the trouble began when the Republicans came into power and they did not want to have civil service. Now my friend from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, has let the cat out of the bag, because what he said in his second statement was that he did not want the Federal Government to tell him what kind of employes they should have. Certainly not. The Department of Labor and Industry receives full administrative costs of unemployment compensation from the Federal Government, the costs of its administration, but only if it maintains a civil service system.

This bill now says we will not take those funds, we will not take them because the bill, if it becomes a law, would mean that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania could not accept administrative costs from the Federal Government, which it now pays in connection with unemployment compensation and which it receives now, but which it receives not from the State but from the taxpayer. It is a tax imposed by the Federal Government, not by the State.

Mr. President, when we think of the turnpike that goes to Pittsburgh, it is obvious to me that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania was in no position to build that highway, but nobody said anything about not taking the money then. As a matter of fact, Mr. President, Democrats and Republicans joined in introducing a bill to extend the road from where it now ends into Harrisburg, with Federal Government money.

Nobody has said a word about the money that was spent by the State Authority in the building of hospitals, in the building of institutions, and in the other public works. Now, that is all done, that can never happen again. We have suddenly a blindness before our eyes concerning this whole picture, we will never have any unemployment any more, and there will never be any more trouble in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and before it is too late and while we have got control of both the House and Senate, let us pass bills so that this monster known as the Federal Government, which dumped $250,000,000 into this State, shall never dare do so again unless they want to give it to us and have no control over it. Who is this monster, the Federal Government, but we ourselves? We do not like him when he imposes restrictions upon us which are reasonable restrictions, decent restrictions, as proven by the results, and so now when we want political benefits we can not get them unless we stop the Federal Government from coming in here and spending money—and it is our obligation to spend that money—without putting strings on it.

I say, Mr. President, that my purpose in speaking here is to get this record clear, that I am not worried about this bill, but I am gravely concerned about the pattern which seems to be forming and shaping itself here. This pattern is forming piecemeal, you just peck at the advances that have been made, piecemeal, to destroy the social legislation that has been developed from 1933, and I want the record to show my understanding of it and my objections to it.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, I have the honor of being chairman of the easiest committee in the Senate, the Committee on Federal Relations, because we have a slogan in our committee room which is framed and hung on the wall, that this committee will have no relations whatever with the Federal Government. That makes the committee work very simple.

Mr. President, I shall vote for this bill because I am opposed one hundred per cent to Federal subsidies. I wrote a resolution one time which never got beyond my desk, a concurrent resolution requiring the concurrence of the forty-seven other states, namely, that no state would receive Federal money, but on second thought I suppressed it, because Federal money is a great temptation, as we all know.

Another reason for voting for this bill, unless I am mistaken, is that it is one of those 50-50 propositions—Highways, of course, and there are others that I can not remember, but there are a number of those 50-50's. The string there has been very embarrassing to some states, I think New Jersey particularly, as I remember it, because the Federal Government said to the State, you can not even spend your own money for anything you wish except for the specific purpose if you have a Federal 50-50—that is going some in my opinion putting a federal club over a sovereign state—and if I am mistaken I can be corrected—but that has happened I am sure, that the Federal Government forbade a State to use its own money if it was tied in with a 50-50 appropriation.

That I am opposed to and therefore I am supporting this bill.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I would like to answer a few things said by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro. The Home Owner's Loan Corporation, as I understand it, is a Federal corporation, and nothing in this proposed amendment would have anything to do with the Home Owner's Loan Corporation, they could come in and save the country and sell bonds for whatever price they wanted to sell them and it would not be affected one iota by this bill.

The second thing I want to say is that any contribution the Federal Government wants to make to the State for the purpose of building a hospital or for other institutions it can do under this bill, just so it discloses the general public purpose for which it is to be used, but it can not say that the hospital must be manned by thus and so.

In other words, Mr. President, whether I am for or against civil service or whether I am for or against merit rating, it seems to me that determination of whether or not we shall have merit rating in this Commonwealth is in this General Assembly, and not the Federal Government down in Washington; we should not be dictated to by somebody down in Washington, maybe a man who comes from California.

Now then, Mr. President, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, said that the Federal Government is pouring $250,000,000 into this Commonwealth and we should not kick about that.

I would like to ask the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, where that $250,000,000 came from. I should like to say to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, that if the State of Pennsylvania and its citizens did not contribute $350,000,000 and only $250,000,000 came back for the purposes which the gentleman has just designated, then I am very much wrong.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I heard a great deal about the amount of money that was paid by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania which we did not get back from the Federal Government, but the $350,000,000 figure which the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, stated—even taking it at that—I will tell him, if he will look at the records, he will find that there was more money spent in 1938, 1939, 1940 and 1941 in Pennsylvania by over $200,000,000 in all forms of relief, than in taxes collected from the State of Pennsylvania during this period.

It is all right to stand up here on the floor of the Senate and say you would like to know where it came from—and it is all right for these gentlemen to yell "no"—but I would like these gentlemen who want to look at the figures, and not just say "no"—let them add up how much money was spent by the State Authority that they got from the Federal Government; let them add up how much money was spent in Pennsylvania building highways under the W.P.A., and do not forget to include the dirt taken out of the Capitol only recently when they cleaned the pillars, because that was done by the Federal Government—by the way, they may want to exclude that if the gentleman from Philadelphia wants, I will prepare the figures and submit within forty-eight hours a statement; I will get him the figures, he will find out what the amount was and what it was spent for.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I believe we Senators have been wasting a lot of time, much ado about nothing, and I would like to tell my esteemed friend, Senator Kephart, whom I think a great deal of, that if he meets me back here I will tell him what the Congress will do with his resolution.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

(Following the calling of the roll the following occurred.)

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I desire to change my vote from "aye" to "no."

The PRESIDENT. The vote of the gentleman from Philadelphia will be so recorded.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, I desire to change my vote from "aye" to "no."

The PRESIDENT. The vote of the gentleman from McKean will be so recorded.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I desire to change my vote from "no" to "aye."

The PRESIDENT. The vote of the gentleman from Westmoreland will be so recorded.

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—24

Becker,	Dent,	Letzler,	Taylor,
Bowers,	Ealy,	Mallery,	Thomas,
Carr,	Farrell,	Scarlett,	Tyler,

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. CRIDER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 116, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to further amend section one of the act, approved the twenty-fourth day of July, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen (P. L. 1013), entitled "An act regulating the issuance of licenses to marry; prohibiting the issuance of such licenses to certain persons; regulating the time during which licenses shall be valid, and the time when returns shall be made of marriages solemnized to the clerk of the orphans' court; and prescribing the duties of the clerk of the orphans' court," by providing that, during the continuation of the present war, the three day waiting period shall not be required in any case in which one of the applicants for a marriage license is in the armed forces of the United States

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILL ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 130, entitled:

An Act to amend section two hundred thirteen of the act approved the second day of May one thousand nine hundred twenty-five (P. L. 448) entitled "An act relating to fish and amending revising consolidating and changing the law relating to fish in the inland waters and the boundary lakes and boundary rivers of the Commonwealth" by prohibiting the sale of or offering for sale of bait-fish or fish-bait taken from the waters of this Commonwealth when not artificially propagated and sold pursuant to an artificial propagation license granted and sold by the board

Section 1 Section two hundred thirteen of the act approved the second day of May one thousand nine hundred twenty-five (P. L. 448) entitled "An act relating to fish and amending revising consolidating and changing the law relating to fish in the inland waters and the boundary lakes and boundary rivers of the Commonwealth" as added to said act by the act approved the seventeenth day of July one thousand nine hundred thirty-five (P. L. 1145) is hereby amended to read as follows

Section 213 Unlawful to Sell Bait-fish or Fish-bait It shall be unlawful for any person to sell or offer for sale any bait-fish or fish-bait taken from [the public] any waters of this Commonwealth when not artificially propagated and sold pursuant to an artificial propagation license granted by the board Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be subject to a penalty of ten dollars for each bait-fish or fish-bait sold or offered for sale upon conviction as provided in chapter fourteen of this act

Section 2 This act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 135, entitled:

An Act to amend section seven hundred sixteen of the act approved the third day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven, (P. L. 1225), entitled "An act concerning game and other wild birds and wild animals; and amending, revising, consolidating, and changing the law relating thereto," authorizing the sale and purchase of hides of lawfully killed deer under certain circumstances.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

The first section was read.

Will the Senate agree to the section?

UNANIMOUS CONSENT GRANTED TO INTRODUCE AMENDMENTS

Mr. CROWE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to offer amendments.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. CROWE offered the following amendments.

Amend Section 1, Page 2, line 3, by striking out the word "possesison" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "possession", Amend Section 1, Page 3, line 1, by striking out, after the word "release," the words "or propagating purposes"; Amend Section 1, Page 3, lines 13 to 24, inclusive, by striking out the following: "or the sale by persons holding a valid hunting license at any time during the open season for deer in any year and for a period of sixty days thereafter of the hides of deer legally killed by them in this Commonwealth and in the case of persons holding valid permits to possess the flesh of lawfully killed big game animals such sales may be made during a further period equal to the time covered by such permit or the purchase by fur dealers or their authorized employes operating from their established place of business and holding valid permits as such issued under the provisions of this act of deer hides that are legally sold"; and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "or the sale or purchase of deer hides, or any part thereof, from animals lawfully killed, if such hides are disposed of by the original owner within ninety days after the close of the previous open season, but this provision shall not be construed to permit any individual or agency other than the Commission to sell the skins of deer killed as a protection to crops".

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I want to be recorded as objecting to the amendment to this bill until we see the amendments printed.

The PRESIDENT. Unless there is objection, a voice vote will be taken.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I rise on a parlimentary inquiry.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I consented to unanimous consent to the amendments being presented, but not unanimous consent to amend the bill.

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I rise to a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Westmoreland will state his point of information.

Mr. DENT. My point of information, Mr. President, is will the bill lie over for printing if the amendments are adopted?

The PRESIDENT. That is correct.

Mr. DENT. On third reading, Mr. President, with the amendments included?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I do not want to interfere with the passage of this bill but I suggest, in view of the character of the amendments offered, that the same thing can be accomplished if this bill be referred back to committee and brought out on third reading as amended, instead of asking us to vote on these amendments at this time, which to me is foolish, because it changes the character of the amendment as first offered.

Therefore, Mr. President, I object to the amendments, knowing full well that nothing will happen to the bill and if it is returned back to committee the same results will be accomplished.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, this will take only a minute. I would like to fire all the proof readers and get a better set, because this is the third time there has been a mistake, a typographical error. We have five proof readers at $7 per day, and it does seem to me that we ought to fire the five and get five new ones.

Mr. COX. Mr. President, this situation could be obviated or changed by a simple procedure which I suggested at the beginning of this Session. I, like all the other members of the Senate, have found myself frequently confused when amendments are offered to bills. That is particularly true in the dying days of a Session, when a bill comes up and we are all excited and tired, and I feel that we should amend our rules so that all amendments are typewritten and handed to each member of the Senate a day before the amendments are to be offered. Then we would not have this confusion.

I have read this bill. I do not profess to be an authority on hunting and fishing and I am perfectly willing to take the attitude of the sponsor of the bill, who evidently must be a specialist in such matters, and yet when the amendment is read I find myself in the position I have no conception whatever as to the significance or the meaning of the amendment, and I am certain that other members of the Senate must find themselves in an identical situation.

Mr. WOODRING. It occurs to me, Mr. President, that the situation we find ourselves in could be easily taken care of if we merely stand by until the bill is reprinted with the suggested amendments in it, and take our action on third passage and then final passage tomorrow, instead of doing it today.

I make that suggestion if the Chair cares to rule on it.

AMENDMENTS WITHDRAWN

Mr. CROWE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw the amendments just offered by myself to Senate Bill No. 135.

Mr. WADE. I second that, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none. It is agreed to.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second reading?

RECONSIDERATION OF SENATE BILL No. 135

Mr. CROWE. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 135, passed second reading.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. CROWE. Mr. President, I voted "aye".

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I voted "aye."

The motion was agreed to.

BILL ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with.

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 135, entitled:

An Act to amend section seven hundred sixteen of the act approved the third day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven, (P. L. 1225), entitled "An act concerning game and other wild birds and wild animals; and amending, revising, consolidating, and changing the law relating thereto," authorizing the sale and purchase of hides of lawfully killed deer under certain circumstances.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. CROWE offered the following amendments:

Amend Section 1, page 2, line 3, by striking out the word "possesison" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "possession"; Amend Section 1, page 3, line 1, by striking out after the word "release," the words "or propagating purposes"; Amend Section 1, page 3, lines 13 to 24, inclusive, by striking out the following: "or the sale by persons holding a valid hunting license at any time during the open season for deer in any year and for a period of sixty days thereafter of the hides of deer legally killed by them in this Commonwealth and in the case of persons holding valid permits to possess the flesh of lawfully killed big game animals such sales may be made during a further period equal to the time covered by such permit or the purchase by fur dealers or their authorized employes operating from their established place of business and holding valid permits as such issued under the provisions of this act of deer hides that are legally sold" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "or the sale or purchase of deer hides, or any part thereof, from animals lawfully killed, if such hides are disposed of by original owner within ninety days after the close of the previous open season, but this provision shall not be construed to permit any individual or agency other than the Commission to sell the skins of deer killed as a protection to crops."

They were agreed to.

The section was agreed to as amended.

The title was read and agreed to.

SENATE BILL No. 135 OVER IN ORDER

Mr. CROWE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 135, on second reading, go over in its order, in order to give my colleagues a better chance to study this bill.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

SENATE BILL No. 85 CALLED UP

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I at this time desire to call up Senate Bill No. 85 on third reading on today's Calendar, entitled:

A Joint Resolution making application to the Congress of the United States to call a convention for proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting the imposition of conditions upon grants of moneys and the invasion of the states rights

RECONSIDERATION OF SENATE BILL No. 85

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 85, failed of passage.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I voted "nay."

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, I voted "nay".

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Roll call, Mr. President.

(Following the calling of the roll the following occurred.)

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I should like to inquire how the Senator from Blair, Mr. Mallery, is recorded as voting.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Blair is recorded as voting "aye".

Mr. MALLERY. I voted "aye", Mr. President.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. Shapiro and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—24

Becker,	Ealy,	Letzler,	Thomas,
Bowers,	Farrell,	Mallery,	Tyler,
Carr,	Geltz,	Snowden,	Wade,
Chapman,	Heyburn,	Stevenson,	Wilson, H. I.,
Crider,	Homsher,	Tallman,	Wilson, T. B.,
Crowe,	Kephart,	Taylor,	Woodring,

NAYS—17

Barr,	DiSilvestro,	Jaspan,	Ruth,
Coleman,	Gourley,	McCreesh,	Shapiro,
Cox,	Haluska,	McGinnis,	Walker,
Deitrick,	Holland,	McQuiddy,	Woodward,
Dent,

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the bill be prepared for the use of the Senate.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 85, on final passage, go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

BILLS OVER IN ORDER

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I have been requested to ask unanimous consent that House Bill No. 2, on second reading, entitled:

An Act authorizing during the present war time emergency, cities, counties and other political subdivisions to pay compensation to their officers, (except officers elected by the people) employes and others who are paid out of their treasuries, in addition to the compensation fixed by act of assembly; validating ordinances and other legislative acts authorizing such payments and all payments made thereunder; and suspending existing laws

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I have been requested to ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 53, on second reading, entitled:

An Act relating to the practice, procedure, regulations, and adjudications of departments, departmental administrative boards and commissions, independent administrative boards and commissions, officers and other administrative agencies of this Commonwealth, and judicial review thereof; and preserving equitable jurisdiction in certain cases

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILL ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 67, entitled:

An Act to amend the act, approved the second day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 1278), entitled "An act relating to counties of the second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth classes; and revising, amending and consolidating the laws relating thereto," establishing the method of appointing, promoting, reducing in rank, suspension, furloughing, discharging, and reinstating members of the police force of counties of the second class; creating and defining the powers and duties of a civil service commission; imposing certain duties and expenses on such counties; and prescribing penalties.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. COX. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the sponsor of this bill, my colleague from Allegheny, Senator Geltz.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GELTZ. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. COX. Senator Geltz, I would like you to refer to page 12, of Senate Bill No. 67, Printer's No. 46.

Mr. GELTZ. I have it, Mr. President.

Mr. COX. Mr. President, I would like to ask the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Geltz, if sub-section five, which deals with the question of the right to fire policemen for "engaging or participating in the conducting of any political election or campaign otherwise than to exercise his own right of suffrage," would have the effect of preventing any member of a police force covered by the act from running for any public office.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, it probably would.

Mr. COX. Mr. President, I would like to go on record as being friendly to this bill, I am friendly to any merit bill which is substantial and has the effect that it really gives employment under a proper merit system.

In 1941 we passed a civil service bill which applied to boroughs and townships. I note that many of the provisions of this bill are almost identical with the provisions of that bill.

Since the passage of the 1941 act, it has been my personal experience that there are many bugs in that bill, which should have been corrected or rectified had we given proper attention to that bill before passing it.

I do not think it is the intent of this Legislature to prevent any person from running for office because he is a member of a police force.

Many members of borough or township police forces have come to see me, knowing my interest in the 1941 bill, and have asked me to interpret this section, and I said very frankly that the section is so ambiguous that I would be very reluctant to say yes or to say no, because I feel, regardless of whether it is the purpose of the Senate to prevent a police officer from running for office or holding office or not, I do think that this section is ambiguous and should be clarified before we finally vote on the bill.

REQUEST THAT BILL GO OVER IN ORDER

Mr. COX. Mr. President, inasmuch as it would be much simpler to clarify this bill by amendment before it comes up for third reading, I request at this time that the bill go over in its order until I can confer with Senator Geltz relative to this particular section.

On the question,

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, it seems to me that so far in this 1943 session we have seen a pretty good example of what we in the minority are going to get. I find this bill on the Calendar. I have talked with other Democratic members of the Committee on County Government and they were never notified of any committee meeting. I do not think we have been shown the courtesy of expressing our wishes or thoughts respecting this bill. I do not think that is quite fair, and I also never thought that the time would come, with all the Republicans on the other side, that I would have to get up and uphold Governor Martin, when there are thirty-two Republicans here to do it.

If you will read from page 120 of the Legislative Journal, the Inaugural Address of Governor Martin, you will note that he says:

"The door of opportunity must be kept open for them, so that when they return, they are not deprived of the American prerogative to compete fairly and strive honestly to succeed each according to his merits. It seems manifestly unfair to fill government positions by civil service now. We should wait until these men come home and have an opportunity to take their rightful places again in society."

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I object to this bill going over in order and I suggest to my colleague, Senator Cox, that if there are a number of bugs which he thinks should be eliminated from the bill, or corrections rather, that the same can be made by amendments in committee in the House.

I have one or two which I think should be made by the House Committee and I suggest that this can be amended too.

It seems somewhat inconsistent on the part of my colleague, the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Barr, to now take the floor and suggest he is not fully in accord with civil service because, if I understood him correctly, that is the only good reason he had for voting against the amendment introduced by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, to Senate Bill No. 85, so that it seems to me that he must vote for this bill or be inconsistent after his vote on the other one.

Mr. COX. Mr. President, if these were dying days of the session I would certainly subscribe to the Senator's theory that the bill should go over to the House.

We have been here two months and the amount of activity in this Senate has been relatively little, due, I think, primarily to the fact we do not know where we are going until such time as we know what the Governor wants to do relative to appropriations and reduction of taxes.

We have a specific duty as members of this body when legislation confronts us, and that is to seriously and honestly correct legislation which is presented that we know to be wrong.

I personally feel that this matter which I have raised is a vital matter, because if we vote for this bill in this body, we are saying to all the policemen of the state "You have no right to hold public office and we are going to prevent you from holding public office," and knowing the membership of this Senate as I do, I can not believe that it is the intent of anyone in this body to prohibit a policeman from holding public office.

MOTION THAT BILL GO OVER IN ORDER

Mr. COX. For those reasons, Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 67 go over in its order.

Mr. McCREESH. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I ask that the roll be called, and I ask my colleagues to vote "no" on this motion.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. GELTZ, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—14

Barr,	Haluska,	McGinnis,	Shapiro,
Coleman,	Holland,	McQuiddy,	Stiefel,
Cox,	Jaspan,	Ruth,	Tyler,
Gourley,	McCreesh,

NAYS—20

Becker,	Farrell,	Letzler,	Taylor,
Bowers,	Geltz,	Mallery,	Thomas,
Chapman,	Heyburn,	Snowden,	Wade,
Crider,	Homsher,	Stevenson,	Wilson, H. I.,
Crowe,	Kephart,	Tallman,	Woodward,

So the question was determined in the negative.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I desire to advise my colleague from Allegheny, Senator Geltz, that if he will look at the record he will find that I voted against every civil service bill that ever came before the Senate since I have been a member of the Senate, and will continue to do so.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILLS OVER IN ORDER

Mr. CROWE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 78, on second reading, entitled:

An Act to further amend sections two hundred twenty, and two hundred eighty-five of the act approved the second day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five (P. L. 448), entitled "An act relating to fish; and amending, revising, consolidating, and changing the law relating to fish in the inland waters and the boundary lakes and boundary rivers of the Commonwealth," increasing the resident fishing license fee and limiting the use of money derived from such increase

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. CARR. Mr. President, in absence of the sponsor, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 81, on second reading, entitled:

An Act to amend section four of the act approved the twenty-sixth day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-one (P. L. 1379), entitled "An act creating in counties of the third class a board for the assessment and revision of taxes; providing for the appointment of the members of such board by the county commissioners; providing for their salaries, payable by the county; abolishing existing boards; defining the powers and duties of such board; regulating the assessment of persons, property, and occupations for county, borough, town, township, school, and poor purposes; authorizing the appointment of subordinate assessors, a solicitor, engineers, and clerks; providing for their compensation, payable by such counties; abolishing the office of ward, borough, and township assessors, so far as the making of assessments and valuations for taxation is concerned; and providing for the acceptance of this act by cities" by removing the limitation placed on the salary received by subordinate assessors

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection The Chair hears none.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 103, entitled:

An Act authorizing the common pleas judges and the county commissioners jointly to create medical clinics for the examination of certain persons convicted of the commission of a crime prior to the sentencing thereof, as a means of decreasing the number of habitual offenders; providing for the creation of joint medical clinics among the several counties; and imposing the costs of maintaining and operating such clinics upon the county or counties creating the same

The first and second sections were separately read and agreed to.

The third section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, with the consent of the sponsor I offer the following amendment:

Amend sec. 3, page 2, line 19, by inserting after the word "psychiatrist" the following "who shall be the director of such clinic"

It was agreed to.

The section was agreed to as amended.

The title was read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to as amended,

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 119, entitled:

An Act to further amend sections three hundred one and three hundred three of the act approved the seventeenth day of May one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one (P. L. 789) entitled as amended "An act relating to insurance establishing an insurance department and amending revising and consolidating the law relating to the licensing qualification regulation exemption suspension and dissolution of insurance companies Lloyds associations reciprocal and inter-insurance exchanges and certain societies and orders the examination and regulation of fire insurance rating bureaus and the licensing and regulation of insurance agents and brokers the service of legal process upon foreign insurance companies associations or exchanges providing penalties and repealing existing laws" by further regulating the computation of the reserve liability of life insurance companies the issuance of life insurance policies and redefining deficiency reserve requirements.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

REQUEST THAT BILL GO OVER IN ORDER

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, in the absence of one of the sponsors of this bill, whom I should like to interrogate, on this bill, I ask that it go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. WADE. I object, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Cumberland, Mr. Wade.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Cumberland permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WADE. I should like, Mr. President, as graciously as possible to refuse to be interrogated, unless I am permitted to make a short statement.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I am not going to interrogate the gentleman on the bill—I know how reluctant he is to be interrogated. I merely want to inquire of the gentleman why he objects to the bill going over in its order. Is there a very grave emergency?

Mr. WADE. Very well, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I should like to ask the gentleman from Cumberland is there a very grave emergency which requires that this bill may not go over in order until tomorrow?

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, was over at my desk just a few minutes ago and referred to the fact that we reprint titles time and time again at considerable expense to the Commonwealth.

The error in this case is that only one sponsor is named on the Calendar, but on the bill the names of both sponsors appear.

For that reason, Mr. President, I would like to insist that the bill be acted upon on second reading, and in that connection I would like to call attention of the officials at the desk to the fact that only the name of one sponsor appears on the Calendar.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. Presidend, I am not asking that this bill go over in order on that ground. I know the other sponsor of the bill and I did not pay any attention to the Calendar at all. I merely asked that this bill go over in order, because I would like to interrogate the other sponsor of the bill as to the subject of the bill. He is not here now and I would like to interrogate him tomorrow. I am not concerned about the fact that the name of the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator McGinnis, does not appear in connection with this bill on the Calendar.

Is there any objection?

Mr. WADE. I stand on my objection, Mr. President. I would like the bill to be passed on second reading.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second reading?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. SHAPIRO and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—20

Becker,	Ealy,	Kephart,	Thomas,
Bowers,	Farrell,	Letzler,	Tyler,
Chapman,	Geltz,	Mallery,	Wade,
Crider,	Heyburn,	Stevenson,	Wilson, H. I.,
Crowe,	Homsher,	Tallman,	Woodward,

NAYS—13

Barr,	Haluska,	McCreesh,	Shapiro,
Coleman,	Holland,	McQuiddy,	Stiefel,
Cox,	Jaspan,	Ruth,	Woodring,
Gourley,

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 139, entitled:

An Act to further amend clause forty-seven of section two thousand four hundred three of the act approved the twenty-third day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-one (P. L. 932), entitled "An act relating to cities of the third class; and amending, revising, and consolidating the law relating thereto," further changing the qualifications of historical societies to receive appropriations, and limiting the amount of such appropriations.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

REQUEST THAT SENATE BILL No. 187 GO OVER IN ORDER

Mr. STEVENSON. Mr. President, I request that Senate Bill No. 187, on second reading, entitled:

An Act amending, revising and consolidating the law providing when, how, and upon what property, and to what extent liens shall be allowed for taxes and water rents or rates, lighting rates, power rates, sewer rates and sewer rental charges, the filing of claims therefor, the adjudication of such claims, the entry of judgment thereon, sales of real property, including seated and unseated lands, subject to the lien of such judgments and tax claims, the disposition of the proceeds thereof, including state taxes and municipal claims recovered and the redemption of property; regulating judicial sales and the distribution of the proceeds thereof; providing for the discharge and divestiture by tax and rate sales of all estates in property and of mortgages and liens on such property and the proceedings therefor; creating a Tax and Rate Claim Bureau in each county, except a county of the first class, and in each city of the first class, to act as agent for taxing districts; defining its powers and duties with respect to the administration of this act, including sales of property, the management of property taken in sequestration, and the management, sale and disposition of property sold to counties and cities as trustees, and of property heretofore sold to the county commissioners, taxing districts and trustees at tax sales; providing a method for the service of process and notice on certain nonresidents of this Commonwealth; imposing duties on taxing districts and their officers, and on tax collectors and receivers of taxes and certain expenses on counties and cities of the first class in connection with the administration of this act, and for their reimbursement by taxing districts; providing a procedure for the determination of the uniform system of law to be employed in cities of the first class and in counties by all taxing districts thereof for the collection of delinquent taxes and rates; and repealing existing laws

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. SHAPIRO. I object, Mr. President. In view of the cooperation we are getting here, when a Senator asks for the courtesy of having a bill go over in order, I propose in the future on every bill which comes up requiring unanimous consent to object.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. STEVENSON. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 187 on second reading, go over in order.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I second the motion.

It was agreed to.

Mr. COX. Mr. President, in the absence of a roll call it is impossible to determine how the various members of the Senate vote. I honestly and sincerely believe that at this stage of the game, if there is a sound reason for a bill going over, that is a fundamental courtesy that should be extended to any member of the Senate, to permit a bill to go over in order.

Had there been a roll call on this bill I would have voted "aye."

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUESTED TO MAKE REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. CARR. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make report from Committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I object.

The PRESIDENT. There being objection, what is the pleasure of the Senate,

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I rise on a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Delaware will proceed.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, was there objections to the request of the Senator from Butler?

Mr. SHAPIRO. There has been. I objected.

RECESS

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now take a recess until 9:00 o'clock p. m. Eastern War Time.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed the Senate will be in order.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

URGING INVESTIGATION OF COST OF TREATMENT IN HOSPITALS

Mr. CHAPMAN offered the following resolution which was twice read as follows:

In the Senate of Pennsylvania, March 1, 1943.

Appropriations are now made to the various hospitals within the Commonwealth for maintenance thereof and for medical and surgical services rendered to and maintenance of persons treated therein at the rate of three dollars for each person entitled to free service.

This rate was established years ago when the actual cost of any service was much lower than it is today.

The hospitals receiving aid from the Commonwealth at this rate of three dollars per day for each person entitled to free service cannot furnish the same kind of service that was rendered for that amount when the rate was fixed.

As a result of the increased cost of the necessary treatment of such persons, the various hospitals cannot render the same service as was given when three dollars was sufficient; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Appropriation Committee of the Senate shall investigate the cost of the treatment now rendered in those hospitals of the Commonwealth that receive State-aid in order to ascertain whether a raise in the amount paid per day is necessary in order to render the kind of free service that Pennsylvania should furnish to its people.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I am not sure that we all understand the intent of this resolution. I think it is a proper one, but perhaps we would be a little hasty in acting on it tonight.

Would the Senator from Warren object to the resolution being referred to Committee?

Mr. CHAPMAN. No, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. The resolution is referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

JOINT SESSION

The hour of 9:30 o'clock having arrived, Messrs. Bruner and Coleman, a committee on the part of House of Representatives, being introduced, informed the Senate that the House of Representatives was ready for the reception of the President and members of the Senate for the purpose of listening to an address by His Excellency, the Governor, and the submission of the Eleventh Biennial Budget of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the fiscal biennium, June 1, 1943 to May 31, 1945.

The President and members of the Senate proceeded to the hall of the House of Representatives.

SENATE RETURNS FROM HOUSE

After some time the President and Senators returned to the Senate Chamber.

SENATE BILL No. 67 ON SECOND READING CALLED UP

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to call up at this time Senate Bill No. 67, which today passed second reading, entitled:

An Act to amend the act, approved the second day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 1278), entitled "An act relating to counties of the second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth classes; and revising, amending and consolidating the laws relating thereto," establishing the method of appointing, promoting, reducing in rank, suspension, furloughing, discharging, and reinstating members of the police force of counties of the second class; creating and defining the powers and duties of a civil service commission; imposing certain duties and expenses on such counties; and prescribing penalties.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

The Chair hears none.

RECONSIDERATION OF SENATE BILL No. 67

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 67 passed second reading.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I voted "aye."

Mr. FARRELL. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT How did the Senator vote?

Mr. FARRELL. Mr. President, I voted "aye."

The motion was agreed to.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 67, on second reading, go over in order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. COX asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. COX. Mr. President, I regret that I was not in the Senate chamber when my friend and colleague from Allegheny, Senator Geltz, moved to reconsider a certain vote a short time ago. I always have had a tremendously high regard for the sincerity and integrity of Jim Geltz. I am very happy this evening that my former high regard is still sustained.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Mr. BECKER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce a bill at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. BECKER read in place and presented to the Chair, Senate Bill No. 220, entitled:

An Act to further amend section six of the act, approved the eighteenth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three (P. L. 840), entitled, "An act concerning declaratory judgments and decrees, and to make uniform the law relating thereto," further defining the circumstances under which the remedy provided is available.

Which was committed to the Committee on Judiciary General.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce a bill at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. MALLERY read in place and presented to the Chair, Senate Bill No. 221, entitled:

An Act making an appropriation to the Mercy Hospital, Altoona, Pennsylvania.

Which was committed to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. RUTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce a bill at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. RUTH read in place and presented to the Chair, Senate Bill No. 222, entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to article one, section six of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Which was committed to the Committee on Constitutional Changes.

SENATE BILL No. 119 CALLED UP

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I at this time ask that the Senate take under consideration Senate Bill No. 119, which passed on second reading today, entitled:

An Act to further amend sections three hundred one and three hundred three of the act approved the seventeenth day of May one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one (P. L. 789) entitled as amended "An act relating to insurance establishing an insurance department and amending revising and consolidating the law relating to the licensing qualification regulation exemption suspension and dissolution of insurance companies Lloyds associations reciprocal and inter-insurance exchanges and certain societies and orders the examination and regulation of fire insurance rating bureaus and the licensing and regulation of insurance agents and brokers the service of legal process upon foreign insurance companies associations or exchanges providing penalties and repealing existing laws" by further regulating the computation of the reserve liability of life insurance companies the issuance of life insurance policies and redefining deficiency reserve requirements.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. WADE. May I suggest to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, that the co-sponsor of Senate Bill No. 119, the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator McGinnis, whom he wished to interrogate this afternoon is now within the hall of the Senate, and if he so wishes I shall be very glad to move that the vote by which Senate Bill No. 119 passed second reading be reconsidered.

RECONSIDERATION OF SENATE BILL No. 119

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I move that the vote by which Senate Bill No. 119, passed second reading today, be reconsidered.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I voted "aye".

Mr. LETZLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. How did the gentleman from Clearfield vote?

Mr. LETZLER. I voted "aye".

The motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDENT. What is the pleasure of the Senate?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, in view of the graciousness of the gentleman from Cumberland, Mr. Wade, and out of deference to all the members of the Senate, I do not propose to keep them here tonight by interrogation. I think that this matter can wait until tomorrow when we will all be in better shape to understand—at least I will be in better shape to make the interrogation and the Senators to understand.

I want to pay my compliments, however, to the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, because I attribute to him entirely the action that has occurred here on our return to the Senate. I think the Governor showed a very fine spirit of cooperation. He did not tell us what he wanted us to do; he stated that he would give us his program and stated he would like to have our advice. I think that had an effect upon all the members of the Senate.

I noticed particularly that the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Geltz, upon returning to the Senate chamber moved that the previous action on Senate Bill No. 67 be reconsidered, which was done, and then much to my surprise and pleasure the gentleman from Cumberland, Senator Wade, followed suit.

I say, Mr. President, it is a great thing to have a Governor who can instil such a spirit of cooperation.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I very much appreciate the complimentary remarks made by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, but very much to my suspicion he refuses to carry on the business of the Senate.

Mr. President, this is a Senate to pass legislation and to act on matters seriously. This bill was before us on second reading today. The co-sponsor, the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. McGinnis, is now in the Senate chamber, and I believe it is the duty of this Senate to consider legislation seriously, to consider these matters up as they come up.

This bill is now back on second reading, is open for debate and should be acted upon, at least on second reading, as should all such matters as they come before the Senate.

This is a time when we have all agreed we shall have a short session and a business-like session, and we can not have that by passing these matters over or by complimentary remarks being made from one to another, much as I appreciate them.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, two years ago when this body was hopelessly deadlocked on the matter of congressional apportionment, I stepped into the Senate Chamber and my attention was attracted by the fluttering of wings near the ceiling of the Senate Chamber, and I called attention of the gentlemen in the Senate to the fact that there were two white pigeons which came from the outside and flew through the window. Now, Mr. President, doves have always been symbolic of peace and harmony, and I felt then, and I think I was right, that the presence of pigeons fluttering in back of the Senate Chamber was a prophetic sign for a peaceful and harmonious session.

This afternoon and tonight we saw an unusual change in the members of the Senate. While I thought the atmosphere this afternoon remined one of the closing days of a session, in view of the fact that nerves were frayed and some of the boys were irritable, I am somewhat fearful that we can overdo this thing, we can reach the other extreme, and I am just a bit worried and want to caution the members of this Senate that if we keep this thing up, before we talk to each other or before we debate each other we are liable to be embracing each other on the floor of the Senate.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, if the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, does not wish to interrogate the co-sponsor on Senate Bill No. 119, now on second reading entitled:

An Act to further amend sections three hundred one and three hundred three of the act approved the seventeenth day of May one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one (P. L. 789) entitled as amended "An act relating to insurance establishing an insurance department and amending revising and consolidating the law relating to the licensing qualification regulation exemption suspension and dissolution of insurance companies Lloyds associations reciprocal and inter-insurance exchanges and certain societies and orders the examination and regulation of fire insurance rating bureaus and the licensing and regulation of insurance agents and brokers the service of legal process upon foreign insurance companies associations or exchanges providing penalties and repealing existing laws" by further regulating the computation of the reserve liability of life insurance companies the issuance of life insurance policies and redefining deficiency, reserve requirements.

I ask unanimous consent that it go over in order

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I have no objection to the bill going over in order, in fact that is what I wanted. I do not want, at this late hour, when some of the members of the Senate are absent, to proceed with my interrogation, and I would like those members who are absent to be present to hear the questions I want to raise about this bill. I would rather that they be present and that is the reason I shall defer making any remarks until tomorrow.

Mr. President, I had no ulterior motive in mind—I would be very glad to discuss the matter—but I know how the members of the Senate feel and how they want to get away, and since the gentleman from Cumberland has suggested that serious matters should be discussed here, I refer to wait until tomorrow when we can hear both sides of the question and our minds are on what we are doing.

I might also say, Mr. President, I have no idea in my mind of embracing the gentleman from Cumberland or anybody else here; I am not that kind of a girl.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Cumberland, Mr. Wade, that Senate Bill No. 119 go over in its order?

Mr. SHAPIRO. I second the request, Mr. President.

It was agreed to.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Mr. CHAPMAN offered the following resolution which was twice read and referred to the Committee on Federal Relations.

In the Senate of Pennsylvania, March 1, 1943.

The oil reserves of the Nation are being used up faster than oil is being produced.

It has been stated by competent authority that there will be a serious shortage of oil in the future unless new wells are developed.

The development of new wells can be accelerated only by the raising of the present ceiling price on crude oil.

The present profit per well is now so low that there is no incentive for the assumption of the risk attendant upon the drilling of new wells; therefore be it

Resolved, (if the House of Representatives concurs), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby memoralizes the Office of Price Administration of the Federal Government to raise the ceiling price on crude oil so that there will be some prospect of profit held out to those who have oil land which could be developed, in order that the production of oil might be increased and the oil reserves of the country be raised, to normal levels; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution shall be transmitted by the Chief Clerk of this House to the Office of Price Administration at Washington, D. C.

BILLS SIGNED

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor John C. Bell, Jr.) announced that the Chief Clerk having reported that the following bills had passed both houses of the General Assembly and the same being correct, the titles were publicly read as follows:

Senate Bill No. 23, entitled:

An Act to further amend section one and to amend section four of the act approved the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven (P. L. 2460), entitled "An act creating a joint legislative commission, to be known as the Joint State Government Commission; providing for the appointment of its members; and defining its powers and duties," changing the number of members and providing further for the terms thereof; and further defining its powers and duties and amplifying the provisions relating to appropriations.

Senate Bill No. 24, entitled:

An Act to further amend section nine of the act, approved the ninth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and eleven (P. L. 736), entitled "An act making appropriations to institutions not wholly managed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, liens on the premises of such institutions for the use of the Commonwealth, and providing for the collection thereof," authorizing the use of, and appropriating the proceeds of insurance for rebuilding reequipping and repairing of property subject to lien.

Whereupon,

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor John C. Bell, Jr.) in the presence of the Senate signed the same.

BILL INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Mr. GOURLEY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce a bill at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. GOURLEY read in place and presented to the Chair, Senate Bill No. 223, entitled:

An Act making an appropriation to the Washington Hospital, Washington, Pennsylvania.

Which was committed to the Committee on Appropriations.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now adjourn until Tuesday, March 2, 1943, at 4:00 o'clock p. m., Eastern War Time.

Mr. DEITRICK. Mr. President, I second the motion

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate adjourned at 10:10 o'clock p. m. Eastern War Time until Tuesday, March 2, 1943, at 4:00 o'clock p. m. Eastern War Time.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

MONDAY, March 1, 1943

The House met at 8:30 p. m.

The SPEAKER (Ira T. Fiss) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. Lester C. Updegrove, offered the following prayer.

Our Father give us grace to praise Thee even for the difficulties and the hard tasks of life. As our country and this state are confronted with gigantic problems grant Thy eternal wisdom to all in places of public authority. Especially, we beseech Thee to help the President of these United States, the governor of this state together with the leaders and members of both the Senate and House of Representatives.

In this day of bloodshed suffering, sorrow and death may all of us be used by Thee so that Thy people, Thy love, Thy truth and Thy justice shall become the permanent possession of all people in all lands. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the Journal of Wednesday, February 24, 1943.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of Wednesday, February 24, 1943, when, on motion of Mr. B. Frank Hunter, unanimously agreed to, the further reading was dispensed with and the Journal approved.

Referred to the Committee on Judiciary General.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Messrs. HEATHERINGTON and BARRETT.

RESOLUTION No. 27.

In the House of Representatives, February 24, 1943.

Whereas, In recent practice blackouts and practice air raids the various signals used have differed from those with which the public had become familiar; and

Whereas, The chief value of practice blackouts and practice air raids is to accustom the public to uniform, prompt and accurate compliance with all signals and alarms; and

Whereas, Any further changes in the signals and alarms used to give notice of practice blackouts and practice air raids may result in such public confusion and uncertainty in the event of an actual blackout or air raid as to result in the most serious of consequences; and

Whereas, Such confusing changes in signals and alarms may have a tendency to impair the fine spirit of cooperation which the general public has so far displayed in connection with practice blackouts and air raids; therefore be it

Resolved, That the State Council of Defense be urged to do everything possible toward minimizing further changes in the signals and alarms used to indicate blackouts and air raids; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted by the Chief Clerk to the Executive Director of the State Council of Defense.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. WELSH. (Not Printed).

In the House of Representatives, February 24, 1943.

The Honorable Frank H. Stackhouse, a former Member of this House from the Eleventh District of Philadelphia, died on December 24th, 1942, the day before his sixty-ninth birthday.

Born on December 25th, 1873, he was educated in the public schools of the city of Philadelphia, and for most of his life was employed at the Cramp Ship Yards in that city.

He was elected a Member of this House in 1920, and sat during the Session of 1921; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Members of this House of Representatives extend their sincere sympathy to those who survive him and direct the Chief Clerk of this House to forward to them a copy of this Resolution.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

COMMUNICATION

THANKS EXTENDED

The SPEAKER laid before the House a communication which was read by the Clerk as follows:

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, February 26, 1943.

Dear Speaker:

Your resolution of February twenty-fourth, thanking Mrs. Martin and me for the Reception last Tuesday evening, is appreciated very greatly indeed.

We enjoyed having the Members of the House. It did us much good to become better acquainted with you.

I sincerely trust that our relationship in the future may become even closer.

Very sincerely,
(Signed) EDWARD MARTIN.

Honorable Ira T. Fiss,
Speaker, House of Representatives,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

The House proceeded to the first reading and consideration of House Bill No. 140, entitled:

An Act to further amend section seven hundred thirteen of the act, approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 905), entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety; regulating the use of highways, and the operation of vehicles, tractors, street cars, trackless trolley omnibuses, bicycles, pedestrians, and the riding of animals upon the highways of this Commonwealth; providing for the titling, including liens, encumbrances, and legal claims; registration of certain vehicles, and licensing the operators thereof, upon payment of prescribed fees; prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue, the Department of Highways, peace officers, mayors, burgesses, magistrates, aldermen, justices of the peace, the courts and the clerks thereof, owners of vehicles, and garage keepers; providing that records are admissible as evidence; imposing upon owners, counties, cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships, within the Commonwealth, liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles; imposing penalties; imposing certain costs upon counties; providing for the disposition of fines, forfeitures, fees, and miscellaneous receipts; making an appropriation and providing for refunds," modifying the provisions thereof relative to fees for operators' licenses in cases where holders of learners' permits fail to pass the examination for an operator's license during the ninety day period such permit is valid.

And said bill having been read at length the first time, Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the first reading and consideration of House Bill No. 311, entitled:

An Act authorizing the county commissioners in each county of the second class to appoint a fire marshal and two assistant fire marshals; providing for the term of office and compensation of the persons so appointed, and prescribing their powers and duties; imposing certain additional duties upon county commissioners, policemen, constables, watchmen and other persons; authorizing the fire marshal or his assistants to enter upon properties to investigate various fire hazards and to order the removal or abatement of such hazards; conferring certain police powers upon the fire marshal and his assistants; repealing certain general, special and local legislation; and prescribing penalties.

And said bill having been read at length the first time, Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Cities—Second Class for the purpose of further study and amendment.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Fleming.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. FLEMING. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I ask the gentleman from Allegheny whether he has consulted with the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Heatherington, as to this motion.

Mr. FLEMING. I have not done so, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BROWN. May I ask the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Fleming, whether he will withdraw his motion until the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Heatherington, appears in the House? He was here a minute ago—he is here now. I thank the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Fleming.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Fleming.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. FLEMING. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman see anything in the bill as it is at present that he thinks should be amended?

Mr. FLEMING. Certainly there are many possibilities, Mr. Speaker, of amending the bill if we give it proper study in Committee, yes sir.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman tell me what the present law is concerning the fire marshal in the second class counties, compared to this bill?

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Speaker, I don't know whether I can answer that correctly. I believe the bill in its present form would put the appointing power in the County Commissioners. I believe at the present time this is vested in the Court of Common Pleas of Allegheny County.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman from Allegheny have any objection to leaving the bill on the calendar until it reaches second reading or until I have time to talk to him about it?

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Speaker, I am sorry, I will have to ask the gentleman from Allegheny to repeat his question.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman have any objection to withdrawing his motion so that he and I may have an opportunity to talk about the bill?

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Speaker, I had thought to save the cost of printing, to save the House trouble, and to save a lot of inconvenience to the House that it would be better if the bill went back to Committee and was thrashed out there. For that purpose I made the motion.

I might state for the benefit of the Members of the House that the motion was made with the full knowledge of the co-sponsor of the bill, my colleague, the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Leydic.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman have any objection to holding the bill over until tomorrow when he may bring his amendments in and we will then have an opportunity to look them over?

Mr. FLEMING. Yes, Mr. Speaker, I would. I would like to have my motion stand.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, I have not been down here as long as some of you Members, but I do know and have a little feeling that this is the old method of killing a bill. The bill as it is today is exactly the same as the present law on the books. The only difference is that under the present law the fire marshal is appointed by the judges, and the county commissioners must pay the salary. The fire chiefs of Allegheny County have no recourse and have no one to go to in case of any argument with the fire marshal. This bill was drawn up by the Allegheny County Volunteer Firemen. They asked me to present the bill, making the changes that instead of the judges appointing the fire marshal and the county commissioners paying the bill, to have the county commissioners appoint the fire marshal. That, gentleman is the only difference in the bill today.

Mr. Speaker, on the motion to recommit I will ask for a roll call.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I second the request for a roll call.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of information.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I distinctly understood the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Heatherington, to request a roll call.

The SPEAKER. The roll will be called.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his question of information.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, to what committee is this bill to be recommitted?

The SPEAKER. The motion is to the Committee on Cities—Second Class.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, is that where the bill came from?

The SPEAKER. The motion was made to recommit the bill to the Committee on Cities—Second Class.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, may I ask who is the Chairman of the Committee on Cities—Second Class.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Fleming.

Mr. HEATHERINGTON. Mr. Speaker, it appears to me I should buy a wreath for this bill before it goes back to that committee.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of information.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, is there not a rule in the House that states that a Member shall have no personal interest in a bill when he votes on it? Inasmuch as the gentleman from Allgheny County, Mr. Fleming, moves that the bill be recommitted to his committee for pickling, do you not think that he has an interest in that bill?

Mr. GOODWIN. Mr. Speaker, I will have to admit that I am only a novice in the Halls of this Assembly but I'd like to know why a bill is being recommitted to a city committee when it is a county bill. It is absolutely a county bill. Why is it going back to the Committee on Cities—Second Class?

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman want to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny?

Mr. GOODWIN. Mr. Speaker, I do not want to interrogate the gentleman, but I will help to contribute to that wreath.

Mr. YESTER. Mr. Speaker, I want to ask the Members of this House to vote in a fair way. Allegheny County has third class cities and it has boroughs. I do not see any reason why this bill should be put into the Committee—First Class or Second Class.

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Speaker, I assure you that they are accusing me unjustly. If I could amend the motion and have the bill referred to the committee from whence it came, the Committee on Counties, I would certainly be willing to do it.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman has the privilege of amending his motion if he wishes. Does the gentleman wish to amend the motion?

Mr. FLEMING. Yes, Mr. Speaker, I amend the motion to refer the bill to the Committee on Counties.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion as amended?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. Heatherington and Mr. Tate.

Messrs. Heatherington, Goodwin and Chudoff asked for a verification of the roll.

The roll was verified and was as follows:

BILLS ON FIRST READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the first reading and consideration of House Bill No. 369, entitled:

An Act to amend section seven hundred eleven of the act approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 905), entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety; regulating the use of highways, and the operation of vehicles, tractor, street cars, trackless trolley omnibuses, bicycles, pedestrians, and the riding of animals upon the highways of this Commonwealth; providing for the titling, including liens, encumbrances, and legal claims; registration of certain vehicles and licensing the operators thereof, upon the payment of prescribed fees; prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue, the Department of Highways, peace officers, mayors, burgesses, magistrates, aldermen, justices of the peace, the courts and the clerks thereof, owners of vehicles, and garage keepers; providing that records are admissible as evidence; imposing upon owners, counties, cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships, within the Commonwealth, liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles; imposing penalties; imposing certain costs upon counties; providing for the disposition of fines, forfeitures, fees, and miscellaneous receipts; making appropriation and providing for refunds," reducing the fee for registrations issued in the "Dealer's Class."

And said bill having been read at length the first time,

Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the first reading and consideration of House Bill No. 373, entitled:

An Act to further amend the act, approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 905), entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety, regulating the use of highways and the operation of vehicles, tractors, street cars, trackless trolley omnibuses, bicycles, pedestrians, and the riding of animals upon the highways of this Commonwealth, providing for the titling, including liens, encumbrances and legal claims, registration of certain vehicles and licensing the operators thereof upon payment of prescribed fees, prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act, conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue, the Department of Highways, peace officers, mayors, burgesses, magistrates, aldermen, justices of the peace, the courts and the clerks thereof, owners of vehicles and garage keepers, providing that records are admissible as evidence, imposing upon owners, counties, cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships within the Commonwealth. liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles, imposing penalties, imposing certain costs upon counties, providing for the disposition of fines, forfeitures, fees, and miscellaneous receipts; making an appropriation and providing for refunds"; changing the definition of "dealer", providing for the issuance and use of temporary registration cards and temporary registration plates or markers, and prescribing penalties.

And said bill having been read at length the first time,
Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,
The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 206, entitled:

An Act to authorize counties, cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships and school districts at any time to file suggestions of nonpayment and averments of default or to sue out writs of scire facias on certain tax or municipal claims and to revive judgments where the lien of such claims or judgments thereon shall have been lost, and providing for the reinstatement of the liens of such claims and judgments.

The first section was read.
On the question,
Will the House agree to the section?

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. ROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General for the purpose of further study.

The motion was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,
The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 134, entitled:

An Act to further amend section eleven of the act, approved the thirteenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-five (P. L. 644), entitled "An act relating to and regulating the solicitation of moneys and property for charitable, religious, benevolent, humane, and patriotic purposes," by providing that said act shall apply to certain war veterans' organizations, or the subordinate units thereof.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.
Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,
The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 286, entitled:

An Act to further amend sections twenty, fifty, seventy-two and two hundred sixty-five of the act, approved the second day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-five (P. L. 448), entitled "An act relating to fish; and amending, revising, consolidating, and changing the law relating to fish in the inland waters and the boundary lakes and boundary rivers of the Commonwealth," by further regulating the taking of fish from inland waters and the possession thereof.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.
Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

REPORT AND DISCHARGE OF COMMITTEE

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER, Jr. Mr. Speaker, your committee appointed to wait upon the Senate and escort them to the Hall of the House for the Joint Session has performed that duty and the Senate is now present.

The SPEAKER. The Committee is discharged with the thanks of the House.

The President of the Senate is invited to preside over the Joint Session of the General Assembly and the President pro tempore is invited to a seat on the rostrum.

The Members of the Senate and House will remain standing until called to order by the President of the Senate.

JOINT SESSION

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR JOHN C. BELL PRESIDING

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR BELL. The Joint Assembly will be in order pending the arrival of the Governor.

The SERGEANT-AT-ARMS OF THE SENATE. Mr. President, I present to you the Committee appointed to escort the Governor to the Hall of the House.

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, we have the pleasure and the honor of presenting to you His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, the Honorable Edward Martin.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR BELL. Mr. Speaker, Members of the Joint Session, I have the honor and privilege of presenting His Excellency the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, the Honorable Edward Martin, who will now address you.

GOVERNOR MARTIN'S MESSAGE TO GENERAL ASSEMBLY

GOVERNOR MARTIN. Members of the General Assembly, fellow Americans, owing to the great length of the Budget Message this year it is not my intention to read the same, but I am now making certain comments for the purpose of assisting you in the work ahead of you.

I have laid before you a war-time budget. As far as we can see now, the finances of the State for the next two years will have to be managed among all the upheavals and uncertainties that war produces.

No one can see very far ahead at a time like this. No one knows what responsibilities may fall upon the Commonwealth in the coming years.

Yet, it is most important that the finances of this great State be kept sound, especially in these troubled times. The financial structure of the State must be ready to do its full share during the war and in the post-war adjustment period to come.

Governments all over the world, I am afraid, are wrecking their financial stability in the prosecution of the war. I will not be surprised should the most difficult problem in the return to peaceful conditions be that of establishing financial systems in the war-crippled countries—systems able to support these governments and render the service they must give their people.

In our own country, the Federal Government will have a staggering indebtedness. The debt service alone on that tremendous debt will amount to far more than the peacetime budgets to which this country has become accustomed.

To maintain that debt service, along with a budget sufficient to support its governmental activities, the Federal Government will tax the people of this country to the limit for as long as we live—and longer.

This makes it all the more necessary that the finances of this Keystone State be as sound as a rock. It is from this standpoint that I wish the Legislature to consider this financial program very carefully, because this objective can be maintained and preserved only by full cooperation between the two branches of State Government, with each of the branches being fully aware of its own responsibility.

You will see in the Budget Message and in the Budget that the huge deficit which existed four years ago when my predecessor took office has been paid and that unless revenues unexpectedly diminish there now is a balanced budget.

You will see, also, that the total of all expenditures which I am recommending for the next two years is $147,000,000 less than for the present biennium.

In the General Fund, alone, expenditures recommended are $92,000,000 less than appropriations and payments on the deficit for the present biennium.

This has made possible a sizable tax reduction program which you will find set forth in the Budget Message.

At a time like this it is essential that the State Government be deflated. Activities not necessary to winning the war or preserving essential services should be eliminated. The Budget is based upon that necessity. It is a war-time budget.

The State's revenues are rapidly falling. Prediction at best is hazardous, but it appears to us that the State will collect one hundred million dollars less in taxes than it did in the present two year period. This is another powerful reason for eliminating non-essentials from State Government when the revenues are not coming in to support them.

Preparation of this Budget has revealed to me a condition which I feel is dangerous to the soundness of the State's finances. In a number of places in the Budget you can see great expenditures that have been brought about by placing new laws on the statute books.

The Budget system in Pennsylvania was established, as I see it, to help preserve a sound financial structure. But the Budget system cannot prevent an increase of expenditures if laws are enacted calling for these additional outlays.

It is true that the Governor shares the responsibility for such acts but it seems to me that much of this legislation is the result of pressure from various groups. Certainly the Legislature, as well as the Governor, must carry its own full share of the responsibility.

This situation has added many millions of dollars to the State's expenditures. I have included in the Budget a table which shows that since 1935 at least $100,000,000 of such expenditures have been brought about.

I show, too, in the Budget—and I discuss them in detail—how various expenditures in the departments have grown as a result of legislation, especially in the fields of education, welfare and public building. Nearly all of this increase comes from the orgy of legislation between 1935 and 1939.

To this aspect of the State's finances I wish you would give serious consideration. And, when it is necessary to change laws, change them.

There is another condition to which I wish you would give your attention. More and more, State governments are becoming dependent upon the Federal Treasury for the support of functions of government within the States. Usually this comes about through the offer of a grant by the Federal Government, if the State will put up funds to match. Very often this is to establish some new service or function of government.

Aside from the fact that this practice results in extravagance, I consider it dangerous to financial stability for the State to depart from the practice of paying its own bills, standing on its own feet and looking after its own affairs.

There is still another developing condition which strikes me as unhealthy from the financial standpoint and for other reasons. There has been a rapid shift in the support of local governmental activities from local governments to the State. When the State takes over the financing of these local functions, the State in most instances also takes over—wholly or in part—the administration of these functions. An excellent illustration of this development is seen in the field of public assistance. But, it is found also in other fields, notably in education and welfare.

This is another condition which promotes extravagance. Local areas do not watch these expenditures as carefully as they would if the funds were raised locally.

When we take away important functions of government from local units we weaken these governments and I consider their maintenance an important part of our democratic system of governing ourselves. The Budget Message discusses the extent of some of this development. I ask your consideration of this important matter.

The Budget has been constructed in the form with which you are familiar, showing separately amounts recommended for governmental operations, subsidies, interest and sinking fund, construction and land purchase.

The amount deemed necessary for departments under the Governor's supervision shows an increase of about $2,000,000, reflecting salary increases granted during the present bienniums and certain additions where departments will step up their activities because of the war effort.

Only $30,000,000, or $15,000,000 a year, of the whole General Fund Budget of $337,000,000 will be used for the operation of these departments.

The recommended appropriations for institutions show an increase of about $6,000,000 caused, in part, by the laws placing County Mental Hospitals in the hands of the State; and, in part, reflecting the high current prices of food and materials. Institutional appropriations take $56,000,000 of the General Fund Budget.

The appropriations recommended for subsidies show an increase of $13,000,000. Nearly all of this increase goes to the schools, reflecting the requirements of laws demanding more funds for school districts. In this manner $13,000,000 will go out—and at that, this does not include anything for increasing teacher salaries.

Interest and Sinking Fund requirements show a drop of nearly $5,000,000 made possible by discharging in this current biennium the last payments on the ten-year bond issue authorized during the depth of the depression.

The State's net bonded indebtedness now stands at $71,600,000; further evidence of the Commonwealth's financial soundness. With this amount, however, should be included the $50,300,000 of bonds sold by the General State Authority which obligates the State for payments of $8,500,000 yearly to meet Sinking Fund requirements. By whatever name you choose to call this obligation, it is in reality part of the State's indebtedness.

Figures in a budget only reflect the underlying plan and the policies on which the budget is built.

The two outstanding policies have been to shape the Budget in such a way that the State Government will put forth as much effort as possible to help win the war and to make preparations for the post-war adjustment period.

For Civilian Defense, Agriculture, Health and Post-War Planning, I have asked generous support. I have recommended that the first step for borrowing for the reconstruction period be taken during this session.

Further than these mentioned purposes, the aim in constructing the Budget has been to maintain the services which the people need from the State. The intention has been to allow no more than enough funds for efficient, economical performance of those services.

I invite your examination and criticism of this financial program and I offer you the full cooperation of the Executive branch of the Government in such an examination.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR BELL. Governor Martin, one behalf of the members of the General Assembly I want to thank you for your budget message.

The purpose for which the Joint Session was called has been consummated. The Joint Session is now adjourned. The Senators will return and reassemble in the Senate Chamber.

THE SPEAKER (Ira T. Fiss) IN THE CHAIR

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE NOTED IN JOURNAL

The SPEAKER. The message of the Governor to the Joint Assembly will be noted in the Journal of the House and the Budget and Supplement thereto will be printed in the Appendix to the Legislative Journal.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced, presented a communication in writing from His Excellency the Governor, which was read as follows:

APPROVAL OF RESOLUTION

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, February 25, 1943.

To the Honorable, the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

I have the honor to inform you that I have this day approved and signed House Concurrent Resolution requesting the Governor to invite Madame Chiang Kai-Shek to be the guest of the Commonwealth and to address a joint session of the General Assembly whenever convenient to her.

EDWARD MARTIN.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 144, entitled:

An Act to add section three and one-tenth to the act, approved the fifth day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven (P. L. 817), entitled "An act authorizing and regulating the growth, sale, and distribution of forest tree seedlings and transplants by the Department of Forests and Waters; regulating the use of such forest tree seedlings and transplants; and imposing duties upon the Department of Agriculture with regard to the enforcement of this act," by providing for thinning operations or plantation improvement cutting operations in lands planted with trees purchased under said act; and permitting free use or sale of the trees cut or removed in such operations.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 314, entitled:

An Act validating county treasurers' sales of real property for delinquent taxes when the reports and returns of such sales were made to the court of common pleas and confirmed finally but no record of such return appears in the office of the prothonotary.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 193, entitled:

An Act to amend Section six hundred fifty-one of the act approved the twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine (P. L. 872), entitled "An act to consolidate, amend and revise the penal laws of the Commonwealth," permitting persons under the age of eighteen years to be present in bowling alleys.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection House Bill No. 281, Printer's No. 31, was passed over at the request of Mr. GYGER.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 89, as follows:

An Act to further amend section eight hundred and six of the act, approved the ninth day of April, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 343), entitled "An act relating to the finances of the State government; providing for the settlement, assessment, collection, and lien of taxes, bonus, and all other accounts due the Commonwealth, the collection and recovery of fees and other money or property due or belonging to the Commonwealth, or any agency thereof, including escheated property and the proceeds of its sale, the custody and disbursement or other disposition of funds and securities belonging to or in the possession of the Commonwealth, and the settlement of claims against the Commonwealth, the resettlement of accounts and appeals to the courts, refunds of moneys erroneously paid to the Commonwealth, auditing the accounts of the Commonwealth and all agencies thereof, of all public officers collecting moneys payable to the Commonwealth, or any agency thereof, and all receipts of appropriations from the Commonwealth and imposing penalties; affecting every department, board, commission, and officer of the State government, every political subdivision of the State, and certain officers of such subdivisions, every person, association, and corporation required to pay, assess, or collect taxes, or to make returns or reports under the laws imposing taxes for State purposes, or to pay license fees or other moneys to the Commonwealth, or any agency thereof, every State depository and every debtor or creditor of the Commonwealth," by changing and restricting the right of the Commonwealth to impose interest on unpaid tax and bonus when such tax and bonus are not settled within a certain period of time.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. DAVID P. REESE, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General for the purpose of further study and possible amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 90, as follows:

An Act to further amend sections five hundred three and eleven hundred eight of the act, approved the ninth day of April, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 343), entitled "An act relating to the finances of the State government; providing for the settlement, assessment, collection, and lien of taxes, bonus, and all other accounts due the Commonwealth, the collection and recovery of fees and other money or property due or belonging to the Commonwealth, or any agency thereof, including escheated property and the proceeds of its sale, the custody and disbursement or other disposition of funds and securities belonging to or in the possession of the Commonwealth, and the settlement of claims against the Commonwealth, the resettlement of accounts and appeals to the courts, refunds of moneys erroneously paid to the Commonwealth, auditing the accounts of the Commonwealth and all agencies thereof, of all public officers collecting moneys payable to the Commonwealth, or any agent thereof, and all receipts of appropriations from the Commonwealth and imposing penalties; affecting every department, board, commission, and officer of the State government, every political subdivision of the State, and certain officers of such subdivisions, every person, association, and corporation required to pay, assess, or collect taxes, or to make returns or reports under the laws imposing taxes for State purposes, or to pay license fees or other moneys to the Commonwealth, or any agency thereof, every State depository and every debtor of the Commonwealth," by allowing interest on certain cash and credit refunds due from the Commonwealth; further regulating the procedure relative to refunds; providing an appeal to court from an adverse decision of the Board of Finance and Revenue on petitions for refund in certain cases; providing for appellate review of adverse decisions in such appeals; further defining the right to pay accounts without prejudice to the rights of resettlement, review and appeal; and providing for payment of interest by the Commonwealth on certain overpayment or credits.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. DAVID P. REESE, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General for the purpose of further study and possible amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 26

Mr. SORG. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 26, Printer's No. 59.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 23, 1943.

The call of the Nation for civilian help in the successful prosecution of the war and the defense of our homeland has resulted in the enlistment of hundreds of thousands of Pennsylvania's citizens in civilian war service.

For more than two years these patriotic men and women have faithfully and conscientiously served the Nation. Heedless of the time and effort and sacrifice required and intent only upon performing some service for the Nation in its hour of need, they have assumed important positions in State, County and Local Councils of Defense, Selective Service Boards, War Price Boards, Rationing Boards, Red Cross Chapters, including Blood Banks and Nurses' Aide Corps, Aircraft Observation Posts, Civil Air Patrol, Reserve Defense Corps, and auxiliaries thereof, or with some particular work connected with other agencies or boards of the Federal or State Government engaged in furthering the war effort.

The persons performing this patriotic work are prominent citizens of their respective communities, they serve without compensation and perform a necessary and valuable service.

The unselfish devotion of these men and women who have so generously changed their method of life and have sacrificed time, money and often friendships in order to be of assistance to their country deserves public recognition, therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, recognizing the importance of the patriotic work being performed by these men and women for the common good and for the successful prosecution of the war, hereby extends to them the thanks of the Commonwealth and assures them of the lasting gratitude of its people; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of this House of Representatives shall forward sufficient copies of this Resolution to the State Council of Defense to provide for transmittal thereof to the various boards, organizations and agencies in which these persons are performing their duties.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

It was adopted.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

FORMER MEMBER WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. We have present with us a former Member of this House from Centre County, now a Lieutenant in the Navy, Mr. Kenneth G. Haines. We would like to have our former Member from Centre County rise in his place.

CONGRATULATIONS EXTENDED

The SPEAKER. Our genial reading clerk has a birthday today. Mr. Ralph Bagaley is thirty-six years old today and we would like to have him rise and say "Hello."

CONGRATULATIONS EXTENDED

The SPEAKER. The Chair has not heard of a resolution concerning an increase in the family of one of the Members from Lancaster, but did receive a cigar, so there certainly must be some truth in the rumor. The Chair would like to have the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Alspach, stand and receive the congratulations of the Speaker as well as of the Members of the House on the arrival of a new son. The Chair suggests that we have a speech.

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate very much the plaudits of the Members of the House and thank them for their kind congratulations.

Last Tuesday evening I was enjoying the hospitality of the Governor but you know, Mr. Speaker, the best laid plans of mice and men sometimes go astray. I received a telephone call and proceeded as quickly as possible to my home in Lancaster. I shall not tell you how fast I got there because I do not want to make any declaration against interest as far as the thirty-five mile an hour speed limit is concerned. I walked into the maternity ward of the hospital in full dress suit, and I can assure you the sweet young nurses gave me a rather funny look to see this odd-looking individual walking about at half past eleven at night dressed in that attire.

Anyway we have a son and we also have a daughter. I appreciate very much all your good wishes. Incidentally, I forgot to tell you what his name is. I looked in my little roster of the Members which I carry in my pocket and I discovered there were six Members of the House named "David." We also had planned on that name, so we can say he is named after six Members of the House.

RESOLUTION

Mr. THOMPSON offered a condolence resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent to have six signatures thereto.

The SPEAKER. This is not a privileged resolution and will be filed with the Clerk under the Rules.

BILLS SIGNED BY SPEAKER

Bills numbered and entitled as follows having been prepared for presentation to the Governor and the same bein correct, the titles were publicly read as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 23.

An Act to further amend section one and to amend section four of the act, approved the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven (P. L. 2460), entitled "An act creating a Joint Legislative Commission, to be known as the Joint State Government Commission; providing for the appointment of its members; and defining its powers and duties," changing the number of members and providing further for the terms thereof; and further defining its powers and duties and amplifying the provisions relating to appropriations.

SENATE BILL No. 24.

An Act to further amend section nine of the act, approved the ninth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and eleven (P. L. 736), entitled "An act making appropriations to institutions not wholly managed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, liens on the premises of such institutions for the use of the Commonwealth, and providing for the collection thereof," authorizing the use of, and appropriating the proceeds of insurance for rebuilding, reequipping and repairing of property subject to lien.

Whereupon,

The SPEAKER, in the presence of the House, signed the same.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. FREED asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, the Governor said in his message if there are any laws that should be changed, change them. Before you start to consider what might be an increase in this state I would like to read just a few words that I have noted on this little note. I believe it is one of our most important ends to consider and not forget, and that is in relation to some of the people that have been forgotten in this entire work that we are doing during these war times. I am referring to no other than the aged.

I would like to talk on the Home Front of America and some of its neglected people—Namely: Old Age Assistance.

I have a Bill, No. 98, that was put in this House on January 26, 1943, trying to raise the Old Age Assistance from thirty to forty dollars maximum a month. I would like to point out to you, Mr. Speaker and fellow members of the House, that there are a lot of falsehoods or misstatements circulating on this subject and for that reason I would appreciate your attention for a few minutes.

I will ask you please, to check same in your home county and if it is in Lehigh County it must be elsewhere in this state of ours—we owe a lot to these people that have no means of pressure groups or moneys to help push a bill through the House. I would like to refer you first to your county jail—what is the cost per prisoner—according to our Wardens report on February 11, 1943, Lehigh County paid $682.73 for each prisoner for the year 1942 against $526.27 for the year of 1941 or $56.88 per month for 1942. Average 76 daily.

I make reference to the prisoners because most of them are very much responsible for their condition while those on old age are mostly in their condition because about fifteen or twenty years ago someone got the idea that a man at forty must be put on the shelf—they had no income and those that had a little something saved for a rainy day or had some little business they were trying to make a living with lost everything that entered into making the depression.

There was no social security for those people to protect them during their last years of life so there was nothing left for them but Relief or Old Age, now we are trying to make those people live on thirty dollars or a basis of that.

In checking, Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, please check who it is that is getting more and what kind of homes are receiving more money. The funny part of the Joker is this, that for years we have been sending Missionaries to foreign countries which is just and proper, we are giving and believe very much in giving to all kinds of agencies for Foreign Relief but what about the Home Front, are we going to let our own people down?

I have referred to prisoners costing $56.88 per month—there is not a cent of that—that goes for that old term, plain rent, because the property has no mortgage or no landlord to collect the rent. Most of these old people are mothers and fathers of our friends or neighbors and these same people are the ones that were running this state, county or town twenty-five to sixty years ago, and I ask you, are we going to let those people down now or are we going to give them a little something to live on?

Your local agencies will try to tell you that the law is only thirty dollars and in the last few months we are allowing more up to forty dollars a month. Why? Because the Federal Government will by law go for half of the cost as long as they go according to these rules and regulations—which in this case—if we should give these people money on the basis of our Federal Government—yes, it would increase our cost on old age but our prison increased its cost from 1941 to 1942 about twenty-five per cent giving them now $56.88 against thirty dollars or the increase—you will find the individual is getting from $30.40 to $31.40 or four per cent increase. Is that the way to treat our fellowman on the home front? We give these institutions housing old age forty dollars and I believe that it costs less to feed large numbers or in mass feeding against one or two people units—these people have been able to get from the Department of Public Assistance the limit without law but the fellow living alone gets $30.40 or $31.20—the institutions that do mass feeding or feeding in volume get forty dollars and in a lot of cases these homes are places that take donations and in some cases have moneys out on mortgages and the person that lives with some relative must go to court to make his brother or sister keep him or scare them into keeping him or her even though it creates a hardship and eats up the little means they may have—but these people or institutions that have money and accept donations—our Department of Public Assistance sees fit to give them the limit without law on some ruling from the Department.

I feel that, we, as a body should check this at our home county—let us be a missionary on our home front and try to do the humane thing in helping these old people—the dad and mother of someone like ourselves—and if you find what I have said to be true and I know you will find it that way—I will ask at a later date to put in a Resolution to check the Department of Public Assistance—why institutions of charity can get state aid of forty dollars against the individual at $30.40 or $31.20.

Mr. Speaker, in the pamphlet you received last week on public assistance you will see a chart where they contemplate the giving of forty dollars, but if you check in your own county you will find that certain institutions which have this mass feeding have no rental to pay and yet have been able to get forty dollars a month, against the individual getting anywhere from ten dollars on up to $31.20 and $32.40.

I ask you, Members of the House, not to go by what it says there but make it a law that these people will be treated uniformly, and not that some individuals can be favored along the line.

COMMITTEE MEETINGS

There will be meetings of the committees on:

Game, Tuesday, March 2, at 10:30 a. m., Room 331.

Judiciary General, Tuesday, March 2, at 11 a. m., Room 325.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Legislative Journal.

Session 1943. 135th of the General Assembly.

Vol. 27. HARRISBURG, PA., TUESDAY, MARCH 2, 1943. No. 21.

SENATE

TUESDAY, March 2, 1943.

The Senate met at 4:00 o'clock, p. m., Eastern War Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor John C. Bell, Jr.) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. EDWIN S. WALLACE, D.D., offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, whose favor is life, and whose loving-kindness is better than life, Thy favor has been shown to us as a nation and Thy loving-kindness has been granted in large measure to each of us. We should be a grateful people, and should show our gratitude by a consistent observance of Thy perfect law, for "the law of the Lord is perfect." Observance of it leads to honor and to peace. Violation of that law leads to decay and eventual destruction. From such a tragedy, O God, deliver us.

Wherein we have departed from the faith and godly practices of the fathers and founders of our nation, we pray for repentence and forgiveness. Enable us to return to the sure foundation of righteousness which "exalteth a nation."

We bring before Thee for Thy favor President Roosevelt, Governor Martin and Lieutenant-Governor Bell. May they, and all of us, be led to "Seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness," in the assurance that all other things shall be added unto us.

In the name of Christ, our Lord, we offer this prayer. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. HEYBURN and Mr. SCARLETT, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

STATEMENT BY THE CHAIR

The PRESIDENT. The Chair wishes to advise the members of the Senate that a number of Senators are attending a parole hearing before the Committee on Judiciary General, and it is to be hoped that they will be here shortly.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, under the heading of Petitions and Remonstrances, I would like to say that I hold what might be called a remonstrance in my hand, concerning which I desire to talk with the gentleman from Lehigh, Senator Tallman, in connection with Senate Bill No. 52, which was passed on second reading yesterday. I was wondering if I might call up this order of business later in the session.

The PRESIDENT. Very well. If there is no objection we will return to that order of business when the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Barr, notifies the Chair he so desires.

HOUSE MESSAGES

HOUSE BILL FOR CONCURRENCE AND REFERENCE

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced presented for concurrence bill of the House, as follows:

House Bill No. 85, entitled:

An Act to further amend section twenty-one of the act, approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred fifteen (P. L. 900), entitled "Vital Statistics Law," providing that certified copies of birth, death and marriage records shall be given free of charge to men and women in the military service of the United States, and to their dependents.

Which was committed to the Committee on Public Health.

TIME OF NEXT MEETING

He also informed the Senate that the House has concurred in resolution from the Senate as follows:

In the Senate, March 1, 1943.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That when the Senate adjourns this week, it reconvene on Monday evening, March 8, 1943, at four o'clock, and when the House of Representatives adjourns this week, it reconvene on Monday evening, March 8, 1943, at nine o'clock.

He also presented an extract from the Journal of the House of Representatives, which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

THANKS EXTENDED TO VOLUNTEER WAR WORKERS

In the House of Representatives, February 24, 1943.

The call of the Nation for civilian help in the successful prosecution of the war and the defense of our homeland has resulted in the enlistment of hundreds of thousands of Pennsylvania's citizens in civilian war service.

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of this House of Representatives shall forward sufficient copies of this Resolution to the State Council of Defense to provide for transmittal thereof to the various boards, organizations and agencies in which these persons are performing their duties.

RULE 39 SUSPENDED

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Rule 39, which requires resolutions be referred to an appropriate committee, be dispensed with and the Senate proceed to the consideration of the foregoing resolution.

Which was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES

Mr. CARR, from the Committee on Insurance, reported as amended, Senate Bill No. 133, entitled:

An Act to further amend subsection (c) of section two hundred two of the act, approved the seventeenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one (P. RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

SECRETARY OF HIGHWAYS TO ACQUIRE BRIDGE CROSSING THE SUSQUEHANNA RIVER AT HARRISBURG

Mr. WADE offered the following resolution which was twice read and referred to the Committee on Highways.

In the Senate of Pennsylvania, March 2, 1943.

Wartime restrictions to conserve critical materials have virtually ended Pennsylvania's normal highway construction and reconstruction programs for the duration of the war.

Privately-owned toll bridges—which could logically and legally be obtained by the Commonwealth without curtailing or obstructing the Commonwealth's program of extensive post-war highway improvements—now act as bottlenecks, impeding and taxing war-essential traffic.

The Act of April 27, 1927, P. L. 395, and its amendments, authorizes the Department of Highways to acquire toll bridges within the Commonwealth, and the Constitutional Amendment adopted in November, 1933, adding Section 16 to Article 9 of the Constitution, authorizes the issue of bonds to the amount of ten million dollars in order to raise sufficient money to take over many of these toll bridges.

Proceedings were begun several years ago in Dauphin and Cumberland Counties to take over one of the toll bridges crossing the Susquehanna River at Harrisburg, but were never terminated; therefore be it

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concurs), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby requests the Secretary of Highways to proceed immediately to acquire the bridge crossing the Susquehanna River at Harrisburg, known as the Market Street Bridge, either by continuing the proceedings heretofore started or to institute new proceedings; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate shall transmit a copy of this resolution to the Secretary of Highways.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. COX. Mr. President and members of the Senate, due to the hearing being held by the Committee on Judiciary General today it was impossible for me to be present in the Senate when we came to the order of business on Petitions and Remonstrances.

If it is the pleasure of the Senate, I would like permission to revert to that order of business.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none. The gentleman from Allegheny may proceed.

Mr. COX. Mr. President, as representatives of the people in a representative government, when the persons we represent send us petitions asking us to rectify a situation, particularly an economic situation which exists in our Commonwealth, I feel that it is our duty to present to the Senate the point of view of our constituents.

I have in my hand a group of petitions which I have received from the community in which I live, bearing the signatures of approximately ten thousand residents of that district. I would like to read that petition. This petition, from the Homestead District Public School Teachers' Legislative Committee, dated January 20, 1943, Homestead, Pa., is addressed to the Honorable David M. Boies, the Honorable Thomas Barrett, State Representatives, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and to myself and reads as follows:

"HOMESTEAD DISTRICT PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE

Homestead, Pa., January 20, 1943.

"The Hon. J. Fremont Cox
State Senator, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.
"The Hon. David M. Boies
The Hon. Thomas Barrett
State Representatives, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

"Gentlemen:

"Whereas the public school employees of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania are compensated for their services with salaries established by statute, and

"Whereas most public school districts of the Commonwealth find it impossible to increase employees' salaries above statutory limits, and

"Inasmuch as the cost of living has increased to such an extent and maintenance of a standard of living compatible with that expected of the teaching profession has become so difficult with current salaries paid to teachers,

"We, the teachers of the Homestead District, organized in special committee, consisting of representatives of the School Districts of Homestead, Munhall, West Homestead, Whitaker and Mifflin Township, and of the Eleventh Legislative District, and of the Forty-fifth Senatorial District, and affiliated in membership with the Pennsylvania State Education Association, earnestly urge you to give serious consideration to and affirmative action on legislation designed to appropriate State funds or to accept Federal subsidy providing increments in annual salaries to the teachers of Pennsylvania for the duration of the War and the existence of the current economic emergency.

"Attached herewith are appended the signatures of citizen voters and friends of Public Education in Pennsylvania, who are in sympathy with our appeal and who have indorsed this petition.

Respectfully submitted
HOMESTEAD DISTRICT PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE."

Mr. President, when I received these petitions, I will be frank and state that I did not know what to do with them. I regret now that on their reception I did not send them to the Governor of the Commonwealth.

For two months the members of this Legislature have anxiously anticipated the budget message of the Governor.

I have another document which I think is of interest to the members of this Senate. This is a type of document which is usually issued prior to an election campaign, and I am going to read item 5, dealing with education, which is an excerpt from the platform of the Republican Party, in the last gubernatorial campaign, as follows:

"5. EDUCATION.

"The Republican Party reaffirms that provision in the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania which states that "the General Assembly shall provide for the maintenance and support of a thorough and efficient system of public schools wherein all the children of the Commonwealth above the age of six years may be educated.

"To this end the Republican Party favors a broad program of education, academic and vocational, suited to the abilities, interests and needs of all of the children in our Commonwealth, and with special consideration for the rehabilitation of those handicapped citizens for whom the State accepts responsibility.

"We further believe that increased State financial aid should be given to local school districts to relieve tax burdens on real property and to equalize the opportunity for an adequate education for all of the children of the Commonwealth."

The next section is the section which interests me primarily.

"To compensate for rising costs of living in War-time, we favor increased teachers' salaries in order to maintain high efficiency in the public schools of Pennsylvania, and to retain a competent and well-trained teacher in every classroom, this increase to be paid by additional State appropriation instead of by local districts."

Gentlemen, I have no fault to find with the plank in this platform. If it was not a plank in the platform of the Democratic candidate for Governor, it should have been.

But, Mr. President, we, the members of the Legislature, today find ourselves in the position where the Governor of the Commonwealth has made no provision whatsoever for increased compensation to the teachers of this Commonwealth.

I spent many hours after we received the Governor's budget, scanning it in the hope that perhaps hidden in that budget was some item which I had not previously observed, but I found none, so we are faced with the dilemma of having a budget offered to us which does not make provision for compensation to the teachers of this Commonwealth. The buck has been passed to us and I know that every member of the Senate, regardless of whether he sits on the right or on the left side, will agree with me, in all sincerity, that it is our problem to find a solution to the problem of the teachers of the Commonwealth.

The budget is an interesting history of the development of the cost of public school education in Pennsylvania. I know that frequently, when it is necessary to vote on appropriation bills or bills increasing expenses of the Commonwealth, many of us have not any idea what the total cost will be to the Commonwealth at some future date.

It seems that the Legislature, in 1939 was truly conversant wit hthe problems of public education in Pennsylvania. I believe that we can say that this esssion of the Legislature of Pennsylvania was a liberal session.

and that great strides were towards a solution of the financial problems of many school districts which could not solve their financial problems themselves.

Under the item of transportation, which we find in the Governor's budget, we find that in ten years the increase in the cost of transportation of children to public schools, has increased three fold. We find in that period of time that the contribution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to individual school districts has increased thirty-six per cent.

Under the figures as set forth by the Governor in his budget, we find an amazing situation; we find that the increase in the amount of money paid by the Commonwealth to the school districts of the Commonwealth, in order to secure more adequate high school education, has increased from $500,000, almost overnight, to $6,000,000.

I find in scanning the budget that we have an increase in expenditures going to the districts of Pennsylvania of almost $9,000,000.

As I went through the budget I found one item which I did not understand, but which I believe to be a surplus. It provides a surplus of $12,000,000. I found another recommendation or request of the Governor, and that was that because of the war emergency there would be many exigencies which would have to be met and which are not contemplated at this time. The Governor suggested that a bond issue be floated to cover those exigencies, and so it may be that the solution to our financial problem is to use the $12,000,000 surplus of the Governor, and get any further funds we need from the proposed bond issue, if the use of money from a bond issue is constitutional for this purpose.

The Governor has recommended a reduction in taxes of approximately $41,000,000. I am certainly an advocate of tax reduction. I feel that many of the industries of this Commonwealth bear an increasing tax burden, which in many instances will compel them to go out of existence. It has been the experience, I know, of every lawyer in this Senate that many businesses, corporations, have had to dissolve because of the increased load of Federal and State taxes, and yet, when we talk of tax reduction, we can only reduce taxes when we have met all the emergencies which confront us.

If there is no other solution to the problem of providing funds for an adequate and living salary for our school teachers, then we can not cut taxes.

The figures are startling. It seems that the teachers of this Commonwealth have flooded us all with numerous supplications advocating the passage of the Cordier bill, or a bill of similar nature, requesting us to give to every school teacher and supervisor in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania the sum of $300 annually until the war emergency is over. When you realize that there are approximately 63,000 school teachers and supervisors in the Commonwealth, you can readily appreciate that it would cost this Commonwealth between $18,000,000 and $20,000,000 per annum, or between $36,000,000 and $40,000,000 per biennium. That is a staggering figure.

In the excerpt from the party platform of the Republican Party which I read there is a specific statement that any increase in moneys given to local communities, because of the emergency, for compensation of teachers, should be borne by the Commonwealth. I can not subscribe to that theory, which would be fine if it could be done, for we have a specific problem which we have to meet and we have to meet it honestly.

It was not my intent in reading this excerpt from the party platform of the Republican Party to attack the Republican Party. I merely read it because it was an indication to me that there were thinking people in the Republican Party who understood our problem.

From the statistics which I have been able to gather, if we were to give $300 to every teacher whose salary is less than $2,000 a year, it would cost the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania approximately $13,345,000 per annum. If we were to give $300 per annum to every teacher in districts making less than $1,500 per annum, it would cost the Commonwealth $8,764,800 per annum. If we were to give those same teachers, those making less than $1,500 per annum, $200 per annum, it would cost us $5,843,200. If we were to give them $100, it would cost us $2,921,600.

As we go down the bracket, Mr. President, we find when we get down to the lowest paid of all the teachers in the Commonwealth, those teachers who make less than $1,100 a year. If we were to give them $300 per annum, it would cost us $3,808,000 approximately. If we were to give them $200 per annum, it would cost us approximately $2,500,000. If we were to give them $100, it would cost approximately $1,270,000.

To me the tragedy is that these people are so unfamiliar with the facts in the case that they evidently have no realization of the resources the members of this Legislature have with which to do the things they would like to have us do.

I suggest this, however, that our Committee on Education go over this matter carefully and report back to this Senate proposed, workable and feasible legislation.

I can say that one thing that could be done would be to determine a ceiling, to say dogmatically that we could help persons within a certain salary bracket but we could do nothing for those above it. I can see where a bill could provide that there should be a definite fixed amount of increase during the emergency to all teachers within that ceiling, and that the State could provide that those districts which could or are financially in a position to provide the compensation, should provide it without any assistance from the State.

I am certain, Mr. President, that the facts, the statistical data which I have given you, will indicate that such a procedure would be necessary, and then, too, I believe that such a piece of legislation should provide that the Commonwealth could assist those districts which could partially help solve their own problems. There are communities in our Commonwealth, however, where the financial structure is such, and the amount of assessable wealth is so low, that it would be impossible to make any contribution to increased compensation for teachers. In those districts it will be the duty of the Commonwealth to provide the funds.

I know that the members of the Legislature are sincere in their desire to solve this problem, and I am only hoping that their sincerity will express itself in immediate action, so that I will not have to stay in Harrisburg until Saturday afternoon of next week because of the procession of people which come to my door.

To me the problem of those teachers in the lower brackets is one of abject poverty; it is not a question of maintaining a standard of living. It is a question of existence. We know that in the higher bracket, with those teachers with an income of $3,000 or $3,600, that unless we help them they will have to cut their standard of living. We know, too, that they have made financial commitments dependent on their standard of living, that they have financial obligations, they have children to educate, they have homes with mortgages on them, and they, too, have a problem. It is peculiar to our civilization that at a time when the greatest period of prosperity which ever descended on our country is pouring its benefits into the laps of workers, that one profession, highly specialized, highly educated, highly able to make an important contribution to our democratic form of government, should be in the financial jeopardy in which it now finds itself.

One other point. In perusing the Governor's budget it indicates a trend, a trend of the times, and I say frankly a time when the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will over the entire educational program of the State, when that time comes, and I hope it is not in the too distant future, we are going to fulfill the ideal of platform No. 5; we are going to have universal free education which we can provide for all the children of the Commonwealth regardless of the geographical district in which they live.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. SHAPIRO asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, now that we have returned to this order of business, I want to take this opportunity of expressing my remonstrance to the picture that I have seen and to the action of the Senate yesterday, in line with what has been said by the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Cox.

Yesterday we passed a bill, a proposed amendment to the constitution, providing that no money in the motor license fund shall be used except for the specific purpose therein outlined and, in effect, creating a special fund for motor license fees which could not, under the law, be used except for the designated purposes of road construction, bridges, and so forth.

The gentleman from Allegheny has read to you a platform pledge of the Governor of this Commonwealth, that he would provide teachers with a decent standard of living under present existing conditions. The answer is that there is no money with which to provide that now, although there is $12,000,000 surplus in the budget. I made it my business to examine the budget and I find this amazing figure, which I think will interest all the members of the Senate.

The estimated receipts for the biennium, 1941-1943, from the motor license fun, is $149,815,000. If you look at pages 44 and 45 of the budget, you will find that the Governor sets out in the budget the fact that there will be at the end of the biennium, May 31, 1943, a surplus of $36,000,000 in the motor fund. The estimated receipts for the next biennium in the motor license fund are $99,000,000. The estimated expenditure for road work this biennium was $129,000,000, of which according to the records that I have just looked at, $117,000,000 has been spent; there is still $12,000,000 unexpended.

Estimated receipts for this year may be very low, because up until the present time, of that $149,000,000, there has already been collected $147,000,000; of that figure $127,000,000 is the figure to March 1, 1943, and that means that March, April and May are yet to be collected, in order to complete the motor license fund this year, and from the collections as I see them now, I think we will exceed the $149,815,000 estimated.

There is a situation in Pennsylvania which has just been referred to, concerning the school teachers. The school teachers in some districts get no more than $1,000 a year. Many of you have had the experience in the last six or eight months, that you cannot get a maid in your house, who will stay there and who will get at least two meals a day in your home, for less than $18 or $20 a week. Here you have people who have spent most of their lives in educating themselves for a specific profession, and they are getting $1,000 a year.

My protest, Mr. President, is this: there is over $40,000,000 lying in the reserve. Look at the account in the Highway Department and you will find that they have set up a reserve of $40,000,000—the exact figure is, reserve, $40,780,480. What for?

Next year they will be able to construct and maintain roads at less expenditures than now. The war situation makes it impossible to engage in new construction. You mean to say that we are to sit idly by and see this money, which is contributed from all parts of the State, lie idly by while the Governor speaks of creating a bond issue of $50,000,000 or $60,000,000, on which we will have to pay interest, to help plan and provide for the post war period, and at the same time not make any provision for school teachers, who do not even have a decent living wage?

I rise to say to you that I remonstrate against that condition and take this opportunity to preesnt these facts to you, so that you may know the effect of some of the legislation that we are passing here, and the neglect that we are showing in important vital problems and for the functions that are being carried out, governmental functions by some people who do not earn a decent living.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. HEYBURN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I want to congratulate the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Cox, upon the fine impartial way he has looked at the problem now confronting school districts in Pennsylvania. I want to assure him that every member of the Senate on this side, and I am sure the Legislature as a whole, has the same feeling. So does the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The problem, Mr. President, is simply this: If we are going to spend $38,000,000 or $40,000,000 for the biennium, it is going to be necessary to levy new taxes. That is the cold, unhappy truth of the situation and the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Cox, has touched upon it.

I assure him, Mr. President, after having talked with the Governor of the Commonwealth, if the Legislature can work out some sort of a tax scheme that they can sell to the public, he will be glad to sign it.

I have all the feeling in the world for the school teachers in Pennsylvania, especially those from fourth class school districts. There is no doubt that the increased cost of living has placed quite an extra burden upon them. I would like for just one moment, if I may, to dwell upon certain other groups; I would like to talk about the great mass of farm laborers and farmers in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, who are sold out daily by the sheriff because they can not make enough money to pay their taxes. That is the other very unhappy side of the situation, and I think, Mr. President, if we can, both parties, sit down here and work out some sort of a scheme that will provide the necessary revenue, and, at the same time, not further penalize those unhappy groups that are being forced into bankruptcy, there is no doubt in my mind that is will receive the approval of the Governor of Pennsylvania.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. MALLERY asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President and members of the Senate, our President—I am referring to the President of our country—and other leaders have stated that we can only win this war through sweat and tears and blood and sacrifice on the part of everyone living in America.

There was just one statement made by my esteemed colleague from Allegheny County, Senator Cox, that I did not quite like, and that is his statement that the Governor was passing the buck to the Legislature. I feel that if there is any one thing that our Government wants to do it is to cooperate in every possible way, in every way that he can, in aiding our President and the National Government in winning this war. He is not passing the buck when he has told us that there will be no "must" legislation. It is our function to determine what taxes shall be raised.

I think it is the duty of every member of the Legislature to sit down and work together to determine how we can take care of and provide additional income for those who are doing so much, and I refer to the teachers of our Commonwealth, especially those in the lower brackets.

I am not disclosing any secrets, Mr. President, when I state that I learned for the first time today that those who are employed to investigate people who have been charged with and convicted of crime, are being paid a minimum of $1,860 and as high as $2,400 per year.

It seems to me that our school teachers are certainly entitled to more than a minimum of $1,050 per annum. I think we should sit down and determine where we can save money. The Governor wants to have this State solvent. He wants to have a little back-log, because neither he nor anyone else in the Commonwealth knows the demands that may be made upon the State Treasury before this war is over. He wants to have a little back-log to take care of any emergency. It seems to me that is sound thinking.

Mr. President, the Governor wants to be in a position, after this war is over and when millions of young men return home, that we will have a back-log in order that we can provide some gainful employment for them, so that they will not be put on WPA or on public assistance.

I think that we can well consider the repeal of the present parole law. $1,000,000 can be provided for our teachers by the repeal of that law and, possibly, an additional $100,000, or more, could be provided for additional parole officers. A few amendments may be necessary to the old parole law to improve it. What they most need, to my mind, is more parole officers. Possibly, as I stated, $100,000, or more, could be provided for that purpose, and I am certain that the Governor is not passing the buck when he asks us to work this problem out. It is our duty. Let us do it.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. HOLLAND asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, since a plank was put into the Republican platform to give aid to teachers, I believe that some explanation should be given this Senate as to just how the Republican Party had planned to carry out that plank.

I quite agree with the gentleman from Altoona, Senator Mallery, when he states that the Governor should not dictate to the Legislature. I also point out to the gentleman from Altoona that the Governor of the State is the head of the Republican Party and, as the head of the Republican Party, he should show the way to the Legislature, especially to the majority members of the Legislature, the Republicans, as to how this plank shall be carried out.

However, up to date, none of the Republican Senators or the Republican Legislators or the Governor have given proof that when this plank was written, they had the plan and the intent to carry out this platform.

I believe that the Governor has a moral obligation to be the leader of his party and also to insist that his party carry out the platform upon which they were elected.

CALENDAR

BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE OVER IN ORDER

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 85, an final passage, entitled:

A Joint Resolution making application to the Congress of the United States to call a convention for proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, prohibiting the imposition of conditions upon grants of moneys and the invasion of the states rights

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. Yes, Mr. President

Mr. SHAPIRO. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia state the reason for asking that this bill go over in order.

Mr. KEPHART. The reason is very obvious, Mr. President; we do not have enough votes to pass it but we will next week.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I just want the record, as well as our eyes to show that fact.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, let the record please show also that there are several absentees on the Republican side, and also on the Democratic side.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

BILLS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 103, entitled:

An Act authorizing the common pleas judges and the county commissioners jointly to create medical clinics for the examination of certain persons convicted of the commission of a crime prior to the sentencing thereof as a means of decreasing the number of habitual offenders providing for the creation of joint medical clinics among the several counties and imposing the costs of maintaining and operating such clinics upon the county or counties creating the same

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 In each county the common pleas judges and the county commissioners shall be and they are hereby constituted a board which is hereby authorized if a majority of the members thereof deem it desirable and adviseable to create a mental clinic which mental clinic shall pass upon the mental and physical condition of all persons convicted of any crime who are (1) first offenders when requested by the court (2) obviously mental cases (3) convicted of sex offenses or (4) alcoholic or narcotic cases

Such examinations shall be made and a report of each thereof shall be presented to the sentencing judge prior to the imposition of any sentence upon any such person

Section 2 The medical clinic shall examine each such person for the purpose of determining if either the physical or mental condition of the person convicted attributed directly or indirectly to the commission of the crime and to recommend the curative or corrective treatment available for such persons so as to prevent or which is calculated to prevent or lessen the possibility of such persons becoming habitual offenders

Section 3 If the board shall create a medical clinic under the provisions of this act the minimum number of appointees thereof shall be one psychiatrist who shall be the director of such clinic one psychologist and such investigators and clerical help as is needed and the board shall fix the compensation paid to each such appointee.

Section 4 The salaries paid to the appointees of the clinic the accommodation equipment and costs of operation thereof shall be upon the county in which such clinic is established and the county commissioners are hereby authorized to determine the total amount to be spent for the maintenance and operation of such clinics

Section 5 Two or more counties may join in the creation of a joint clinic if a majority of the judges of the common pleas court and the county commissioners of each county joining therein deem the establishment of such a joint medical clinic desirable and advisable in which event the costs of maintaining and operating such joint clinic shall be proportional between or among the counties joining in such clinic subject however upon a majority of the county commissioners in such joint board approving the total expenditures required for the maintenance and operation of such a joint clinic

Section 6 All acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

NAYS—0

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 116, entitled:

An Act to further amend section one of the act approved the twenty-fourth day of July one thousand nine hundred and thirteen (P. L. 1013) entitled "An act regulating the issuance of licenses to marry prohibiting the issuance of such licenses to certain persons regulating the time during which licenses shall be valid and the time when returns shall be made of marriages solemnized to the clerk of the orphans' court and prescribing the duties of the clerk of the orphans' court" by providing that during the continuation of the present war the three day waiting period shall not be required in any case in which one of the applicants for a marriage license is in the armed forces of the United States

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 Section one of the act approved the twenty-fourth day of July one thousand nine hundred and thirteen (P. L. 1013) entitled "An act regulating the issuance of licenses to marry prohibiting the issuance of such licenses to certain persons regulating the time during which licenses shall be valid and the time when returns shall be made of marriages solemnized to the clerk of the orphans' court and prescribing the duties of the clerk of the orphans' court" as last amended by the act approved the seventh day of May one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five (P. L. 152) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 1 Be it enacted &c That no license to marry shall be issued except after three days from the day of making application therefor and upon written and verified application to the clerk of the orphans' court Provided That in cases of emergency or extraordinary circumstances a judge of the orphans' court may authorize the license to be issued at any time before the expiration of said three days Provided also That during the continuation of the present war the said three day waiting period shall not be required in any case in which one of the applicants is in the armed forces of the United States and exhibits to the clerk of the Orphans' Court his affidavit of military service and setting forth therein the organization and branch of the service to which he is attached Such application shall contain a statement of the full Christian name and surname color occupation birthplace residence and ages of the parties whether the marriage contemplated is the first second or other marriage and that neither of the contracting parties is afflicted with a transmissible disease together with the full Christian name and surname residence color occupation and birthplace of their parents including the maiden name of the mother together with such other facts as may be necessary to determine whether any legal impediment to the proposed marriage exists Such application shall be recorded by the clerk together with the license and certificate of marriage in a book provided for that purpose which book shall be a public record

Section 2 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, speaking on Senate Bill No. 116, Printer's No. 36, when this bill first appeared on the Calendar, I talked to various members of the Senate and told them that this bill recalled to my mind a very fine sermon I heard some five or six weeks ago, by Dr. Thomas F. Coakley, of the city of Pittsburgh. Dr. Coakley is a veteran of the last war, and in his sermon that day he told about when his regiment went to France there were 3,600 men, and of those 3,600 men, 3,100 did not return. He went on to say, in speaking of some of these war marriages, that every precaution should be used to hold and try wherever possible to—I do not like the word "frown," but to discourage these hasty war marriages. He told of various cases that happened in his congregation, and also privately told me of finding in their own high school two girls, fifteen years of age, who were wearing diamond engagement rings from soldiers from outside the State of Pennsylvania who were just temporarily in Allegheny County.

Mr. President, I know in talking against a bill like this, people may think, or some in the armed forces, that probably we do not understand all their problems. I think that absolutely we do. There is ample opportunity for any army man on leave to secure a marriage license at present by going to a judge of the Orphans' Court and getting the three day law waived; and I think that this bill might make it just a little bit easier, and morally, in my opinion, that is the incorrect thing to do.

I would like to tell the members of the Senate just one case, another case that he spoke to me about. He told me there was a young man who appeared at his rectory and wanted to marry a certain girl in his congregation. He asked this young man if he had ever been married before, and the young man said no, and that he was willing to take an affidavit that he had not been married. Fortunately, they have ways of checking, and he did get in touch with the chaplain in the city of Baltimore at the camp where this man formerly was, and he learned that not only was this man married before, but he was also engaged to a girl in the city of Baltimore, yet was willing to take an affidavit that he had never been married before and that he was not engaged to any other girl. As Dr. Coakley referred to him, he was a modern Romeo from the city of Baltimore.

You know and I know, Mr. President, that there are men in these various camps, coming to these various cities, from every part of the country. You know the human body is weak, and young girls, here and there, go for the glamour, of a uniform. I think, in passing a bill like this, we are making a mistake. I believe that anything we can do for the boys in the armed service we should do, any way we can protect them we should protect them, and I think the three day law, in many ways, is a protection for those boys.

Mr. President, I would like to read to the members of the Senate a telegram I received from Dr. Thomas F. Coakley, whom I consider one of the outstanding, if not the outstanding, clergyman in Allegheny County. It is as follows:

"Undersigned pastor of Sacred Heart Church, Pittsburgh, wishes to voice his personal protest and to add to it the united protest of the nine thousand persons in this parish to Senate Bill 116, proposing to lower the time required for war marriages. Situation in and around Pittsburgh and from countless other portions of the state indicate a most serious situation is developing by reason of (I should like you to get this wording) unconsidered marriages of men in the service and the present laws hould remain unchanged as they provide ample opportunity in case of a real emergency. We are looking to you to prevent any further letting down of the safeguard the present law has set up to preserve the dignity and permanency and the happiness of marriages and we all feel Senate Bill 116 is a step in the wrong direction. Rev. Thomas F. Coakley"

Mr. President, in talking with various members of the Senate, they told me "Well, our problem is just a little bit different; we in the rural counties at times have difficulty in locating an Orphans' Court judge." Of course, in the metropolitan areas we do not have much difficulty in locating judges, and I think on such an important thing as marriage, that waiving of a law passed by the Legislature prescribing this three day waiting period is wrong; I do not see why it should be so difficult to locate an Orphan's Court judge; I do not know of one Orphans' Court judge in this State who is so busy that he can not be on the job and be able to pass on a case as it is presented to him.

A judge is a gentleman who is always looked up to in a community, and I think that the dignity of the Court will prevent young men from coming in there and not putting the circumstances to the Court as they are, but if you take and put this power in the clerk of the Court, I think it takes the robe of the Court and the dignity of the Court away, and young men coming in, trying to arrange for one of these hurried marriages, may not just tell him everything that is the truth.

I ask, Mr. President—I do not ask the members on the left or the members on the right—I ask the members of the Senate as a body to consider what I have said when they are voting on this bill.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I first was inclined to vote for this bill, until I reread the bill, and I am wondering whether the sponsor of the bill would not give consideration to what has been referred to, and which I would like to emphasize.

On page 2, line 17 of this bill, it says: "Provided that in cases of emergency or extraordinary circumstances a Judge of the Orphan's Court may authorize the license to be issued at any time before the expiration of said three days."

Mr. President, there has been a great deal of talk publicly, in the newspapers, and otherwise, with respect to these soldier marriages. There is a group who say that since a girl is going around with a soldier anyway, that it would be much better that they be married before he goes, at least let them have the joy of being man and wife, and let him have something to look forward to when he comes back.

On the other hand, there are so many cases of ill-considered situations, where even the parents are not considered, that are possible under this amendment. This amendment makes it possible for my daughter or your daughter, without consultation, and carried away by the glamour of a uniform, by the thought of a man going away and never seeing him again, to marry without even consultation with the parents, and she can walk in, under this bill as I read it, to any clerk of a court authorized to issue licenses, procure a license to marry a man whom she has met the day before or maybe a week before, without having discussed the matter with anybody.

Even if there is a real emergency, I have had the experience of walking into the Orphans' Court with a soldier who had been on leave for two weeks, his leave was canceled or reduced to four days. He went into the Orphans' Court, and under the proviso clause of this act, was granted permission to get a license. What other situation could you think of that would be more extraordinary than that, when you are considering what you are dealing with, which is the whole future of two young people?

As to older men, the situation is not as serious as it is with younger people, and, when we are getting to the point where we are taking eighteen year old boys into the service, it seems to me there should be a little more careful consideration of this matter.

I do not know what group sponsored the bill, what is the basis for it. I may be all wrong, but I do not think the fact that an Orphans' Court judge is twenty miles away is any reason why they cannot travel twenty miles to get permission to present the facts to him, and at least let that mature person listen to what the emergency is, what is the situation that requires the waiver of the three day law; what is the situation that requires the absence of the parents and their consent to such marriage, and it seems to me that that ought to be explained to the members of the Senate before we vote on this bill.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I intend to vote against this bill. I expected that the first one who would speak on this matter would be the Nestor of the Senate, Senator Woodward, because with certain bills he has always tried to provide safeguards against hasty marriages. I have been in the Committee on Judiciary General as his faithful Sancho Panza when he proposed certain limitations upon the speed of marriages after divorces are obtained. It reminds me of the sign which I see at many crossroads in Pennsylvania, "a moment of haste, a lifetime of regret."

Now, Mr. President, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, and the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Barr, covered admirably the reasons underlying their objection to this bill. I believe that in this day and age, when everything is in a constant flux, it is up to us to provide safeguards against hasty marriages, and that is the reason why we ought to set an example against haste on such questions as important as morals.

Mr. CRIDER. Mr. President, if it would simply be a matter of putting up the bars for my colleague, Joe Barr, in case of a marriage license, I might go along with him. However, the instance stated by Mr. Barr would happen irrespective of this bill. The controversy which has arisen on the floor here means very little, because first of all, the physical requirement is not waived—that must be done within thirty days—so they do not necessarily enter into this contract without thinking of it to some extent; that still stands, even under this bill.

Mr. President, what this bill provides is not a waiver of the three days, putting something new into the act, where you are letting down the bars. It simply changes the form by which the three days may be waived. At the present time it is waived by Court order, and under this bill, it will be waived by affidavit filed with the clerk.

While Philadelphia and Pittsburgh have quite a few

Orphan's Court judges, out in the country we do not have quite so many, and in one of my particular counties, the judge sits in Adams County, travels fifty miles across Franklin into Fulton County and sits over there. While they do have associate judges, they are not always available, and in our own county, where we have one judge, and he has left for a week-end, there is no way of getting an order.

Therefore, Mr. President, it is not letting down the bars on the three day waiting period. It would not change the circumstances related by my colleague from Allegheny, Mr. Barr; but it would give a soldier an opportunity to be married at home, and where I live, fifteen miles from the Maryland line, they could say, "never mind, I will go over to Hagerstown," and many of them do it. Therefore letting down of the bars mentioned in the telegram means little, because they are not let down. The physical examination still stands and must be complied with. The three days applies to civilians and that still stands. The only difference is, a man home on leave has the apportunity, under the circumstances, to be married at home instead of going to Maryland, and the three day waiting period is waived by affidavit rather than petition when a judge cannot be found.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I disagree with my colleague from Allegheny County, Mr. Barr. I have had a little experience in this particular field, because Mr. President, in a county such as mine many of the young fellows in the armed forces come home and oft times get in touch with their State representatives for their counsel and advice on such matters, and being a well established married man, I ofttimes tell them what I think they ought to do; in most instances I tell them not to get married, but in most instances they do. It so happens, Mr. President, the Orphans' Court judge, in many cases, does not even see the couple that is going to get married. In more cases than one, that I know of, the Register of Wills just calls the judge on the phone and says, "I have a soldier down here with a young lady and they want a special permit to get married, and he grants them the permit and a license and away they go, a happy married couple, so the judge does not see them, nor does he pass upon the qualifications of the man or the girl.

Mr. President, there is nothing to it except for the fact that these boys who are leaving right now, at this particular time, for overseas duty, come home, perhaps for one day, and they have made previous arrangements, have had their blood tests taken, have had their physical and medical examinations certified to, so that when they come home they can get married and, in ninety cases of a hundred, they have known each other for a great many years.

Mr. President, this overnight marriage business would happen just exactly under the present law as it would under this bill. I think that this is a good bill, and in many instances, in the rural counties, it will give some soldier an opportunity to carry away with him a picture of his wife waiting for him at home when he comes back.

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President and members of the Senate, I am inclined to agree with my friend from Franklin, Senator Crider. However, as to Senator Stiefel, I realize that it is love's labor lost and therefore he is against this bill.

As I said before, I am for it.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, I do not think it is a credit to this Senate that this bill should be turned into a joke, because it is no joke for the Army or the Navy or any of the armed forces. If you have taken the trouble to read any of the articles in the newspapers on this subject, and especially meetings of people who are trying to combat what are known as social diseases, you will know it is a very serious problem.

I expect to vote against this bill, if for no other reason, that it does tend to destroy parental authority, and heaven knows there is very little of that left and any bill that destroys what is left, I am against.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I wish to answer the comments of a few of my friends here. A statement has been made here that a judge does not see the contracting parties. I say that is the judge's fault, and I think that the consensus of the Senate should be known to judges of the Orphans' Courts that they should see these people before they waive a law of the Legislature.

In answer to the statements made by the gentleman from Franklin, Senator Crider, about going over to Maryland, thank goodness we do not have the marrying squires in Pennsylvania that they have in Maryland, but they have improved a little bit as they now have to wait twenty-four hours in the State of Maryland.

I know, Mr. President, that there are many girls in this country whose morals are not as you and I would like them to be, and many of them are taking advantage of these men, who are very young, and who, as Dr. Woodward said, are away from parental discipline at home, ond in many cases are marrying these boys in order to secure the allotment the Federal Government allows them and for the insurance that they may get.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—28

Becker,	Dent,	Jaspan,	Tallman
Bowers,	Ealy,	Jones,	Taylor,
Carr,	Farrell,	Kephart,	Thomas,
Chapman,	Geltz,	Letzler,	Wade,
Crider,	Gourley,	Ruth,	Walker,
Crowe,	Heyburn,	Scarlett,	Watkins,
Deitrick,	Homsher,	Snowden,	Wilson, H. I.

NAYS—12

Barr,	DiSilvestro,	McGinnis,	Stiefel,
Coleman,	Haluska,	McQuiddy,	Woodring,
Cox,	Holland,	Shapiro,	Woodward,

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

BILL ON THIRD READING

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, in absence of the sponsor

I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 139, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to further amend clause forty-seven of section two thousand four hundred three of the act approved the twenty-third day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-one, (P. L. 932), entitled "An act relating to cities of the third class; and amending, revising, and consolidating the law relating thereto," further changing the qualifications of historical societies to receive appropriations, and limiting the amount of such appropriations.

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILL ON SECOND READING

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that House Bill No. 2 on second reading, entitled:

An Act authorizing during the present war time emergency cities counties and other political subdivisions to pay compensation to their officers (except officers elected by the people) employes and others who are paid out of their treasuries in addition to the compensation fixed by act of assembly validating ordinances and other legislative acts authorizing such payments and all payments made thereunder and suspending existing laws.

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I have no objection to House Bill No. 2 going over in order. However, I do not expect to be here tomorrow, and since this bill may be passed tomorrow when I may not be here, I would like to say on second reading, before this bill is voted on finally, that I am opposed to this system of legislation in the face of our inability to do anything for the teachers.

If we are going to increase salaries of people all over the State who happen to be on public payrolls, in political positions other than schools, without taking care of the school teachers, I think it is inconsistent legislation, and I should like the record to show that if I were here to vote on this bill, even on second reading, I would vote "no" because of the fact that it picks out only a particular group, recognizes an existing emergency and takes care of only a particular group, when the emergency relates to all.

BILL ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 53, entitled:

An Act relating to the practice, procedure, regulations, and adjudications of departments, departmental administrative boards and commissions, independent administrative boards and commissions, officers and other administrative agencies of this Commonwealth, and judicial review thereof; and preserving equitable jurisdiction in certain cases.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILLS OVER IN ORDER

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 67, on second reading, entitled:

An Act to amend the act, approved the second day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 1278), entitled "An act relating to counties of the second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth classes; and revising, amending and consolidating the laws relating thereto," establishing the method of appointing, promoting, reducing in rank, suspension, furloughing, discharging, and reinstating members of the police force of counties of the second class; creating and defining the powers and duties of a civil service commission; imposing certain duties and expenses on such counties; and prescribing penalties

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. CROWE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 78, on second reading, entitled:

An Act to further amend sections two hundred twenty, and two hundred eighty-five of the act approved the second day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five (P. L. 448), entitled "An act relating to fish; and amending, revising, consolidating, and changing the law relating to fish in the inland waters and the boundary lakes and boundary rivers of the Commonwealth," increasing the resident fishing license fee and limiting the use of the money derived from such increase

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 81, entitled:

An Act to amend section four of the act approved the twenty-sixth day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-one (P. L. 1379), entitled "An act creating in counties of the third class a board for the assessment and revision of taxes; providing for the appointment of the members of such board by the county commissioners; providing for their salaries, payable by the county; abolishing existing boards; defining the powers and duties of such board; regulating the assessment of persons, property, and occupations for county, borough, town, township, school, and poor purposes; authorizing the appointment of subordinate assessors, a solicitor, engineers, and clerks; providing for their compensation, payable by such counties; abolishing the office of ward, borough, and township assessors, so far as the making of assessments and valuations for taxation is concerned; and providing for the acceptance of this act by cities" by removing the limitation placed on the salary received by subordinate assessors.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 119, entitled:

An Act to further amend sections three hundred one and three hundred three of the act approved the seventeenth day of May one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one (P. L. 789), entitled as amended "An act relating to insurance establishing an insurance department and amending revising and consolidating the law relating to the licensing qualification regulation exemption suspension and dissolution of insurance companies Lloyds associations reciprocal and inter-insurance exchanges and certain societies and orders the examination and regulation of fire insurance rating bureaus and the licensing and regulation of insurance agents and brokers the service of legal process upon foreign insurance companies associations or exchanges providing penalties and repealing existing laws" by further regulating the computation of the reserve liability of life insurance companies the issuance of life insurance policies and redefining deficiency reserve requirements.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate one of the sponsors of this bill, the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. McGinnis.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McGINNIS. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I would like, for the information of myself and probably some other Senators, if the gentleman from Allegheny would explain the effect of this bill upon existing policies of life insurance.

Mr. McGINNIS. It allows insurance companies to invest in securities that pay as low as two per cent—it is now three and a half per cent—and the purpose of this bill is to allow insurance companies to buy government bonds and help win the war.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, that is a tremendous handicap to overcome, when anybody makes a statement that what we are trying to do is win the war, and no one would have the temerity to stand up and oppose it because of that tremendous handicap but I should like to read for the information of the Senate the war measure that is referred to.

I am now reading, beginning at line 18, page 4, which states: "Any such company (referring to insurance companies) may, however, at any time elect (and this is the amendment) under any of its policies of life insurance, to reserve on the American experience table of mortality with a lower rate of interest but at a rate not less than"—changing the existing law from three per cent to two per cent . . . and its obligations, (that is, the insurance company's obligations) under such policies (that refers to the amendments—under any of its policies) shall thereafter be valued accordingly.

To me, Mr. President, that means that the insurance company reserve which heretofore was required to be three per cent is now two per cent. That is the impression I get and, unless I am corrected, I shall have that impression. That is the reason I asked the question, and if that is so, it means that under all existing contracts of life insurance companies, the insurance company would only have to put up two per cent reserve. If, up until now, an insurance company has $3,000,000 in reserve for existing policies based on the three per cent, if it only has to put up two per cent, it means that it could withdraw one-third of the reserve from the reserve fund and use it for general purposes.

I think that ought to be explained to the Senate and I would like, if the gentleman who refused to answer my question yesterday does not object, I would like him to explain that for us today. My only reason for asking the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator McGinnis, was because I knew the reluctanacy of the gentleman from Cumberland, Mr. Wade, to answer interrogations on the floor.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President and members of the Senate, I am reluctant, it is true, to explain this bill. However, there is nothing hidden in the bill, and it is plainly evident from the Senator's description of and comments on the bill that he is confused.

This is an amendment to the Insurance Department Act and not to the Insurance Company Act. Insurance companies are required to set up a reserve in proportion to, or in direct relation to the amount of their outstanding policy obligations, taken as a whole and not individually.

This law or amendment, as specified in the title of the bill, I say again, amends the Insurance Department Act. For example, an insurance company, if it has $10,000,000 of possible future obligations, or $10,000,000 of outstanding insurance, must set up a certain amount of what is known as legal reserve securities.

If this bill is enacted into law, they will have the privilege of using two mortality tables, or rather, their preference of one or the other, and they will then use as the rate of interest down to two per cent instead of the present law passed in 1941, setting a floor of three per cent.

Therefore the company will be more solvent, because this reserve liability is the amount of money, theoretically, which, compounded at this rate of interest, will equal the face of those policy obligations at the end of the expectancy period, or the average length of life, as shown in the mortality table.

Therefore, this bill, I again say, if enacted into law, will make insurance companies more solvent and build up a bigger reserve, which can be directly reflected, not in this particular provision, but can be directly reflected in every policy provision, by a higher cash loan value, an automatic paid up insurance or automatic extension insurance provisions.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, now that the gentleman from Cumberland has confused my confused state of mind further by telling me exactly what the bill does not do, I would like really to find out whether or not it is not true that while I know this is an amendment to the code, the insurance code, and has to be, because this is the control which the Insurance Commissioner has over insurance companies, to see that they should have a sufficient legal reserve, and the reserve that the insurance companies have is set up by the Insurance Commissioner on the basis of how much money will be needed to meet the particular liability, that is, the face of the policy, at a given period, namely the expentancy of life.

As I understand it, Mr. President, if they put up three per cent they will have the one hundred per cent face of the policy quicker than if they put up two per cent, because it would take fifty years at two per cent a year to make one hundred per cent, from the way I figure it, and at three per cent it would take thirty-three years to make one hundred per cent. Therefore, the greater the percentage of reserve set up, the more secure is the policy holder who holds the policy.

I do not know everything about insurance, but I do know this, that there are two kinds of reserve. One is the reserve for the expectancy and the other is the mortality fund. The mortality fund is not called a reserve but is set up in order to meet the expectancy of death, not of life. That is, the Homan table, as I understand, was figured out that a certain number of people, say 8.9, die at age thirty and therefore 8.9 people have to be provided for.

If there are a thousand policies and there are 8.9 going to die at age thirty, it means they must have $8,900 to meet that expectancy of death, and therefore that is called the mortality fund, and an insurance company out of its premiums, must deposit 8.9, or whatever the table shows, as the amount of money to meet the debt.

There is another situation concerning expectancy of life where, of course, there must be in that fund a sufficient amount of money to pay the policy holder, and that is called the reserve, to protect the policy holder against the insurance companies gambling—put it that way.

The Insurance Commissioner says that reserve will be acquired—you must take a certain amount, four per cent, three per cent or whatever the state law is, and put it aside in a reserve fund to meet your obligations. One of those obligations, by the way, is to give you the cash surrender value on your policy.

The way I view it, Mr. President, if you put away three per cent a year in your reserve, the protection to the policy holder will be greater than if you put away two per cent a year, and nobody need tell me how this bill, by reducing the amount of reserve, protects the reserve fund for the policy holder, and, if I am right, all the reserve fund that exists today in all Pennsylvania companies doing insurance business in Pennsylvania can be depleted to the extent of one-third. If two per cent was the amount of reserve required until now, then the two per cent will be required after now, which means that since it applies to all policies, it also applies to the whole reserve fund, and if it applies to the whole reserve fund, it means that an insurance company can take out of that reserve fund one-third, that is, one per cent of three per cent, which is one-third, and put it in with their moneys in their general fund. It reduces their reserve fund. It reduces that fund to which the policy holder has to look, and if that is the situation, if the policy holder's fund, to which he looks for safety, is being depleted, I would like to know that. If it is not, I would like to be told that also.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I know that the Senator from Philadelphia is sincere in his request for information—question mark—and I shall attempt to tell him in as simple language as possible that the matters that he draws into this debate are irrelevant, many of them.

Take, for example, a certain class of policy holders, all of the same age, and all having an equal amount of insurance; at some future date the company carrying that insurance can expect a heavy mortality rate. As a matter of fact, if the table were exactly true, they would all die in the same year, but we know that can not be expected. It is the average length of life, and not the length of life that a man living can depend on.

At that date, say, for example, it is thirty years in the future, the insurance company must have the fact of the policies built up in a reserve and ready to pay the old-age death claims.

Now, if a company has to build up, we will say, for example, $10,000,000, and it uses an interest rate of two per cent, it will have to have more money, it will have have to have more principal, because it is only anticipating two per cent. Then again, we return at this point to the answer of the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. McGinnis, exactly, and that is that the insurance companies are desirous, they are most anxious, their record proves that they want to help win this war. They have contributed terrific amounts of money, and that money is playing a very important part in winning the war, in building factories and implements of war. By buying these government bonds they can not expect a three, three and a half, or four per cent interest return, and if they are to invest their money in these bonds, they must have some relief from the present floor in the interest rate, which is now three per cent, by the law passed in 1921.

This bill is exactly, as the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. McGinnis has said, a war measure, a measure enabling the companies to furnish more security to their policy holders, and at the same time invest a larger portion of their funds in government bonds.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, during the last depression that we went through the insurance companies were as strong as the Rock of Gibraltar. The banks in this country, many of them, closed up like paper shells, but the insurance companies came right through and paid their obligations and helped this country.

All that this bill does is to allow insurance companies to invest in securities paying as low as two per cent return, that is all. I have great faith in the business ability of the insurance officers of the various insurance companies. I am sure that they would not invest in securities paying two per cent if they could get a rate of three, four, five or six per cent, or seven per cent, perhaps, in some states; it would be to their advantage and to the advantage of their holders to invest whatsoever they could, at the highest rate of return, but if they have got millions and millions of idle dollars and the government wants to sell bonds and they can not buy them, why, that is a dilemma, and I am sure it would not help the reserve for the policy holder or anyone else to have idle money in an insurance company fund. I would rather allow those companies to invest the idle money, which they can not invest at three or four per cent, and buy government bonds and, as I said, help win the war.

I might also state that I am advised by competent insurance people that forty-six states have adopted this exact bill.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I am really serious about this because I think this bill ought to be considered very seriously. Here is one question in my mind that I should like to have answered and if the gentleman from Cumberland will tell me that it may help to clear this up

Does this provision affect at all the figure which the insurance commissioner has fixed as a necessary reserve by an insurance company? If this does not have anything to do with the reserve required under the act by an insurance company, than I will begin to understand this.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I should like to ask if I am being interrogated?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. WADE. May I have the question repeated, Mr. President?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, does this proposed amendment change the legal reserve requirement which the insurance commissioner fixed for insurance companies?

Mr. WADE. Yes, Mr. President, it raises it. It raises the amount of reserve necessary and makes the company more solvent. It is a measure of solvency for the company, strengthens it.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Cumberland tell me whether, if a company is required to have a certain amount of dollars and cents by percentage for its reserve on each policy, this would have nothing to do with the reserve itself, but only deals with the investment of money in the reserve?

I can see the argument of the gentleman when he says it is a good safe investment at two per cent in government bonds and that they should be permitted to make investments at two per cent, but I do not see how that has anything to do with patriotism or the company reserve. I want to stick to this problem, which concerns many thousands of people. I may be wrong on this proposition, and if I am, I am ready to be corrected, but nobody has yet explained that.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I still do not understand whether I am being interrogated or whether I am being lectured.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I am not lecturing anybody. I am trying to find something out because, as I think the gentleman from Cumberland will agree, this involves millions of dollars.

Mr. WADE. I agree with that, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. And this is not a subject that everybody in the Senate can understand. It is complicated and people are not usually acquainted with the operations of insurance companies and they are entitled to know what is the object of the bill.

Mr. WADE. I do not understand the gentleman's question, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. That is not a question, Mr. President, it is a statement, in answer to the remarks of the gentleman from Cumberland that I was lecturing him. My question is whether or not this deals with investments or reserves?

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, may I answer that?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. WADE. This deals with both investments and reserves, which are one and the same thing.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, can the gentleman from Cumberland tell me the provisions of the act which deal with the requirements of the reserve, what amount of reserve is required by the Insurance Commissioner.

Mr. WADE. What is the amount?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, what is the percentage of reserve required for policies of insurance.

Mr. WADE. There is no percentage, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. What section of the act deals with that, Mr. President?

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I shall be glad to answer that. It is Article 3, entitled "Reserve Liability (a) Life Insurance" and is as follows:

"Section 301. Computation of Reserve Liability—The Insurance Commissioner shall each year compute the reserve liability, as of the thirty-first day of December of the preceding year, of every company authorized to make insurance on lives in this Commonwealth, in accordance with the terms of the policy, contract, and rules following:

"(a) The net value of all outstanding policies of life insurance, issued by the company prior to the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, shall be computed upon the basis of the American experience table of mortality, with interest at not less than four and one-half and not more than six per centum per annum.

"(b) The net value of all outstanding policies, issued between the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, and the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and three, on the combined experience or actuaries' table of mortality, with interest at four per centum per annum.

"(c) (As amended by Section 1, Act of April 26, 1929, P. L. 793.) The net value of all outstanding policies of life insurance, issued on and after the first day of January, nineteen hundred and three, on the American experience table of mortality, with interest at three and one-half per centum per annum: Provided, however, That any company may value its group term insurance policies, under which premium rates are not guaranteed for a period in excess of five years, according to the American men ultimate table of mortality, with interest at three and one-half per centum per annum.

"(d) The net value of all policies of life insurance, issued on and after January first, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one, where the premiums are payable monthly or oftener, shall be valued according to the American experience table of mortality, with interest at three and one-half per centum per annum. But any company may voluntarily value its industrial policies according to the standard industrial mortality table, with interest at three and one-half per centum per annum.

"The net value of a policy at any time shall be taken to be the single net premium which will, at that time effect the insurance, less the value at that time of the future net premiums called for by the table of mortality and rate of interest designated.

"The legal minimum standard for valuation of annuities issued after January one, one thousand nine hundred and twelve, shall be McClintock's table for mortality among annuitants, with interest at three and one-half per centum per annum; but annuities deferred ten or more years, and written in connection with life or term insurance, shall be valued upon the same mortality table from which the consideration or premiums were computed, with interest not higher than three and one-half per centum per annum."

Then comes our amendment.

"Any such company may, however, at any time elect to reserve on the American experience table of mortality, with a lower rate of interest, but at a rate not less than three per centum, and its policy obligation shall thereafter be valued accordingly."

That is the section that is being amended.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Now, Mr. President, may I ask the gentleman from Cumberland whether the amendment deals with the policies referred to in clauses (a), (b), (c), and (d), which he has just read?

Mr. WADE. No, Mr. President, it does not.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Then, Mr. President, will the gentleman from Cumberland state which policies are referred to or are intended to be covered by this amendment when it says, "and such company may, however, at any time elect under any of the policies of life insurance to reserve," and so forth; what policies are intended, will the gentleman from Cumberland state, to be covered by that amendment?

Mr. WADE. May I, Mr. President, correct my answer to the first question and change it to "yes".

Mr. SHAPIRO. I thought so, Mr. President.

Mr. WADE. Should this bill become law, Mr. President, any outstanding insurance obligations of the company can be valued by this method which brings the solvency of the company up and requires higher reserves, because we are using a lower interest rate and must attain the same point at some future date.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Yes, Mr. President, I know, but now come to the question I previously asked, which is, do clauses (a), (b), (c), (d) deal with the basis of reserve plus interest on that basis as investment? What is being affected by the amendment is not the basis of the reserve, except as I shall question further, but the rate of interest which shall be figured on that basis. In other words, the basis in (a) is the American experience table of mortality, the reserve must be that which is fixed by the American experience table of mortality, based on an interest of three per cent or three and a half per cent, or whatever it would be; is that correct?

Mr. WADE. That is correct.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Now then, when we come to the amendment, you maintain the same thing, except that you say that you shall figure the American table, or whichever table it is, based upon two per cent instead of three and a half per cent?

Mr. WADE. No, Mr. President. May I say to the gentleman from Philadelphia that is a more conservative valuation. This requires, again I say, a higher reserve, more of a penalty to the company, but the gentleman from Philadelphia, I say again, is confused in that he assumes that the obligations of the uniform policy provisions are required by section 410 of the Insurance Act, which there states what you must do for the policy holder.

In other words, among other things you must set up a cash loan value and so forth. There are those things that are set up for the policy holder. This matter of reserve, as I said before, is the measure of solvency of the company and requires higher reserves, better solvency.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Cumberland state whether it is not true that the effect is that if you now use a lower rate of interest, you will have to set up a higher amount of money in order to obtain the amount of reserve within the same period of time.

Mr. WADE. That is exactly correct, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. That is what I am trying to find out.

Mr. WADE. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. If that is correct, Mr. President, I was wrong in my first assumption that this would affect the reserve.

I do not know whether the gentleman from Cumberland will permit himself to be interrogated further. Maybe my admission that I was wrong will induce him to do that.

Mr. WADE. I shall be glad to be further interrogated, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Then, Mr. President, is there not a conflict in this still, will the gentleman from Cumberland state, between the first portion and the second—"any such company may, however, at any time elect to reserve on the American experience table of mortality, with a lower rate of interest—" does not that option given there conflict?

Mr. WADE. No, Mr. President, it does not conflict. The present law passed in 1921 sets up minimum standards. The American men ultimate table is a more conservative table and at a two per cent interest rate is more conservative than three per cent.

In other words, Mr. President, if you are anticipating a return of two per cent, that is not as optimistic as to anticipate a return of three per cent. Interest rates, as we all know, are on a gradual decline, and we must amend our insurance laws correspondingly.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Will the gentleman from Cumberland permit himself to be interrogated further?

Mr. WADE. I shall be very happy, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. My question, which may not have been understood, is if any insurance company has an option to base its figuring on either the American experience or the men and mortality experience, will that not be inconsistent? May not one insurance company be putting up more reserve than another, depending upon which table it uses?

If I may add this, the amendment we are writing into the law by the passage of this bill is more conservative than the present law, because if one company would continue to base its premium rates and try to sell insurance and policies based on the old law, the law as it now is, it would meet severe competition and very likely not be able to do business. Therefore, we set up higher standards for the companies and additional security for the policy holders.

And the question recurring,

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILL ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. SKALE (Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 28.

In the House of Representatives, March 1, 1943.

Whereas, One of the modern medical miracles of this war has been the saving of the lives of our soldiers and sailors by the transfusion of plasma to the seriously wounded from blood donated by patriotic Americans at home; and

Whereas, Our capital city of Harrisburg is one of less than a score of cities in our entire Nation in which there is a permanent Red Cross Blood Donor Plasma Bank; and

Whereas, In spite of repeated appeals, there is now a shortage of donors to the Harrisburg Red Cross Blood Bank, Harrisburg probably being far smaller than any other city in this country having such a permanent bank; and

Whereas, We, as the representatives of the people of our Great Commonwealth, should set an example, in this worthy purpose, of the fine Pennsylvania spirit on the home front; now therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That a legislative committee is hereby created, consisting of three members of the House of Representatives, appointed by the Speaker, and two members of the Senate, appointed by the President Pro Tempore, whose duty it shall be to meet with the Director of the Harrisburg Red Cross Blood Bank, and arrange for the giving to it of blood by the members of the General Assembly and the employes of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded by the Chief Clerk of the House to the Director of the American Red Cross.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Messrs. THOMPSON, BRIGERMAN, MINTESS, TRENT, HOGGARD and CORRIGAN. (Not Printed).

In the House of Representatives, March 1, 1943.

The House of Representatives has learned with deep sorrow of the sudden death on February 23rd, of the Honorable Edward C. Young, in City Hall, Philadelphia.

Mr. Young ably and conscientiously represented the Sixth Legislative District of Philadelphia in this House during the Regular Session of 1941, and the Special Session of 1942.

He was born in Washington, D. C., on June 21st, 1877, and received his education in that city.

At one time he served as clerk in the United States Senate Post Office.

He was well known in Philadelphia, and was actively interested in community and social betterment, therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives extends to his widow, Cora Young, its most sincere sympathy for her in her great bereavement; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of this House shall transmit a copy of this resolution to his widow.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Messrs. YEAKEL and STOCKHAM. (Not Printed).

In the House of Representatives, March 1, 1943.

In the providence of Almighty God, Clarence J. Buckman, Esq., a member of this House of Representatives in 1909 and 1910, and State Senator for 28 consecutive years thereafter, was suddenly called in death on Wednesday, February 17th, 1943, at his home in Langhorne, Bucks County, Pennsylvania. It is, therefore, fitting that a minute be made of his passing and a note of his illustrious career.

Senator Clarence J. Buckman was born in Middletown Township, Bucks County, on October 31, 1879, reared on a farm, attended the Hulmeville Public Schools, and graduated from its High School in 1894, prepared for college at the State Model School in Trenton, New Jersey, and graduated in 1897; he graduated from the Law Department of the University of Pennsylvania in 1900, admitted to the Bucks County Bar and the Philadelphia Bar, and practiced law with his brother, J. Hibbs Buckman, under the firm name of Buckman and Buckman.

The Senator held many positions of honor and trust both public and private. He was a director of the Farmers National Bank of Bristol, Bucks County, Pennsylvania; President of the Joint Commission for Elimination of Toll Bridges over the Delaware River; a member of the Bucks County Republican County Committee; served as delegate to the Republican State Committee in 1907 and to the Republican National Committee in 1916; and in the Senate he served as President Pro Tem in 1917. He interested himself in all worthy civic affairs of his Borough of Langhorne and of his County of Bucks, and took an active part in these endeavors; therefore be it

Resolved, That this House do pause for a moment in its order of business to pay homage to its former member and an illustrious son and commend his public works and activities to posterity; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of this House send a copy of this resolution to the widow, Mrs. Ada I. Buckman and their children, expressing to them the deep sorrow of this House at the loss of so fine a public servant, husband and father.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

It was agreed to.

The title was agreed to as amended.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to as amended.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 232, entitled:

An Act to amend section one of the act, approved the thirteenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven (P. L. 982), entitled "An act relating to the clerk of the court of oyer and terminer, and quarter sessions of the peace, and municipal court, of any county of this Commonwealth, having a population of one million five hundred thousand or over; providing for the salaries and compensation of the clerk of the court of oyer and terminer, and quarter sessions of the peace, and municipal court, deputies, clerks, and employes thereof," by changing titles of various deputies, clerks and employes, and equalizing salaries thereof.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the sponsor of this bill, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Irvin.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Irvin permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. IRVIN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, referring to this bill, I note that the title states that the gentleman desires to change titles and to equalize salaries. Can the gentleman tell me what titles have been changed?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, we have changed from Chief Clerk to Chief Executive Clerk in one instance, and there are several others in the bill.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman know how many changes have been made specifically?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman from Philadelphia wish me to read the entire breakdown?

Mr. TATE. No, Mr. Speaker, it is not necessary. I presume that the gentleman knows.

Mr. IRVIN. Well, Mr. Speaker, there are numerous changes. I have the entire breakdown here if the gentleman wishes me to read it.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman think there may be possibly fifteen changes?

Mr. IRVIN. I couldn't answer that, Mr. Speaker, without reading the entire list.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman know whether it is twenty changes?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, I again repeat that without reading the list I couldn't tell the exact number.

Mr. TATE. Well, Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman read the list in answer to my interrogation?

Mr. IRVIN. I can, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. I would be delighted if the gentleman would oblige.

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, under the original act of May 13, 1927 we have eleven court clerks at five thousand dollars. Under this bill we wish to change it to six court clerks at five thousand dollars and add one chief record and appeal clerk at five thousand dollars, one assistant record and appeal clerk at four thousand dollars, one bail clerk at five thousand dollars, one assistant bail clerk at thirty-six hundred dollars, one bond clerk at four thousand five hundred dollars and one auditor at thirty-four hundred dollars.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will proceed further I think he will find that there are approximately ten more jobs added.

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, under the act of May 13, 1927 there were eleven assistant court clerks at three thousand dollars. Under the proposed act there will be eight at three thousand dollars, two first assistant court clerks at thirty-two hundred dollars.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I don't think the gentleman is specifically answering my interrogation. He is referring to reductions in personnel where titles have been changed. I believe if the gentleman reads further he will find out that there are eight jobs added which he has not mentioned.

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, under the original act there were eighty-nine—ninety-one jobs in that particular department of the city, and now there are ninety-one; no additions from the original act.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman tell me the total amount of salaries proposed under the new title?

Mr. IRVIN. The total amount? I can, Mr. Speaker. The total amount is two hundred thirty-eight thousand dollars.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I do not believe the gentleman has specifically answered my question. He is giving me the total payroll of this department. I asked what is the total payroll as to those men to whom new titles have been assigned.

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, I cannot answer that.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, in referring again to the title of the bill, I doubt that it is desired to equalize the salaries. Can't the gentleman tell me in what way the salaries are equalized?

Mr. IRVIN. I can, Mr. Speaker. For instance, the Deputy Prothonotary in Philadelphia receives a set salary of eight thousand dollars, and the Chief Deputy to the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court, who practically does the same work receives six thousand dollars. We desire to equalize the salaries.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman say that the Prothonotary of the seven courts of Common Pleas, together with the Municipal Court in the city of Philadelphia is on a par with the work of the Deputy Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions?

Mr. IRVIN. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman aware of the duties of the Deputy Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions?

Mr. IRVIN. I certainly am, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I desire the gentleman to specify what particular phase of the law is involved in the Deputy Clerk's office.

Mr. IRVIN. Would the gentleman kindly repeat that question.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to inquire as to what particular phase of the law is concerned with the Deputy Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions.

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, he has charge of the entire office in the absence of the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interpose that the Deputy Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions deals only with criminal cases, whereas the Prothonotary deals entirely with civil cases. Under the new titles which have been assigned by the sponsor, should I say specifies, under the guise of equalization, one chief accountant and a field clerk at five thousand dollars.

I desire to inquire as to the present set up in the accounting department of the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions.

Mr. IRVIN. Would the gentleman kindly repeat the question?

Mr. TATE. I desire, Mr. Speaker, to determine the present set-up of the accounting department of the Clerk of Quarter Sessions Court. What accounts do they handle?

Mr. IRVIN. They handle fines, cash bail and everything in that line.

Mr. TATE. Will the gentleman repeat his answer, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. IRVIN. They handle fines and cash bail, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Is the gentleman familiar with the approximate amount of bail and fines handled on an annual basis.

Mr. IRVIN. I am, Mr. Speaker. The amount handled was two hundred twenty thousand, four hundred and ninety-eight dollars.

Mr. TATE. For what year?

Mr. IRVIN. For the past year.

Mr. TATE. Well, Mr. Speaker, referring to the old law, I note that one chief account clerk is assigned a salary of thirty-five hundred dollars. Can the gentleman tell me who on the present payroll is to get this increase of fifteen hundred dollars?

Mr. IRVIN. I cannot answer that, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Can the gentleman tell me who will get the new job as chief account clerk?

Mr. IRVIN. I cannot answer that, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I understand that we already have a rather elaborate set-up in the accounting department, and it is impossible for me to understand—

The SPEAKER. Has the gentleman finished his interrogation?

Mr. TATE. No, Mr. Speaker, I desire to further proceed. I am merely interposing; I will cover that later.

I might refer further to the new title. I note that a new assistant record and file clerk is added at four thousand dollars. Why is it necessary to do so, when there is at present a chief record, appearance and appeal clerk at twenty-two hundred dollars, which is now vacant?

Mr. IRVIN. Under the new act we propose, Mr. Speaker, a chief record and appeal clerk at five thousand dollars and an assistant record and appeal clerk at four thousand dollars, which makes it the same as the original eleven positions at five thousand dollars under this new equalization of salary.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I know that according to the new titles a bail clerk and an assistant bail clerk are assigned, one at five thousand dollars and the other at thirty-six hundred dollars. Can the gentleman tell me why it is necessary to assign a new title to a bail clerk and an assistant bail clerk?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, the volume of work involved in this department has necessitated this change, we believe.

Mr. TATE. I desire to ask the gentleman, if the volume of work is as great as the gentleman has previously stated, who does the work now, when they do not have a bail clerk in the department under the present law?

Mr. IRVIN. It is the same men under different titles, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Can the gentleman tell me what titles they are?

Mr. IRVIN. I cannot, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, in referring to the new titles I noticed that they placed an auditor at thirty-four hundred dollars. Can the gentleman tell me what his present assignment is and what work he does?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, he has audited in the past, under a different title, the following accounts: a total of $2,219,632.71, comprising 38,139 accounts.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his answer on that question, but I do not believe he specifically answered it. I will ask him under what titles is the present work of auditing being done?

Mr. IRVIN. Clerks.

Mr. TATE. At what salary?

Mr. IRVIN. I cannot answer that.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, referring to the new titles, I note the following: a judgment clerk at twenty-eight hundred dollars, an assistant judgment clerk at twenty-five hundred dollars, an indictment clerk at twenty-four hundred dollars, and an assistant indictment clerk at twenty-two hundred dollars. Can the gentleman tell me what the present assignments are and who does the work?

Mr. IRVIN. The present assignment, Mr. Speaker, under the old act is naturalization clerk at twenty-eight hundred dollars. We decided to change his title to that of judgment clerk at twenty-eight hundred dollars. There was one assistant naturalization clerk at twenty-two hundred dollars. We decided to add an assistant judgment clerk at twenty-five hundred dollars. The indictment clerk remains the same.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman tell me what judgments the clerk of the court of quarter sessions handles?

Mr. IRVIN. All bail judgments, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Then, Mr. Speaker, I assume from the gentleman's answer that this is also a further expansion of the bail department.

Referring again to the new titles, I notice that the two first assistant court clerks are placed at thirty-two hundred dollars. I desire to know what the present assignments are.

Mr. IRVIN. There were eleven assistant court clerks at three thousand dollars under the old act, and under this proposed act we have eight assistant court clerks at three thousand dollars and two at thirty-two hundred dollars.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, why must we have two first assistant court clerks?

Mr. IRVIN. That is for the department heads to decide, Mr. Speaker, and to further efficiency in the office.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interpose that we are fixing the salaries, not the department heads. I notice in referring to the new titles, that they have assigned a chief executive clerk at thirty-five hundred dollars. What is this gentleman's present assignment?

Mr. IRVIN. The party is called a clerk at twenty-five hundred dollars in this case.

Mr. TATE. A clerk? Can the gentleman tell me what the present budget for this department, as approved by the County of Philadelphia, has provided, so far as executive clerks are concerned?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, the entire budget for this year is two hundred thirty-five thousand dollars.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I do not want to tarry too long on this bill, but I believe the gentleman is not specifically answering my questions. He gives me totals whereas I want specifications.

Mr. IRVIN. Since the approval of the Act of May 13, 1927, two additional Common Pleas Courts have been established by the Legislature and an additional criminal court has been operating for the disposal of the increased number of bills of indictment. Also, there has been a very large increase in support orders in the Domestic Relations Division and Juvenile Division of the Municipal Court. This extra court and increased volume of work has necessitated the appointing of additional clerks to maintain such court, handling the records and so forth. These increases in personnel have been, from time to time, appropriated by Council and in 1939 the budget carried one hundred positions with a total of $252,300.

In 1940 Council reduced the appropriation for that year by twenty thousand dollars, which caused the dropping of nine positions from the payroll, leaving ninety-one positions with a total of $232,300.

While the total of the proposed bill represents an increase of thirteen thousand dollars over the present Act of May 13, 1927, Council has already appropriated for the year 1943, covering the ninety-one positions, a total of $235,500. This difference of $2,500 can be made up throughout the year by resignations, suspensions, deaths and so forth and will require no additional request for monies from the County for the current year.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his expose, but I think the gentleman is still not specifically answering my question as to why they assign a chief executive clerk at thirty-five hundred dollars when they already have three executive clerks presumably doing the work.

I desire to ask the gentleman, is it one of those situations where they want to take one of the clerk jobs and assign them as chief executive clerk?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of it is to increase the efficiency of the office management.

Mr. TATE. In referring to the list of new titles, Mr. Speaker, I noticed that the gentleman has added four statement clerks at nineteen hundred dollars. Can the gentleman tell me what the previous assignment was?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, there are no additional clerks added to the office. It is just a reassignment of titles.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman tell me why they are called statement clerks?

Mr. IRVIN. Evidently the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions knows what he is doing in assigning the name to that type of job.

Mr. TATE. Why does the gentleman desire to increase the number of cashiers from three to four at twenty-two hundred dollars?

Mr. IRVIN. All for office efficiency, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Can the gentleman tell me why Council of the City of Philadelphia increased the number of cashiers in this department, when the only authorizations they had in the 1927 Act was for one cashier only?

Mr. IRVIN. Due to the additional courts it was necessary to rearrange these titles to accomplish this office efficiency.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman has not specifically answered my question. I stated that Council of the City of Philadelphia, sometime between 1927 and 1943 decided arbitrarily to increase the cashiers from one to three, and now they come up to the Legislature and ask for an increase from three to four. Can the gentleman tell me why Council took it upon themselves to increase it from one to three?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, in sixteen years the world has moved on.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman tell me, does Council have the authority to increase the number?

Mr. IRVIN. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Then, Mr. Speaker, why does the gentleman bring this bill before the Legislature if the Council has the authority?

Mr. IRVIN. Because, Mr. Speaker, Council has not the authority to change the title, and that is what I am asking this House to do.

Mr. TATE. But, Mr. Speaker, they do have authority to increase the salaries?

Mr. IRVIN. They have authority to increase the budget.

Mr. TATE. I desire to ask the gentleman, Mr. Speaker, why it is necessary to provide for two assistant record clerks at eighteen hundred dollars as against the present authorization of one at eighteen hundred dollars, when there is a vacancy as to that one especially authorized. Is there any work being done in that department now?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, it seems that the increased volume of the business has caused this as well as to further office efficiency.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, if there is a vacancy there now, it can be assumed on the face of the record that no work is being done, and possibly none has been done since 1927. Can the gentleman tell me then who is doing that work now and what salary he is getting?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, someone else is doing that work now and not getting the proper salary for it.

Mr. TATE. I assume, Mr. Speaker, that eighteen hundred dollars is a fair salary for the gentleman doing this type of work. I notice, Mr. Speaker, that the proposed bill gives an increase to one of the executive clerks of one hundred dollars. Can the gentleman tell me why the executive clerk or execution clerk, I believe, gets an increase of one hundred dollars, when the assistant does not?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, evidently the added burden of this position has caused the head of the department to ask for this increase.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I assume also that that is for efficiency?

Mr. IRVIN. That is right, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I again refer to a further increase in stenographer. They ask for two stenographers at nineteen hundred dollars, when the present authorization under the 1927 Act provides for one at eighteen hundred dollars and another at seventeen hundred dollars.

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, the increase in the volume of work in this particular department has necessitated this second position.

Mr. TATE. I assume therefore, Mr. Speaker, that the gentleman believes that an increase of three hundred dollars is justified?

Mr. IRVIN. I do, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, there is also an increase for the research clerk from seventeen hundred dollars to two thousand dollars. I assume that is also for efficiency. Can the gentleman tell me why there is an increase?

Mr. IRVIN. That is correct, Mr. Speaker, for efficiency.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, there is also an increase from one to two warrant clerks at twenty-two hundred dollars. Can the gentleman tell me who is presently doing this work?

Mr. IRVIN. I cannot, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. I do not believe, Mr. Speaker, that anyone is doing it, because there is a vacancy there. Can the gentleman tell me why that is?

Mr. IRVIN. I cannot answer that, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I also notice there is an increase in the assistant-custodian and maintenance clerk from eighteen hundred dollars to nineteen hundred dollars. Can the gentleman tell me why an increase here?

Mr. IRVIN. Due to the volume of work done now, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, referring to the gentleman's previous answer in relation to the increase in the courts of the city of Philadelphia, I assume the gentleman is referring to the new Common Pleas Courts of Philadelphia County namely, No. 6 and No. 7. Can the gentleman tell me whether this has increased the burden of work in this department?

Mr. IRVIN. It has, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Can the gentleman refresh my mind back to the days when we had visiting judges in Philadelphia County who received twenty-five dollars a day at the expense of the county? Can the gentleman tell me whether these judges were assigned to the Quarter Sessions Court?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, we did not have additional courtrooms for visiting judges.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, may I ask the gentleman whether the set-up has been changed at all in the Quarter Sessions Court or the Criminal Court, as we know it, since No. 6 and No. 7 Common Pleas Courts have been formed?

Mr. IRVIN. Yes, Mr. Speaker, the set-up has changed. They require new record books and new clerks.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I assume the gentleman is not familiar with the system in Philadelphia where judges of the Common Pleas Court are assigned to the Court of Quarter Sessions and they rotate, regardless of the amount of work. Can the gentleman tell me whether that would mean increase in the work?

Mr. IRVIN. Absolutely, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman tell me the number of Criminal Courts presently in Philadelphia County?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, the Judges are assigned to the different courts. There is no specific designation to Criminal Court.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman tell me whether room 453 is a new court in Philadelphia?

Mr. IRVIN. No, room 453 is not a new court in Philadelphia.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman tell me whether Criminal Court room 653 is a new court?

Mr. IRVIN. No, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Can the gentleman tell me whether room 676 is a new court?

Mr. IRVIN. No, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Room 296, is that a new court?

Mr. IRVIN. No, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Then are there any new courts?

Mr. IRVIN. 696 is a new court, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I have been around just as long as the gentleman has been around and I remember room 696 fifteen years ago. That is not a new one.

Mr. IRVIN. They have not changed the room numbers in City Hall.

Mr. TATE. Can the gentleman tell me whether 296 is a new Criminal Court room?

Mr. IRVIN. No.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, did the gentleman ever hear of the gypsy court?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, not being a member of the bar I could not answer that question.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, to straighten the gentleman out, that is an additional court that they assign from time to time to give the Judges more work. Can the gentleman tell me whether there is a criminal section or misdemeanants division of the Municipal Court under which this department has jurisdiction?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, that is under a different department.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, in referring to the records of the Court of Quarter Sessions, I notice that the Court has assigned a clerk to the misdemeanants section of the Municipal Court, is that so, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. IRVIN. I cannot find on any of my notes any assignments to the misdemeanants division.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, to sum up, I desire to know how many employes are affected by this bill, how many employes of the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions are affected by the bill.

Mr. IRVIN. Ninety-one, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, in response to the gentleman's previous remarks I believe he said that this would mean an increase from eighty-nine to ninety-one, is that correct?

Mr. IRVIN. No, Mr. Speaker, the same number, ninety-one—a rearrangement.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman tell me how many employes the Court of Quarter Sessions now has?

Mr. IRVIN. Ninety-one.

Mr. TATE. How many employes will they have under the new bill?

Mr. IRVIN. Ninety-one.

Mr. TATE. The gentleman is not correct because they have presently eighty-nine and they ask for two more.

Can the gentleman tell me what is the increase in the payroll brought about by this change?

Mr. IRVIN. Approximately twenty-three hundred dollars over the previous budget.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman tell me how many jobs were authorized under the 1927 Act?

Mr. IRVIN. One hundred.

Mr. TATE. If the gentleman can refer to his notes I think he will find there were ninety-four. Can the gentleman tell me how many jobs were added by City Council without getting the authorization of Legislature from the year 1927 to 1943?

Mr. IRVIN. I cannot answer that.

Mr. TATE. To refresh the gentleman's memory, it is nine jobs.

Can the gentleman tell me how many jobs were lopped off by the City Council?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman kindly repeat the question?

Mr. TATE. Can the gentleman tell me how many jobs were taken away from the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions without authorization from the General Assembly?

Mr. IRVIN. Nine positions, adding up to twenty thousand dollars.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I believe the gentleman was rather confused on this point. Nine jobs were added by council and three were taken away. Does the gentleman know how much in actual money this department will receive under the recent "high cost of living bonus bill" that was passed by this House about two weeks ago?

Mr. IRVIN. I cannot answer that, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TATE. To refresh the gentleman's memory, they will get a total increase of thirty-one thousand dollars. I thank the gentleman for his remarks.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer amendments.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer amendments.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would suggest to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. O'Brien, that the amendments offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Tate, will be taken up first, folowed by the amendments offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. O'Brien.

The Clerk will read the amendments offered by Mr. Tate to section one.

The amendments were read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 4, line 5, by striking out the word "eight" and inserting in lieu thereof: "six."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 4, line 19, by striking out the word "four" and inserting in lieu thereof: "three."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 4, line 20, by striking out the word "four" and inserting in lieu thereof: "one."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 5, line 7, by striking out the word "ninteen" and inserting in lieu thereof: "eighteen."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 5, line 8, by striking out the words "two thousand" and inserting in lieu thereof: "seventeen hundred."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 5, line 9, by striking out the word "two" and inserting in lieu thereof: "one."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 5, line 9, by striking out the word "clerks" and inserting in lieu thereof: "clerk."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 5, line 9, by striking out the words "two hundred."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 5, line 9, by striking out the word "each."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 5, line 11, by striking out the words "two thousand dollars" and inserting in lieu thereof: "eighteen hundred dollars."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 5, line 12, by striking out the word "nineteen" and inserting in lieu thereof: "eighteen."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 5, lines 13 and 14, by striking out the words "one clerk to court officers two thousand one hundred dollars per annum."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 5, line 21, by striking out the word "nineteen" and inserting in lieu thereof: "eighteen."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 5, lines 22 and 24, by inserting a light-faced bracket before the word "and" in line 22 and after the word "county" in line 24.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, I ask the members of this House to vote all the amendments down.

Mr. CHUDOFF. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Irvin.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. IRVIN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHUDOFF. I would like to ask the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Irvin, whether or not in one of his answers to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Tate, he said that the Deputy Prothonotary of the Court of Common pleas of Philadelphia County did the same work as the Deputy Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions, and got the same pay, is that correct?

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, the Deputy Prothonotary, as I understand it, handles civil work while the Deputy Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions handles criminal work.

Mr. CHUDOFF. Mr. Speaker, I did not ask the gentleman from Philadelphia as to the type of work these clerks handle. I asked him whether they got the same pay for the same work.

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, as I have said before, the idea of this bill is to equalize the salaries and the positions. What I am trying to do is to create an equal salary. Why should a Chief Deputy Clerk in the Court of Quarter Sessions, receive less money than the Deputy Prothonotary.

Mr. CHUDOFF. Mr. Speaker, it is not true that the Deputy Prothonotary of Philadelphia County is not only the Deputy Prothonotary of the Court of Common Pleas but is also the Deputy Clerk of the Municipal Courts?

Mr. IRVIN. I believe that is true, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHUDOFF. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman from Philadelphia know how many cases in the Municipal Court of Philadelphia and the Courts of Common Pleas of Philadelphia were handled by the Deputy Prothonotary.

Mr. IRVIN. I do not, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHUDOFF. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman know how many cases the Deputy Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions handled in 1942?

Mr. IRVIN. I do not know, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHUDOFF. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Irvin.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I arise at this time in support of my amendments to the bill because I want to bring to the attention of the Members of the House the fact that this bill is offered under the guise of equalizing titles and equalizing salaries, when it is none other than a job grab in an effort to pork barrel some additional money that we are alleged to have in Philadelphia.

In interrogating the sponsor of the bill I was rather amazed to know that he personally knew nothing about the set-up of this important department in the city of Philadelphia. This department handles all the clerical work in connection with the Criminal Courts of the city of Philadelphia. It is a most important department and the people of the city of Philadelphia have the right to know something about the personnel, something about the number of jobs they have there, and the salaries that they receive.

In response to some of the questions in the interrogation the gentleman stated that the reason they must have this increase in jobs, and the reason they must have this increase in salary is because this Legislature in 1937 added two new civil courts to the Courts of Philadelphia County.

For the gentleman's information and for the information of the other Members of the House, who perhaps are not familiar with the court set-up in Philadelphia County, many years ago in Philadelphia prior to No. 6 and No. 7, we had what are known as visiting Judges, who were assigned to take up the work which was too burdensome for the Judges in the five Common Pleas Courts, so that the 1937 Legislature added No. 6 and No. 7 courts to do away with this burden on the tax payers of the City of Philadelphia. The Common Pleas Judges in these seven Courts are assigned in rotation to the regular Criminal Courts, which Criminal Courts have not been increased over a period of years, they still have the same Criminal Courts that they had years ago. The gentleman refers to the great burden of work which has increased over the years. Does the gentleman infer that crime is rampant in the City of Philadelphia? Does he mean to insinuate that crime has increased so greatly within the past years in Philadelphia that they must have additional Courts to stop this crime?

Also, Mr. Speaker, referring to some of the remarks of the gentleman, he stated that the Court of Domestic Relations had to absorb some of these clerks. For the gentleman's information the employees that handle the work in the Domestic Relations Court are generally made up of employees of the Municipal Court, which deals solely with domestic relations. There may be one or two jobs but they are not the number of jobs the gentleman refers to. It is true that only two new jobs are added to the payroll but under the guise of that the payroll has been increased twenty-five thousand dollars. The people in the City of Philadelphia have been burdened for many years with these people who have their salaries fixed by the Legislature, but refused to take a reduction in salary voluntarily through depression years, and now when things are going right and when they think there is possibly some money in the City of Philadelphia they come back to these halls and desire an increase. It is true that we have a wage tax in Philadelphia. It has been well publicized in the Halls of the House. Some of our Members from the adjoining Counties for many years called on me and told me in the Hall of this House that it is unfair to the people in their counties to pay a wage tax because they work there. These people will be affected too.

I can't understand, Mr. Speaker, how in Heaven's name we are going to get a reduction in the wage tax if we are going to increase salaries like this. We have twenty-five thousand dollars under this bill and just two weeks ago we gave this very department thirty-one thousand dollars as a high cost of living increase. Some of these men who are going to get an increase under this bill have already received an increase under the War Bonus Bill passed two weeks ago. It is really double timing and it is an insult to the intelligence of the tax payers of Philadelphia. It is not fair to ask the Members of this House to do anything like this when there is no proper information before the House to justify such an increase.

Mr. Speaker, I refer further to such equalization as is referred to in the title. I refer to the efficiency that the sponsor specifically referred to. The efficiency of the department will not be impaired by permitting it to continue on its present basis. It will not be increased by permitting an increase in salaries to the new jobs in this department.

I say, that the efficiency goes right down to the personnel of the department. If I wanted to bring it out further I could say that there are a number of ward leaders on this payroll at five thousand dollars a year that these gentlemen want to take care of in the City of Philadelphia. That is why you are being asked to bring about this increase in the Hall of the House. It is not fair to the Members, it is not fair to the people of the City of Philadelphia, and I can't understand why the salary of a man who is supposed to be a ward leader should be increased from six thousand dollars to eight thousand dollars a year, when some janitors who get only twelve hundred dollars get no increase, and only a few chosen people in the department get raises of from one to three hundred dollars. It is not a fair equalization bill, it is not an efficiency measure. I thank you.

Mr. TAHL. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that the gentleman who has just spoken did not read this bill nor did he analyze it, because if he read this bill and analyzed it he would have found that there was no difference in the number of employees in this bill from that of the previous bill. He would have found out that there was just a difference of twenty-three hundred dollars in the payroll. When you consider the rise in the cost of living, an increase of twenty-three hundred dollars to the employes is not a large amount at all. He is absolutely wrong when he said that there is an increase of twenty-five thousand dollars, it is only an increase of twenty-three hundred dollars.

Mr. Speaker, this bill does not require much debate because it is merely rearranging the office in order to effect a better management of the office. For that reason there being no change in the number of employees, there being only an increase of twenty-three hundred dollars, I ask you to vote down these amendments.

Mr. CULLEN. Mr. Speaker, let us remove the smoke. The main purpose of this bill is to increase one man's salary from six thousand dollars to eight thousand dollars, the deputy clerk of the courts. All of the other parts of the bill are just a smoke screen for the intent of the bill.

In regard to those who have to pay a wage tax in the surrounding counties, you are helping, gentlemen, to pay this bill. There seems to be a question of doubt as to whether it is twenty-three hundred dollars or twenty-five thousand dollars, I certainly give the Republican party in Philadelphia more credit than taking up the time of the House for only twenty-three hundred dollars.

The one main purpose of this bill, gentlemen, is to increase the salary of the deputy clerk of one of the courts. One man coming down to two hundred eight men in this Legislature to pass a bill for one man's salary. There is no justice to it.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I was not going to arise further on this bill but in fairness to myself, and in answer to the insinuations of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Tahl, I would like to refer to the increases that were made in this department specifically. There was an increase of two thousand dollars for the deputy clerk. There was an increase from three to four cashiers at twenty-two hundred dollars which is an increase of twenty-two hundred dollars for that particular function. There was an increase of one to four assistant cashiers and clerks, which means an increase in the department of sixty-one hundred dollars. They have asked for two assistant record clerks at seventeen hundred dollars. From that figure to two assistant record clerks at eighteen hundred dollars, a total increase of two hundred dollars. They have asked to increase the execution clerk's salary by one hundred dollars. They have asked to increase the stenographer's salary by three hundred dollars. They have asked to increase the salary of the search clerk by three hundred dollars. They have added two warrant clerks at twenty-two hundred dollars, or a total increase of forty-four hundred dollars. They asked an increase in salary to the custodian and clerk of two hundred dollars. As far as the increases are concerned, they amount to sixteen thousand eight hundred dollars. Under the new titles which they have assigned there is a total of fifty-four thousand five hundred dollars, or a sum total of seventy thousand three hundred dollars, which they have increased.

Mr. Speaker, in fairness to the gentlemen on the other side I would say they have cut down forty-five thousand five hundred dollars, which makes a net increase of twenty-four thousand seven hundred dollars.

Mr. Speaker, I stand on those figures and I again ask the Members of the House to support these amendments.

Mr. SKALE. Mr. Speaker, I only want to say a few words. I had no intention of taking the floor on this bill until the gentleman from Philadelphia tried to impress upon the Members of the House that this was just a simple piece of legislation, which amounted to just an ordinary increase of twenty-five hundred dollars in this department.

I say to you, gentlemen, that this bill goes further, because this bill lays the groundwork for the following two bills on today's calendar. The gentleman from Philadelphia says that the jobs are still the same except we are giving them different titles. I have examined this bill. The gentleman from Philadelphia refers—I am referring now to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Tahl—to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Tate, as not having read the bill. I can assure him that the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Tate, has read the bill, I know he has. I know if you who have listened to the interrogation and to his remarks you are pretty well convinced that he has read the bill and knows what it is all about. I have read it. I have read the amendments to the present act which is sought to be amended. Nowhere in there can I find any provision for a bail clerk.

The gentleman from Philadelphia says that the proposed amendment does not provide for any new jobs. I would like to point out to the Members of this House that the proposed amendment provides for a bail clerk, and there is a reason for it, because the following two bills on the calendar just amount to a rip. They are going to rip more offices, and this bill is the groundwork for it. It provides for a bail clerk at five thousand dollars a year, a position which the present law does not specify. There is a Bail Commissioner in Philadelphia who is doing the work and doing it competently. By this bill they want to lay the groundwork for transferring the duties of the Bail Commissioner to the Court of Quarter Sessions Clerk. I say to you that the proponents of the amendments are trying to make us believe that this is simply a twenty-five hundred dollar a year increase in salaries. I have gone over the jobs and the salaries under the present act and under the proposed amendments. Perhaps my additions may not be entirely accurate but they cannot be too far off, and I find that the present salaries under the present act amount to $197,800, and under the proposed amendments which are now before us, all under the proposed bill, the salaries would amount to $228,000, or an increase of $30,200. There is no need for it. In addition to that you have some thirty thousand dollars which was granted under the bill passed here two weeks ago, known as the Boyd Bill, the Increased Cost of Living Bill, amounting to some thirty thousand dollars, making a total of over sixty thousand dollars that this department would get if this bill would go through.

I say to you that this bill is important to every Member of this House; it is important to the people of Philadelphia and the surrounding counties to Philadelphia, because those people are being taxed in order to pay for this increase, and I submit, gentlemen, that we should support the amendments of Mr. Tate.

Mr. TAHL. Mr. Speaker, I don't want to argue but I want to call the attention of the Members of the House to the fact that the amount of money appropriated by City Council in 1939 carried one hundred positions with a total of two hundred and fifty-two thousand three hundred dollars. Now, this budget for 1943 is only two hundred and fifty-five thousand dollars, a difference of twenty-five hundred dollars.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. Tate and Mr. Cohen.

So the question was determined in the negative and the amendments were not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

The amendments offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. O'Brien, were read by the Clerk.

Amend Section 1, Page 4, Line 9 by striking out after the word "annum" the balance of said line, Line No. 10 and Line No. 11 up to and including the word "annum".

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, these amendments are simple. All they do is eliminate the necessity of a bail clerk and an assistant bail clerk, at an annual expenditure of eighty-six hundred dollars. There is no need for these two particular jobs, and inasmuch as the Clerk of the Court is authorized to accept bail, I feel under the circumstances that it is needless to have these two new jobs created at a total expenditure of eighty-six hundred dollars. I therefore ask all the Members of the House in the interest of economy to support these amendments.

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, I ask the Members of this House to vote down these amendments.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

It was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The second section and the title were separately read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 312, entitled:

An Act to amend the title and sections three and four of the act, approved the twenty-fifth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven (P. L. 2326), entitled "An act creating in counties of the first class the position of bail approval commissioner; prescribing the powers and duties thereof; limiting jurisdiction to cases in which real property is offered as bail; and conferring and imposing such powers and duties upon the controllers of counties of the first class; providing for the appointment by such bail approval commissioner certain necessary clerks and employes, and prescribing the duties and compensation thereof; imposing duties on judges or officers of any of the courts of counties of the first class, and upon magistrates in counties of the first class; and requiring all departments of counties and cities of the first class to supply certain information; prescribing offenses; and providing penalties therefor, by transferring the powers and duties conferred and imposed by the act upon the county controller to the clerk of the court of oyer and terminer, general jail delivery and quarter sessions of the peace in counties of the first class.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Messrs. CULLEN and LEVY offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 1 (Title), page 3, lines 6 and 7, by striking out the light-faced bracket before and after the word "controllers".

Amend Sec. 1 (Title), page 3, lines 7 and 8, by striking out the following: "clerk of the court of oyer and terminer gen-" in line 7, and all of line 8.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendments, and in so doing I would ask the Speaker if it would not be in order, to save the time of the House, to debate both bills, Nos. 312 and 313 together, in view of the fact that I have amendments to both bills pertaining to the same subject?

The SPEAKER. The Chair would inform the gentleman that the only question before the House is on Section 1 of House Bill 312.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, the reason I raised the question was because I thought it might save the time of the House.

I might suggest this, with the permission of the Speaker I would offer amendments to House Bill 312, argue Bills 312 and 313 together, and then, of course, offer amendments to 313 afterwards. Would that be all right?

The SPEAKER. That is agreeable to the Chair. However, the House must decide.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his point of order.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, the only bill before the House at this time is House Bill 312. I believe that is the only bill that we can consider at this time.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has already so stated to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, it would be agreeable to me if the Speaker would take up the amendments to all the sections as he did in the prior bill before the House.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would inform the gentleman that the amendments referred to were all to the same section.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I offer this amendment along with other amendments that are ultimately to be discussed, in order to destroy the real intent of the sponsor of this bill and that of the organization he represents. If the Members of the House will recall, in the session of 1937 there was created in the city of Philadelphia a Bail Commissioner under the office of the City Controller. This office was not created in order to get jobs for the Democrats, as developments in future years have proven. This Act was passed in 1937, and incidentally I want to inform the House that the bill creating this Bail Commissioner was voted upon favorably by every Member of the House, both Republican and Democrat alike.

Now, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Menna, introduces into this House a bill to amend the Act creating the Bail Commissioner in Philadelphia. I don't know what sort of memory the gentleman from Philadelphia has, I don't know how stupid the Republican party in Philadelphia thinks the Members of the minority party are in Philadelphia, nor how stupid they think the people and the citizens of Philadelphia are themselves, but you will remember that this Bail Commissioner was created in order to correct a scandal in Philadelphia. In 1935 Judge Gordon, President Judge of the Common Pleas Court in Philadelphia, denounced a certain assistant clerk in the Quarter Session Court for the acceptance of worthless bail. The Republican membership from Philadelphia can very well remember that in 1937, one month before the announcement of this bail commissioner, there was found in Philadelphia over one million dollars worth of worthless bail that was given to the Clerk of Quarter Sessions. I challenge any Republican in the House this afternoon to deny it.

What does the gentleman from Philadelphia intend to do with this amendment? He intends to destroy the very reform that we placed upon the statute books of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in 1937. He does not intend to slap the people of Philadelphia. He intends to insult every citizen of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; he intends by this amendment to take from the City Controller's office the approval of bail for criminals, and he intends to put it back into the Clerk of Quarter Sessions Court, where they found one million dollars worth of worthless bail. I do not think the Republican leadership in Pennsylvania is going to tolerate that steal. I do not think the Republican leadership of Pennsylvania is that stupid, is that vicious, that they want to restore to the people of Philadelphia a condition that cost them one million dollars worth of bail. I don't think the Republican leadership in Pennsylvania, for the sake of four jobs that are held by Democrats, would sacrifice the very good that was in the bill passed in 1937 with the approval of each and every Republican Member of this House, and incidentally with the approval of the Senate.

I say to the Republican leadership of Pennsylvania, let us put an end to this tomfoolery. I remember distinctly when this Session opened the leader of your party said, "This is a war session. We are going to enact legislation for the benefit of the people of Pennsylvania in this war crisis."

I would ask the leadership in Philadelphia whether the reinstatement of the fraud there amounting to one million dollars in ten years would help the people of Philadelphia in this war crisis. I ask the majority leader representing your party whether he stands for this kind of politics. If that is the kind of government the Republican organization in Philadelphia, manned by unscrupulous politicians, is going to sell to the people of Pennsylvania, than I have lost my respect for that party.

I said to you, Mr. Speaker, I denounce vehemently this attempt to bring back to the city of Philadelphia a scandalous set of facts. The Speaker well knows, he was then a Member of this House, that there was created before this House a picture of deceit, a picture of fraud and a picture of thievery, and it is by this amendment to this bill that the gentleman from Philadelphia wants to reenact it.

Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, the sponsor of this bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. MENNA. I will yield to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, the reason Mr. Menna cannot answer the questions that might be asked of him is that he is suffering from a sore throat. He is here without the consent of his own doctor. I am willing to try to answer any questions that may be asked, and I will ask my friend, who designated me an old man last week, to treat me kindly.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I regret the fact that the gentleman from Philadelphia, the sponsor of this bill, is suffering from a sore throat, but I think he has chosen a very able substitute.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would suggest that the gentleman treat the "old man" kindly as he suggests. The gentleman from Philadelphia will proceed.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to inquire of the gentleman from Philadelphia whether he recalls the scandal that attended the acceptance of bail by the clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court in the years from 1931 until 1937?

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, for the information of the gentleman from Philadelphia, there was an uprising in Philadelphia some years back, when there was some talk about some straw bail and things like that.

That matter came before Judge Edwin O. Lewis, who by the way is a Republican, and before the district attorney of Philadelphia who also was a Republican, and they caused a number of arrests and sent some people to jail. They started a reformation on the question of bail and as a result of the brilliancy of these two Republicans, one Republican judge, who is still a judge, and one a Republican district attorney, who was one of the most loved men that Philadelphia ever had, and as a result of that reformation the new system of taking bail was evolved.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman from Philadelphia, in his reference to the reformation instituted by the splendid judge from Philadelphia and the honored late district attorney of Philadelphia, as to when this reformation took place.

Mr. SALUS. It took place, Mr. Speaker, I would say, for six to eight months. There was a grand jury investigation. There were some indictments and some men were arrested. In the meantime the Legislature was not in session and when the Legislature came into session the district attorney of Philadelphia County came before certain committees with legislation, it might have been the Committee of Seventy—I don't recall, and prepared a bill which created a new set-up for taking bail.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, again I ask the gentleman, and I speak very respectfully to the old Senator, will he please attempt to confine his answers to the questions. I don't think the questions are that difficult.

The gentleman from Philadelphia stated that it was due to the reform proposed by a certain Republican judge and a certain very respected Republican district attorney that straw bail was discontinued in Philadelphia. Let me inquire of the gentleman from Philadelphia as to whether on March 26, 1937, three months prior to the passage of the new Bail Commissioner Act, whether or not the Philadelphia Inquirer did not carry across its headlines screamingly, "Magistrates accept one hundred and fifty thousand dollars worth of fake bail."

Mr. SALUS. Who accepted it, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. LEVY. The magistrates.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, in answer to that question, that was in 1937. I do not have the Inquirer in front of me. On the question of the magistrates accepting that much bail, whether it was that much or not, or whether the Inquirer mentioned that much or not, I don't know.

There was some bad bail accepted, and as a result of the acceptance of that bad bail we have the new order of things that appears in this bill. Of course, my friend is taxing my memory. He is a little like the fellow who couldn't remember very well and he always wanted oxtail soup. He went back very far for his soup. He is going very far back with me. He must remember I am an old man.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I regret that the sponsor of this bill is not in a position to take the floor, and I regret in a way that he has substituted the old Senator from Philadelphia because I am a great adherent of digging into the record. The old gentleman from Philadelphia was a Senator at that time, and just the same as now he had a shortness of memory.

I am going to read into the record what he said in the Senate of Pennsylvania when the 1937 Magistrates' act was passed. It was passed to do away with one hundred and fifty thousand dollars worth of bad bail, and the Senator said; on June 2, 1937, and I quote:

"Mr. President, this bill contains a lot of words. This bill only establishes a Court with twenty thousand dollars worth of new jobs for deserving political followers. That is all the bill does, it does not do another thing."

Mr. SALUS. I am still of the same opinion, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I am thru with my interrogation.

Mr. Speaker, I sympathize with the gentleman from Philadelphia, I sincerely do, because he is placed in a position of not being able to admit the faults of younger days, the days when he sat in the Senate, knowing that one hundred and fifty thousand dollars worth of bad bail was being accepted by Magistrates in Philadelphia, and he said very clearly that the Magistrates' bill was only a lot of words. I say, Mr. Speaker, that the Senator knows and that any one representing the Republican party in Philadelphia knows that the act in 1937 caused a reform. The act of 1937 did this much, it did not cause a recurrence of one million dollars worth of fraudulent bail, but the big issue before the House this afternoon, in considering the approval of this bad piece of legislation, is the fact that it is going to reinstate in Philadelphia another recurrence of bad worthless bail. I do not think any Philadelphia Republican in the House represents the bad bail carriers of Philadelphia. I do not think that any of the lawyers in the House, either on the Democratic or Republican side, want to see a repetition of this situation. I feel that they do not, but it is only the matter of four jobs that they want to take away. By taking them away they are going to bring forty-four years of humiliation and insult to the people of Philadelphia.

I wish the sponsor of the bill, the actual sponsor of the bill, would answer the questions. I do not want to press the old Senator from Philadelphia because he has forgotten. I say to you gentlemen that the time is not so long ago, it is only six years, when every Philadelphia newspaper, the Inquirer, the Philadelphia Record and Bulletin, shrieked across the headlines the disastrous scandal in the bail racket in Philadelphia. I might say incidentally that even the Bulletin only a few days ago in commenting editorially upon the Governor's program said if such acts were enacted, the Governor would be placed in a position of double-crossing the people of Pennsylvania.

I say to you today that if this straw bail racket bill passes the House of Representatives, it is the biggest double-cross upon the city of Philadelphia and Pennsylvania. I do not believe that anyone in this House outside of the county of Philadelphia would want to vote this piece of legislation on their particular counties. I doubt it, and I say to you Republican Members of the House, stamp out this Philadelphia treachery, stamp out this attempt to place upon the statute books an insult to the people of Philadelphia. I see that the Governor when he opened this session called for war measures, he did not call for picayune attempts to take four jobs from Democrats and bring disgrace on the City of Philadelphia.

I ask you to stop it, and the only way the Majority Leader can stop it is to arise to his feet this afternoon and ask the support of my amendment or ask that this bill be recommitted to the Committee from whence it came.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, since I sat down my memory has been taken back to a few of my youthful days. When this bill was presented it was in the form it appears today when the amendments are put in, but it was amended in the great ripper days of the Earle administration. The "evil that men do lives after them," and this is just a recurrence of the ripper days of the Earle administration. This is one of the many bills that during the Earle administration ripped harder than any rip saw ever ripped, and they ripped so hard that the Supreme Court had to unrip much of the legislation that was passed by the House and the Senate under the Democratic administration. This is one of the rippers that started with that endeavor to rip the Supreme Court, and ripped everything from the Supreme Court down to the janitor. If you are in politics you have to be game enough to take it on the chin once in a while, and my Democratic friends who asasils Philadelphia and its people is not doing it, nor this nation, nor this state one bit of good. We are living in a day of tranquility, we are living in a day of peace on earth and good will among our fellow men; we are living in a day when we should not abuse or besmirch the men of any other party. This government is run by two party organizations. In both parties in both Philadelphia and other parts of the State, we have highly respected Democrats, we have highly respectable Republicans. We ought not to assail each other. Some of the people on the outside might feel that we are a lot of rogues and vagabonds. A man who is elected to this House, if he does not feel that it is an honor to be here, he should not be here. He has to feel that he is in an institution of learning, an institution that should send pleasant thoughts out to our better citizens in these times, and that men are men regardless of whether they are Democrats or Republicans.

I personally resent the language of the gentleman from Philadelphia when he refers to the Members of the Republican organization as a lot of outlaws and thieves as he has said before, and he does not trust them. I will go far enough to say that I do trust him and I trusted him sincerely, who had charge of this measure. The Controller is a Democrat, who takes a hand in politics. The City Controller of Philadelphia has a big hotel and by the way I would like to say to the Members of the House, both Republican and Democrat, if you want to get a good meal, if you want the best hotel in Philadelphia, you go to the Adelphia, of which the controller is the proprietor and owner.

This bill intends to place the positions in the place they should have been. The Controller of Philadelphia is an auditor, that is about all his job is. He is supposed to audit the various accounts for the various departments of Philadelphia. This bill for the acceptance of bail should not be in the hands of the controller, as provided by this bill, it belongs in the hands of the Clerk of Quarter Sessions, under the control of the Clerk of Quarter Sessions, and the district attorney of Philadelphia. It is a part of their schism and was ripped out of those two places in the great days of the Earle ripper legislation. If perchance the Republicans of Philadelphia are trying to take these four positions that my friend is worrying about and put them back in the hands of the Clerk of Quarter Sessions. it is where they belong and where the Democrats had them for six years without either right or virtue.

Mr. LEVY. I could ask the gentleman from Philadelphia a few very pertinent questions regarding this bill, but I do not want to trouble him, because apparently every time I ask him questions he raises the flag and waves it vociferously and informs the House that I am impugning something detrimental to his character. I only want to say, as I said before, Mr. Speaker, that I have never on any occasion, in many serious debates that I have participated in, impugned the character of any Member of this House, and you can attest to that fact through the gentleman from Delaware, my good friend Mr. Turner.

I only want to say to the Members of this House, and I want to say specifically to the gentleman from Philadelphia, let him not try to kid anybody on this bill; let him not try to use words that he knows have no basis of fact.

The bill created in 1937 was not a ripper bill. The bill creating the Bail Commissioner in the City Controller's office was because of the demand of the citizenry of the city of Philadelphia. We didn't rip anything, Mr. Salus. We created a Bail Commissioner to give to the people of Philadelphia what they demanded in honest procurement and custody of bail and that is all. We said that the City Controller, who has the record of the properties in Philadelphia upon which basis this bail must be based, was the logical place.

What does the gentleman from Philadelphia propose to do? He proposes to put it back in the hands of the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court, who has no record of properties, who has no record of liens, who has no record of mortgages, who has nothing else than authority granted by this amendment to say to Mr. Bail Racketeer, "How much bail do you have on this property?" Mr. Bail Racketeer—which Mr. Salus knows will happen—would answer, "I have nothing against the property." Then the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court certifies the bail. Is that what the Members of the Legislature want? Is that what the people of Pennsylvania wanted under the 1937 Act? Not a ripper, not an amendment, but the creation of a new department in the City Controller's office. When Mr. Prospective Racketeer Bailor comes into the City Controller's office now he is faced with facts.

He is asked "What property do you wish to pledge?" Then the clerk taking care of it goes over the records, the cards, and there, stamped indelibly in black and white is what he has got against the property.

Now, gentlemen, I say to you, there is the a, b, c of bail in Philadelphia. What is your answer? If it is the desire of the Republican party in Pennsylvania to go back to thievery—and I say thievery without fear of contridiction—let the Philadelphia people deny that that is the correct expression, if the Republican party of Pennsylvania wish to return to that sort of thievery, then I say let them have Godspeed.

Apparently there are a few gentlemen with their hands under the desk tops who want to have a little fun. You know, gentlemen, that works both ways. I say to you, Mr. Speaker, that there is not a man in this House who can stand up and defend this piece of legislation and I defy them to say they can. I challenge them to get on their feet and say "This is a return to proper government." And that includes the old Senator from Philadelphia.

Mr. CULLEN. Mr. Speaker, I think we should clear the smoke this time. The gentleman from Philadelphia said that this was a ripper bill, I would like to ask him what we ripped? I don't know whether you outside of Philadelphia know the situation in Philadelphia, but when the gentleman says the Controller got in the bail business in 1937, he again had a lapse of memory because the Controller is not in the bail business today. Previous to 1937 the precedure in Philadelphia was this: the defendant got in jail, a friend of his went to a magistrate or went to the Clerk of the Court. He told him he had a piece of property, he brought a deed there and this particular piece of property if the man was entering bail, we who have had experience in bonds know that he could enter that bail ten or fifteen times. Assume the valuation is about twenty-five hundred dollars—there is an instance in my own district where there was no house at all on the lot; the assessment of that lot was eight hundred dollars. The gentleman took that bail to enter for different persons, I know personally. He entered to the extent of thirty-seven thousand five hundred dollars bail.

Now, he entered this piece of property both before the twenty-eight magistrates in Philadelphia and the Clerk of Courts. That, gentlemen, was a common practice in Philadelphia, and the fellow who reaped the benefit out of it was the professional bondsman, and anybody who lives in Philadelphia knows about him. At that particular time and for years preceding that there was much discussion in Philadelphia and criticism of the obnoxious system.

In 1937 they had an investigation of the system. The Judges of our Courts said there should be something done about it. They devised the plan of setting up a Commissioner who, Members of the House, had nothing to do with the acceptance of bail. All the Controller does under the set up, the Legislature said he was to have four jobs; the office was to be open twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, and all the Controller does today, although we have a law on the statute books, he takes a copy of the comitment,—and I might say for you who do not understand, that it is a commitment from the committing Magistrate or Judge who puts the prisoner in the hoosegow or jail house, you get a copy of that commitment, and you go to the Controller with your deed. Now, all the Controller does is look up your property, what liens you have against it, what taxes you have on it, and if your property is eligible or sufficient to enter that bail, he will certify that bail. After he gives that certification, which certification comes in three copies, all he does is give you a copy of this certification. In Philadelphia you go to any one of the twenty-eight magistrates or you go to the Clerk of the Courts, which ever takes the bail. They keep a copy of the certification. They return a copy of the certification with the bail bond they accept, and they return a copy of the certification to the Controllers' Office.

The purpose at that time in creating the bill was to have an independent body control the certification. Under this bill that we have here now, to amend it, it is going to make the certifier also the receiver of the bail. You are placing the Clerk of the Court, whom you now name Bail Commissioner, in a dual capacity. You are going to tell him that he is to pass on the eligibility of the bail and then you are going to tell him that he is to take the bail. It is like the District Attorney also handing down the decisions.

Leaving that thing open is bad practice, gentlemen. You created that in 1937 and you are putting that back to where it was in 1934.

The Ruth Committee, which was an instrument of this House, made an investigation of all criminal matters in this State. They have many times spoken about the Clerk of the Courts as one of the bad practices which the Ruth Committee reported on. You are opening that same condition up by this matter of bail. The Ruth Committee also said "The records of the Criminal Courts are very often kept in a careless manner." You are going to set up that situation again.

The situation that annoys me is this, by virtue of the Controllers' Office in Philadelphia,—he has been classed here as an auditor; I accept the classification, and for that reason the certification surely should remain still in that office, the Controller by virtue of his office, if he is an auditor, has access to all records pertaining to that particular property, but you are going to transfer this into a Court that doesn't have that access, and gentlemen, I think you are doing the people of Philadelphia a wrong turn by doing this. You are going to place temptation before the Clerk of Court. The Judges of our Courts think the set-up in regard to the clerk there is perfectly all right. It is true the Republican party wants to get more jobs under this set-up, because our courts are consulted more or less by the Republicans, but the benefit is four jobs,—I think they pay about twenty-four hundred dollars apiece,—certainly is going to reflect upon the tax payers of Philadelphia, and those who have a good piece of property and want to put it up for a friend. You are going to recreate the bail racket in Pennsylvania by the passage of this act. I thank you.

Mr. CHUDOFF. Mr. Speaker, I believe the previous speaker in support of the amendments of the gentleman from Philadelphia, has given you the machinery of what happens when the clerk of a court or a magistrate takes bail. However, I have before me a digest of the Philadelphia worthless bail racket back in 1928. In order to save the time of the House I am not going to read newspaper articles, but I am going to read excerpts from newspaper articles that appeared in leading Philadelphia newspapers as far back as 1928.

These excerpts are as follows:

January 28th, 1928—

Judge Gordon denounced Samuel W. Sibley, Assistant Clerk of Quarter Sessions Court, for acceptance of worthless Bail and for inefficiency in conducting his position. Judge Gordon requested his removal.

June 10th, 1929—

Charles E. Seltzer and Jacob Handelman pleaded guilty to 67 bills of Indictment. Seltezer confessed to having used one property to cover $100,000 in Bail cases.

October 30th, 1931—

Pearlman and Purvutrente sentenced to 18 months—Pearlman admitted placing worthless bail in 31 cases covering $17,000.—Purvutrente admitted placing straw Bail in 26 cases for a total of $16,000.

March 29th, 1935—(Bulletin)

Blacklist of Bondsmen as issued by the District Attorney being ignored by the Magistrates—

In 1931—	There Were 675 Suits
	Amount Involved	$458,100
	Judgments Obtained ..	203,000
	Actually Collected		$50,488.25
In 1932—	There Were 676 Suits
	Amount Involved	$407,500
	Judgments Obtained ..	110,300
	Actually Collected		12,415.00

In 1933—	There Were 731 Suits
	Amount Involved	$485,250
	Judgments Obtained ..	201,300
	Actually Collected		2,325.00
In 1934—	There Were 797 Suits
	Amount Involved	$490,800
	Judgments Obtained ..	296,650
	Actually Collected		4,866.00

March 26th, 1937—

Magistrates accept $150,000 per year in bad Bail. From 1932 to 1936 inclusive $800,000 in forfeited Bail sued out by the Courts—City received but $28,000.

May 14th, 1938—

Ruth Commission reports $1,000,000,00 lost in worthless Bail in recent years. Many instances found where practically worthless property being pledged time and again.

May 31st, 1938—

Ruth Commission reports more than $250,000 Bail Bonds accepted by Phila. Courts found worthless by D. A. Three out of every four Bail Bonds ordered forfeited by the Courts are uncollectible.—One half of Bail taken is put up by Professional Bondsmen who are usually unrealiable and are often associated with the underworld.

Many crooked Bondsmen either sell or transfer their pledged Real Estate after the defendant has fled and before legal red tape permits Bond to be forfeited.

February 2nd, 1936—

Four Magistrates accepted a $35,000 property to cover Bail to the amount of $13,000.

July 9th, 1936—

Nine persons sentenced to from 5 to 10 years by Judges McDevitt and Lamberton in Straw Bail Racket—entered $146,000 in spurious Bail in a dozen Magistrates Courts.

So, gentlemen, the record speaks for itself. Since 1937 when this bill was passed giving the Controller the right to certify bail, not one cent has been accepted in straw bail by either the magistrates of Philadelphia County or the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court.

I do not want to take the time of the House by going into this bill any further, but I say, let us stand on the record.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, I recognize that the amendment itself endeavors to pick out a certain portion of the bill before the House. It is a simple change; a change that would take away the certification of bail bonds in Philadelphia from the present controller and put it into the hands of a specilly appointed individual within the courts themselves.

The people in my vicinity are very law abiding and I have had very little contact with the old set-up, and less with the new one, but I do realize that to make a change at this time must be purely political, because in the history of the present set-up I have heard no complaint from the public in general, no complaint from the attorneys. I have analyzed the set-up very carefully, and I feel that the present set-up should be permitted to stand. The present set-up in itself came about as the result of careful study, investigation and consideration.

I hold in my hand a copy of the report of the Commission which was appointed to consider this matter before the enactment of the bill. I desire to read into the record the simple explanation as given by the Commission at that time.

"Every rattlesnake shelters in his den a bat and an owl. The lair of every professional criminal feeds and shelters a shady lawyer and a crooked bail bondsman. There exists a close alliance between some criminal lawyers and the professional bondsman, which often goes into an agreement to share proceeds. 'A good thief in jail is no good at all,' lamented a prominent member of the criminal bar. A thief in jail is no good to the lawyer, to the bondsman, to the receiver of stolen goods, to the dope-seller, or to any one a dozen vultures, who take his booty and keep him always in sore need.

"An habitual criminal out on bond is a desperate and dangerous man. He must have money at once for the vultures or go back to jail. No one who sees him come down the steps of the police station, after his release on bond, doubts in the least his dark purpose and dangerous destination.

"The bond racket is a cancer in our enforcement system. Cases have been called to our attention where these professional bondsmen have preyed upon ignorant persons and have taken unfair advantage of their 'clients.' We find one situation where a professional bondsman charged $85 for simply taking a woman to the Bail Clerk's office where she put up her own home for bail. She stated she did not understand that her property was being so used.

"The professional bondsman is a great source of 'fixing.' In one county the clerk of Court, for example, handles some bonds which are posted in connection with liquor license applications and he saw to it that at least on one occasion a case against one of his 'clients' was nolle prossed, stating frankly that he had it nolle prossed because he did not want to take any chances of forfeiture on his bond. Another one of the evils of the professional bondsmen is the so-called 'substitution of defendants.' Complaints have come to this Commission that occasionally where a case is called for trial and the defendant does not appear, arrangements are made by the bondsman with the powers-that-be to have another person answer to the name of the defendant and then receive a suspended sentence or probation, thus preventing any forfeiture of the bond. The relationship between professionals and court officials results in great improprieties. Clerks and police solicit business for and recommend bondsmen; often 'tip off' bondsmen as to the amount of valuables taken from a defendant and thus give an indication of what may be collected as a fee for signing a bond.

"Professional bondsmen who testified before the Commission all admitted that they kept no record whatever of their bail activities, and could give no information as to what cases or what persons they entered bail, except what they could recall from memory and most of it was very feeble, perhaps intentionally so."

My fellow Members of the House, are we going to bring back a condition that existed when this investigation was made, at the time of the enactment of this act which is now sought to be abrogated? I think that each and every one of us will look upon this, not so much as a political question, not so much as a matter of changing the authority center from one hand to the other but that you will recognize that the moment you place this back into the position it occupied prior to the enactment of the law, which this amendment seeks to change, that you will be giving the professional bondsmen once more his stand in the Community and in the city of Philadelphia, a stand which every one of us regrets ever was permitted. I hope that every one of you will say to yourselves, let us get rid of the idea that men can post bonds that are not substantial, that have no substance, that have not background, that are valueless. Mr. Speaker let us leave the law as it is.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker one more word so that there won't be a misunderstanding. This amendment does not change the machinery of the bill in any form whatever. It simply puts the commissioner in the place where all things connected with the Criminal Court are, in the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions. It does not change the machinery one single iota.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I feel that this bill being debated by only Philadelphia members might mislead the other Members of the House. This bill has state wide significance because it reinstates a fraud on the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania that was once in operation.

One of the gentlemen from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, arises in the dying moments of this debate to throw to the Republican side of the House a bouquet of roses to smell. I want to point out to the Republican Members of the House, because I do not believe the Republicans representing the Commonwealth believe in this kind of legislation, that what Mr. Salus says is not so. It is true that the machinery is not being changed; we are still going to have presentation of bail and certification of bail. But we are not interested this afternoon in presentation of bail. In the debate that ensued all afternoon you could readily see that. We are interested in the certification, and the certification Mr. Salus has asked you to enact is not proper in the hands of the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court in Philadelphia.

Mr. Salus knows, and the Members of the House know, that the logical place for certification of bail is where property records are kept, where the men who control the records necessary to certify good bail are located, in the Controllers' office, and it is in that office that it is deemed necessary and mandatory to keep this certification.

Mr. Salus says "we are only changing the certification from one office to another". Mr. Salus doesn't say that the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions is not equipped to accept good bail. The Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court is not permitted to certify any bail, whether it be good or bad, and that is just the purpose of the 1937 act, which was enacted in this particular House by a two hundred and one to nothing vote.

Certainly the Republicans on the other side of the House not from Philadelphia are going to be inconsistent in this measure. They voted for this bill in 1937; they approved a correction of the scandalous bail racket in Philadelphia. They approved legislation to correct a very disastrous piece of maneuvering on the part of racket bailors.

Do not let the gentleman from Philadelphia mislead you. This amendment this afternoon will reenact in Pennsylvania a repetition of what we did away with in 1937, and I challenge the gentleman to say anything different. The Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions has no records nor has he the data available to tell the prospective bailor whether his bail is any good or not.

There is only one question involved in this issue, and that is, do the Members of this House want a return to the scandalous bail racket prevailing in Philadelphia prior to 1937? If they want it, they will vote down my amendments. If they don't want a recurrence then they will vote for the amendments and kill this bill.

Mr. BENTLEY. Mr. Speaker, I am not from Philadelphia County. I am from the county of Allegheny and with the other Members of the House I have listened quite attentively to this debate, because it seems that a matter which stirs so much heat must be of considerable importance to all of us, even though it does not concern the county from which we come.

I hesitate to arise now because the debate has been unduly long, but I feel that I have a question in my mind which must be in the minds of many other members of the House. It has not been clearly explained to me at least, and I tried to be careful in my attention to the discussion, but I am not certain whether or not the bill now before the House will take us back to the situation which existed and which led to the bail scandal in Philadelphia back in the years of the '20's and '30's.

I hesitate to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, because he is an old hand. He knows the best answer to an interrogation is to make a speech, but nevertheless, I feel that in fairness to myself and other Members of the House who are not from Philadelphia County, but who are going to be called upon to vote upon this very important matter, we should have clarification, and I propose to ask only two questions, if the gentleman will yield to interrogation. So, Mr. Speaker, if I may I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, I will try. Maybe I can answer.

Mr. BENTLEY. I would like to inquire of the gentleman, Mr. Speaker, at the time of the bail bond scandal in Philadelphia who was the certifying authority of bail bonds in the county of Philadelphia at that time?

Mr. SALUS. Each particular magistrate, Mr. Speaker, had the right to accept bail. The Clerks of the Courts had the right to accept bail on the approval of the Judge of that particular court.

Mr. BENTLEY. That is not the situation under the present law, is it, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. SALUS. Under the present law there is a Commissioner of Bail appointed by the Controller. In the change in the law the Commissioner of Bail will be appointed by the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions.

The question of record in the Controller's office, as one of the things objected to at the time the bill was passed was that the city of Philadelphia had to duplicate all the records that were in the Recorder of Deeds' office, and the Prothonotary's office and set up a new set of judgments.

It required quite a lot of money to get the new records together. Under your new bill all those records already paid for and in the hands of the Controller will be turned over to the Clerk of Quarter Sessions Court.

However, if that bill had been so drawn when it was first presented, before our Democratic friends changed it, it would have given the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Courts of Philadelphia the right to appoint the Bail Commissioner and all the records would have been together in the Clerk of Quarter Sessions Court office, in the Prothonotary's office and in the Recorder of Deeds' office, all of which offices were right in City Hall.

As a result of the bill of 1937 and because of the fact that things were turned over to the Controller, the city of Philadelphia was compelled to compile a large quantity of records, at an expense of many, many thousands of dollars. There they are now, and will be turned over to the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions. All the criminal records and procedures so far as bail is concerned will be in one department, and it will be impossible to incur any straw bail scandal, the same as we had. The bail ought to go where it was originally intended to go, to the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions.

Mr. BENTLEY. Mr. Speaker, I see that I have brought forth a speech, which I anticipated. I find that I am deluged with words again, but I would ask one further question of the gentleman.

Will the certifying authority under the proposed bill be the same certifying authority that passed on bail bonds at the time of the bail bond scandal in Philadelphia?

Mr. SALUS. It certainly will not. The certifying authority before was the magistrates. That was taken out of their power. The Bail Commissioner and all those clerks who are appointed by the Quarter Sessions Court, where they have work to do connected with the court, all those men are approved by a committee of the judges of the court called the criminal division, and no clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions would have the audacity to appoint a Commissioner of Bail without the consent of that particular department of the Court of Quarter Session.

Mr. BENTLEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Philadelphia.

Mr. Speaker, I find that I am not much clearer on this matter than I was before. However, I believe I have arrived at this conclusion, that the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions back in the days of the bail bond scandal did pass on the certification of bonds, and as I read the present bill, it seems to me that once again the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions, however his bail bond commission is arrived at, will again be the active authority in passing upon bail bonds. On that basis it would seem to one not from Philadelphia that this bill proposes a return to a system under which what must have been a very serious bail bond scandal arose. I believe on that basis I must oppose the bill and be in favor of the amendments.

Mr. CORRIGAN. Mr. Speaker, I did not intend to get up on the floor to speak on this bill, but I cannot conscientiously stay in my seat and permit a piece of legislation of this kind to go through and fool my colleagues in this House. The only thing this bill does is take the watchdog that we have in Philadelphia over these bail thieves away, who is the controller. It takes it from his hands and puts it in the hands of a clerk of the court.

I appeal to you, gentlemen of the House, before you vote down this amendment of Mr. Levy's that you get a copy of this bill in your hands and read it, and I am sure that if you do you will not vote down this amendment. I appeal to you as your friend, don't do it.

Mr. GATES. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, who speaks for the sponsor of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SALUS. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. GATES. Mr. Speaker, I would like to have the gentleman from Philadelphia guide me in my vote, and I would like to know, if under this section the Bail Commissioner who will be appointed by the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions will have the right to the Controller's information and the property records upon which the bond in his opinion is or is not acceptable as a bail bond.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, I might answer to the gentleman that he will have those complete records turned over to him, and they are up to date. They are furnished by the tax receivers, the Recorder of Deeds, and the Prothonotary of the court. They are kept up to date, and if an application be made for bail, if they do not have the record they will send down and get it.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I am very happy that the gentleman from Armstrong rose to ask that question, because that is the very question I wanted to ask myself, but the answer that the gentleman from Philadelphia gave is a bit confusing. I want the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, in view of the fact that he makes these statements to the House as a result of a study of this bill tell us in what portion of the bill does the City Comptroller give over to the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions all the records vested at this time in his department?

Mr. SALUS. There is some reference to these records in the next bill, Mr. Speaker. However, these records would not belong to the Controller; they belong to the different departments which have placed them in his office. If this bill is passed, those different departments would have the right to take those various records and place them wherever they saw fit. They are not the property of the Controller. They are furnished in a cooperative system among the heads of the departments.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, as yet the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, has not answered the question, but he did say that in the following bill something is said about it. You will recall, gentlemen, when I first arose in opposition to this bill and in offering my amendment, I asked the Speaker to permit me to debate the two bills. Mr. Salus very conveniently arose on his feet and objected. Now, he makes reference to the other bill, and I still press the question: Where in the other bill does the City Controller of Philadelphia turn over the records?

The SPEAKER. The chair would remind the gentleman that under an interrogation of this kind he must confine his interrogation to the amendments under consideration. There are amendments to section two of this bill to be placed before the House. Will the gentleman, therefore please confine his interrogation to the amendments to the section under consideration.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I would still like to have my question answered.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, that question is not on this section, and I do not believe it is germane to the question now before the House. I have the facts here, but I do not believe we ought to go into the next bill. We will go into that when we come to it, but I see no reason to go into it at this time.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would inform the gentleman from Philadelphia that we are now on the second reading calendar. It would be more practical to grant his request when the bill is on third reading.

Mr. LEVY. In answer to you, Mr. Speaker, the only reason I arose on this amendment and discussed this bill is because this bill appeared so important to me from Philadelphia, and in my estimation appears so important to the other Members from other parts of the State that I would like to have statements made on the floor backed up once and for all.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Armstrong—

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman yield. The question before this House is, will the House adopt the amendments offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy. The Chair recognized the gentleman from Philadelphia on that question.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, only a few moments ago the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates, asked the gentleman from Philadelphia a very pertinent question. He asked whether the records held by the City Controller would by the passage of this amendment be transferred to the office of the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court, and the gentleman from Philadelphia said that they would.

Now, I am very much in line, I believe, Mr. Speaker, if I asked the gentleman from Philadelphia along with the rest of his assistants to point out to me where in House Bill No. 312 provision is made for the records in the City Controllers' office to be transferred to the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court?

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, I didn't quite hear all the gentleman from Philadelphia stated, but this bill will come before us with amendments or without amendments tomorrow on third reading. I am perfectly willing to go into the back room with him and go over all the facts with him in connection with this, and the next bill. Why keep the House here for three or four hours extra? I will go back with him or have the sponsor of the bill go back with him. We will go over all the facts. We are all prepared to talk on the question of amendments that are to follow on this bill and on the next bill.

Mr. LEVY. I desire, Mr. Speaker, then to make a suggestion and to request the courtesy of the gentleman from Philadelphia that in view of the fact that neither he nor the sponsor can answer some of the questions regarding this bill and the amendments thereto, would he go along with having this bill passed over on second reading, I will gladly withdraw my amendments, so that we may get together and discuss the merits of the bill and what the bills contain? I would ask, Mr. Speaker, the courtesy of the gentleman from Philadelphia.

Mr. SALUS. After all the time we have spent, Mr. Speaker—

The SPEAKER. The only question before the House is on the amendments that have been offered, which have been debated for four hours.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, you will note that I merely made a suggestion, but in view of the fact that the Speaker raised this question, I might remind him that I have also introduced a series of other amendments to this bill. If the Speaker desires that this question be not considered by the gentleman from Philadelphia—

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman yield? The Chair would inform the gentleman from Philadelphia that the Chair will accept any amendments offered. The Chair is trying to confine the discussion to the question on the amendments before the House.

The Chair would also inform the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, that it would be impossible for any Member of the House to make an agreement of the kind suggested by him. The question before us is on the amendments to section one.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, the question before the House is on the amendment to section one that I have offered, but I might add that I have also asked the gentleman a very pertinent question. Now, I cannot expect the Members of the House to decide intelligently on this bill until the gentleman from Philadelphia answers the question.

If I consider it a refusal to answer the question, then I must treat it as such, Mr. Speaker, and I only suggested that the bill go over in its order with the permission of the gentleman from Philadelphia in view of the fact that he inferred that we might get together, read over the bill and point out to each other what the bill contains. That is my only suggestion.

The SPEAKER. Is there a motion to postpone?

MOTION TO LAY ON TABLE

Mr. LEVY. I move, Mr. Speaker, that the bill and the amendments be laid on the table.

The motion was not agreed to.

Mr. McKINNEY. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

The motion was seconded by Messrs. Serrill, Cadwalader, Alspach, Royer, Taylor, Lyons, Hall, Norman Wood, Boorse, Foor, Yeakel, Van Allsburg, Reagan, Imbrie, Leisey, Gyger, Dix, Leydic, Auker, Cordier, Paul L. Wagner and others.

On the question,

Shall the main question be now put?

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. COHEN. Do I understand that the present question, Mr. Speaker, is being put on the motion for the previous question based upon the first set of names or the second set of names?

The SPEAKER. The names were recorded by the Clerk until twenty were recorded.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, my inquiry is whether the first set of names or the second set of names that I heard announced by the Chair was used.

The SPEAKER. All of the names of those who seconded the motion for the previous question were considered.

Mr. COHEN. A combination of both?

The SPEAKER. That is correct.

Mr. COHEN. I thank you, Mr. Speaker.

On the question recurring,

Shall the main question be now put?

The yeas and nays were required by Messrs. Levy, Cohen and Chudoff and were as follows:

MOTION TO ADJOURN

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn until Wednesday, March 3, at 1:00 o'clock p. m.

The SPEAKER. The motion is out of order at this time.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of information.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Is not a motion to adjourn always in order, Mr. Speaker?

The SPEAKER. The only question before the House now is the vote on the previous question. The House has voted that the main question shall be now put.

Mr. O'BRIEN. I still say, on the question of information, Mr. Speaker, isn't a motion to adjourn always in order?

The SPEAKER. After the main question has been put the Chair will accept the motion, but can not do so at this time.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, is not a motion to adjourn always in order?

The SPEAKER. A motion to adjourn is not in order at this time. The question before the House now is the main question, which is on the amendments offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

They were not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The second section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Messrs. CULLEN and LEVY offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 3), page 3, line 22, by striking out the light-faced bracket before and after the word "controller."

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 3), page 3, lines 22, 23 and 24, by striking out the following: "clerk of the court of oyer and" in line 22, all of line 23, and the word "peace" in line 24.

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 4), page 4, line 7, by striking out the light-faced bracket before and after the word "controller."

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 4), page 4, lines 7, 8 and 9, by striking out the following: "clerk of the court of oyer and" in line 7, all of line 8, and the word "peace" in line 9.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

MOTION TO ADJOURN

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I thought that the moving of the previous question only applied to amendments concerned with section one, and inasmuch as you have finished that, Mr. Speaker, I now again move you that this House do now adjourn until Wednesday, March 3rd, at one p. m.

The motion was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, in support of my amendments to section two, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SALUS. I shall, Mr. Speaker, if there is anything new that the gentleman from Philadelphia would like to know I will answer him, but I do not propose to stand here and rehash what has been going on for the last two hours.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to say in preface to the interrogation, that the plaudits are from those who know not.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, I did not hear what the gentleman said.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to inquire from the gentleman from Philadelphia a very pertinent question. He a few moments ago made a statement in answer to a query from the gentleman from Armstrong that in the bill there was a provision made for the transfer of the data necessary to carry on the good work done by the City Controller to the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions.

I want the gentleman from Philadelphia to inform the House what line and what page of the bill makes that transfer.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, I will answer that question tomorrow or tonight when the next bill comes up. I have already answered it. I think it is time that we let the Members of the House get down to work and go home for dinner.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I asked the gentleman from Philadelphia twenty minutes ago whether or not he would pass this bill over or vote to lay it on the table to give him sufficient time to get the correct answers. The gentleman from Philadelphia doesn't know the bill. I don't believe he has read the bill, and, Mr. Speaker, I want to know how the Republican membership of this House—

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Cambria will state his point of order.

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Philadelphia is not discussing his amendments to section two.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has been very lenient in all of these discussions. Will the gentleman kindly confine his remarks to the amendments now before us.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the Majority Whip of the House.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Rose, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I would like the Majority Whip of the House, in view of the fact that he knows so much about questions of order, to tell the House what my amendments are to section two.

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, the Clerk has read them. If the gentleman is inferring that I cannot h ar, I consider that a violation of the personality rule, and refuse to answer.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman arose to a question of order and insisted that I speak on the amendments to section two. I do not believe he knows what the amendments to section two are. I do, and I insist that I am speaking on the amendments and that he does not know at all what he is speaking about.

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, in reply to the gentleman, are not questions of order to be decided by the Speaker?

The SPEAKER. The Chair has decided the question.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I don't know that the Majority Whip knows the seriousness of this bill. As I stated before, he doesn't know the amendments that I have offered, but if the gentlemen on the other side of the House think this is just one big joke, they can think so. I as a member of the House representing a constituency believe that this is a very important matter, especially to the people of Philadelphia.

I expect to be heard, and I expect to ask the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, who knows so much about this piece of legislation, to tell me where in this piece of legislation certain provisions are made. He refuses to answer the questions.

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, it appears that we are now exactly at the same point we were when the previous question was made before, and I now move the previous question.

The motion was seconded by Messrs. Van Allsburg, Yeakel, Stockham, Sollenberger, Winner, Lichtenwalter, Serrill, Muir, Cadwalader, Trout, Taylor, Royer, Alspach, Boorse, Norman Wood, Charles H. Brunner, Jr., Lloyd H. Wood, Fleming, McKinney, Robertson, Stonier, Imbrie and others.

On the question,

Shall the main question be now put?

PARLIMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parlimentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of parlimentary inquiry.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, is the motion now before the House debatable?

The SPEAKER. A motion for the previous question is not debatable.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I ask for a roll call.

The yeas and nays were required by Messrs. Levy, Stank and Finnerty and were as follows:

YEAS—129

So the question was determined in the affirmative and the motion for the previous question was agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know how the main question may now be put if the Clerk has not read all the amendments to section two.

The SPEAKER. All the amendments to section two that were sent to the desk by the gentleman were read by the Clerk.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, for the information of the House I would request that all the amendments to section two be re-read.

The SPEAKER. For the information of the House the amendments will be re-read by the Clerk.

The Clerk read the amendments offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, to section 2.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The yeas ad nays were required by Mr. Levy and Mr. Skale and were as follows:

So the question was determined in the negative and the amendments were not agreed to.

(Following the calling of the roll and before the result was announced.)

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, in all my time in this Legislature I have tried to be fair, but if you men on the other side of this House think you are going to use gag rule—

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman yield? There is nothing before the House except the announcement of the vote. The Chair will recognize the gentleman after the vote has been announced.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The third section was read.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I wished to be recognized before the second section was agreed to on second reading.

The SPEAKER. For the information of the gentleman, the bill has not been agreed to on second reading.

Mr. LOVETT. The section was in debate, is that not correct, Mr. Speaker?

The SPEAKER. That is correct.

Mr. LOVETT. I wished to be recognized before the section was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would inform the gentleman that at the time he asked for recognization the previous question had been called for, and we were obeying the call for the previous question.

Mr. LOVETT. Does the House have to agree to the section, Mr. Speaker?

The SPEAKER. The House must agree to the section.

Mr. LOVETT. Is it proper for me to object to an agreement to the section, Mr. Speaker?

The SPEAKER. The Chair would inform the gentleman from Westmoreland when the previous question was called for there was only one thing the Chair could do, and that was to put the question. After the main question was decided it was necessary for the Chair to put the question on the amendments to section two. That was being done when the gentleman asked for recognition. The gentleman could not be recognized at that time.

Mr. LOVETT. May I ask, did I ask for recognition after the vote had been taken and before it was announced, before the section was approved?

The SPEAKER. That is correct.

Mr. LOVETT. I was not recognized until it was approved, is that not correct, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. After the section was agreed to, the gentleman was recognized. The Chair would inform the gentleman from Westmoreland that he could have been recognized before the section was agreed to, but the Chair did not understand that the gentleman wanted that recognition at that time.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I wanted recognition before the section was agreed to for the simple reason that I feel here this afternoon that you gentlemen on the other side of this House did not give this fair play. In this debate on this particular bill the gentleman on the other side referred to another bill, and when the question was asked by a gentleman from this side, it was ruled out of order because it was on another bill.

Gentlemen, let us be fair with one another. If you gentlemen want to use gag rule, then there are other ways to stop the proceedings of this session. We probably know the tricks as well as you do. We can ask that all the bills be read at length, and all those things if we must go into that. I have always tried to be fair; the men on this side of the House have always tried to be fair. I admit there was quite a bit of debate on the amendments offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, on section one, but when the debate came to section two, it was immediately cut off. I don't think that is fair, and I ask that it be not continued.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I might have gone into a discussion of the amendments to this bill offered on second reading. I might say that I had three more motions that I could make under the rules and have asked for a roll call on each, and the Speaker would recognize them as such. I could have called for individual roll calls, but I have received word from the Speaker to the effect that tonight the Speaker is playing host to the Press, and knowing the Speaker as I do and wanting to extend to him the courtesy that he personally and his office demands, I am going to waive my right to make those motions and ask for the individual roll calls, but in doing so, and prior to the approval of this bill in its entirety on second reading, I only want to say to my colleagues on the other side of the House that this action represents the first breakdown of Democracy.

I don't know how conscientiously the Majority Whip feels about the privilege that we men have to come into the Halls of the Legislature and speak for the people whom we represent, but I only want to say to him that when we held the celebration for Abraham Lincoln and George Washington, and my colleague from the other side of the House from Bucks County spoke of the constitutional rights and privileges and the greatness of democracy, he certainly did not mean that the Majority Whip should rise from his seat only because he arose out of order and only because he knew naught about the subject upon which he rose to speak, and then he deliberately gagged debate on proper amendments to an improper bill.

I want to warn the Majority Whip—I think I am his senior in this House—I only want to warn him that in the future he get the counsel and advice of older members on the Republican side of the House. I just want to pass a word of advice on to this new Majority Whip. I want to say to him that when he attempts to arise on a bill or to bring to the attention of the Speaker the fact that a man is out of order, he had better in the future know what he is talking about. But above everything else let him know that he is also an American, that he also as the Majority Whip of the House of Representatives should know what that word stands for, and let him not attempt to gag any Member of this House. We have had many times, gentlemen, motions of the previous question, and the Parliamentarian who has been here for many years will bear this out, but we have never had an occasion where a motion for the previous question was raised when the man who offered the amendments did not have any opportunity to explain them.

I think, gentlemen, our action this afternoon is a blot on the very Americanism we are attempting to hold high, and I say to the Majority Whip, let him learn from his elders, let him get his diapers wet before he wets anyone else. Thank you.

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I might very properly again under the rules object to the remarks of the gentleman from Philadelphia, and I might at length answer him now, but because of the time already consumed and the time which may be consumed in further consideration of the calendar, I will defer my remarks and only remark in answer to the gentleman, that sometimes procedure is not determined by age alone nor by experience measured in years.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The fourth section and title were separately read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 313, entitled:

An Act to amend the title and sections eighteen, nineteen and twenty of the act, approved the fifteenth day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1743), entitled "An act relating to magistrates and magistrates' courts in the city of Philadelphia; imposing certain duties upon, and prohibiting certain practices by, magistrates; imposing certain duties on the city controller in regard thereto; authorizing the employment by him of additional clerks and fixing their compensation; regulating the practice in magistrates' courts, the entering of bail and the issuance of discharges in criminal cases in the county of Philadelphia; conferring certain powers over magistrates and magistrates' courts and imposing certain duties in connection therewith upon the judges of the courts of common pleas of the county of Philadelphia; providing for the appointment and employment of stenographers to report proceedings in certain cases heard by magistrates; fixing salaries of persons employed by authority of this act; providing penalties for violations of the provisions thereof; and repealing certain prior acts," removing certain powers and duties of the city controller and conferring them upon the clerk of the courts of oyer and terminer, general jail delivery and quarter sessions of the peace; authorizing said clerk to employ additional clerks and fixing their salaries.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Messrs. CULLEN and LEVY offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 1 (Title), page 3, line 10, by striking out the light-faced bracket before the word "city" and after the word "controller"

Amend Sec. 1 (Title), page 3, lines 10, 11 and 12, by striking out the following: "clerk of the" in line 10, all of line 11, and the words "quarter sessions" in line 12.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to bring to the attention of the Speaker that the amendments offered on the other bill were offered by myself and the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cullen, and these are of course likewise. I do not believe the Speaker mentioned that.

The SPEAKER. The amendments were signed by both members, and the records will show that the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cullen and the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, offered the amendments to section 1 of the bill.

The question is will the House agree to the amendments to section one of the bill.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, before we begin debate on House Bill 313 and the amendments offered, it was my understanding that due to the lateness of the hour, the Speaker would finish with House Bill No. 312 and then proceed with House Bill 313 on the following Legislative day. Of course if I am mistaken I stand corrected, but I was not prepared to go ahead unless the Speaker desired it. It was my impression that the Speaker wanted to go to the dinner.

The SPEAKER. Conditions are really beyond the control of the Chair. The Chair was merely trying to extend courtesy to all the Members of the House.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, the only reason I made that statement was because that was my original understanding.

Of course, I would like to inform the House that House Bill 313 is a companion to House Bill 312, and requires as much, if not more, debate. Now, if the Speaker feels under those circumstances he wants to continue, well and good, but I don't know what harm would be done if it was kept over for tomorrow's calendar. I feel that it is important legislation.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would say to the gentleman from Philadelphia that the Chair will be governed by the direction of the House.

The SPEAKER. That seems to be the decision of the House.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, do I understand we will go on and debate the amendments?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, the amendments to section 1 of House Bill 313 deal with the emasculation of the reform of the Magistrates Act of 1937. Many of you might recall the scandalous actions on the part of the various clerks in the Courts.

I only want to say that if the gentleman from Philadelphia has decided in his wisdom that House Bill 313 must be passed on second reading this evening, then I would suggest that we get together with the Majority Leader and attempt to keep the men in their seats, because if they are going to sojourn to their hotels then I would suggest that we might have some other proceedings. I am surely going to bring them out. I understand that only a few moments ago some twenty men rose and left the Hall. If we are going to have debate, we will have it, and if not we can let it go until tomorrow.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia has the floor.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, many of you gentlemen may not recall the scandal that attended the acceptance of bail in criminal matters in the courts of Philadelphia. Then again others of you may recall the scandalous magistrates' condition in the city and county of Philadelphia. You members that attended the 1937 session recall the magistrates' act which was passed by this body in the Senate of Pennsylvania and signed by the Governor. The Magistrates' Act of 1937 did nothing more than clean up the disorder and chaos in the magistrates' courts in Philadelphia. I want to remind the members of this House when that act passed it passed by a vote of 202 to nothing, so that the Republican membership of the House at the time thought enough of the reform not to raise one voice in objection, and if I recall correctly, when the Magistrates' Act of 1937 was finally placed on third reading in the House, not one single Republican Representative from Philadelphia had the temerity to arise in its opposition, and the bill was finally passed by a vote of 202 to 0. Now that selfsame Republican party in Philadelphia, through its very intelligent leadership, is again knocking on the doors of the Legislature to once more bring upon the people of Philadelphia a scandalous condition in regard to fraudulent bail.

You will note, gentlemen, that in the argument advanced on second reading in the previous bill regarding the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court not one Republican from Philadelphia, nor one Republican from the rest of the state of Pennsylvania, arose to defend this horrible piece of legislation. I have no doubt now that they intend to do the same

Mr. Speaker, I don't know how many wandering boys I see this evening, I don't know how many vacant seats there are in the House.

The SPEAKER. Suppose the Chair sings "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight"?

Mr. LEVY. That will be very good, Mr. Speaker.

I would like to suggest to the Speaker the apparent absence of a quorum; and I think, Mr. Speaker, it might be proper and in legislative order to poll the House.

Then again, I have been reminded that there might be a better suggestion, if we brought the Philadelphia newspapermen in the House this evening to call for their photographers and snap pictures of some of these Philadelphia Legislators on bills of this kind. We might get some further response.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. WINNER. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Montgomery will state his point of order.

Mr. WINNER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is not speaking on the amendments.

The SPEAKER. The question before the House is on the amendments offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy and Mr. Cullen. The Chair would ask the gentleman to please keep within bounds as much as he possibly can.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to remind the gentleman form Montgomery that I have been speaking on the amendments and I always have the right reserved—it is always a right reserved to a Member to note the absence of a quorum in the House.

Mr. WINNER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman speaking about the absence of a quorum has nothing to do with the newspapermen taking photographs.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman should confine himself to the question before the House, the amendments to section one of the bill.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I might inform the gentleman from Montgomery that I did not hear the reason for his question. Possibly if he stood beside the mike I might get better acquainted with what he said, but as long as the Speaker understood it, it is probably all right—I don't know.

Mr. WINNER. On the point that I raised, Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman wants to poll the House, why don't he make the motion.

Mr. LEVY. I probably will, Mr. Speaker.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER, JR. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Montgomery will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER, JR. Mr. Speaker, does a Member of this House have to remain seated in his seat to hear a debate in which he may not have an interest or in which he does not have the slightest concern?

The SPEAKER. A Member is entitled to sit anywhere in the House. However, he must be in his seat in order to be recognized by the Chair.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. McMILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana will state his question of information.

Mr. McMILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I wonder if we might not solve the problem quickly and satisfactorily by just moving that we give Philadelphia back to the Indians.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to suggest to the gentleman that he'd better find out first just what we have got against the Indians.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, I just want to remind the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. McMillen, and call his attention to the fact that we cannot very well give Philadelphia back to the Indians because Philadelphia keeps Pennsylvania from slipping into the Delaware River.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is wondering whether the gentleman does not mean the Indians of Indiana County.

Mr. McMILLEN. Mr. Speaker, if the Indians will just give us back our barrel of whiskey, we will give them Philadelphia.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. McMillen, by what authority he speaks.

Mr. McMILLEN. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman from Philadelphia, I would say from my impression of the arguments today, I think the Indians were quite careless and inefficient with the use of their tomahawks a few years ago.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, according to the mural depicting the signing of Penn's treaty with the Indians, there is no evidence of a barrel of whiskey, and I would like to know where that barrel of whiskey came into this debate.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would suggest that the gentleman inquire of the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. DENNISON. Mr. Speaker, as usually happens in that kind of a case, Philadelphia drank the evidence.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I think the remark of the previous gentleman was very apropos. That is what happened to a lot of this bail, the evidence disappeared.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I can almost see through this maze of debate. Apparently the Republicans, not from Philadelphia, are having a nice time of it because they realize that over in the Senate the Republican State Committee will take care of this bill and bury it, but that is no reason why we as Memebrs of the House should tolerate a piece of legislation like this. The gentlemen from Philadelphia and the other parts of the state know about the bail racket in the Magistrate's Courts, they know that should this piece of legislation be enacted once again—Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Somerset, Mr. Hare.

BILL POSTPONED

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, in order that our friend may have an opportunity to play around with his companions tonight, I move that this bill be postponed for the present.

The motion was agreed to.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. SKALE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. SKALE. Mr. Speaker, I won't take up much of your time but this is really a matter upon which the happiness of the rest of my life depends.

Last week the Members of this House were kind enough to introduce a congratulatory resolution upon my recent marriage. After that I was called upon to say a few words.

The last paragraph on page 485 of the Journal of the House, dated February 23, 1943, I was very much surprised when I read it to find that this is what I was supposed to have said:

"I have not been sentenced to a term of happiness for life."

I would like to correct that. What I said was, "I have now been sentenced to a term of happiness for life."

The SPEAKER. The remarks of the gentleman on his question of personal privilege will be noted upon the Journal of the House.

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, I understand there are certain bills on the calendar that have not been reached. I am wondering if a motion is not in order that they go over in order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is informed that such a motion is not necessary.

The motion was agreed to, and (at 6:28 p. m.) the House adjourned.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Legislative Journal.

Session 1943. 135th of the General Assembly.

Vol. 27. HARRISBURG, PA., MONDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1943. No. 22.

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, March 3, 1943.

The Senate met at 11:00 o'clock, Eastern War Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor John C. Bell, Jr.) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. EDWIN S. WALLACE, D. D. offered the following prayer:

Unto Thee, O God, creator of the heavens and the earth, we turn our faces in humility and in reverence; in humility because of our sins and many failures; in reverence because of Thy divine majesty, and also because of Thy forgiving love.

Each of us now in Thy presence knows from his own life experience how great is his need of Thee. In our conscious need we pray for that wisdom that cometh from above, and for that Christian courage and fortitude that will enable us to meet and perform the duties of the day, so that when the day is over we can hear the approving voice of our own conscience—the still, small voice of God.

We pray for the leaders of our armed forces and for all those men and women, serving under them. We pray for our executives, our President, our Governor and our Lieutenant-Governor, and for all who serve with them.

We pray for our Nation and our State, that the protecting wings of the Almighty may be over them.

We pray for the coming of peace, when men shall no more resort to the arbitrament of war, but will, under the sanctions of the Golden Rule, dwell in peace and good will the world around.

All we ask is in the name of the Lord of us all. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. HEYBURN and Mr. TALLMAN, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Mr. WADE asked and obtained leave of absence for Mr. ZIESENHEIM.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Mr. SCARLETT read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 245, entitled:

An Act to further amend section eight hundred one of the act, approved the twenty-eighth day of April, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 417), entitled "An act relating to milk and the products thereof; creating a Milk Control Commission; establishing its jurisdiction, powers and duties; regulating the production, transportation, manufacturing, processing, storage, distribution, delivery and sale of milk and certain products thereof; providing for the licensing of milk dealers and the payment of fees therefor; requiring milk dealers to file bonds to secure payment for milk to producers and certain milk dealers; authorizing the holding of hearings and the issuance of subpoenas by the commission; conferring jurisdiction upon courts to punish contempts and to prohibit violations of this act and of rules, regulations and orders of the commission; authorizing the commission to adopt rules, regulations and orders, and to enter into interstate and Federal compacts; requiring persons who weigh, measure, sample or test milk to procure permits or certificates, to take examinations, to pay fees therefor, to furnish certain notices, records and statements, and to use certain methods of weighing, measuring, sampling and testing; authorizing the commission to examine the business, papers and premises of milk dealers and producers, requiring the keeping of records and the filing of reports by milk dealers, and permitting, with limitations, the use of information obtained thereby; authorizing the commission to fix prices for milk and certain milk products subject to the approval of the Governor, and conferring certain powers upon the Governor with respect thereto; providing for appeals to the courts from decisions of the commission, and for the burden of proof upon such appeals; prescribing penalties, fines and imprisonment for violations of this act and rules, regulations and orders of the commission; defining perjury; defining remedies; repealing legislation supplied and superseded by this act, and saving rights, duties and proceedings thereunder; and making appropriations," by eliminating the requirement of the Governor's approval for certain orders of the commission, and any amendments or revisions thereof, fixing or changing the price of milk.

Which was committed to the Committee on Agriculture.

L. 789) entitled as amended "An act relating to insurance establishing an insurance department and amending revising and consolidating the law relating to the licensing qualification regulation examination suspension and dissolution of insurance companies Lloyds associations reciprocal and inter-insurance exchanges and certain societies and orders the examination and regulation of fire insurance rating bureaus and the licensing and regulation of insurance agents and brokers the service of legal process upon foreign insurance companies associations or exchanges providing penalties and repealing existing laws" as amended in part by the act approved the twenty-sixth day of April one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 793) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 301 Computation of Reserve Liability The Insurance Commissioner shall each year compute the reserve liability as of the thirty-first day of December of the preceding year of every company authorized to make insurance on lives in this Commonwealth in accordance with the terms of the policy contract and rules following

(a) The net value of all outstanding policies of life insurance issued by the company prior to the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and ninety shall be computed upon the basis of the American experience table of mortality with interest at not less than four and one-half and not more than six per centum per annum

(b) The net value of all outstanding policies issued between the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and ninety and the first day of January one thousand nine hundred and three on the combined experience or actuaries' table of mortality with interest at four per centum per annum

(c) The net value of all outstanding policies of life insurance issued on and after the first day of January nineteen hundred and three on the American experience table of mortality with interest at three and one-half per centum per annum Provided however That any company may value its group term insurance policies under which premium rates are not guaranteed for a period in excess of five years according to the American men ultimate table of mortality with interest at three and one-half per centum per annum

(d) The net value of all policies of life insurance issued on and after January first one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one where the premiums are payable monthly or oftener shall be valued according to the American experience table of mortality with interest at three and one-half per centum per annum But any company may voluntarily value its industrial policies according to the standard industrial mortality table with interest at three and one-half per centum per annum

The net value of a policy at any time shall be taken to be the single net premium which will at that time effect the insurance less the value at that time of the future net premiums called for by the table of mortality and rate of interest designated

The legal minimum standard for valuation of annuities issued after January one one thousand nine hundred and twelve shall be McClintock's table of mortality among annuitants with interest at three and one-half per centum per annum but annuities deferred ten or more years and written in connection with life or term insurance shall be valued upon the same mortality table from which the consideration or premiums were computed with interest not higher than three and one-half per centum per annum

Any such company may however at any time elect under any of its policies of life insurance to reserve on the American experience table of mortality with a lower rate of interest but at a rate not less than two per centum or on the American men ultimate table of mortality (with such modification and extension below age twenty as may be approved by the Insurance Commissioner) with interest at a rate not more than three and one-half per centum and not less than two per centum and its obligations under such policies shall thereafter be valued accordingly

The aggregate net value so ascertained of the policies of any such life insurance company shall be deemed its reserve liability to provide for which it shall hold funds in secure investments of an amount equal to such net value above all its other liabilities The Insurance Commissioner shall after having determined as above the net value of all the policies in force see that the company has that amount in safe legal securities after all its other debts and claims against it have been provided for The provisions of this section for the valuation of policies and for premium rates shall not apply to companies or associations transacting business on the mutual assessment plan

Section 2 Section three hundred three of the act approved the seventeenth day of May one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one (P. L. 789) entitled as amended "An act relating to insurance establishing an insurance department and amending revising and consolidating the law relating to the licensing qualification regulation examination suspension and dissolution of insurance companies Lloyds associations reciprocal and inter-insurance exchanges and certain societies and orders the examination and regulation of fire insurance rating bureaus and the licensing and regulation of insurance agents and brokers the service of legal process upon foreign insurance companies association or exchanges providing penalties and repealing existing laws" as amended by the act approved the twenty-sixth day of April one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 793) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 303 Separate Liability of Companies Charging Less Than Net Premiums Computed on Mortality Tables

Unlawful to Issue Policies Below Rate Fixed in Mortality Tables When the actual premium charged by any life insurance company doing business in the Commonwealth is less than the tabular net premium for such insurance computed as provided in this section such company shall be charged as a separate liability with the value of an annuity the amount of which shall equal the difference between such premiums and the term of which in years shall equal the number of future annual payments due on such insurance at the date of the valuation The tabular net premium for the purpose of this section shall be computed according to the table of mortality and rate of interest prescribed for such insurance in clauses (a) (b) (c) or (d)" of section three hundred and one of this act except that it shall be computed according to the table of mortality and rate of interest specified in the policy as the basis of the reserve for such insurance if the table so specified is the American men ultimate table of mortality

Section 3 All acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed

Section 4 This act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

PRAYER

The Rev. W. D. Krick, Pastor of the Grace Evangelical

Congregational Church, Steelton, Pa., a guest of the Chaplain, offered the following prayer:

Almighty everlasting God our Father we bow before Thee recognizing Thine almighty care and keeping power over us.

We humbly ask Thee to bless our Governor, the Speaker of the House, and the Members of the House of Representatives and their families.

Bless all the Representatives as they deliberate for the common good for all concerned.

Bless all officers in authority of our country; may they be blessed as they plan, that they may plan wisely for victory over our enemies.

Bless the soldier boys and girls of our great state, with their parents, wives and sweethearts.

Give them victory on land, sea, and in air.

In the name of our Lord we ask it. Amen.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. COULSON. (Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 29.

In the House of Representatives, March 2, 1943.

Wartime restrictions to conserve critical materials have virtually ended Pennsylvania's normal highway construction and reconstruction programs for the duration of the war.

Privately-owned toll bridges—which could logically and legally be obtained by the Commonwealth without curtailing or obstructing the Commonwealth's program of extensive post-war highway improvements—now act as bottlenecks, impeding and taxing war-essential traffic.

The Act of April 27, 1927, P. L. 395, and its amendments, authorizes the Department of Highways to acquire toll bridges within the Commonwealth, and the Constitutional Amendment adopted in November, 1933, adding Section 16 to Article 9 of the Constitution, authorizes the issue of bonds to the amount of ten million dollars in order to raise sufficient money to take over many of these toll bridges.

Proceedings were begun several years ago in Dauphin and Cumberland Counties to take over one of the toll bridges crossing the Susquehanna River at Harrisburg, but were never terminated; therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby requests the Secretary of Highways to proceed immediately to acquire the bridge crossing the Susquehanna River at Harrisburg, known as the Market Street Bridge, either by continuing the proceedings heretofore started or to institute new proceedings; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the House shall transmit a copy of this resolution to the Secretary of Highways.

Referred to the Committee on Highways.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent leave of absence was granted as follows:

Mr. Reynolds for Mr. BENTLEY for today's session because of illness.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. TROUT asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I want the House to know that a great honor came to Pennsylvania last week when Mr. Paul C. Cabot, director of the Salvage Division of the War Production Board, presented a plaque on behalf of the War Production Board to Governor Martin for the outstanding contribution of the citizens of this Commonwealth to the war effort in collecting scrap metal for our armed forces last fall.

Pennsylvania stood second among the states, having collected at the rate of 157.6 pounds per person, a total of 780,583 tons. I think it is worthy of note that the daily and weekly newspaper publishers of Pennsylvania contributed $500,000 worth of space to this drive, the most successful thing of its kind ever attempted in America.

I also call attention of the House to the fact that Dr. A. C. Marts, formerly executive director of the State Defense Council, recently reported that these same daily and weekly newspapers contributed "millions of dollars, judged by the standards of value," to the civilian defense program.

Since Pearl Harbor, the newspaper boys of Pennsylvania, inspired and led by their publishers, have sold 92,409,062 U. S. War Savings Stamps, leading all the states, a truly remarkable achievement.

During the last week, our newspapers served the Office of Price Administration in an official capacity, at no expense to the government, to explain the Point Rationing System to our housewives and other citizens. They gave space without limit to that war effort.

Of course, I have mentioned only a small part of the contributions made by the daily and weekly newspapers of Pennsylvania to the Victory Program. They helped make the Selective Service Law workable; they supported USO and Red Cross drives and blood donor campaigns, and now they are backing the government plan for Victory Gardens.

All of this has been done by the newspaper publishers without regard to expense at a time when they are burdened with increases in operating costs and a heavy loss in revenue.

To me, these things mean that the newspaper publishers realize the responsibility which the Bill of Rights imposes upon them.

I only hope that members of the General Assembly will keep these newspaper contributions in mind when they have under consideration bills which affect the interests of our Free Press.

With your permission, Mr. Speaker, and members of the House, I present herewith as a supplement of this talk for publication in the Journal a report of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association showing how the newspapers are rated by various war agencies, state and nation, and I think that you will find it interesting.

Newspapers and the War Program—No. 63

STATEMENTS ON THE ESSENTIALITY OF NEWSPAPERS

Official Views

Selective Service Rules Newspapers Essential

Selective Service Headquarters has classified newspapers as being among "the list of civilian activities necessary to war production and essential to the war effort," and the term "newspapers" includes "all the business of getting out a newspaper." (Ask Draft Boards to refer to Occupational Bulletin No. 27, as amended, dated January 23, 1943).

The Position of Selective Service Headquarters

K. D. Pulcipher, Major, Specialist Manpower Division, Selective Service System, in a July, 1942, letter to PNPA:

"It has been the policy of this Headquarters to recommend deferment of many newspaper and radio executives. This has been particularly true where the newspaper was the only news publication in a community, or where the radio was the main source of information in a given area. The maintenance of public morale and the dissemination of information to the public, keeping it advised of the progress of our war effort, is considered, by this Headquarters, to be of high importance. We, therefore, take the position that the cases of all registrants engaged in vital occupations in the newspaper and radio industry should receive serious consideration."

Newspaper Report "Official"

The OPA has requested newspapers to print the new Consumer Declaration Form in full so that consumers may clip copies of the newspapers and fill in the form. OPA announces that "filled-in newspaper forms will be recognized as official."

WPB Recognizes Importance of Newspapers to the War Effort

Stephen E. Fitzgerald, Office of War Information, WPB, in a letter to ANPA, August 7, 1942, stated:

"Mr. Nelson has asked me to answer your letter inquiring about the urgency standing of newspapers in the war economy.

"Not only the Selective Service Headquarters, but the War Production Board has officially recognized the importance of newspapers to the war effort, through their inclusion in the General Maintenance and Repair Order and in others permitting the use of scarce materials to the extent necessary for printing and publishing."

OPA Recognizes Importance of Speedy Delivery of Newspapers

Effective January 2, 1943, an amendment was issued to Gasoline Rationing Regulation 5-C so that circulation supervisors or others engaged in maintaining the wholesale distribution system of newspapers are given preferred mileage classification. OPA said, "This allowance was made in recognition of the unusual hours during which newspapers distribution supervisors must work, and of the importance of speedy delivery of newspapers."

Newspaper Rates Exempted From Price Control Law; Other Orders

Section 302(c) (4) of the price control law exempts from the term "commodity" rates charged by any person engaged in the business of operating or publishing a newspaper, periodical, or magazine, or operating a radio broadcasting station, a motion-picture, or other theatre enterprise, or outdoor advertising facilities."

Administrative Order, April 30, of Office of Civilian Defense, makes official provision for special insignia to permit newspaper reporters and photographers to carry on essential services or duties during the course of a blackout or raid.

Newspapers were included among twenty industries given an A-10 priority rating for repair, maintenance and operating supplies in September, 1941. Later, this ration was extended to include "printers and publishers," and later still almost every concern was given the right to use the A-10 rating.

Newspapers were included among the "essential community services" in Order L-16 to curtail consumption of electric power in the southeastern area of the United States in November, 1941. The order was never put into effect because the necessity for curtailment was eliminated, but the Order included exemption for newspapers as "essential."

Cut In Fuel Oil Does Not Affect Newspapers

Petroleum Administrative Order No. 3 prohibits deliveries of fuel oil to any commercial, industrial or governmental consumer for purposes other than space heating or hot water except to a list of exempted users of fuel oil for other than space heating or hot water included on Schedule A of the order. In the list of exempted users are newspapers.

It will be noted that Petroleum Administrative Order No. 3 recognizes newspapers as a part of the Public Communications Services, as does the War Manpower Commission which classified Communications Services, including newspapers, as one of the 35 industries essential to the war effort.

Board of War Communications Defines Newspapers as Essential Public Service

Newspapers and press associations have received a priority rating, No. 3, for long distance telephone calls in an order issued by the Board of War Communications, effective November 1, 1942. Number 3 priority goes to "Important governmental functions; machinery, tools, or war materials for war plants; production of essential supplies; maintenance of public services (including newspapers); supply or movement of food; civilian defense or public health and safety."

Statements of Officials

"An Essential Part," Says Commander-in-Chief

President Roosevelt: "The observance of National Newspaper Week after ten months of war affords an opportunity to re-dedicate ourselves to the freedom that is as vital to us as our daily bread—the freedom to think and speak and write the truth as we see it. Our free press has not only survived—it is an essential part of the steadying ballast which enables our ship to ride the storm."

The Chairman of the WPB

Donald M. Nelson, chairman, War Production Board, in a telegram to PNPA, October, 1942:

"I feel that the nation owes the newspapers a debt of thanks for the invaluable service they have rendered through the Newspapers United Scrap Metal Drive."

On the same subject, he added a few days later:

"The job that the newspapers have done is absolutely unprecedented in this country. It has been magnificent. * * * The whole campaign has been a major contribution to the war effort."

Mr. Nelson again:

"We fully appreciate that the press is an institution as well as an industry—an institution which is absolutely essential in a democratic community, especially so in time of war."

On another occasion:

"Newspapers are essential to the war program."

Before the Association of National Advertisers in New York, November 11, 1942, Mr. Nelson stated that in ordinary times advertising has an indispensable place in American life, and added that advertising has an essential role to play during wartime. He said:

"Advertising, I must repeat, is an essential part of our communications system. We dare not destroy or cripple that communications system in wartime, and we have no remotest desire to do so. Indeed, precisely because some of the functions of that system must be restricted in time of war, the power exercise of the remaining functions becomes more important than ever. Our civilian economy is not a lot of separate pieces, scattered helter-skelter over the landscape—it is all one thing, an integrated whole which operates to keep the nation itself functioning. Every job is important. The jobs change, as war comes, to be sure—but they are still jobs the country needs, and the job of advertising is far from least among them."

On a Par with War Industries

Paul V. McNutt, chairman, War Manpower Commission, stated February 10, 1942:

"Essential civilian activities are on an equal plane with basic war industries in our war effort."

From a Fighting General

General Douglas MacArthur to the Pen and Pencil Club, Philadelphia:

"Tell its members from an old soldier at the front that the pen is still mightier than the sword."

General Douglas MacArthur again:

"There has been nothing more astonishing in the progress of war, which is really the application of the mechanics of force to human nature, than the position that public opinion occupies. One cannot wage war under present conditions without the support of public opinion, which is tremendously moulded by the press and other forms of propaganda."

Newspapers and the Scrap Drive

Robert W. Wolcott, American Industries Salvage Committee:

"I wonder how many of you realize that the newspaper scrap metal drive is the only war effort which the government asked the American people under the leadership of the newspapers to carry through without government participation or sponsorship. I know of no more heartening demonstration of the power of a free press."

Newspapers for Quick Action

Statement made by Office of War Information in its National Fuel Conservation Program November 10, 1942:

"The Office of War Information is turning to the newspapers of the country as a quick, effective medium to which those who have fuel conserving services to offer can advertise them. With winter near—there is need of immediate action."

Price Control Aid Lauded

Leon Henderson, until recently OPA Director, in a message to the Newspaper Advertising Executives meeting in Columbus, Ohio, June 1942, praised the newspapers' efforts in explaining the price control program.

William M. Jeffers Asks Aid of Newspapers

William M. Jeffers, Rubber Director, sent this telegram to the ANPA in October, 1942:

"We must start saving rubber now. A voluntary campaign must be started to save precious rubber until nation-wide rationing can be effected. The newspapers constitute one of our most direct and effective channels to the American public. Therefore, I am asking all newspapers, weekly and daily, to put before their readers at once the urgent need for saving rubber."

Newspapers Must Play a Leading Role

Dr. J. K. Gailbraith, Deputy Administrator, OPA, speaking at the Inland Daily Press Association luncheon, February 18, 1942:

"Surely no one can now doubt that every emergency must be trained for the full and complete mobilization of our economy for war. The job, I hardly need tell you, is one in which the newspapers of the country must play a leading role—for we can only succeed on the basis of public understanding and support. * * * The newspapers of the country have already done a magnificient job in bringing home to every American the importance of saving. The sale of defense bonds is a tribute to this effort."

Vital and Effective

R. F. Ashenfelter, Pennsylvania Director, OPA:

"The importance of America's free press in government 'of the people, for the people, by the people' has never been more evident than now. Particularly vital and effective has been its work of public education on the price control, rent control, and rationing program of the Office of Price Administration, all of which require the understanding and cooperation of every citizen."

An Essential Fabric

Cordell Hull, Secretary of State:

"From the days of Peter Zenger, when the cause of liberty was tried and won, . . . a free press has been, and rightly so, a sacred American institution, an essential fabric in our democratic way of life."

Using Freedom of the Press as War Weapon

Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the U. S. Treasury:

"In the teeth of Axis propaganda drives, the overwhelming majority of American newspapers are keeping the public informed of the real issues of this war.

By reporting the news as completely as it can be printed within the limits of national safety, they have checkmated enemy propaganda intended to demoralize and mislead our people. They are using the freedom of the press to help fight the war of the free peoples. They know that a free press cannot survive unless this war is won.

"Beyond this, we at the Treasury have special reason to thank the press, as well as pay tribute to it. With a public spirit that is beyond all praise, the newspapers of the country have given invaluable help to the Treasury Department's War Saving program.

"Every part of the press and all classes of newspaper workers, from apprentices to foremen and from office boys to executives, have helped the Treasury in its job of financing the war. And I should like to thank especially the newspaper boys of the nation, whose sale and delivery of over fifty-six million dollars in War Savings Stamps during the past year is an outstanding achievement."

The War Department's Views

Major General A. D. Surles, Director, Bureau of Public Relations, War Department:

"The contribution that the press of America is making to victory is something in which the newspaper profession and the country as a whole can take deep pride."

Supreme Court Justice Speaks

Justice William O. Douglas, United States Supreme Court:

"We are fighting a people's war and therefore we need a free, a vigilant and a well-informed press to help lead us. We as a people know no substitute for a free press. Certainly government cannot provide one. In the absence of a free and vigorous press, we would face disintegration in time of peace and defeat in time of war."

Could Not Win Without Newspapers

David E. Lilienthal, Chairman of the T. V. A.:

"A newspaper makes no munitions, fires no guns, flies no fighting planes. And yet so mighty a weapon is the press that if we were a country without newspapers, we could not win the war."

The Governor Depends Upon the Newpapers

Governor Edward Martin, speaking at the 1943 Annual PNPA Convention Luncheon:

"I am depending upon the newspapers of the Commonwealth to carry the story of Pennsylvania's important part in the victory program into the homes of all residents of the state."

Have Shouldered Increased Burdens

From Governor James:

"Unselfishly newspapers have shouldered greatly increased burdens in assuming the responsibility of promoting the war effort by bringing to public attention the part that each individual must play in the ultimate victory."

The Selective Service Director for Pennsylvania

Colonel B. F. Evans, Acting Director, Pennsylvania Selective Service Headquarters:

"I know that as far as Selective Service is concerned, the newspapers of this Commonwealth have done more than words can describe to help make this great effort successful."

Civilian Defense Advanced by Newspapers

Dr. A. C. Marts, former executive director of the Pennsylvania Council of Defense:

"I wish you would convey to the members of your Association my sincere and deep appreciation for the splendid help which the newspapers of this State have given to the civilian defense program. It has been literally worth millions of dollars, judged by the standards of value, and has been an essential factor in instructing the people of Pennsylvania in the various phases of the home front."

"They have come through Magnificently"

S. K. Stevens, Pennsylvania State Historian, September 29, 1942:

"The pages of the newspapers have performed indispensable functions in our war for the American way of life. * * * Both the state and Federal governments have called upon the Press of Pennsylvania for publicity and special war services, and in every case they have come through magnificently."

Essential in Canada

Canadian Press dispatch from Ottawa, July 14, 1942:

"Newspaper men have been listed under Section 15 of the National War Service Regulations. This section provides that from time to time the War Service Minister may furnish to Selective Service Board lists of industrial or servicing activities deemed to be essential to the successful prosecution of the war. An employer engaged in any activity so listed is termed a 'war industry'."

An Active Combatant

Herbert Morrison, British Home Secretary and Minister of Home Security:

"In this great struggle for the survival of a free civilization, the free press has a part to play not as a mere spectator but as an active combatant."

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. COHEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I have listened with a great deal of interest to the statement of the gentleman from Lancaster, to which I believe all of us can very thoroughly subscribe. I know that in Philadelphia our newspapers have given unselfish and unstinted support to the government program outlined by the gentleman from Lancaster. Particularly I point out the Philadelphia Record, because I read that paper usually more carefully than others. They gave an entire front page to an explanation of the rationing system, which seems to have gotten off to such a swell start. They gave front page newspaper space that in the advertising business could not be purchased for any money. The other newspapers also gave valuable space which might have meant an awful lot of money in their treasuries.

I want to point this out as a striking exemplification of the sort of progress and the sort of general good that can come from real cooperation between our governmental agencies and the newspapers which are the forum for discussion and for debate among the people and the plain citizens of Pennsylvania. I trust this may be a continuation of a mutual accord between our newspapers and public officials, to have a continued open forum for the discussion of the things that we are most interested in today, for the presentation and discussion of the problems that we have today, so that our war efforts shall go on unhindered and in fact accelerated by such cooperation.

THE SPEAKER (Ira T. Fiss) IN THE CHAIR

The SPEAKER. The Chair thanks the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Wood.

SENATE MESSAGES

CONCURRENCE IN HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 26

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has concurred in the resolution from the House of Representatives as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 23, 1943.

The call of the Nation for civilian help in the successful prosecution of the war and the defense of our homeland has resulted in the enlistment of hundreds of thousands of Pennsylvania's citizens in civilian war service.

For more than two years these patriotic men and women have faithfully and conscientiously served the Nation. Heedless of the time and effort and sacrifice required and intent only upon performing some service for the Nation in its hour of need, they have assumed important positions in State, County and Local Councils of Defense, Selective Service Boards, War Price Boards, Rationing Boards, Red Cross Chapters, including Blood Banks and Nurses' Aide Corps, Aircraft Observation Posts, Civil Air Patrol, Reserve Defense Corps, and auxiliaries thereof, or with some particular work connected with other agencies or boards of the Federal or State Government engaged in furthering the war effort.

The persons performing this patriotic work are prominent citizens of their respective communities, they serve without copensation and perform a necessary and valuable service.

The unselfish devotion of these men and women who have so generously changed their method of life and have sacrificed time, money and often friendships in order to be of assistance to their country deserves public recognition, therefore be it

Resolved, (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, recognizing the importance of the patriotic work being performed by these men and women for the common good and for the successful prosecution of the war, hereby extends to them the thanks of the Commonwealth and assures them of the lasting gratitude of its people, and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of this House of Representatives shall forward sufficient copies of this Resolution to the State Council of Defense to provide for transmittal thereof to the various boards, organizations and agencies in which these persons are performing their duties.

AMENDED HOUSE BILL RETURNED FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 40.

An Act relating to officers and employes of the Senate and House of Representatives abolishing certain positions creating other positions providing compensation for positions created changing certain existing compensations making an appropriation and ratifying action already taken in relation thereto.

With the information that the Senate has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 279, as follows:

An Act to amend sections one two and twenty-six of the act approved the fifth day of June one thousand nine hundred and forty-one (P. L. 84) entitled "An act providing for and regulating the appointment promotion and reduction in rank suspension and removal of paid members of the police force in boroughs incorporated towns and townships of the first class maintaining a police force of not less than three members creating a civil service commission in each borough incorporated town and township of the first class defining the duties of such civil service commission imposing certain duties and expense on boroughs incorporated towns and townships of the first class imposing penalties and repealing inconsistent laws" by making said act applicable permanently to all boroughs incorporated towns and townships of the first class which maintain a police force and saving certain provisions of law from repeal

Section 1 Sections one two and twenty-six of the act approved the fifth day of June one thousand nine hundred and forty-one (P. L. 84) entitled "An act providing for and regulating the appointment promotion and reduction in rank suspension and removal of paid members of the police force in boroughs incorporated towns and townships of the first class maintaining a police force of not less than three members creating a civil service commission in each borough incorporated town and township of the first class defining the duties of such civil service commission imposing certain duties and expense on boroughs incorporated towns and townships of the first class imposing penalties and repealing inconsistent laws" are hereby amended to read as follows

Section 1 Appointments Etc In police Forces in Boroughs Incorporated Towns and Townships of the First Class [This act shall not apply to any borough incorporated town of township of the first class having a police force of less than three members] Hereafter each and every appointment to and promotion in the police force in every borough incorporated town and township of the first class (hereinafter called a municipality) shall be made only according to qualifications and fitness to be ascertained by examinations which shall be competitive as hereinafter provided

[The provisions of this act and of any amendments or supplements thereto shall be in effect as to boroughs only while sections 1125 1127 and 1128 as now contained in "The General Borough Act" are in force subject however to the method of appointment and removal hereinafter provided]

No person shall hereafter be suspended removed or reduced in rank as a paid employe in any police force of any municipality except in accordance with the provisions of this act

Notwithstanding the provisions of this section all appointments of any person made to take the place of a member of the police force serving in the armed forces of the United States during the war in which the United States is now engaged shall be temporary and shall continue only until the person whose place is filled shall return from such service and shall request reinstatement to his former position and in all other cases where appointments have been made since the effective date of this act new appointments shall ge made one year after the cessation of hostilities of the war in which the United States is now engaged and all prior appointees who have not qualified under the provisions of the act to which this is an amendment since the cessation of hostilities shall be replaced by persons who have so qualified

Section 2 Civil Service Commission Created Appointments Vacancies There is hereby created in each borough incorporated town and township of the first class where a police force [of not less than three members] is being maintained a civil service commission hereinafter referred to as the commission Each commission shall consist of three commissioners who shall be qualified electors of the political subdivision for which appointed and shall be appointed initially to serve for the terms of two four and six years and as terms thereafter expire shall be appointed for terms of six years as follows

In the case of a borough the appointments shall be made by the borough council in the case of an incorporated town appointments shall be made by the town council and in the case of the townships of the first class the appointments shall be made by the township commissioners

The members of each commission first appointed under the provisions of this act shall be so appointed within thirty days after effective date of this act

Any vacancy occurring in any commission for any reason whatsoever shall be filled for the unexpired term within the period of thirty days after such vacancy occurs Such vacancies shall be filled by the appointing power which made the original appointment

Each member of the commission created by this act before entering upon the discharge of the duties of his office shall take an oath or affirmation to support the Constitution of the United States and of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and to perform his official duties with fidelity

Section 26 Repeal Saving Clause and Construction [Except as provided in section 1 all] All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed but this act shall not be construed to repeal sections 1125 1127 and 1128 of the act approved the fourth day of May one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven (P. L. 519) entitled "An act concerning boroughs and revising amending and consolidating the law relating to boroughs"

It is the purpose of this act to furnish a complete and exclusive system for the appointment promotion reduction suspension or removal of members of the police force in every borough incorporated town and township of the first class within this Commonwealth which maintains a police force

Section 2 This act shall become effective on the first day of June one thousand nine hundred and forty-three

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. CORDIER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I arise at this time to call the attention of the House to a problem which is prevalent in this Commonwealth and which I believe properly deserves the attention of the members of this body. As of Monday last, the Federal Food Stamp plan was discontinued in Pennsylvania. This plan was in operation in forty-two counties of the Commonwealth, with eighty thousand needy people and thirteen thousand food dealers participating. Relief clients certified by the State Public Assistance Department under the program have received for each dollar an orange colored stamp good for one dollar's worth of groceries and a blue stamp good for fifty cent's worth of additional groceries.

Mr. Speaker, nine million dollars worth of food purchasing power in this State was provided by that program. It represented a successful attack upon the paradox of undernourishment in the greatest food-producing country in the world. This plan was discontinued and there is confusion and fear in the minds of many of these Public Assistance recipients because of the discontinuance of this program. We all know that the cost of living has arisen terrifically within the last several years. Pennsylvania has been generous with its relief recipients, granting two increases in the last year.

I wish to call to the attention of the membership of this House the fact that on February 9th I introduced a resolution which was referred the same day to the Committee on Federal Relations. This was a simple resolution, calling attention to the fact that this Food Stamp plan would be discontinued, and it simply memorializes the Congress and the Federal officials to take cognizance of the fact that the stamp plan would be discontinued and to provide some other steps whereby the slack would be taken up in some form, either by new categories of relief by the federal government or otherwise to solve this problem for the needy people of Pennsylvania.

I am not rising at this time to criticize the membership of the Federal Relations Committee of the House. I have every confidence in their fairness and their honesty, but I do respectfully urge that now is the time for action on that resolution. I believe that we should bring that resolution to the floor of the House so that the membership shall have an opportunity to express themselves upon it.

I have here a companion resolution to Resolution No. 15, which I will now present. This resolution calls the attention of the Department of Public Assistance to this problem and calls upon that Department to make some provision in the event the federal government fails to act on this question, that the State Department of Public Assistance take action to the end that the people on these rolls be maintained on a decent standard of living.

The SPEAKER. This is not a privileged resolution, and will be filed with the Clerk under the rules of the House.

CONDOLENCE RESOLUTION

Messrs. PAUL L. WAGNER and WATKINS offered a privileged resolution which was twice read, considered and adopted as follows

In the House of Representatives, March 2, 1943.

On Monday, March 1, 1943 Our Maker called to his rest, at the age of 89 years, William Henry Kline of Pottsville, Pennsylvania, the father of our distinguished colleague, Honorable G. Edgar Kline, Representative from Schuylkill County.

A native of Lancaster County and early active in civic affairs at Ephrata, Mr. Kline moved over half a century ago to Pottsville. He also resided for many years at Reading. For almost 64 years he was married to Margaret Bowman Emert Kline, also of Lancaster County. In these doubtful times, this long and happy union is of especial significance. Mr. Kline was a member of the Reformed Protestant Church. Besides our colleague, Mr. Kline was survived by two other children, Mrs. Elsie Kline Schneider of Pottsville, and William McKinley Kline, of Washington, D. C.

Before and after the turn of the century Mr. Kline was the proprietor of popular Pennsylvania summer resorts, hostelries, and restaurants, of the type which contributed so much to the graciousness, hospitality, recreation, and sociability of life in the past generation. Many elder citizens of this Commonwealth recall with pleasure their memories of the Tumbling Run Hotel, the Townsend Boathouse and Restaurant at Tumbling Run, the Pennsylvania Hall Hotel at Pottsville, Mr. Kline's restaurant at Fifth and Penn Streets, Reading, and Michael's Restaurant at Pottsville, all operated by Mr. Kline. He was also a cigar manufacturer in Reading and a tire merchant in Pottsville, therefore be it Resolved, That this House offers its sincere condolences to our colleague and the family, that this resolution be entered upon the Journal of the House, and copies of the resolution be sent to Mr. Kline's widow and children.

RESOLUTION REPORTED FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE asked and obtained unanimous consent to report from the Committee on Rules a House Resolution (not printed) and for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 1, 1943.

The House of Representatives has learned with deep sorrow of the sudden death on February 23rd, of the Honorable Edward C. Young, in City Hall, Philadelphia.

Mr. Young ably and conscientiously represented the Sixth Legislative District of Philadelphia in this House during the Regular Session of 1941, and the Special Session of 1942.

He was born in Washington, D. C., on June 21, 1877, and received his education in that city.

At one time he served as clerk in the United States Senate Post Office.

He was well known in Philadelphia, and was actively interested in community and social betterment, therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives extends to his widow, Cora Young, its most sincere sympathy for her in her great bereavement; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of this House shall transmit a copy of this resolution to his widow.

RESOLUTION REPORTED FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. YEAKEL asked and obtained unanimous consent to report from the Committee on Rules a House Resolution (not printed) and for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 1, 1943.

In the providence of Almighty God, Clarence J. Buckman, Esq., a member of this House of Representatives in 1909 and 1910, and State Senator for 28 consecutive years thereafter, was suddenly called in death on Wednesday, February 17, 1943, at his home in Langhorne, Bucks County, Pennsylvania. It is, therefore, fitting that a minute be made of his passing and a note of his illustrious career.

Senator Clarence J. Buckman was born in Middletown Township, Bucks County, on October 31, 1879, reared on a farm, attended the Hulmeville Public Schools, and graduated from its High School in 1894, prepared for college at the State Model School in Trenton, New Jersey, and graduated in 1897; he graduated from the Law Department of the University of Pennsylvania in 1900, admitted to the Bucks County Bar and the Philadelphia Bar, and practiced law with his brother, J. Hibbs Buckman, under the firm name of Buckman and Buckman.

The Senator held many positions of honor and trust both public and private. He was a director of the Farmers National Bank of Bristol, Bucks County, Pennsylvania; President of the Joint Commission for Elimination of Toll Bridges over the Delaware River; a member of the Bucks County Republican County Committee; served as delegate to the Republican State Committee in 1907 and to the Republican National Committee in 1916; and in the Senate he served as President pro tem. in 1917. He interested himself in all worthy civic affairs of his Borough of Langhorne and of his County of Bucks, and took an active part in these endeavors; therefore be it

Resolved, That this House do pause for a moment in its order of business to pay homage to its former member and an illustrious son and commend his public works and activities to posterity; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of this House send a copy of this resolution to the widow, Mrs. Ada I. Buckman and their children, expressing to them the deep sorrow of this House at the loss of so fine a public servant, husband and father.

RESOLUTION REPORTED FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. LLOYD H. WOOD asked and obtained unanimous consent to report from the Committee on Rules a House Resolution (not printed) and for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 24, 1943.

The Honorable Frank H. Stackhouse, a former Member of this House from the Eleventh District of Philadelphia, died on December 24, 1942, the day before his sixty-ninth birthday.

Born on December 25, 1873, he was educated in the public schools of the City of Philadelphia, and for most of his life was employed at the Cramp Ship Yards in that city.

He was elected a Member of this House in 1920, and sat during the Session of 1921; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Members of this House of Representatives extend their sincere sympathy to those who survive him and direct the Chief Clerk of this House to forward to them a copy of this Resolution.

CONGRATULATORY RESOLUTION

Mr. PETTIT offered a privileged resolution which was twice read, considered and unanimously adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 1, 1943.

We have an octogenarian in the House. To look at his picture on page 688 of the 1941 Edition of the Pennsylvania Manual no one would guess that the picture shown there as that of Perry E. Wright of Greene County was that of a man who today celebrates his eighty-first birthday.

He was born on March 3, 1869 in Wind Ridge in Greene County, and the winds of eighty-one winters have caressed the hair on his head and left most of it remaining.

He was Postmaster at Wind Ridge during 1911 and 1913 and a delegate to the World's Sunday School Convention at Glasgow, Scotland in 1924. From 1936 to 1939 he served as Register and Recorder of Greene County and in 1940 was elected a Member of this House and reelected in 1942.

His fairness and honesty are fully proven by the fact that although for many years he acted as an umpire or referee in baseball and other athletic games, he still retained the respect of the voters of Greene County to such an extent as to be twice elected a Member of this House; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Members of this House unanimously extend to the Honorable Perry E. Wright its most sincere congratulations upon his achievement in reaching his present age, and its most profound hopes for many happy returns of the day; and be it further

Resolved, That in testimony thereof a copy of this resolution shall be handed to the Honorable Perry E. Wright by the Chief Clerk of this House.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Greene, Mr. Wright.

Mr. WRIGHT. Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, this is a thrilling moment to me. In my childhood days I loved history and I liked especially to read the accomplishments of good men, especially Americans. Now then, I want to say this to you, I am proud to be a member of this organization that is filled by Pennsylvania's best citizens. It is my opportunity now to thank the friend that drew the resolution, and I am more thankful than my words will mean. I also want to thank the Speaker and the Members of the House for the greeting they gave me and the privilege to reply. There was something said in the resolution to make you understand that my life is an open book to the folks in my home County of Greene. They know me very, very well, and my job here now today is to talk to you a few minutes about years and about life.

I will say this to you, Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, that nobody, make it positive now, nobody grows old.

Nobody grows old by merely living a number of years, people grow old by deserting their ideals. Years wrinkle the skin but to give up their enthusiasm wrinkles the soul, and when the soul becomes wrinkled they are old indeed. Worry, doubt, self-distrust, fear and despair, these are the long years that bow the head and turn the growing spirit of yesterday back to dust.

Whether eighty or eighteen, there is in every human heart the love of wonder, the sweet amazement of the stars and star-like things and thoughts, the undaunted challenge of events, the unfailing appetite of what next, and the joy and the game of life. The best gift of time is the insight that enables us to make life gladder, kinder and happier to those about us, and those we love.

There are at least three essential factors in every life: kindness, friendship, and goodwill. There are people all around us that are hungry for kindness. Kindness may not be everything, but it opens the way to many a closed door. Deep down in the heart of everyone is a longing for a better life. If wealth, fame and great service are not in our power, kindness always is, so why not be kind, exceptionally kind.

Life here and hereafter is a great adventure, but we have the guidance of a kindly light. Scattered through the leaves of this great, good book, are words that shine out like stars to lead us on our way if we only hear and heed. All alike need the friendship and good will of our fellowmen and the unfailing mercy of God. By the same fact a little self control and patience can make a life rich in beauty. A little word of cheer, a little smile can light up another life. For kindness, friendship and goodwill are the highest activity of the human spirit, the truest wisdom, the secret of happy living and the most powerful force for creative good in the realm of human affairs, are sure standards of human life; lets keep them high.

You are familiar with the fables of the "wonderful one hoss shay," and "old man river" that makes history by rolling along. Personally, I think I am doing pretty good living on borrowed time.

I am walking down on the shady side of eighty as you know, I have turned the bend in the road that leads to destiny. I am slowing into the station. One cannot follow the workings of destiny with a notebook and pencil. All of us need assurance, doubly sure of what lies beyond if it is possible to get it, and you can believe that I am not unmindful of what lies ahead in the nature of things, but why be afraid? Death is just as much a part of life as birth.

Only when death comes early—like night before noon—am I resentful, but when it comes at the end of a long, long day, like a soft glowing sunset at eventide, it is a kind of benediction. Yet, at my age, I cannot help trying to peer into the future. Mystery is the shadow of truth, and my confidence deepens every year.

I still love life in spite of all ills, and I have a great curiosity about what lies beyond. My little personality may be of little value in a big universe, but it thinks, loves and dreams. At times, I have an imaginary view of a springtime, beyond the white winter that men call death.

Life is the most amazing thing we know. It is a form of energy that has no mind of its own. Not with a yardstick and adding machine do we measure the values of life. But, to make life really worthwhile, we need and must have a faith fit to live by, a self fit to live with and a cause fit to live for—something beyond mere personal success. Our job here is two-fold—to make a living and make a life.

Growth in character and efficiency comes largely through personal contact and the mutual sharing of ideas and ideals with a group of men like this and on occasions such as this. When we cease to grow, we begin to die.

It is not enough to add years to our life. We must add life to our years. No doubt the two go together, to love beauty, to seek and vision it—to keep the thrill of living—these are the things that keep us young of soul.

May that vision grow and abide with you, my friends, and at eventide may there be a light—such as never shone on sea or land, and may that light continue to turn your life into light without waste, catching it on the fly and filling it with beauty throughout the coming years.

Mr. Speaker, Members of the House, and friends, what are years but lovely volumes, made from chapters old and new? May each leaf in turn unfolding, bring real happiness to each of you. Thank you.

INTERROGATION

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to interrogate the Minority Floor Leader, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I thought that I would let the subject of interrogation reply. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER, Jr. Mr. Speaker, in the course of my three terms in this House I have become a good friend of the Minority Floor Leader and I trust he has become a good friend of mine. There is one personal question, however, which I think he will not mind answering for not only my information but also for that of the House as a whole.

Will the gentleman from Philadelphia please inform us all whether that tie which he is wearing today was bought as a result of his good judgment or was it just a Christmas present?

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I might say to the gentleman that he has no cause for complaint because he joined in the congratulations of me upon my tenth wedding anniversary. This tie is a part of the loot of that anniversary. The reason I am wearing it today is because I had expected to amend a bill which passed on third reading by a vote of 201 to 0 because I think the fellows that want to have fires up every alley ought to have ties like this to warn the public.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman have a mouth organ?

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I have two more like this.

The SPEAKER. Did it come with the tie?

Mr. CHARLES H. BRUNNER, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I desire to thank the gentleman from Philadelphia. I trust that he receives no more ties of a similar nature until his twentieth anniversary because I am sure if he uses his customary good judgment it will take him ten years to wear those three ties out.

BILL SIGNED BY SPEAKER

Bill numbered and entitled as follows having been prepared for presentation to the Governor, and the same being correct, the title was publicly read as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 40.

An Act relating to officers and employes of the Senate and House of Representatives abolishing certain positions creating other positions providing compensation for positions created changing certain existing compensations making an appropriation and ratifying action already taken in relation thereto.

Whereupon,

The SPEAKER, in the presence of the House, signed the same.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. FLACK. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn until Monday, March 8, 1943, at 9 p. m.

The motion was agreed to, and (at 2:25 p. m.) the House adjourned.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Legislative Journal.

Session 1943. 135th of the General Assembly.

Vol. 27. HARRISBURG, PA., MONDAY, MARCH 8, 1943. No. 23.

SENATE

MONDAY, March 8, 1943

The Senate met at 4:00 o'clock, p. m., Eastern War Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor John C. Bell, Jr.) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. EDWIN S. WALLACE, D.D. offered the following prayer:

O God, Creator of the heavens which declare Thy glory and of the earth which showeth Thy handiwork, we, of all Thy creatures, can appreciate that glory; we alone can understand something of the earth which Thou hast stored with riches for our use and robed with beauty for our delight. Teach us how to use these material blessings that they may make us rich toward Thee.

In Thy gift to life Thou didst impart to each of us something of Thyself. That something is our most precious possession. Help us to guard it and, by righteous living, increase it, and, as the years come upon us, may our likeness to Thee, the Perfect One, grow more and more.

In the place Thou hast stationed us in this busy and perplexed world may we be active for that righteousness which is the foundation of Thy throne, and the secure basis of national and individual character. Establish our nation on that foundation that we may do justice, tempered with mercy, to all people.

Grant success to our nation in its military and diplomatic efforts to maintain our right to "Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

And to Thy Name be all the praise, world without end, Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. EALY and Mr. SHAPIRO, the further reading was dispensed with and the Journal was approved.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Mr. Wade asked and obtained leave of absence for Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON.

HOUSE CONCURS IN AMENDMENTS TO HOUSE BILL No. 40

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced presented communication from the House of Representatives informing the Senate that the House has concurred in amendments made by the Senate to House Bill No. 40, entitled:

An Act relating to officers and employes of the Senate and House of Representatives; abolishing certain positions, creating other positions; providing compensation for positions created; changing certain existing compensations; making an appropriation; and ratifying action already taken in relation thereto.

BILL SIGNED

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor John C. Bell, Jr.) announced that the Chief Clerk having reported that the following bill had passed both houses of the General Assembly and the same being correct, the title was publicly read as follows:

House Bill No. 40, entitled:

An Act relating to officers and employes of the Senate and House of Representatives; abolishing certain positions, creating other positions; providing compensation for positions created; changing certain existing compensations; making an appropriation; and ratifying action already taken in relation thereto.

Whereupon,

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor John C. Bell, Jr.) in the presence of the Senate signed the same.

COMMUNICATIONS

The Chair cleared his table and laid before the Senate communication from Mrs. Ada L. Buckman, which was read by the Clerk as follows:

"March 5, 1943.

"Mr. George F. Holmes
Secretary
Senate of Pennsylvania
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

"My dear Mr. Holmes:—

Will you kindly express to the members of the Senate of Pennsylvania my deep appreciation of their sympathy so fully stated in the Resolution passed by them on February the twenty-third, as well as the beautiful floral tribute so indicative of their high regard for their former member and friend and my beloved husband.

Most sincerely yours

ADA L. BUCKMAN.

Beechwood,
Langhorne, Pennsylvania."

COMMUNICATIONS FROM THE GOVERNOR

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced presented communications in writing from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, which were read as follows:

L. 2460) entitled 'An act creating a joint legislative commission to be known as the Joint State Government Commission providing for the appointment of its members and defining its powers and duties' changing the number of members and providing further for the terms thereof and further defining its powers and duties and amplifying the provisions relating to appropriations."

EDWARD MARTIN.

SENATE BILL No. 24 APPROVED AND SIGNED

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, March 8, 1943.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

I have the honor to inform you that I have this day approved and signed Senate Bill No. 24, Printer's No. 13, entitled "An Act to further amend section nine of the act approved the ninth day of June one thousand nine hundred and eleven (P. L. 736) entitled 'An act making appropriations to institutions not wholly managed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania liens on the premises of such institutions for the use of the Commonwealth and providing for the collection thereof authorizing the use of and appropriating the proceeds of insurance for rebuilding re-equipping and repairing of property subject to lien."

EDWARD MARTIN.

NOMINATIONS BY THE GOVERNOR

He also presented communications in writing from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, which were read as follows, and referred to the Committee on Executive Nominations.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, March 8, 1943.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

In conformity with law, I have the honor hereby to nominate for the advice and consent of the Senate the following:

John A. Morningstar, Saxton, Bedford County, for appointment as Justice of the Peace in and for the Township of Liberty, Bedford County, until the first Monday in January, 1944, vice J. W. Miller, resigned.

John J. Cavanaugh, 119 Chestnut Street, Ashland, Schuylkill County, for appointment as Justice of the Peace in and for the Borough of Ashland, Schuylkill County, until the first Monday in January, 1944, vice Charles L. Neiman, deceased.

Gennaro Spadaro, 167 East Pike Street, Canonsburg, Washington County, for appointment as Justice of the Peace in and for the Borough of Canonsburg, Washington County, until the first Monday in January, 1944, vice Wm. D. Smith, resigned.

Harry P. Keller, 222 West Market Street, Hellam, York County, for appointment as Justice of the Peace in and for the Borough of Hellam, York County, until the first Monday in January, 1944, vice Ralph S. Krebs, resigned.

EDWARD MARTIN.

WITHDRAWAL OF NOMINATION OF DR. FRANK PARKER

He also presented communication in writing from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, which was read as follows:

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, March 8, 1943.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

I have received a letter from Dr. Frank Parker requesting that I should withdraw his name from consideration by the Senate for confirmation as a member of the Public Utility Commission. I am forwarding a copy of this letter herewith.

Under the circumstances outlined in Dr. Parker's letter, I can only comply with his request and, accordingly, I should appreciate it if you would promptly return to me the nomination of Dr. Frank Parker as a member of the Public Utility Commission of Pennsylvania.

EDWARD MARTIN.

Letter from Dr. Frank Parker was read by the Clerk as follows:

"FRANK PARKER
36th and Woodland Avenue
Philadelphia

"Hon. Edward Martin
Governor of the Commonwealth of Penna.
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania

"My dear Governor:

"It is with real regret that I must ask you to withdraw my nomination as a member of the Public Utility Commission of Pennsylvania.

"It has been my belief that both my private and public activities were of such a character that my nomination could not possibly make me the subject of the type of malicious and partisan attack to which I have been subjected since its submission. Acceptance of the office under the existing circumstances would destroy the personal satisfaction which would have come to me in the service of the Commonwealth.

"For the past thirty years, my activities as a member of the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania and in collateral affairs largely in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania have been a matter of public knowledge.

"So far as the charges which have been made against me with respect to services rendered on behalf of public service companies are concerned, it should only be necessary to point out that the expert testimony which I gave as a specialist in fields of finance and economics is a matter of sworn and public record, and the fair and impartial character thereof can be easily ascertained by an examination of the record in each and every proceeding.

"With respect to the charges made in connection with my bankruptcy, the unfounded, if not deliberately malicious, nature of these charges is best answered by the findings of the Referee in Bankruptcy dismissing the objections and entering the Order of Discharge.

"I hope that this request will not cause you any embarrassment and that you will understand the reasons which impel one of my professional standing and temperament to refuse to become the center of partisan and political controversy.

Very sincerely yours,

FRANK PARKER"

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE ON EXECUTIVE NOMINATIONS

NOMINATION RETURNED TO COMMITTEE ON EXECUTIVE NOMINATIONS

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. WATKINS, from the Committee on Executive Nominations reported the following nomination, made by His Excellency the Governor of the Commonwealth, with the recommendation that it be returned to the Governor, as requested:

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, February 15, 1943.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

In conformity with law, I have the honor hereby to nominate for the advice and consent of the Senate Doctor Frank Parker, Philadelphia, Philadelphia County, for appointment as a member of the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission, for the term of ten years beginning April 1, 1943, and ending April 1, 1953, vice Richard J. Beamish, whose term expires April 1, 1943.

EDWARD MARTIN.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that the nomination of Dr. Frank Parker, as a member of the Public Utility Commisison, be withdrawn and returned to His Excellency, the Governor of Pennsylvania.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. HOLLAND. We "veterans" in the halls of Harrisburg well know that there is no special interest in the State which does not have its lobbyists down here in force.

The manufacturers, the railroads, the truckers, labor, the teachers, the social workers, utilities, banks, agriculture, all of them are represented here, and are ready to jump in, with reinforcements hastily summoned from every corner of the State, when they think an issue vital to their interests is being decided. Even our units of government, our counties, our cities, our boroughs, our townships, have found it necessary to maintain lobbies in Harrisburg to watch over legislation affecting them.

So long as the methods used are decent and above board, there is nothing wrong with any of these lobbies. This is how democracy works.

But the event that has happened today, the withdrawal of the name of Dr. Frank Parker as the Governor's nominee to the Public Utility Commission—

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I rise on a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Delaware will state his point of order.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, the gentleman from Allegheny is not talking on the motion to return the nomination to His Excellency, the Governor.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Holland, are you discussing the nomination of Dr. Parker or are you discussing the return of the nomination of Dr. Parker to the Governor.

Mr. HOLLAND. I am talking about the withdrawal of the name of Dr. Parker as the Governor's nominee to the Public Utility Commission.

The PRESIDENT. Are you opposed to the motion or are you in favor of the motion?

Mr. HOLLAND. I have some remarks to make on the withdrawal.

The PRESIDENT. The Senate will be at ease while the Chair takes under consideration the motion.

(The Senate was at ease.)

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Holland, may proceed.

Mr. HOLLAND. Thank you.

Mr. HOLLAND. The withdrawal of the name of Dr. Frank Parker as the Governor's nominee to the Public Utility Commission was accomplished without the aid of any of these lobbies.

The conduct of the Public Utility Commission affects everybody who lives in Pennsylvania, and, traditionally, "everybody's business is nobody's business."

The only special interests vitally concerned with the Public Utility Commission are the utilities themselves, and, God knows, the utilities were not here to block Frank Parker.

He was their dish, specially prepared, well seasoned with witness fees, and tastefully garnished with those imaginery values which are tempting to a utility's appetite.

No, Senators, the only lobby the people had in this instance was the Democratic Party of Pennsylvania and the Democratic Members of this Body. We developed the true history of Frank Parker. We made his unfitness evident to even the Governor who appointed him. We had—and you knew we had—the votes to defeat his nomination. And that is why you withdrew his name.

We, on the Democratic side, are the people's lobby at this Session, just as we were the people's lobby when we forced Governor James to assume the care of mental patients throughout the Commonwealth in the last Session, a measure which has resulted in lowered county taxes on farms and homes in every county of the State.

There was no great organized, well-financed, politically potent lobby pushing that measure. We of the Democratic Party took up the people's fight. We were the people's lobby.

And minority as we are, we are effective when we fight the people's battles.

Just look what has happened to the plan to push relief costs back upon the homeowners in our counties!

The mere withdrawal of Parker's name will not satisfy the people of Pennsylvania. Special interests may go about their business unconcerned; the powerful lobbies may be looking the other way, but the people of this State want an honest, fearless, free-to-act Public Utility Commission. They want men on that Commission whom they can look to for protection. They want men who have a record in fighting the people's battles. They want men who are consumer—not utility—minded.

They do not care whether the Commissioners are Republicans or Democrats. They want them to be the people's Commissioners.

And we of the Democratic Party share their desire. we are proud to be the "people's lobby" and, as such, we say to you and to the Governor: "Do not give us another Parker. Give us a forthright, fearless man who stands for a square deal to the utility consumers of the State."

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President and members of the Senate, I expect, after I am through saying a few words in defense of the Governor of Pennsylvania and the Republican Party, to be branded the usual names of reactionary, tory, Macaulay, and all the other names that have been heaped upon everyone who claimed to be a Republican for the past twelve years.

It seems to me to come with poor grace from the gentlemen on the other side, after making speeches here for about three weeks against a man by the name of Dr. Parker, who I believe no one in this Senate had heard of until his name was presented by the Governor of Pennsylvania as an appointee to the Public Utility Commission, to gloat over the fact that, at Dr. Parker's request, the Governor of Pennsylvania has withdrawn his name.

I do not want to quarrel, particularly with men who have differences of opinion; certainly, Mr. Holland has just as much right to his opinion as I have to mine. Dr. Parker until a few weeks ago, for thirty years had been a distinguished professor at one of the oldest universities in the United States, and he thought, and his respected neighbors thought, that he had a high reputation in and about the neighborhood in which he lived, and then all of a sudden, through the voice of Elmer Holland, we saw the castles of this man, and those of his wife, and his reputation, fall around his ears; all of a sudden he seemed to be a criminal in the sight of all the people in Pennsylvania.

Let us see what the charges were against this man. In the first place, he was accused of testifying in rate cases, testifying as an expert on money and, mind you gentleman of the Senate, in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania he is an outstanding expert, so considered by those who look into money matters. From the standpoint of an educator, he taught finance, he taught credit, and then, of course, the statement came from the other side, here is a man who taught credit and money, and who went into bankruptcy.

But let us first concentrate on the charge with regard to rate fixing. He testified as an economist, as an expert on the price of money. How many times in the history of law practice does a lawyer represent certain clients? How many times does that same lawyer, representing certain clients, become a candidate for judge? How many times does a corporation lawyer become a judge in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania? How many times has a man who gave his time to representing labor unions become a judge in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Does it follow that a man who happened to represent clients in the field of labor, when he takes the Bench, is going to be prejudiced in favor of labor, or a man who represented corporations be prejudiced in favor of corporations? The test of a man is whether he is honest, and it has been my experience that a man who in the past had certain connections as a lawyer, when he became a judge, seemed to lean backwards against his former representations, because of the thought on his conscience that the people would think, perhaps that he was favoring those whom he previously represented.

Mr. President, I might point to all kinds of examples, and take up the time of this Senate. For instance, there was Hugo Black, named to the Supreme Court of the United States, who was formerly a member of the Klu Klux Klan and who seems to have conducted himself as an able jurist on the highest Court in the land; and so it was with Felix Frankfurter who, at the last time I had acquaintance with him, was accused of being a Communist, and yet today he is a member of the Supreme Court of the United States, and he has seemed to conduct himself in accord with the American ideal of life.

I think, Mr. President, as to any man, regardless of his connections, the test of whether or not he is qualified to sit on the Public Utility Commission is not his former associations, but his character and his integrity.

As to the second charge, Mr. President, with regard to bankruptcy, certain charges under affidavit were made by the Banking Department of Pennsylvania. As I understand it, Mr. President, no man in bankruptcy facing the charges which were listed by the Banking Department of the Commonwealth, could be discharged if those charges were sustained. This is what the referee in bankruptcy said, that the charges, "having thereupon been dismissed for want of prosecution thereof, as well as for want of testimony and evidence in support thereof"—I repeat "having thereupon been dismissed for want of prosecution thereof, as well as for want of testimony and evidence in support thereof." Signed, L. Leroy Deininger, Referee in Bankruptcy.

So far as Dr. Parker was concerned, with that adjudication by the referee in bankruptcy, he understood he was absolved of all those charges.

Would the men on the other side say that David Lawrence, who was charged with serious crimes in this Commonwealth, and acquitted in the courts of this Commonwealth, still stands indicted before the people of Pennsylvania, or do they agree with me that when the court and jury decided that David Lawrence was innocent of all the charges, that that wiped the slate clean, from now and forever?

Why, then, does not the same thing wipe the slate clean for this man, Dr. Parker, not as well known in the Commonwealth as the same David Lawrence?

I want to say to you that the Governor of Pennsylvania has once again shown this Senate and the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, fearing that the accusations were something that might raise a doubt in the minds of the people back home—and it takes only a little thing, magnified by the voices of demagogues, to bring the thought to the people in the smaller towns and townships of Pennsylvania, that things are wrong in high government—the Governor very wisely, at the request of Dr. Parker, withdrew his name, so that the people back home would have confidence again in the Governor of Pennsylvania, who so wisely, fearing that perhaps the things that were said here could never be wiped away to the satisfaction of every conscience in Pennsylvania, withdrew the nomination of Dr. Parker.

Elmer Holland can have the satisfaction of knowing he caused that, to this man, who for thirty years was a quiet professor—not the tool of the utilities. One of the charges made against him by the Banking Department was that he had said he had earned $2,000, when in fact he had earned less than that. I say to the gentleman from Allegheny that if he was a tool of the utilities, he was a very cheap one indeed. It seems strange to me, too, that this so-called tool of the utilities, this man who was said to be their agent and their errand runner, would continue to be a member of the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania at the salary all of us know university professors get. But, be that as it may, the gentleman from Allegheny has the satisfaction of knowing that Dr. Parker and his wife will remember the rest of their lives the man who made him out to all the people of Pennsylvania as some kind of a scoundrel, and if that is any satisfaction to any man he is welcome to it as far as I am concerned.

The PRESIDENT. The question before the Senate is: Will the Senate agree to the motion to return the nomination of Dr. Frank Parker to His Excellency, the Governor?

It was agreed to.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

NAYS—0

Two-thirds of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Governor be informed accordingly.

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE

RECONSIDERATION OF SENATE BILL No. 34

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 34, entitled:

An Act prescribing temporary emergency war provisions with respect to the administration of certain provisions of the school laws of this Commonwealth relating to days for schools to be in session closing schools and suspending classes temporarily assignment and reassignment of teachers transportation facilities and allowances, temporary increases in salaries of professional employes state subsidies, and temporary farm and domestic employment certificates for certain pupils and authorizing boards of school directors (or boards of public education) with the approval or upon the direction of the Superintendent of Public Instruction to put such provisions into operation and to suspend the provisions of existing school laws inconsistent therewith upon findings by such boards or by the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

passed third reading.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, I voted "aye".

Mr. FARRELL. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. FARRELL. Mr. President, I voted "aye".

The motion was agreed to,

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the bill passed second reading.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, I voted "aye".

Mr. FARRELL. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. FARRELL. Mr. President, I voted "aye".

The motion was agreed to.

The first section was read,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. HOMSHER offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 1, page 2, line 3, by striking out the figure "(1)"; Amend Sec. 1, page 2, lines 9 and 10, by striking out the following: all of line 9, and the words "first instance" in line 10; Amend Sec. 1, page 2, line 13, by striking out the bracket before the word "such"; Amend Sec. 1, page 2, line 15, by striking out the bracket after the word "of"; Amend Sec. 1, page 2, lines 15 and 16, by striking out the words "by his proclamation shall have power"; Amend Sec. 1, page 2, line 16, by striking out the words "or cause to be put."

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I believe that the amendments to this bill suggested by the gentleman from Lancaster are of such vital importance that the Senate should not be asked to approve them, because they affect the entire bill. In other words, they remove the restrictions on the Superintendent of Public Instruction and again throw back into the laps of the school boards the power that was originally intended in the act and was stricken out by amendments on the floor.

You are putting the bill back in its original form, practically, by these amendments, and I think that they were put in because of objections raised. I believe that the amendments are of such vital importance that perhaps, it might be wiser to send the bill back to committee in order that it may be studied by the full committee and in order that we may look at the bill as it comes from committee, rather than vote blindly on the amendments. It is difficult to follow amendments on the floor and what they do to a bill, when read here before the Senate.

I therefore suggest that the amendments not be voted on at this time.

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, the amendments do not take away the power of the Superintendent of Public Instruction. Everything that is contemplated now to be done under this bill must have the approval of the Superintendent of Public Instruction. I think the gentleman from Westmoreland will agree when he sees the reprinted bill. The bill has been put back on second reading and will be reprinted, and will be on the Calendar on third reading. We are not asking that amendments be inserted in the bill on third reading.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I have no objection, if they want to do it that way, excepting that we may again want to amend the bill.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, will the sponsor of this bill permit himself to be interrogated?

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Lancaster permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HOMSHER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, was this bill ever discussed in committee?

Mr. HOMSHER. This bill was not discussed in committee, Mr. President.

Mr. HOLLAND. It was discussed in committee, Mr. President?

Mr. HOMSHER. No, Mr. President. The committee was polled. I spoke with every member of the committee excepting one, including the Senator from Allegheny.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, how many weeks has this bill been on the Calendar? How many amendments have been put in this bill? Has not the gentleman used the floor of the Senate as a committee, instead of discussing it in the Committee of Education and then coming out with a real bill?

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, this bill was placed on the Calendar and then it was concluded that there were some other items of importance which should be included in the bill, and therefore the bill was amended to include those items. Then it was found that there was some confliction, and therefore we are now amending the bill to put it in proper shape.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Lancaster not agree with me that a bill of this importance, requiring so many amendments, should be first discussed in the Committee of Education in order that the members of that committee could give it the attention which it deserves? It is a very important bill.

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, the entire membership of the Senate has had opportunity to study the bill.

Mr. HOLLAND. But it was not discussed in committee, Mr. President?

Mr. HOMSHER. No, Mr. President, not in the Committee on Education.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I want to go on record now as opposing any bill brought to the floor of the Senate without a proper committee meeting. I am not in favor of any poll on any important bill such as we have before the Senate today.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I am still not sure what the amendments do and therefore I want to be recorded as voting "no," in order to allow myself the proper procedure on the floor in case I want to use it.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

They were agreed to.

The section was agreed to as amended.

The second section was read,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. HOMSHER offered the following amendments.

Amend Sec. 2, page 3, line 26, by inserting after the word "act" the following: "and with the approval of"; Amend Sec. 2, page 3, line 27, by striking out the words "shall have power to authorize"; Amend Sec. 2, page 3, line 28, by striking out the word "to" and inserting in lieu thereof: "may"; Amend Sec. 2, page 4, lines 27 and 28, by striking out both of said lines; Amend Sec. 2, page 5, lines 1 and 2, by striking out both of said lines; Amend Sec. 2, page 5, line 3, by striking out the letter "(f)" and inserting in lieu thereof: "(o)"; Amend Sec. 2, page 5, line 5, by inserting after the word "thereof" the following: "The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall promulgate general rules and regulations to put this provision into effect, but the approval of the said superintendent shall not be required in each individual case"; Amend Sec. 2, page 5, line 6, by striking out the letter "(g)" and inserting in lieu thereof: "(f)"; Amend Sec. 2, page 5, line 9, by striking out the words "or labor permit"; Amend Sec. 2, page 5, line 10, by striking out the letter "(h)" and inserting in lieu thereof: "(g)"; Amend Sec. 2, page 5, line 14, by striking out the letter "(i)" and inserting in lieu thereof: "(h)"; Amend Sec. 2, page 5, line 23, by striking out the letter "(j)" and inserting in lieu thereof: "(i)."

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I rise on a point of information.

Mr. PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Westmoreland will proceed.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, would it be possible to have the Clerk read the section as it is supposed to be amended?

The PRESIDENT. The Chair is sorry but the Clerk can not read the bill as it is supposed to be amended, as requested by the gentleman from Westmoreland. The Senate will therefore proceed with consideration of the amendments. When that is completed, the Senator from Westmoreland may ask any further questions he desires.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments

Mr. DENT. For the same reasons, Mr. President, I desire to be recorded as voting "no." As I understand the amendments on page 4 they remove the obligation of increasing wages. For instance, when a teacher on salary, is moved from some district with a low paying job to a district having a higher paying job, by juggling around, the school board will be able to reduce the income of a great number of teachers, who, Heaven knows, are certainly underpaid today.

I desire to be recorded as voting "no."

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I rise on a parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia will proceed.

Mr. SHAPIRO. I would like to know, Mr. President, if one or more Senators desire to have their negative votes recorded, whether it is necessary to have a roll call for that purpose.

The PRESIDENT. Such a request can be noted in the Journal at the request of any Senator, but it is safer to have it the other way.

The Chair is of the opinion that, in the interest of time, at the conclusion of a voice vote, any Senator so desiring may request that his vote be recorded in the Journal.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire that my negative vote be recored on the Journal.

The PRESIDENT. The vote of the gentleman from Philadelphia will be so recorded.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I also desire that my negative vote be recorded in the Journal.

The PRESIDENT. It will be so recorded.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I request that my negative vote be recorded in the Journal.

The PRESIDENT. It will be so recorded.

Mr. WALKER. Roll call, Mr. President.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WALKER and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—31

Becker,	Geltz,	Mallery,	Tyler,
Bowers,	Heyburn,	Ruth,	Wade,
Carr,	Homsher,	Snowden,	Walker,
Chapman,	James,	Stevenson,	Watkins,
Crider,	Jaspan,	Stiefel,	Wilson, H. I.,
Crowe,	Jones,	Tallman,	Woodring,
Ealy,	Kephart,	Taylor,	Ziesenheim,
Farrell,	Letzler,	Thomas,

NAYS—8

Barr,	Gourley,	Holland,	McGinnis,
Dent,	Haluska,	McCreesh,	Shapiro,

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The section was agreed to as amended.

The third section was read and agreed to.

The title was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the title?

Mr. HOMSHER offered the following amendments:

Amend title, page 1, line 5 of title, by striking out the word "temporarily" and inserting in lieu thereof: "authorizing temporary"; Amend title, page 1, line 6 of title, by inserting after the word "teachers" the following: "extension of"; Amend title, page 1, lines 6, 7 and 8 of title, by striking out the following: "and allow-" in line 6, all of line 7, and the word "employes" in line 8, and inserting in lieu thereof: "and payment of tuition in lieu of transportation obtaining full"; Amend title, page 1, line 8 of title, by inserting after the word "and" where it first appears in said line, the following: "granting"; Amend title, page 1, line 9 of title, by striking out the word "and" and inserting in lieu thereof: "under certain conditions"; Amend title, page 1, lines 11 and 12, by striking out the words "or upon the direction"; Amend title, page 1, line 16 of title, by striking out the words "or by the"; Amend title, page 2, line 1 of title on page 2, by striking out all of said line.

They were agreed to.

The title was agreed to as amended.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to as amended,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 85, on final passage entitled:

A Joint Resolution making application to the Congress of the United States to call a convention for proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, prohibiting the imposition of conditions upon grants of moneys and the invasion of the states rights

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection Thc Chair hears none.

Mr. JONES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 81, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to amend section four of the act approved the twenty-sixth day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-one (P. L. 1379), entitled "An act creating in counties of the third class a board for the assessment and revision of taxes; providing for the appointment of the members of such board by the county commissioners; providing for their salaries, payable by the county; abolishing existing boards; defining the powers and duties of such board; regulating the assessment of persons, property, and occupations for county, borough, town, township, school, and poor purposes; authorizing the appointment of subordinate assessors, a solicitor, engineers, and clerks; providing for their compensation, payable by such counties; abolishing the office of ward, borough, and township assessors, so far as the making of assessments and valuations for taxation is concerned; and providing for the acceptance of this act by cities" by removing the limitation placed on the salary received by subordinate assessors

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection The Chair hears none.

The CHIEF CLERK. The hour of nine o'clock having arrived the House will come to order.

The Speaker of the House has directed the Chief Clerk to call the House to order and to announce that the Speaker has requested the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Wood, to preside pending his return at a later hour. The Speaker is attending a reception at the Mansion given by the Governor and Mrs. Martin in honor of the Superior Court.

The Chair requests the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Wood, to come to the rostrum and preside.

MR. LLOYD H. WOOD IN THE CHAIR

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. Lester C. Updegrove, offered the following prayer:

O God, we thank Thee for those valiant men and women of former ages and of our own times through whose courage and zeal victories for humanity have been won. May this Legislature and the people whom they represent be inspired by their example. There are yet foes of human progress to be conquered, enemies of the common good to be overcome. Make us strong and very courageous. Confronted by tasks which test our strength and courage, may we not be fearful nor afraid; may we not shirk the issue nor evade the conflict; may we not recoil at hardship or abuse; may we not be discouraged by apparent defeat. Committing our souls unto Thee in whose hands are the destinies of all, may we be steadfast, confident in the final triumph of justice and truth. By Thy grace may we never be found wanting in any hour of crisis. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the Journal of Wednesday, March 3, 1943.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of Wednesday, March 3, 1943, when, on motion of Mr. KREPPS, unanimously agreed to, the further reading was dispensed with and the Journal approved.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. DENMAN. (Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 30.

In the House of Representatives, March 3, 1943.

Whereas, The Act of June 28, 1935, (P. L. 463) provided for the incorporation of Municipal Authorities and authorized them to acquire and conduct certain projects and to issue bonds to provide funds for the payment thereof, and in 1939 the General Assembly passed an amendment to that act which added to those projects, the authority to acquire water and water rights; and

Whereas, This act contains, among other things the following:

"The purpose and intent of this act being to benefit the people of the Commonwealth by, among other things, increasing their commerce and prosperity, and not to unnecessarily burden or interfere with existing business by the establishment of competitive enterprises, none of the powers granted by this act shall be exercised in the construction, improvement, maintenance, extension, or operation of any project or projects which in whole or in part shall duplicate or complicate with existing enterprises serving substantially the same purposes: Provided, however, That the municipality or municipalities organizing such an Authority may, in the resolution or ordinance signifying their intention so to do or from time to time by subsequent resolution or ordinance, specify the project or projects to be undertaken by the said Authority, and no other projects shall be undertaken by the said Authority than those so specified;" and

Whereas, Pursuant to this act of legislation various county and municipal authorities have been created among them being the Municipal Authority of Westmoreland County which was incorporated on April 15, 1942; and

Whereas, Said authority has proceeded to purchase a waterworks and water system; and

Whereas, It has come to the attention of members of the Senate of Pennsylvania that there is a serious question as to whether or not this act is being used contrary to the wishes of the Legislature; and

Whereas, It has been charged by persons affected by the actions of said authority that the acquisition of such waterworks has not been made in the interest of the rate payers and citizens; and

Whereas, With the many opportunities open for acquisition of water companies by the rate payers and citizens of a community and the great possibilities for mutual benefits that will result from revenue from said acquisitions it becomes imperative that the Legislature make it possible for such acquisitions to be made at the lowest possible purchase price, a price based more nearly upon the real value than the present system that uses a value based upon earning power; and

Whereas, In many cases such purchases by Municipal Authorities have become subjects of court litigation and the basis for rumors, and accusations; therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That a joint legislative committee consisting of four members of the Senate to be appointed by the President pro tempore of the Senate and four members of the House to be appointed by the Speaker of the House is hereby created for the purpose of interrogation and investigation of the actions of the said Municipal Authority of Westmoreland County, certain authorities to determine whether or not their actions have been taken in the public interest and for the welfare of rate payers of Westmoreland County and the residents thereof, and whether this act has been used for personal and private gain to the detriment of public interest, and be it further

Resolved, That this committee shall make a report to the General Assembly as to whether this act should be amended or repealed. This committee shall have the power to subpoena persons, records and books that have any bearing upon the contents of this resolution.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Messrs. CORDIER and CORRIGAN.

RESOLUTION No. 31.

In the House of Representatives, March 3, 1943.

The suspension of the Food Stamp Program by the Food Distribution Administration of the Federal Government on January 1, 1943, has reduced the value of each relief dollar received by residents of the Commonwealth from the Department of Public Assistance and has consequently reduced the actual relief received.

The mounting cost of living has made the cost of essentials rise far above its former level and instead of subsisting on the relief reduced in value by the discontinuance of the Food Stamp Program, it is necessary that the amount of relief should be raised.

The dollar received has, since January 1, 1943, become worth only fifty cents, and those unfortunates entitled to receive aid from the Commonwealth are becoming more destitute than ever; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the General Assembly hereby requests the Department of Public Assistance of the Commonwealth to investigate the conditions now forced upon those entitled to receive relief, by reason of the discontinuance of the Food Stamp Program and the higher cost of living and to increase the amounts paid to them in order to compensate for the loss suffered by reason of changed conditions; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution shall be forwarded by the Chief Clerk of the House to the Secretary of the Department of Public Assistance.

Referred to the Committee on Welfare.

By Mr. DENNISON. (Not Printed).

In the House of Representatives, March 3, 1943.

William F. Smith, a former State Commander of the American Legion, prominent in the business and political life of the Commonwealth and a leading citizen of Jefferson County, died at his home in Punxsutawney on January 30th.

He was born in Tioga County on April 7, 1888, attended the Mansfield State Teachers College and graduated from the Indiana State Teachers College in 1908. During the first World War he was commissioned a first lieutenant and after the termination of hostilities, he spent several years as business manager of National Park Seminary near Washington, D. C.

In 1920 he returned to Punxsutawney where he has since been engaged in business.

Upon taking up his residence in Punxsutawney, he became interested in and devoted much of his time to local activities. He was a director of the Chamber of Commerce, a trustee of the Adrian Hospital Association, and a director of the Central Y. M. C. A. Fraternally he was en active member of the Punxsutawney Lodge of Elks and of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

It was as a member of the American Legion however that he became best known throughout the State. He served as Commander of the John Jacob Fisher Post of Punxsutawney, later as County Commander, then as District Commander, and as Western Vice Commander. In 1938 he was elected Department Commander and his regime was marked by an outstanding record in the promotion of Americanism.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Alice Evans Smith, and a son John Evans Smith, who is now in military service; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives extends its most sincere sympathy to the widow and son of this illustrious citizen of the Commonwealth; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the House shall forward a copy of this Resolution to his widow, Mrs. Alice Evans Smith.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

The Speaker for Mr. FOOR for tonight's session because of illness.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. COHEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, last Monday night we received the Governor's budget message. He presented to us his conception of a budget for the coming biennium. Budgets are ponderous works, defying the ingenuity of drafter and examiner alike.

The Governor has taken an unusual amount of time in drafting his budget, but we intend to take only sufficient time to give it an intelligent appraisal. We do not intend to delay final adjournment of this Session, but we expect to take the invitation of the Governor at his word "to examine it carefully, publicize it so that our people back home might understand it and make suggestions for its betterment."

The Governor, with great modesty, admits that his handiwork can be bettered. We shall attempt to do so, avoiding if possible, partisan quibbling and will devote our energies to the service of all the people.

The Governor's statement on the budget was less complicated and more revealing than the budget itself and I shall devote myself to that phase of the problem tonight.

There has never been any question as to where the Governor stood on the matter of the internal affairs of both this Commonwealth and the Nation. He has disagreed with the political and social reforms of the State and Nation as far back as 1933, when the cobwebs were being brushed off the gloomy crypt of government fashioned by Warren Harding and Calvin Coolidge and brought to its greatest height of inefficiency and inefficacy by Herbert Hoover.

It therefore does not surprise me that the Governor indulges in mathematical pyrotechnics and somersaults, all the while paying homage to his philosophy and innermost urgings to sabotage progress in the administration of the people's government. Particularly does he bemoan progressive legislation in the field of education and welfare. If we are to follow his suggestion and attempt to study these problems with a view to modification,then we must be against the idea of greater benefits to the people in the fields of education and welfare.

May I ask this question. Is the education of our children to be made the butt of Republican economy, or does not the future generation of this arsenal of democracy count any more? Or is it, shall we give less educational opportunity to our children so as to make them the "docile workers" of the future?

Are the school teachers to be treated like proverbial "step-children" or should we not grant them the same consideration that we have granted politicians in the matter of proper increases in salaries, or at least give all living bonuses to be paid from public funds. This House voted two weeks ago (the Boyd bill) to increase the salaries of employees throughout the State to cover the cost of living for the duration. Do not the teachers pay the same money for food, shelter and other necessities as do other employees on the public payroll.

The charge that we must examine the matter of welfare legislation, which of necessity, directs his remarks to relief payments to the aged, blind and dependent children, leaves the thought in mind that we are to play politics with this group of people. I might remind the Governor that this State took over relief functions in 1932 when all that the needy received were food orders. All other relief needs were matters of local responsibility to be met by community agencies. It was because it was universally agreed that this stop-gap method of meeting the problem seriously affected the morale of the less fortunate, that eventually the State went on a permanent relief basis, climaxed by the enactment of the Goodrich plan in 1937. It is this one function alone that has given the State the major part of the one hundred million dollars cost of governmental increase which irks the Governor. Or would the Governor want us to put mental hospitals and other state institutions of healing back where they were? Would he want to take away salary increases to teachers in fourth class school districts? Does he really want us to stop transporting school pupils? These, too, are functions which the State Government has taken over in the past ten years and contribute to this one hundred million dollars added cost to the State.

Or can it be that the civil service requirements in the Department of Welfare and the Federal requirements that are attached to Federal grants to be disbursed by the Department of Public Assistance, irk the Governor so much? Would he have these functions given back to politicians in the local communities—politicians beholden to his administration? Do not forget that the elusive surplus of Arthur James can be credited to the Federal Government, who poured over ninety million dollars into the Treasury in his administration for social and relief purposes. Where would the Governor's tax reduction program be today if it were not for this money? Could it really be that the mopping up of political pap and patronage irks the Governor so much that he wants to toss this function back to the counties and let the State shirk its acknowledged responsibility?

The total emergency taxes in 1937-1939 were one hundred sixty-three million dollars. During that period we spent upwards of two hundred forty million dollars. It is estimated for the present biennium that this emergency functions will cost eighty million dollars. Even with a tax cut of forty million dollars, the question may well be asked, where is the difference? The Administration might answer that there will be less revenue from these taxes, but that fact has only been stated. It has not yet been proven. We ought to be very careful.

The main trouble with this budget is that it is permeated with a philosophy of "do nothing." It is a throwback to the ostrich acting, slumbering Hoover idea of governmental function.

A cursory examination of the budget and the Governor's statement indicate only a feeling for the tax cost to the wealthy taxpayer. Why not a reduction on a broader basis that could be accomplished by examining the cigarette tax or the emergency liquid fuels tax. After all, these are emergency taxes.

Let me say one more thing, why break into our permanent tax structure. The well-to-do business men, who would profit by the abolishment of the mercantile tax, have not asked for it. The result that I can see is the imposition of this tax upon the same business men, who next year will wake up suddenly to find the counties collecting it at varying rates throughout the State. I contend there is enough money left after all the Governor's recommendations on expenditures are provided for to take care of the problem of the school teachers. The mercantile tax, which is collected on a State-wide basis, could be allocated specifically for the purpose of helping to pay them at least a cost of living increase for the duration.

I have received many communications mostly from investment brokers, etc., asking that the State Personal Property tax and like taxes be abolished. I have yet to see one request or hear one plea to have the mercantile tax abolished. Yes, business men know that if the State does not collect it, then the counties will.

I believe that there is enough hidden money in this budget to give them what they deserve. It is our problem and our duty to give it to them. Do not forget that the school teachers have been applauded week in and week out lately for their unselfish work in the matter of rationing, selective service and other activities. We have given them gratitude, but no money.

I have heard many people ask about tax reduction directly to the little fellow. What about the cigarette and liquid fuels tax? It is something that we ought to try to do. The Governor has said "Figures in a budget only reflect the underlying plan and the policies on which the budget is built." If this be true, then I charge again that the budget is typical of the thinking of the Harding-Coolidge-Hoover era of "do-nothing" in government.

It has been often stated that this was to be a non-political and cooperative session. The Democratic party pledged its support of such a program of activity. It is still ready to do so. It is still looking for an open invitation to sit around the table to discuss these questions. The Democratic party is ready to act.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. SARGE asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, today I introduced a Bill which I think is of enough importance to our Commonwealth to warrant my asking the privilege of calling your special attention to this bill.

This Bill is a combination of Resolutions Nos. 69 and 75 introduced during the Session of 1941, each of which called for the appointment of a joint legislative committee to investigate certain matters and report to the General Assembly. No. 69 sought to rid the statute books of obsolete and useless laws; No. 75 had as its object the reduction of the expense of conducting a session of the Legislature by seeking some answer to the high cost of printing.

Bills are introduced which even the sponsors thereof do not expect to be enacted, and in some cases they would not be supported by those sponsors. At this session the same bills, with the same wording have been presented by several members. In some instances the second and third copies have been presented with the full knowledge on the part of the member that a similar bill had already been introduced. Some of these bills have consisted of more than fifty pages of typewritten matter, which results in a large cost to the State for printing alone.

A practice has grown up to introduce the same bill in the Senate and in the House at the same time, which obviously accomplishes no good purpose but results in further increasing printing cost. Cost should not be considered when an end for the public good can be reached, but when the object is purely personal gain or embarrassment to some one else, the practice should be eliminated.

And again it is not the purpose of this bill to take away any of the rights of members in their rightful privilege of introducing bills. The bill only authorizes a study of our present system with the view of accomplishing more sensible, more efficient and more economical procedure in our process of introducing Legislation.

The question of a division of the legislative session was raised in 1941 by the introduction of a resolution to amend the Constitution in order to provide for what is known as a split session. A period of time would be provided immediately following the convening of the session for its organization and the presentation of bills. No bills would be considered until the reconvening of the session, five weeks after the initial period set aside for the introduction of bills. The resolution also provided for a different printing of Legislative Journals and Histories.

The study of this question is also imposed upon the commission appointed under the provisions of this act.

I feel that this is a most important matter and that its cost would be made up by the savings that would result from its work, I feel also that it is so important a matter as to deserve the serious study of a separate commission instead of being only a small part of a study made by any permanent body.

I submit this method of solving the problems that we all know exist in the hope that it will receive the support of all the members of this body who, with me, feel that some real change should be made.

The Delaware Legislature repealed a multitude of obsolete laws. Other States have very recently appointed commissions to eliminate obsolete laws and to recommend various improvements in Legislative procedure, and yet Pennsylvania the great arsenal of America has done nothing along this line.

For many years the State has been saddled with an unnecessary and exorbitant cost of thousands of bills, most of which are impractical and entirely useless, and I see no reason why this custom should continue. In fact I am greatly concerned with this matter of Bill printing, for I believe it is one of the most abused privileges connected with the mechanism of the State Legislature.

As a matter of fact, I sincerely believe that if this proposed Bill of mine is adopted, the members of this House will be greatly surprised at some of the discoveries that will be brought to light, discoveries of waste of tons of paper, extravagant expenditures of money at the expense of the State, and from which the State or the Legislature derive absolutely no benefit.

When, in the 1941 Session, I introduced Resolutions 69 and 75, the Philadelphia Inquirer published quite an editorial on the worth of these Resolutions and suggested that the Resolutions should be adopted by the Legislature. This editorial also pointed out that I was consistent in my views because of the fact that in that Session I introduced only one Bill. May I add, gentlemen of the House, that in this Session I have introduced only one Bill and that was House Bill 4, which will save the State approximately twenty-five thousand dollars in printing, and it is my intention not to introduce any Bills at this Session unless they are Bills that will save the State money, or are vital to the prosecution of the war. I mention this only to show to you my consistency in asking your support for this measure and of course it is self-evident that there is nothing political about the Bill.

When one considers that in the past four sessions of this General Assembly the staggering number of eleven thousand and forty-five bills were intorduced and printed, of which number only two thousand three hundred and seventy-five were passed, it seems obvious that something exists that should be corrected. In other words Seventy-eight and one-half per cent of the bills introduced and printed were not enacted into law.

Gentlemen of the House,—there is no better time to set our Legislative House in order than the present. I ask your support of this measure on the basis of it's merits alone, and I thank the Speaker and the Members of the House for the courtesy extended to me in this privilege of speaking to you on the Bill at this time.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. BRETHERICK asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I have listened with rather deep interest to some very interesting remarks made by the Minority Floor Leader with regard to increased compensation for teachers. May I say to him and to the Members on the Republican side of the House that I feel somewhat flattered that he has adopted the suggestion that I personally made to this House on February twenty-third in urging the Members of this House of Representatives to do something for Pennsylvania school teachers, and that I was disappointed that the Governor had not seen fit in the budget message to make some definite provision for increasing the compensation of school teachers. The Governor has in fact stated that that is a job for the Legislature. He suggested that every Member of this House must accept that responsibility because it is a responsibility of the Members of this House.

A bill has been introduced by a Republican Member of this House to increase the compensation of school teachers to the extent of three hundred dollars a year. That bill is now before the Committee on Education for consideration. I personally know that Members of that Committee from this side of the House have been working night and day, including Sunday, in an effort to find some solution to this very vexing problem. Gentlemen, I don't think there is a Member of this House who does not agree that our teachers, or at least some of them, should receive increased compensation. I know that the Republican Members of the House feel that way because I discussed the problem with them on several occasions and I know that the Members of the Committee on Education have been devoting every minute of their time in an effort to satisfactorily solve this problem for the benefit of our teachers.

I think it ought to be said in fairness that the Governor has never said that he will veto legislation providing for increased compensation for teachers. It is up to us to present to him a workable appropriation bill, tax bill, in order that the teachers may get what they justly deserve and what they are honestly and fairly entitled to receive. As I did two weeks ago on the floor of this House I again want to urge every Member of this House to give the matter his best efforts and to urge every Member of this House to give this problem his most serious consideration in order that our teachers may receive more money.

BILLS ON FIRST READING

BILLS ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 140, entitled:

An Act to further amend section seven hundred thirteen of the act, approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 905), entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety; regulating the use of highways, and the operation of vehicles, tractors, street cars, trackless trolley omnibuses, bicycles, pedestrians, and the riding of animals upon the highways of this Commonwealth; providing for the titling, including liens, encumbrances, and legal claims; registration of certain vehicles, and licensing the operators thereof, upon payment of prescribed fees; prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue, the Department of Highways, peace officers, mayors, burgesses, magistrates, aldermen, justices of the peace, the courts and the clerks thereof, owners of vehicles, and garage keepers; providing that records are admissible as evidence; imposing upon owners, counties, cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships, within the Commonwealth, liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles; imposing penalties; imposing certain costs upon counties; providing for the disposition of fines, forfeitures, fees, and miscellaneous receipts; making an appropriation and providing for refunds," modifying the provisions thereof relative to fees for operators' licenses in cases where holders of learners' permits fail to pass the examination for an operator's license during the ninety day period such permit is valid.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. KENNETH H. WAGNER. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Motor Vehicles for the purpose of further study and possible amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 105, entitled:

An Act to reenact and amend the title of, and the act approved the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven (P. L. 2611), entitled "An act authorizing political subdivisions, other than cities of the first class, to set-off delinquent taxes and municipal claims and penalties, interest, and cost due thereon, against claims and accounts due by such political subdivisions," extending the provisions of said act so that judgments held by such political subdivisions and the costs and interest accrued thereon may be set-off against claims and accounts owing by the political subdivisions.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 290, entitled:

An Act to amend sections one and seven of the act, approved the twenty-first day of July, one thousand nine hundred forty-one (P. L. 425), entitled "An act to establish a system uniform throughout the Commonwealth for the compensation of witnesses, regulating the amount, payment and taxation as costs thereof, and repealing inconsistent legislation," further regulating the payment of witnesses and the taxation thereof as costs of the proceeding.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 321, entitled:

An Act to amend section three hundred one of the act, approved the third day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1225), entitled "An act concerning game and other wild birds and wild animals; and amending, revising, consolidating, and changing the law relating thereto," changing the requirements for persons in the armed forces of the United States to secure resident hunters' licenses.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 328, entitled:

An Act regulating the issuance of birth certificates and copies of, and statements relating to birth records by the Department of Health, the clerks of the orphans' courts, and the local registrars; limiting the amount of information to be given in such certificates, copies and statements, and declaring such limited certified copies of birth records competent legal evidence.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 332, entitled:

An Act to amend section one thousand two hundred twelve of the act, approved the third day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1225), entitled "An act concerning game and other wild birds and wild animals; and amending, revising, consolidating, and changing the law relating thereto," by authorizing the refund of certain moneys erroneously paid into the State Treasury for hunting license fees by former county treasurers.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 440, entitled:

An Act to further amend section seven hundred two of the act approved the fifth day of May, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three, (P. L. 289), entitled "An act relating to nonprofit corporations; defining and providing for the organization, merger, consolidation, and dissolution of such corporations; conferring certain rights, powers, duties, and immunities upon them and their officers and members; prescribing the conditions on which such corporations may exercise their powers; providing for the inclusion of certain existing corporations of the first class within the provisions of this act; prescribing the terms and conditions upon which foreign nonprofit corporations may be admitted or may continue to do business within the Commonwealth; conferring powers and imposing duties on the courts of common pleas, prothonotaries of such courts, recorders of deeds, and certain State departments, commissions, and officers; authorizing certain local public officers and State departments to collect fees for services required to be rendered by this act; imposing penalties; and repealing certain acts and parts of acts relating to corporations," by further regulating the method of approval of amendments of articles of incorporation of nonprofit corporations by the members thereof.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The bill having been called up from the postponed calendar, by Mr. TAHL and

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The House resumed the consideration on second reading of House Bill No. 313, entitled:

An Act to amend the title and sections eighteen, nineteen and twenty of the act, approved the fifteenth day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1743), entitled "An act relating to magistrates and magistrates' courts in the city of Philadelphia; imposing certain duties upon, and prohibiting certain practices by, magistrates; imposing certain duties on the city controller in regard thereto; authorizing the employment by him of additional clerks and fixing their compensation; regulating the practice in magistrates' courts, the entering of bail, and the issuance of discharges in criminal cases in the county of Philadelphia; conferring certain powers over magistrates and magistrates' courts, and imposing certain duties in connection therewith upon the judges of the courts of common pleas of the county of Philadelphia; providing for the appointment and employment of stenographers to report proceedings in certain cases heard by magistrates; fixing salaries of persons employed by authority of this act; providing penalties for violations of the provisions thereof; and repealing certain prior acts," removing certain powers and duties of the city controller and conferring them upon the clerk of the court of oyer and terminer, general jail delivery and quarter sessions; authorizing said clerk to employ additional clerks and fixing their salaries.

The SPEAKER. When this bill was last before the House the question was on the amendments offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cullen and the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy.

The Clerk will again read the amendments offered to Section 1.

The amendments were read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend Sec. 1 (Title), page 3, line 10, by striking out the light-faced bracket before the word "city" and after the word "controller"

Amend Sec. 1 (Title), page 3, lines 10, 11 and 12, by striking out the following: "clerk of the" in line 10, all of line 11, and the words "quarter sessions" in line 12.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, in furthering the argument in favor of the amendments offered on House Bill 313 I desire to interrogate the sponsor of this bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the sponsor of this bill, Mr. Menna of Philadelphia, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. MENNA. Mr. Speaker, I will yield to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Menna, yields to the gentleman from Phildaelphia, Mr. Salus. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, will proceed.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, when the House Bill pertaining to the City Controller of Philadelphia was up for second reading last Tuesday, the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates, asked a question of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, inquiring in effect if there was any provision in the bill that subsequently passed second reading that provided for the transfer of all available records to the Court of Quarter Session of Philadelphia, and the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, said at that time there was no provision in the present bill, that he was prevented from answering my question, or rather the question by the gentleman from Armstrong, because of the fact that the answer to the question was in the next bill, House Bill 313.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman from Philadelphia to show the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates, and the rest of the membership of the House where in House Bill 313, Printer's No. 50, is there a provision made for the transfer of the records from the Controller's office to the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, in answer to that question I think I said at that time that those provisions would be in the companion bill. They are in the companion bill which is up for consideration tonight.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to further interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, I expected that.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will proceed.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, makes reference to a companion bill. Will the gentleman inform the House to what bill he is refering and the number of the particular bill?

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman from Philadelphia has it in front of him and his eyesight is good. I think it is House Bill 313, although I haven't got it in front of me.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I asked the gentleman from Philadelphia to point out to the gentleman from Armstrong, who made the inquiry last week, where in the bill provision is made for the transfer?

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, I would be perfectly willing to answer that question to the gentleman from Armstrong if he requests it.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I ask the gentleman from Philadelphia to answer the question. I am now asking a direct question.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, I am not nervous. The gentleman may go ahead.

Mr. LEVY. I might inform the Speaker that we are in the process of debating what in my estimation is a very important bill, not only to the people of Philadelphia but to the people of Pennsylvania. We shall gradually unfurl to the Members of the House the reasons why this is a very important piece of legislation.

I am interrogating the gentleman from Philadelphia, and I am likewise making an explanatory remark relative to the refusal of the gentleman to answer the question.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would like to remind the gentleman from Philadelphia that the business before the House is interrogation.

Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SALUS. I will, Mr. Speaker, if any direct questions are asked.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to inquire of the gentleman from Philadelphia where in House Bill No. 313, Printer's No. 50 is there a provision making this transfer of the records from the City Controllers' Office to the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions of Philadelphia.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, is the bill the gentleman from Philadelphia is talking about the bill that passed on second reading or the bill on second reading tonight?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, apparently the gentleman from Philadelphia needs the bill in front of him because I repeated, it is House Bill 313, Printer's No. 50, which is on tonight's calendar, and which bill we are now debating on second reading.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. GATES. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Armstrong will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. GATES. I think, Mr. Speaker, that possibly the question I asked the other day has not been properly worded. I do not have the Legislative Journal but I have a copy here of my original question—

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Armstrong yield?

Mr. GATES. I yield, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. GATES. Mr. Speaker, I have been misquoted. I wish to correct the question.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, and will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, yield to the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates?

Mr. SALUS. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, will not yield to the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy will not yield. The gentleman will proceed with his interrogation.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, in furtherance of the interrogation then I would ask the Speaker of the House to request the reporters of the House of deliver to the House at this point the official notes of last week's Session.

The SPEAKER. If the gentleman insists, the Chair will request the Reporters to produce the official record. Does the gentleman insist?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I do not desire to cause the Chair the inconvenience that such a request demands, but I want to say to you, Mr. Speaker, that it was my impression that the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates, made certain inquiries. It was my impression that the inquiry he made was exactly or approximately the statement that I made on the floor.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LEVY. I yield, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The floor was not yielded to the gentleman from Armstrong. The gentleman will continue with his interrogation if he desires to do so.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I cannot very well ask the question and answer your question at the same time. You asked me if I would insist upon having the record. Now, I am attempting to answer your question.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SALUS. I will, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, will proceed.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that the gentleman from Armstrong has already made his statement on the record, I further my request that the official record of the proceedings of last Tuesday's Session be summoned into the House.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will obtain the record of last week's debate in view of the fact that the gentleman from Philadelphia would not yield to the gentleman from Armstrong. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, has the floor. Does he wish to further interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I regret to inform the Speaker that I cannot go on with my interrogation until the official transcript of last Tuesday's Session is brought into the House.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, maybe I could settle this matter amicably if I would write the gentleman from Philadelphia a letter.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would inform the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, that the official record will be produced. The Chair reminds the gentleman that the only question before this House is on the amendment to Section 1 of this bill.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I am aware of the fact that the only business before the House is the amendments I have offered.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman wish to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, further?

Mr. LEVY. I will interrogate the gentleman, Mr. Speaker, further when the records are produced on the floor of the House.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman wish to discuss his amendments to Section 1.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I can't discuss the amendments to Section 1 until I have finished my interrogation of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed with his interrogation. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, has the floor.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of information.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, did not the Chair recognize the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates, under his question of personal privilege?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognized the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates. The Chair then inquired of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, and the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, whether they would yield to the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a further question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of information.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I say, did not the Chair recognize the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates. under a question of personal privilege?

The SPEAKER. The Chair would repeat for the information of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. O'Brien, that the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates, was recognized. The Chair then inquired whether the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, and the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, would yield.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I reiterate and repeat, did not the Chair recognize the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates, under the point of personal privilege?

The SPEAKER. The Chair did recognize the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates, under his question of personal privilege and inquired whether the other two gentleman would yield.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, as a Member of the House and as one who has put forth three questions to the Chair and being a layman and not a member of the bar, particularly the Philadelphia bar, I still do not have an answer to my question whether or not the Chair recognized the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates, under the point of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is certain that it has made the situation perfectly clear. The Chair did recognize the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates, under a question of personal privilege, and then inquired of the gentlemen from Philadelphia whether they would yield.

Mr. O'BRIEN. May I further interrogate the Speaker?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman has that privilege.

Mr. O'BRIEN. The fact that you did recognize the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates, under a question of personal privilege, and at that time he was able to convey to the House a certain doubt concerning the interrogation by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, of Mr. Salus, don't you think that the Chair should order before any further interrogation gets under way, the records of the House wherein Mr. Levy made reference to the interrogation of Mr. Salus by the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would inquire of the gentleman from Philadelphia whether the action of the Chair has not been one of trying to be fair to all concerned. The Chair has made many exceptions in order to be fair. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia not come to the same belief?

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I still think that there is a semblance of doubt in my mind. I am speaking frankly for myself, that there was something in error in the relation to the statement of the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates, and I think it is important that this House have before it the record of the interrogation of the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates, in connection with the interrogation of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus.

The SPEAKER. Upon the request of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, which he insisted upon, the records will be brought into the hall of the House.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy.

Mr. LEVY. I humbly ask the Speaker's pardon. I was a bit inattentive attempting to answer a question of the gentleman beside me.

The SPEAKER. The Chair was under the impression that the gentleman desired to continue his interrogation of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I have made it quite emphatic and clear that I cannot further interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia without the record of Tuesday afternoon's session. If the Speaker insists that I go ahead I suppose I have no other alternative.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will remind the gentleman from Philadelphia that the Chair has tried to be tolerant and fair with all the Members of the House. However, part of this interrogation seems to be so insignificant that the Chair is of the opinion that we should proceed just as far as we are able to proceed. The records will be brought into the House for the information of the gentleman from Philadelphia.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, for the information of the Speaker, his word "insignificant," I believe, may be misinterpreted by the gentlemen in the House, if he insists upon using that particular word. I might inform the Speaker that the question at issue and the question that was under consideration by many Republicans on the other side of the House is very pertinent to the question I am asking Mr. Salus. Now, if Mr. Salus decides tonight to claim that the question asked him was not a proper one, or if the gentleman from Armstrong insists that the query he made of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, is not as I have mentioned it, then I say to you, Mr. Speaker, it becomes a very important matter to have the records of Tuesday's session brought into the House and have them read for the information of the Members before any further interrogation is had.

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not wish to argue the matter any further but desires to have the gentleman from Philadelphia confine himself to the question before the House.

The House will be at ease awaiting the arrival of the records requested.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, even though the House is at ease, I would like to say a word—

The SPEAKER. There is nothing to be said. The House will be at ease for a few minutes.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, I wanted to save the House and the Members a lot of time. I think I can do it if Mr. Levy will agree.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has the records requested and is about to read to the House the information asked by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy. Reading from the Legislative Journal of the House of March 2, page 606.

"The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

"Mr. SALUS. I shall, Mr. Speaker?

"Mr. GATES. Mr. Speaker, I would like to have the gentleman from Philadelphia guide me in my vote, and I would like to know, if under this section the Bail Commissioner who will be appointed by the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions will have the right to the controller's information and the property records upon which the bond in his opinion is or is not acceptable as a bail bond.

"Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, I might answer the gentleman that he will have those complete records turned over to him, and they are up to date. They are furnished by the tax receivers, the Recorder of Deeds, and the Prothonotary of the Court. They are kept up to date, and if an application be made for bail, if they do not have the record they will send down and get it.

"Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I am very happy that the gentleman from Armstrong rose to ask that question, because that is the very question I wanted to ask myself, but the answer that the gentleman from Philadelphia gave is a bit confusing."

Does that answer the question?

Mr. LEVY. I regret to inform the Speaker that the quotations from the record are only partial, and when I say partial I mean that subsequently another question was asked by the gentleman from Philadelphia and to that question he declined—

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LEVY. I yield, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman permit the Chair to read further?

"Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I am very happy that the gentleman from Armstrong rose to ask that question, because that is the very question I wanted to ask myself, but the answer that the gentleman from Philadelphia gave is a bit confusing. I want the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, in view of the fact that he makes these statements to the House as a result of a study of this bill to tell us in what portion of the bill does the City Controller give over to the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions all the records vested at this time in his department?

"Mr. SALUS. There is some reference to these records in the next bill, Mr. Speaker. However, these records would not belong to the Controller; they belong to the different departments which have placed them in his office. If this bill is passed, those different departments would have the right to take those various records and place them wherever they saw fit. They are not the property of the Controller. They are furnished in a cooperative system among the heads of the departments."

Shall the Chair continue further?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I believe that was the end of the interrogation, was it not?

The SPEAKER. Many more pages.

Mr. LEVY. I might inform the membership of the House that that is sufficient as far as I am concerned.

Now, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Armstrong permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GATES. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to inquire from the gentleman from Armstrong as to whether or not from his own observation the question propounded by the Speaker, quoting from the record, was not the exact question he asked the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus?

Mr. GATES. Mr. Speaker, it was the question that I asked.

Mr. LEVY. If the gentleman from Armstrong has now changed his mind relative to the import of his question then I want him now to explain to the House what he meant by the question to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus.

Mr. GATES. Mr. Speaker, I will be very happy. It seemed to me that in casting my vote upon such an important measure I should enlighten myself personally on the question, whether the Bail Commissioner who would be appointed by the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court, had the right, not that the records should be turned over, but had the right to control the information or the records from which he could properly form his opinion regarding the value of the bond that was offered on the property? If that is true, if he has all the information that the controller has, it would seem to me that that is the proper place to have this procedure.

Mr. LEVY. That is all I have to ask the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Gates.

The reason for the extensive questioning, Mr. Speaker, is quite obvious to most of the men in the hall of the House. The very question that the gentleman from Armstrong asked of Mr. Salus is the crux of the whole argument against this Philadelphia steal.

Now, Mr. Speaker, they are harsh words, but if the Speaker will recall, last Tuesday I made the same inquiry on the floor of this House, and not one Republican member of the House from Philadelphia or from any other part of the State rose to answer it, I asked the gentleman from Philadelphia, following the inquiry of Mr. Gates—and it is in the official records—would the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court have in his possession, from the import of this bill, the official records that lie in the controller's office, he said, "Yes, provision is made in a later bill."

Now, Mr. Speaker, there is no clearer language than that, and yet the gentleman from Philadelphia refused to answer the question tonight. I asked him again where in House Bill 313 are the official records transferred to the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court? The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, cannot answer the question, not a Republican Member in this House can answer the question, because in House Bill 313, as in the previous bill there is no such provision.

Let me set the gentleman from Armstrong clear about the practice in Philadelphia. The City Controller is the bookkeeper in Philadelphia. All duplicate records from the Receiver of Taxes are sent to the City Controller. Does the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, intend to convey to this House that he wants this bill to have the Receiver of Taxes send all his official records to the Clerk of Quarter Sessions Court and not to the City Controller. Why does not the gentleman from Philadelphia be fair about the question? Why doesn't he say, and he almost said it last week, that it is a job-grab, that it means four votes, four committeemen, four jobs? Why does he not admit on the floor of the House that it is a trick, that it is a project of the Republican City Committee to take from the Democrats four jobs? It is not a question, Mr. Speaker, of civic government with him, nor with any Republican that votes for this bill. We went into great detail last week about the scandal in Philadelphia in 1931 and the years following, up to 1937. Every newspaper in Philadelphia, and, yes, newspapers in Harrisburg carried the story where fifteen thousand dollars worth of property was placed in bail for one million dollars. It is not a lie, it is no misstatment. The gentleman from Philadelphia did not come upon the floor of this House last week and deny it. In fact, Mr. Speaker, he admitted it, and I would say to the gentleman from Philadelphia, and I would say to the Republican party in Philadelphia that this bill is designated to reinstate the racket bailor in Philadelphia. You cannot carry out the reform measure set by the Legislature in 1937 under the terms of House Bill 313. It leaves too many loopholes.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his point of order.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, this is my fourth session in this House, and in 1937 when we were in the majority there were some caustic debates on the floor. I frequently found the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, blue in the face yelling about the Democrats, and I frequently found the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Woodside, straining the muscles in his neck yelling at the Democrats, but I do not recall that the Democrats ever kicked the spittoons or ever slammed their desks. I feel, Mr. Speaker, that the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, is entitled to the respect of this House and to quiet from all sides.

The SPEAKER. The point of order is well taken. The Chair regrets that we have incidents such as this. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, will proceed.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, on House Bill 313, like the other bill that passed second reading last week and is on third reading tonight, I challenge—

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will confine his remarks to the question before the House, which is on the amendments to Section 1 of this bill.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I might inform the Speaker that this is House Bill No. 313.

The SPEAKER. The question before the House is on the amendments of Section 1. The gentleman will kindly confine himself to that question.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, the Section 1 of the bill substitute the words "Clerk of the Quarter Session Court" for "City Controller." If the Speaker can show me how I can debate the amendment without talking about the merits of the bill, then I want to be shown.

The SPEAKER. The gentlemen will proceed.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I repeat that on House Bill 313 the Republican party in Philadelphia has been charged with attempting to bring back the bond scandal in Philadelphia of 1931 to 1936. My amendment changes the desire of the Republican party in Philadelphia. I say to the leadership in Philadelphia, if it needs four more jobs, this is a terrible bill in which to get them.

If they need four jobs so badly that they want to besmirch the name of the City of Philadelphia as it was besmirched in the bond scandal of 1931 to 1936, then, my God! they are going a long distance to get them. That is the purpose, and that is what it carries with it as the inevitable result, bond scandals in Philadelphia.

The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, in last week's questioning answered by saying, the records in the City Controller's office are public property, and therefore it is reasonable to suspect that because they are public property they might as well go to the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court.

I say to you, Mr. Speaker, that is not talking facts. He knows, being an astute lawyer, that the City Controller is the bookkeeper, that he gets those records by an act of City Council, that all those records are sent to his office automatically, that in order for these various departments to send their records to the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court it will take more money than the City of Philadelphia can raise in their iniquitous wage tax.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would again remind the gentleman to confine his remarks to the question on the amendments on Section 1.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I hope the Speaker did not think that because I mentioned wage tax that I would wax into that subject.

The SPEAKER. The question before the House is: Will the House agree to the amendments of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, and the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cullen, to Section 1 of the bill?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I might say, to convince some of the Republicans who believe in decent government, that this bill has no place on the calendar. I think I said last week, that the Republican party of Pennsylvania might disagree with the Republican party in Philadelphia on bills of this kind. I do not know whether that is true or not, but I say to the gentleman from Armstrong, like many other gentlemen on the other side of the room who were interested in the question propounded by the gentleman from Armstrong, that the answer by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, has no basis in fact.

The proof of the fact remains that no one in this House can show me in either bill where provision is made for the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court to get the records from the Controller's office. Do you know why they cannot? Because this bill would have to provide for forty-four jobs, messengers to run down to the Controller's office by the hour and get the information and bring it up. The gentleman from Philadelphia knows it and the gentleman from Philadelphia knows that the amendments to section number one which I have offered are decent, and those amendments should be voted on and inserted in the bill.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

The SPEAKER declared the nays appear to have it—the ayes appear to have it—the ayes have it—is there any wonder that one would be confused? The Chair is in error and will accept a call for division in order to correct the error of the Speaker.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of information.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, when the gavel falls and the Chair gives its decision, does the decision stand?

The SPEAKER. The Chair has admitted frankly that he was in error, to which the Chair is positive all the members of the House will agree.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, we do not agree. I object.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, do I understand that the Chair declared with a bang of the gavel that the amendments had been agreed to?

The SPEAKER. The amendments have not been agreed to.

Mr. LEVY. Do I understand then that the Speaker had announced very clearly that the "ayes" had it?

The SPEAKER. May the Chair inform the gentleman that it frankly admitted it was in error. Would the gentleman accept the frank admission of the Chair that the Chair was in error and has tried to be fair to all members while debating?

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of information.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to have the Speaker inform the House from what observation does the Speaker find he is in error?

The SPEAKER. The Chair would again inform the gentleman from Philadelphia that the Speaker was in error in making the declaration.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of information.

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inquire of the Chair whether he did not say before bringing down the gavel that the "Noes appear to have it," and whether he did not thereafter have a slip of the tongue when he said "The ayes appear to have it"?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will request the Reporter to read just what happened.

(Reference was made to the Reporter's notes).

The SPEAKER. According to the record the first words spoken before the decision was made were "The nays appear to have it." That is according to the notes of three stenographic reporters.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of information.

Mr. O'BRIEN. On the interrogation of the Speaker by the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Rose, he seemed to ask the questions and answer them also for the Speaker. I would just like to know how the Chair would rule on such an interrogation.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would inform the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. O'Brien, that the Chair does not recall an interrogation by the gentleman from Cambria.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, on the point of information the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Rose, asked if the Chair did not first say "The noes appear to have it."

and then the Chair refused to recognize anybody. The Speaker then got the stenographic notes. But he also further added that "The noes appear to have it" and then immediately ordered the stenographic notes read. The stenographic notes were "The noes appear to have it," but the point of information, Mr. Speaker, I have to ask is, what did you say in relation to whether the ayes or the nays have it?

The SPEAKER. The Chair would inform the gentleman from Philadelphia that he has been answered. The Chair has made a frank admission of his error.

Mr. LEVY. I accept the explanation of the Speaker, and I would ask in the same vein unanimous consent that the Speaker extend me the courtesy to have a roll call.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. Levy and Mr. Modell and were as follows:

So the question was determined in the negative and the amendments were not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The second section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Messrs. CULLEN and LEVY offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 18), page 4, line 3, by striking out the light-faced bracket before the word "city" and after the word "controller."

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 18), page 4, lines 3 and 4, by striking out the following: "clerk of the court of" in line 3, and all of line 4.

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 18), page 4, line 14, by striking out the light-faced bracket before and after the word "controller."

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 18), page 4, lines 15 and 16, by striking out the following: all of line 15, and the words "delivery and quarter sessions" in line 16.

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 18), page 4, line 22, by striking out the light-faced bracket before and after the word "controller."

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 18), page 4, line 23, by striking out the words "said clerk."

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 18), page 4, line 24, by striking out the light-faced bracket before and after the word "controller."

Amend Sec 2 (Sec. 18), page 4, line 24, by striking out the word "clerk."

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 19), page 4, line 26, by striking out the light-faced bracket before and after the word "controller."

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 19), page 4, lines 26, 27 and 28, by striking out the following: "clerk of the court" in line 26, all of line 27, and the word "sessions" in line 28.

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 19), page 5, line 8, by striking out the light-faced bracket bebfore the word "city" and after the word "controller."

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 19), page 5, lines 8, 9 and 10, by striking out the following: "clerk of the court of" in line 8, all of line 9, and the part-word "sions" in line 10.

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 20), page 5, line 11, by striking out the light-faced bracket before the word "City" and after the word "Philadelphia."

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 20), page 5, lines 11, 12 and 13, by striking out the following: "clerk" in line 11, all of line 12, and the words "and quarter sessions" in line 13.

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 20), page 5, lines 15 and 16, by striking out the light-faced bracket before the word "City" in line 15, and after the word "controller" in line 16.

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 20), page 5, line 16, by striking out the word "clerk."

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the House to support the amendments offered to Section 2 for the same reasons outlined in Section 1. I only want to say to a lot of my brethren on the other side of the House, maybe they do not care much about Philadelphia, nor much about the bail racket, but I want to say to them that I guess they will go where their other brethren went, because in 1939 when the Republican party stood for trash like this they did not come back in 1941.

Mr. Speaker, I request a roll call.

So the question was determined in the negative and the amendments were not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The third section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. MODELL. Mr. Speaker, are you calling this bill up now as it was, not as amended?

The SPEAKER. The amendments were not agreed to.

Mr. MODELL. Mr. Speaker, I desire to speak on this bill.

The SPEAKER. We are now on the third section. Does the gentleman wish to speak on this section of the bill?

Mr. MODELL. I desire to speak on the bill.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman desire to speak on the bill when it is on third reading or before it is finally agreed to on second reading?

Mr. MODELL. Before it is finally agreed to on second reading, Mr. Speaker.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The title was read and agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on second reading?

Mr. MODELL. Mr. Speaker, it has been on very few occasions that I have arisen on the floor of this House to defend or oppose any bill, but I feel that on this particular bill I must say something at this time.

I do not rise in opposition to this bill because it is a job-steal or a job-grab, because I think that this is a very incidental and small part of this entire matter. I do not rise in opposition to this bill as a Democrat opposing a Republican-sponsored bill, but I do rise, Mr. Speaker, in a conscientious effort to do my legislative duty on laws that we are about to pass upon. I can not bring myself to believe that the Members of this House will actually vote in favor of the type of legislation as shown in this particular bill.

I know, Mr. Speaker, a great deal has been said about the bail scandal racket in Philadelphia during the years 1928 to 1936, and I do not intend to speak at length upon that. You have alreay heard a great deal about it, and I may say in addition to the remarks that you have heard tonight, certainly all of us know that the City Controller is the city bookkeeper. It is his constitutional duty to keep the records of the City and there is nothing in these bills to indicate that at any time the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court will ever have in his possession these records as audited by the City Controller.

I believe it is necessary that we get the opinion of people who are not going to work only on party lines, but of people who are really interested in good government and good laws. We have in the city of Philadelphia a Board of Judges, composed at the present time of fourteen Republican judges and seven Democratic judges. That Board of Judges has the respect and confidence of all the people of Philadelphia and probably of the state, and therfore I have taken it upon myself to bring before that body these bills for an opinion from them.

I would like to read at this time a letter that I have directed to the Honorable Francis Shunk Brown, Jr. Secretary of the Board of Judges of Philadelphia.

Dear Judge Brown:

It is my desire to bring to your attention, as Secretary of the Board of Judges, two measures now before the Pennsylvania General Assembly, namely House Bills No. 312 and 313, which are amendments to the laws of 1937, and which in effect would destroy the present safeguards relative to bail approval.

If enacted into law, these bills would take the authority to approve bail from the City Controller and vest it in the Clerk of Quarter Sessions, Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery, who also receives bail. No doubt you vividly recall the straw bail scandals which existed from 1928 to 1937, and which were exposed following a Grand Jury investigation. It is my understanding that the District Attorney and the Board of Judges took a very active part in stamping out this most vicious practice.

Thereafter, in 1937 the General Assembly enacted legislation providing that the City Controller should have the authority to approve all bail. Since that time, the bail "racket" has disappeared from Philadelphia, and a remarkable reform accomplished in this respect.

In my opinion, this matter vitally affects every citizen of Philadelphia. Since the Board of Judges have the confidence of the people of Philadelphia, and are fully aware of the danger of this proposed legislation, they no doubt desire to express their disapproval. As these bills are now on third and second reading calendars, respectively, in the House of Representatives, it is urgent that we have your immediate consideration. Under the circumstances, I should be grateful for a reply by return mail, setting forth the attitude of the Board of Judges, relative to the above.

So that my colleagues may have the benefit of your thoughts in this matter, I shall request the House of Representatives to withhold further action, pending your reply. Will you be good enough to direct your communication to me in Harrisburg.

MOTION TO POSTPONE

Mr. MODELL. Mr. Speaker, I do not believe there is a great need for rush on this bill. I believe in all fairness to everyone concerned these bills can wait the impartial verdict of this Board of Judges. I do not believe I am asking too much of this House when I move that this bill and its companion bill be put upon the postponed calendar until we receive a reply from the Board of Judges, and I so move you, and that they remain upon the postponed calendar.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on second reading?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I am not going to prolong the debate. I only want to ask the gentleman from Philadelphia and his colleagues from Philadelphia to study the bill overnight and come to the House tomorrow prepared to tell us where in the bills transfer is made of the records to the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on second reading?

It was agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, in order that my constituency may not feel embarrassed about my actions on the preceding bill, I would like to read into the record from page 748 of the Pennsylvania Manual, No. 248, Decisions of the House.

"Call for Roll not in Order After Decision is Announced."

"248, A motion having been decidedly agreed to on a viva voce vote, a request was made by a member that the Chair withdraw his decision and permit a roll call. The point of order was made that the Speaker having announced his decision on the vote, a request for a roll call is out of order. The Speaker sustained the point of order." (Legislative Journal, August 9, 1932, p. 868.)

The SPEAKER. The remarks of the gentleman under his question of personal privilege will be noted upon the Journal.

BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection House Bill No. 193, Printer's No. 86, was passed over at the request of Mr. LLOYD H. WOOD.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

BILLS PASSED OVER

There being no objection House Bill No. 281, Printer's No. 31, was passed over at the request of Mr. FULLERTON.

There being no objection House Bill No. 232, Printer's No. 43, was passed over at the request of Mr. IRVIN.

There being no objection House Bill No. 312, Printer's No. 49, was passed over at the request of Mr. IRVIN.

Agreeably to order,

The bill having been called up from the postponed Calendar by Mr. WALTER E. ROSE.

The House resumed the consideration on third reading of House bill No. 132, entitled:

An Act to amend the title and sections one and two of the act approved the twenty-sixth day of May one thousand eight hundred ninety-seven (P. L. 106) entitled "An act prohibiting the discharge from public positions of Union soldiers without a reasonable cause and prohibiting the abolishment of or changing the emoluments of public offices occupied by Union soldiers except for good reason" by extending the provisions to all honorably discharged persons who served or shall hereafter serve in the military or naval service during any war in which the United States was engaged or may hereafter engage and fixing penalties

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Military Affairs, for the purpose of further study and possible amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 14

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 14, Printer's No. 87.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 8, 1943.

Whereas, Hundreds of thousands of Pennsylvania income taxpayers in the lower brackets have expended their increased earnings during the year 1942 for the payment of depression debts, for the purchase of much needed clothing for themselves and their children, for rehabilitation of their homes and for similar purposes; and

Whereas, The present system will impose upon our taxpayers a burden of debt to the Government which they will be unable to discharge; and

Whereas, The present system of taxation is harsh and burdensome and will impose upon the widows and children of departed breadwinners a millstone of indebtedness to the Government; and

Whereas, The present system of income tax payments produce a form of Government imposed serfdom upon our citizens; therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly memorialize the Congress of the United States to adopt, with all possible dispatch, the Ruml pay-as-you-go-plan for the payment of Federal Income Tax; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives shall immediately forward a copy of this resolution to the President of the United States, the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and to each Senator and Member of the House of Representatives of the United States from Pennsylvania.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BRETHERICK. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick, will he admit that there are a great many influential and successful men who were fortunate enough to make a great deal of money in the year 1942, and under the Ruml plan those men would pay little or nothing on their 1942 taxes?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman is entirely in error in arriving at that conclusion. As a matter of fact the Carlson amendments to the Ruml plan will prevent the so-called windfalls, and if a person made a very substantial sum in 1942 and very little in 1943, he must pay his income tax on the larger sum, on any income in excess of twenty thousand dollars. In any event may I say this, that even if there were not an amendment to the Ruml plan, that I would still be in favor of the Ruml plan because it would benefit thousands and thousands of poor individuals in the lower income brackets, even though it might help one in the larger income bracket.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, in reference to these so-called Carlson amendments, I must say that I could not anticipate the answer of the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick, but I would like to further interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick, feel that the majority of the people who are now employed in defense industries would be benefitted by the Ruml plan?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, may I say in reply that the persons who are now employed in defense industries are making substantial wages for the first time in many years. Those persons have used most of their income for the payment of depression debts, for the purchase of much needed clothing for themselves and their wives and children, for refurnishing their homes with new furniture, furniture that was much needed, I would say this would positively help thousands of persons, no doubt, under the Ruml plan, whose taxes could not be collected effectively in any other manner. Otherwise, I say this, that those people would be paying their total taxes in one year, and as a practical matter that will not work out.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to thank the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick.

I rise to oppose this resolution for more reasons than one. I think it is ridiculous for this body, first of all, to memorialize Congress, and cause the state the expense of writing the resolution, at the same time dispatching it to Congress, when we each as members of a certain congressional constituency, can sit down and write a letter to our Congressman and get the same result.

In addition to that, Mr. Speaker, I think conscientiously and sincerely that the Ruml plan helps but a very few individuals and none of those people who were interested in the successful prosecution of the war. Those people who were in defense industries in the year 1942, the chances are that their salaries in the year 1943 will be increased, but this Ruml plan will help many people who have never contributed one little iota in connection with the prosecution of the war.

To illustrate, Mr. Speaker, we will take, for instance building contractors, who today are restricted through priorities because of the fact that the material they must use could be used successfully in prosecution of the war, will be restricted from making any great deal of money during the year 1943, but who in the year 1942, before the restrictions were put into effect, were able to make millions of dollars. That is only one instance, but there are many instances of similar circumstances of people, who as I say have never contributed one iota to the successful prosecution of the war. I urge all the Members to oppose this resolution for the reasons stated.

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, in reply to the gentleman from Philadelphia, may I say that in a recent Gallup Poll ninety-one per cent of the taxpayers of the United States of America expressed themselves in favor of the Ruml pay-as-you-go Plan.

May I say too that in a poll taken in November of last year seventy-five per cent of the taxpayers of this nation have not prepared themselves for the payment of the 1942 income taxes, and seventy-one per cent of those persons have greatly underestimated the amount of taxes which they were going to have to pay.

Mr. Speaker, I ask for a roll call on this resolution.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BRETHERICK. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to know from the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick, what is this so-called Ruml Plan in all its effects upon the taxpayers of Pennsylvania.

Mr. BRETHERICK. In a word, Mr. Speaker, the Ruml plan will permit Pennsylvania taxpayers to pay their taxes as they earn them. In other words, when they come to the end of a tax year, they will not have the burden of a former year's tax hanging over their heads. It is a pay-as-you-go plan pure and simple. I do not think it is very difficult of comprehension.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to know from the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick, what happens to last year's income tax.

Mr. BRETHERICK. Last year's income, in effect is paid in 1943, but we must not lose sight of the fact that tax receivables are not carried as assets on the books of the United States Treasury, only taxes paid are carried as an asset on the books of the United States

Treasury. 1942 taxes will not be paid in 1943. Under this plan the 1943 taxes will be paid in 1943, so that you will get more money in 1943 under this plan that you would get if you would get your 1942 taxes in 1943. It is just as broad as it is long, you get the taxes for 1943 regardless.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to know from the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick, whether or not there will be an anticipated loss of revenue to the Treasury if this so-called Ruml tax plan is put into effect.

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, there will not be an anticipated loss, because as I have explained, tax receivables are not assets until they are actually paid, and they will be paid in 1943.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I desire further to know from the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick, whether there will be some taxes paid for the year of 1942 if this plan does not go into effect.

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, I assume that the gentleman is correct. Part of the taxes would be paid under this plan, or some of the 1942 taxes would be paid, but certainly if this plan goes into effect, those who paid their 1942 tax will be given a credit as against their 1943 tax. It would be absolutely unfair and un-American to tax a few people who have paid their 1942 taxes and forgive those who did not do so.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to further know from the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick, as to what effect this plan would have on the Treasury if adopted by our Congress.

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman tell me in what respect? Financially?

Mr. PETROSKY. Financially, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, I think I have answered that question twice. It will have no effect because, as I say, tax receivables are not carried on the books as assets. They are only carried as assets when they are paid, and when they are paid in 1943 as 1943 taxes they are still assets the same as if they were paid under the 1942 act.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to know whether the loss of revenue from the 1942 taxes would have some effect upon the national defense program and upon our federal administration.

Mr. BRETHERICK. In what respect, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. PETROSKY. Financially, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, there will be more taxes paid under the pay-as-you-go plan, because taxes will be deducted at the source. There will be probably hundreds of thousands of persons paying their taxes under this Ruml plan who would not pay their taxes otherwise. As far as the national defense program is concerned, there is no doubt about the great advantage to be gained by adopting the Ruml pay-as-you-go plan.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to further know from the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick, whether our national defense program could not be furthered much more by the payment of the 1942 income taxes under the so-called adopted tax, not to be monikered as the Ruml tax plan, but some plan of the same caliber, and would that not provide a greater revenue and a lesser burden for future posterity in our tax program?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, I most certainly cannot agree with the gentleman. In the first place that scheme of taxation would be placing a harsh and undue burden on people in the lower income tax brackets who have not been able to pay their 1942 taxes, and who certainly would not be able to pay their 1942 taxes and their 1943 taxes as well.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I desire further to know from the gentleman from Delaware Mr. Bretherick, what effect this plan would have toward inflation of currency in our country.

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, it will probably have the very desirable effect of preventing inflation.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I arise to oppose this resolution, not merely because I am interested in who is going to pay the greater share of this tax or who is going to be more greatly benefited by the adoption of the Ruml pay-as-you-go plan, but I arise to state that the loss in the financial revenue by curtailing the payment of the 1942 tax is certainly passing the buck on to posterity to share the load which should be borne today. It is my firm belief that today is the day to pay taxes, for today we have a greater national income than at any time in the past and at any time probably in the future.

I will cite an example to you of a condition which has arisen not only in my own community back home, but in many communities throughout the State, and that is the fact that at one time when the assessed valuations on property in political subdivision were very high, certain authorities in the political subdivision had chosen to plan or program of financial responsibility. Those certain authorities levied a very small tax upon the assessed valuation at the time, or a very low millage. In doing that they were protecting the person who undoubtedly would be benefited by it, the same calibre of person who would undoubtedly be benefited by this so-called Ruml pay-as-you-go plan. In so doing they subjected the future taxpayers of those political subdivisions to a great financial burden. I speak of the small home owner and the farmer and the layman who is endeavoring to strike a bargain at practically any cost today. This tax plan will have the same effect in passing the so-called buck, that we have been getting during this entire session, on to posterity, who positively will not be in the position that we are in today to pay it. Therefore I would urge all the members of this House to vote against the resolution.

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, I second the request for a roll call.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the pleasure of asking the gentleman from Delaware two questions Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, I assure you that the pleasure is mutual, but the gentleman asked me if I would answer one question and he immediately doubled it.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to inquire of the gentleman from Delaware whether he is aware of the fact that the Ways and Means Committee of Congress has tonight reported the Ruml plan out unfavorably by a vote of fifteen to nine?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, I was unaware of it, but there is some hope that they might reconsider it. The Ways and Means Committee, even of Congress does those things.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to further ask the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick, if he would not break down and really confess that his resolution memorializing Congress to adopt with all possible dispatch the Ruml pay-as-you-go plan is in reality a gesture to relieve the poor over-burdened Delaware Countians from the Philadelphia wage tax.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I wanted to ask the gentleman from Delaware the same question that was asked by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, because I am interested in this resolution, and I am sorry the resolution did not appear on our calendar earlier. I feel that now it would be a rather vain gesture to vote for this resolution, and I should like to ask the gentleman a further question bearing out the information that he received.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BRETHERICK. I shall Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I know that the gentleman from Delaware will admit that the income taxes for the year 1942 will be payable March 15, this coming Monday; that is correct is it not?

Mr. BRETHERICK. That is right, not in toto. They may be paid on the installment plan; in four quarterly payments.

Mr. BROWN. And millions of taxpayers of this nation have already sent in their installments or the full tax for the year 1942?

Mr. BRETHERICK. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BROWN. And that before March 15 it will be impossible for the Congress of the United States to pass this measure if it were reported out of committee tomorrow?

Mr. BRETHERICK. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BROWN. Then I want to ask why should we vote on this resolution at all. I say that not because I am opposed to the resolution, but I think it actually comes now too late and that our vote on it will be merely a gesture.

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, because under the Ruml plan any tax returns which have been filed prior to March 15 will be regarded as token returns, and if under the Ruml plan taxes are less in 1943 than taxes paid under the 1942 plan, there will be a refund. If taxes paid under the 1942 plan are less than the amount due under the 1943 plan, they will have to pay that additional tax.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, so even if Congress wanted to pass the Ruml plan, and the passage of it was beyond the March 15 point, those tax payers who have already paid, will be credited on the 1943 taxes or the surplus will be returned at the end of 1943.

Mr. BRETHERICK. That is correct. May I say this in answer to the statement made by the gentleman from Allegheny, that this particular plan was before the Ways and Means Committee on another occasion and they reported it out unfavorably, but it went back to Committee for further study thereafter in view of the nation-wide demand. Ninety-one per cent of all the tax payers have expressed themselves in favor of the Ruml pay-as-you-go plan, so there may be enough clamor to force it back into committee and finally let the people of the United States have what they want, rather than what the Treasury Department of the United States wants to give them.

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Ad infinitum, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman familiar with the plan advanced by Randolph Paul, who is the Undersecretary of the Treasury, which is a proposed compromise pay-as-you-go plan?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, I have heard of it but I haven't studied it. In view of the fact that ninety-one per cent of the American people want the Ruml pay-as-you-go plan, I wasn't very much interested in what their plan was.

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman familiar with the fact that the House Ways and Means Committee have reported that particular plan out unfavorably?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, Mr. Levy has just advised me to that effect. Does the gentleman mean the Paul plan?

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. The Paul plan, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, there is a chance, I would say, that the clamor raised by the American people may be sufficiently strong to again put the plan back into Committee and give the American people what they want.

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. Mr. Speaker, isn't it true that the proposed compromise pay-as-you-go plan has the effect that the gentleman just stated the Ruml plan would have, in reply to an interrogation of the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Brown?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman kindly repeat his question?

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. Mr. Speaker, there is a provision that as taxes are paid, there will be a credit given to all those who have already paid taxes on the 1942 income.

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, if that is the Paul plan then they have successfully stolen a portion of the Ruml plan.

Mr. CULLEN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, I think I can stand another question, even though I have a sore throat.

Mr. CULLEN. Mr. Speaker, does the Ruml plan in itself effect the payroll?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, the Ruml plan, in itself is not designed to affect the payroll?

Mr. CULLEN. Mr. Speaker, what is the effect of the Ruml plan in relation to professional men? It is my understanding that on the pay-as-you-go plan, if you have a salary by the week or month, what provision does the Ruml plan make in relation to ministers, farmers and doctors?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, ministers, farmers, doctors and lawyers will pay on the same basis except I assume that they will be thrifty enough to save their money as they go along. There is no way by which under the Ruml plan there can be a withholding at the source because the fees paid to lawyers and money paid to doctors or to farmers for farm products are not susceptible to withholding at the source.

Mr. CULLEN. Mr. Speaker, I understand from the gentleman's reply that a lawyer, or rather a professional man, will make a report at the end of the year?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Quarterly, Mr. Speaker, they make the report quarterly, every quarter.

Mr. CULLEN. Mr. Speaker in relation to firms who declare their profits semi-annually and annually?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Firms are not covered by this. By firms the gentleman I presume means corporations?

Mr. CULLEN. No, Mr. Speaker, not necessarily corporations. A firm that declares its profit semi-annually or annually. They do not necessarily have to be corporations. Are they exempt from the Ruml plan?

Mr. BRETHERICK. The gentleman evidently means that partnerships which are closed corporations are not covered by the Ruml plan. They pay ordinary income taxes in any event.

Mr. CULLEN. Mr. Speaker, would a partnership be under the Ruml plan?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, a partnership would pay an income tax on the same basis as any other man.

Mr. CULLEN. Mr. Speaker, suppose a partnership, Mr. Speaker, does not declare dividends except annually, at the end of 1943, would they come under the Ruml plan? What provision does the Ruml plan make for them?

Mr. BRETHERICK. They certainly would come under the Ruml plan, Mr. Speaker. They would pay their taxes in the last quarter. It does not apply to corporations because they are covered by an entirely different income law.

Mr. CULLEN. Then I understand that corporations are not covered at all, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Every person is covered by this tax, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CULLEN. I am talking about corporations—suppose it is a corporation?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, a corporation is covered by a separate corporation income tax which is much more of a burden than the income tax upon individuals, I assure you.

Mr. CULLEN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Delaware.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I hesitate to speak on this resolution except for the fact that I understand the gentleman has asked for a roll call and the request for a roll call has been seconded.

I might say this, if the Gallup Poll shows that only ninety-one percent of the people favor the Ruml plan, then I think there is something wrong. It seems to me if someone came down the road and told me that I would not have to pay something I owed, they would certainly get one hundred percent response. The point is that the Ruml plan is going to help a lot of the "fat cats", keep a lot of the defense plants that made millions and millions of dollars in 1942, but are making less money this year because renegotiation of contracts has cut into their profits considerably. I think the people of America are quite ready to pay their share of this burden. If the people of America were attempted to be sold a gold brick on a statement made by Mr. Ruml and which would not be completely explained in any newspaper, we would find that the greater number of the American public would be perfectly willing to forego the blessings of the Ruml plan, and be willing to pay for the war as we go along. I think we are underestimating the feeling or determination of the American people. If the facts were properly put before them they would pay even more. Moreover we know that they will have to pay more because we know that in Canada and Great Britain taxes are almost double what we are paying in America even under these higher rates. I think the Ruml plan is about to lapse. There may be some features which might be put into a pay-as-you-go plan, but I understand that the Ruml plan was defeated by the House Ways and Means Committee in Washington. I think it is somewhat of a gesture, I think it is somewhat late and futile that we should debate the Ruml plan or memorialize Congress on the subject. The pure Ruml plan seems to be done and this is a mere gesture to memorialize Congress to adopt it now.

Mr. LEONARD. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Delaware stated in his remarks that ninety-one per cent of the people, and I presume he meant the taxpayers, were in favor of the Ruml plan. I don't know where he gets the ninety-one per cent, nor am I questioning his statement, but I do know that the attorneys representing the American labor movement made a thorough study of this bill, and they reported it a rich man's bill. The labor movement of America is against the Ruml plan. I can't understand where he gets the ninety-one per cent of the taxpayers of this country being in favor of that bill.

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, may I say that the bill might have been construed as a rich man's bill prior to the Carlson amendments which provide—and I think this is in answer to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen, with regard to the "fat cats"—the Carlson amendments provides where the net income is over twenty thousand dollars, the larger income shall be taxed either in 1942 or 1943. In other words, if the income is larger in 1942 than in 1943 the 1942 income will be taxed, and that takes care of the so-called "fat cats."

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, in order that there may be an end to this interminable interrogation I decline by reason of a sore throat to answer any more questions covering the matter. I think I have run the gamut from A to Z and have answered all possible questions.

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, the only question I wanted to ask the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bretherick, was whether or not he had introduced this resolution memorializing Congress prior to the Carlson amendment ot the Ruml Plan, but inasmuch as he excused himself on account of the fact that he has a sore throat, I will desist in my interrogation.

On the question recurring,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

Ordered, That the Clerk present same to the Senate for concurrence.

RESOLUTION

Mr. GATES offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent that it be read for the information of the House.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 8, 1943.

Whereas, The observance of the Sabbath Day is a national heritage of great price; and

Whereas, The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has always been in the forefront among the States comprising this Nation in its recognition of this sacred Day; and

Whereas, In wartime, the distress of the people of the world and of this Country as an active participant has punctuated and emphasized the value of this Holy Day; and

Whereas, The Churches of our land, by virtue of their observance of the Sabbath Day in Pennsylvania and throughout our Country, are making a vital contribution to the high morale necessary to its advancement; and

Whereas, The Sabbath Day is being observed by the members of our armed forces in every part of the world; and

Whereas, The House of Representatives and the Senate desire to demonstrate their deep interest in the continued observance of this sacred Day; therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the Legislature hereby acknowleges the contribution to our Country's development and spiritual well-being through consecrated observance of the Sabbath Day; and

Resolved, That His Excellency, the Governor of Pennsylvania, shall issue, publish and deplore an appropriate proclamation to the people of Pennsylvania emphasizing the importance and value of Sabbath Day Observance.

The SPEAKER. The resolution will be filed with the Clerk under the Rules.

Mr. TATE asked and obtained unanimous consent to permit the addition of all of the Philadelphia Democratic Members as sponsors to a resolution of congratulations.

The SPEAKER. The resolution will be filed with the Clerk under the Rules.

COMMITTEE MEETINGS

There will be meetings of the Committees on:

Agriculture, Tuesday, March 9, at 10 a. m., in the Old House Caucus Room.

Boroughs, Tuesday, March 9, at 10 a. m., Room 522.

Cities—Second Class, Tuseday, March 9, at 11:30 a. m., Room 521.

Judiciary General, Tuesday, March 9, at 11 a. m., Room 325.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Legislative Journal.

Session 1943. 135th of the General Assembly.

Vol. 27. HARRISBURG, PA., TUESDAY, MARCH 9, 1943. No. 24.

SENATE

TUESDAY, March 9, 1943

The Senate met at 3:00 o'clock p. m., Eastern War Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor John C. Bell, Jr.) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. EDWIN S. WALLACE, D.D., offered the following prayer:

In the Book it is written that "They who seek the Lord will find Him," and it is also written that they who ask God for wisdom will not be denied. May we, O God, seek Thee with whole hearts, for our need is great for wisdom superior to the merely human. Now we pray Thee for that wisdom that cometh from above. Granted that prayer, the men who frame the laws of our Commonwealth will be divinely directed, and the interests of all our people will be guarded and enhanced. So may it be!

May our praying here in the Senate be not of the perfunctory or merely professional kind, but that of men who truly believe in all-wise, all-powerful and all-loving God who is also our Father. With such belief thy servants here will do Thy will and further the coming of Thy kingdom on earth, and build the structure for a permanent peace and good will among men.

Again we pray for all men and women now staking their lives for a better world. Grant them success, O God.

Again we pray for our President, our Governor and our Lieutenant-Governor. May their lives be spared, their faith firmly fixed, their zeal for righteousness sustained by the conviction that they are doing Thy work in Thy way.

In the name of Christ, our Lord. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. HEYBURN and Mr. FARRELL, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Mr. Wade asked and obtained leave of absence for Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced presented communication in writing from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, which was read as follows:

MADAME CHIANG KAI-SHEK REGRETS INABILITY TO APPEAR IN PENNSYLVANIA

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, March 8, 1943.

Dear Jack:

The cordial invitation of the Legislature of Pennsylvania for Madame Chiang Kai-Shek to appear in Pennsylvania was duly transmitted.

I have received from Madame Chiang her expressions of keen regret that she is unable to comply with our request. Her declination was upon orders from her physician.

I had the honor of attending the great gathering in Madison Square Garden the other night, which was a testimonial to her great and splendid work for the United Nations. In addition to transmitting your cordial invitation, I had the opportunity of telling her in person how much our Legislature would like to honor her. The gracious manner in which she declined, I know, would have been inspiring to the Members of the Legislature of Pennsylvania.

Very sincerely,

Edward Martin (signed),
EDWARD MARTIN.

Honorable John C. Bell,
President, Senate of Pennsylvania,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

HOUSE MESSAGES

HOUSE BILLS FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced presented for concurrence bills of the House, as follows:

House Bill No. 71, entitled:

An Act to amend section three of the act approved the fourteenth day of June, one thousand nine hundred twenty-three (P. L. 754), entitled "An act providing for the survey, construction, reconstruction, improvement, and maintenance of an Industrial State Highway between the cities of Chester and Philadelphia, and making the same a part of the system of State Highways; providing for the taking of certain roads and of certain private property therefor under the power of eminent domain, and the payment of damages by certain counties; and imposing certain powers and duties upon the Highway Commissioner and county commissioners," providing for ascertaining damages for the taking of private property and payment thereof in the same manner as provided by law in the case of State Highways.

Which was committed to the Committee on Highways.

House Bill No. 115, entitled:

An Act to further amend the act, approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 905), entitled "Vehicle Code," by permitting the use of red signal lights and sound devices on certain additional vehicles; changing the provisions concerning rights of way and providing penalties.

Which was committed to the Committee on Highways.

House Bill No. 134, entitled:

An Act to further amend section eleven of the act, approved the thirteenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-five (P. L. 644), entitled "An act relating to and regulating the solicitation of moneys and property for charitable, religious, benevolent, humane, and patriotic purposes," by providing that said act shall apply to certain war veterans' organizations, or the subordinate units thereof.

Which was committed to the Committee on Welfare, Public Assistance and Pensions.

House Bill No. 144, entitled:

An Act to add section three and one-tenth to the act, approved the fifth day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven (P. L. 817), entitled "An act authorizing and regulating the growth, sale, and distribution of forest tree seedlings and transplants by the Department of Forests and Waters regulating the use of such forest tree seedlings and transplants; and imposing duties upon the Department of Agriculture with regard to the enforcement of this act," by providing for thinning operations or plantation improvement cutting operations in lands planted with trees purchased under said act; and permitting free use or sale of the trees cut or removed in such operations.

Which was committed to the Committee on Forests and Waters, Game and Fish.

House Bill No. 279, entitled:

An Act to amend sections one, two and twenty-six of the act, approved the fifth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and forty-one (P. L. 84), entitled "An act providing for and regulating the appointment, promotion and reduction in rank, suspension and removal of paid members of the police force in boroughs, incorporated towns and townships of the first class maintaining a police force of not less than three members; creating a civil service commission in each borough, incorporated town and township of the first class; defining the duties of such civil service commission, imposing certain duties and expense on boroughs, incorporated towns and townships of the first class; imposing penalties, and repealing inconsistent laws," by making said act applicable permanently to all boroughs, incorporated towns and townships of the first class which maintain a police force; and saving certain provisions of law from repeal.

Which was committed to the Committee on Municipal Government.

House Bill No. 286, entitled:

An Act to further amend sections twenty, fifty, seventy-two and two hundred sixty-five of the act, approved the second day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-five (P. L. 448), entitled "Fish Law of 1925," by further regulating the taking of fish from inland waters and the possession thereof.

Which was committed to the Committee on Forests and Waters, Game and Fish.

House Bill No. 314, entitled:

An Act validating county treasurers' sales of real property for delinquent taxes when the reports and returns of such sales were made to the court of common pleas and confirmed finally but no record of such return appears in the office of the prothonotary.

Which was committed to the Committee on Judiciary General.

An Act to amend section seven hundred eleven of the act approved the first day of May, one thousand, nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 905), entitled "Vehicle Code," reducing the fee for registrations issued in the "Dealer's Class."

Which was committed to the Committee on Highways.

House Bill No. 373, entitled:

An Act to further amend the act, approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 905), entitled "Vehicle Code," changing the definition of "dealer," providing for the issuance and use of temporary registration cards and temporary registration plates or markers, and prescribing penalties.

Which was committed to the Committee on Highways.

He also presented an extract from the Journal of the House of Representatives which was twice read as follows and referred to the Committee on Federal Relations.

CONGRESS MEMORIALIZED TO ADOPT THE RUML PAY-AS-YOU-GO-PLAN

In the House of Representatives, February 8, 1943.

Whereas, Hundreds of thousands of Pennsylvania income taxpayers in the lower brackets have expended their increased earnings during the year 1942 for the payment of depression debts, for the purchase of much needed clothing for themselves and their children, for rehabilitation of their homes and for similar purposes; and

Whereas, The present system will impose upon our taxpayers a burden of debt to the Government which they will be unable to discharge; and

Whereas, The present system of taxation is harsh and burdensome and will impose upon the widows and children of departed breadwinners a millstone of indebtedness to the Government; and

Whereas, The present system of income tax payments produce a form of Government imposed serfdom upon our citizens; therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly memorialize the Congress of the United States to adopt, with all possible dispatch, the Ruml pay-as-you-go-plan for the payment of Federal Income Tax; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives shall immediately forward a copy of this resolution to the President of the United States, the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and to each Senator and Member of the House of Representatives of the United States from Pennsylvania.

He also informed the Senate that the House has concurred in resolution from the Senate as follows:

TIME OF NEXT MEETING

In the Senate, March 8, 1943.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That when the Senate adjourns this week, it reconvene on Monday evening, March 15, 1943, at four o'clock, and when the House of Representatives adjourns this week, it reconvene on Monday evening, March 15, 1943, at nine o'clock.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. SHAPIRO asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to make a few remarks—I imagine they can be called a remonstrance—against the facts and figures in the budget. I am going to try to be as slow with these figures as I can; I do not think I will burden you with very many of them.

I think, Mr. President, you and the members of the Senate may be interested in what I have to say in connection with the budget, because I am quite sure it will open an avenue for you of thinking along lines which may enable the Republican Party to carry out its promises and its campaign platform pledges.

I should like preliminarily to state, however, for the benefit of myself more than anybody else that I have been accustomed to making statements on the floor concerning figures and have been accustomed to finding the figures ignored, the statements ignored and criticized, and sometimes I have been charged with being partisan.

I recall last week that after three of us had spoken about the budget, the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Cox and, I think, Mr. Holland and myself, and I had pointed out that there was a surplus of $40,000,000 in the Highway Fund and made a suggestion in connection with it, and my colleague, the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Cox, pointed out that the Governor had promised in his platform to give the teachers an increase in salary, that he realized it would cost $36,000,000, but he thought we ought to talk about it; the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Heyburn, arose and thanked the gentleman from Allegheny for his fair speech, and I assume that that meant that the rest of us had not made fair and impartial speeches.

I want to recall to the members of the Senate, for the benefit of many, that the point that I am about to try to make, is that I am accustomed to that. For instance, I would like to call to your attention, and it is important and necessary that I should read this to you in order that you may understand what I am about to say, that in 1941, in June, there was considerable discussion about the budget, as you will remember. There was argument on both sides of the Senate; one side said that we were too extravagant; the other side claimed that you were too penurious.

The Governor in his address to the Senate and House in Joint Session on June 11, 1941, said:

"With a few exceptions, Pennsylvania's departments of government have not one cent of money legally available to conduct any of the normal state activities. This is true of all of the various General Fund departments of State Government.

"This situation is due to the deliberate action of a group of Democrats in the House of Representatives who bottled up the budget program when it was presented last February 3rd."

He again said: "We are now at the deadline at which immediate action is necessary if the Commonwealth is to keep the pledge made by both Republican and Democratic members of the Legislature, when we borrowed from certain funds to maintain relief—the pledge that the money would be returned during the current month."

"The amount of money being held up as a sop to the pride of the Democrats, who have tried to second guess the Department of Revenue on estimates for the current biennium, reaches the staggering total of $85,445,700."

In the same speech, the Governor said, "The so-called Democratic budget is a humbug and a fraud, and those who drafted it are well aware of the fact. It does not balance with itself."

"It calls for expenditure of many millions of dollars more than revenues which are in sight.

"A red ink budget, such as the Democratic leadership is urging, would leave the State so far in debt at the end of the current biennium that any major tax reduction program would be impossible."

"Our efforts to be impartial have been taken advantage of, not by Democrats in general so much as by small groups of officials and so-called leaders who came back into power as deadhead passengers on the Roosevelt express."

"I wish to serve notice on those whom I believe to be putting partisan greed and political chicancery ahead of their sworn duty to State and Nation that, in the cause of sound finances for the men and women of this Commonwealth, there will be no surrender."

Now, Mr. President, I am not surprised therefore at what has happened here since then and before then. I would like to ask the question: Who were the so-called small group of leaders who came back as deadhead passengers on the Roosevelt express, those second guessers and what was the fake budget?

I have to plead guilty, with Mr. Achterman, to having been one of those fake budgeteers, and one of those gentlemen who is accused of having put partisanship before statesmanship.

I hope that you will indulge me for a few moments, while I show by actual admitted Republican figures whose budget was a fake.

I have before me a copy of the budget that was said to be a fake. I am going to give you some totals and then deal with a few highlights with which you will all be familiar.

The Governor under the heading which is known as taxes, entitled "Bonus, Taxes, Penalties and Interest," that is, Governor James, estimated that the income would be $78,002,350. These fake budget makers estimated $81,786,350.

I ask you to look at page 35 of the budget message delivered by this Governor to us last week. Under the same heading you will see—having in mind that we estimated over $3,800,000 in excess of the budget of Governor James, and we were called fakers and second guessers—the figures, according to the report from the Republican prepared budget, shows that the income for 1941-1943 from those taxes will be not $81,786,000, as we guessed, but $88,393,725.

Under the heading "Tax on Income, Receipts, Premiums and Commodities Produced, which takes in gross receipts and insurance premiums on casualty and marine insurance, the totals were as follows: Governor's Estimate, $36,330,350; the second guessers said $38,968,500. The present budget estimate the income to be $41,900,000, or close to $3,000,000 more than what was estimated by the second guessers.

Special emergency taxes were estimated by the Governor to have resulted in revenues amounting to $184,575,500—$184,000,000 in round figures. The second guessers said it would be $192,000,000. I was opposed to that, as I insisted that it would be very much more. The present estimate, according to the figures of the Governor, contained in his budget at page 36, is that there will be received from these taxes not $184,000,000 and not $192,000,000 but $200,063,101, and I suggest to you that that figure should be and will be closer to $217,000,000 than to $200,000,000 referred to in his budget, as I think I will be able to demonstrate.

The estimate of liquor stores profits, according to the budget of Governor James, was $36,000,000. The second guessers said $40,000,000. There has already been collected, up until November, 1942, $32,000,000, with November, December, January, February, March, April and May to be accounted for, and I suggest that this figure will reach more than the $40,000,000 estimated.

Now, Mr. President, and members of the Senate, I suggest that if you look at the budgets for 1937-1939, 1939-1941 and 1941-1943, as I have looked at them, you will find that the 1939-1941 budget shows that Governor James under-estimated his income by many millions of dollars. The 1943 budget that has just been submitted to us shows that Governor James under-estimated his own budget by over $30,000,000, at least—underestimated it.

I should like to call your attention to something else that happened on this floor—I plead guilty to another charge. If you will look at page 1727 of the Journal, Volume 2, you will find that I said then: "I think from what I have found out—and that was April 28, 1941—the increase from the corporate net income in Pennsylvania from taxes, the six per cent tax, will yield at least $25,000,000 more that the Governor has estimated and under these circumstances I think it is fair and right that the people should know those facts and that the tax bills should either be decreased or the necessary governmental functions should be provided for."

I should also like to call your attention to the fact that when I made that statement I was severely criticized and ridiculed by some members of the Senate. I was also told by another member of the Senate, for whom I have a very high regard, that I was dreaming, because, said the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Edmonds:

"Now, Mr. President, the tax base for state taxes depends absolutely upon what the Federal tax may be upon those corporations and that by the way, is not paid to Pennsylvania. We all know that the Federal Government is getting ready to revise its corporate taxes. The Treasury Department has called for a tax yield of $3,600,000,000. Under those circumstances, I feel very strongly that when the Governor estimated $5,000,000 per year as the increase in revenue, the Governor went the limit of what common sense would indicate is feasible for this Commonwealth."

Mr. President, that was in answer to my statement that there would be a $25,000,000 increase in net corporate income tax returns to Pennsylvania.

My figures were not taken out of the air. I traveled to Washington and I received and prepared and tabulated the complete returns then made in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for all corporations paying Federal taxes to the Federal Government and, based on those returns, I estimated a six per cent income, which they would pay to the state after having paid the high tax to the government, and I said that income to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania on net corporate income tax would not be $61,000,000, as suggested by Governor James, and not $66,000,000 as suggested by Mr. Atcherman and the men who were working with him, but $86,000,000, and I was ridiculed on that.

I now call your attention to facts in connection with the matter as disclosed in this budget presented by Governor Martin.

According to the Governor's report, taxes from net corporate income taxes this year will yield $84,194,068. I say even that is low, because up until the present time, not counting income taxes which will become due in March and April, to this date there has already been collected $52,000,000 for the previous year on this biennium, and, on the basis even of the new taxes, the lowest fair estimate, in my opinion, is from $38,000,000 to $40,000,000 more coming into the treasury of this Commonwealth.

And so, Mr. President, I suggest to you gentlemen who listened with pleasure and read with a great deal of enjoyment the remarks of the Governor about these so-called fake budgeteers, you will find, as practical actual experience has shown, that we were the conservatives, because the income has far exceeded the fifures that were given.

May I then make this suggestion to you, that I think I am entitled to ask you then to examine with me the figures in the present budget, so that I may call your attention to a few very important highlights.

I suggest to you that the Governor will receive more than $23,000,000 in excess of the amount of money which he says will be received by this State up to May 31, 1943.

I suggest to you that he has underestimated his income from the gasoline tax by at least $5,000,000; from the corporate net income tax by a conservative figure of $8,000,000; he has underestimated his receipts from the liquor tax by $3,500,000; he has underestimated his receipts from license fees by $1,000,000 and from miscellaneous fees by $1,000,000.

As evidence of what I am talking about, Mr. President, the estimate on miscellaneous tax is $2,900,000, and up until January 1, the total already collected is $2,866,000. I suggest that the liquor store profits will reach $40,- 000,000—net $36,000,000 as estimated—and there is a $4,000,000 increase there. My basis for that is that up until November of 1942, the total liquor store' profits already earned is $32,000,000.

While I am on that subject I would like somebody to suggest to the Liquor Control Board that I have been told that they do not do business in a real regular ordinary business way; with the millions of dollars that they get, they do not discount their bills—they get cash enough to do it—and I am told that they have lost a million dollars and over this year by their failure to discount their bills.

These figures that I have given to you now indicate an increase of $23,000,000, at least, in the amount of funds that will be available at the end of this expiring biennium, so that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will have a surplus of $35,000,000.

There is $11,900,000 that appears on Page 3 of this budget as a surplus which will be available, says the Governor, as at the end of this biennium, and there will be $23,000,000 more left to him as unused funds, due to the increase in estimates which have not been and will not be, of course, appropriated, because they are not considered as revenue.

I suggest to the Governor of the Commonwealth and to my Republican colleagues, with no spirit of bitterness and with no desire to make anything but a point, that this is an opportunity for you to make good on your promises to the teachers. We have been told that would cost $36,000,000. Here is the $36,000,000. Teachers should please take note.

Mr. President, let me suggest some other facts to you in connection with this budget, which I also think will be helpful to you.

Take the estimate of the Governor for the 1943-1945 biennium, and I suggest that there will be additional income and revenue there, for the following reasons:

I have before me a statement showing the income from every source of revenue of this Commonwealth, up to and including January 1, which I shall be glad to let any member of the Senate see, and in fact I shall ask leave to offer this for the record, and I have also broken it down to the amount received during the month of January.

I call attention to a few highlights. One of them is the gasoline tax. The estimate for this 1943-1945 biennium is $17,000,000. The figures show that up until the present time the cigarette tax has already brought in $23,160,000, and that the gasoline tax has brought in $24,961,000, and it is being collected at the rate of $1,109,000 per month. That means that, in January, with gas rationing on and with the controlled use of automobiles, we received $1,100,000, and if you multiply that by four for the next four months, you get $4,400,000 to add to the already presently received amount of $24,900,000. So, taking it in round figures you have got $25,000,000 plus $4,400,000 or, $29,400,000 which will be received by the State government from the gasoline tax at the low basis of now.

Therefore, at $1,100,000 a month, for twenty-four months, that is close to $26,000,000. The estimate for 1943-1945 in this budget is $17,000,000. I say it will be closer to $25,000,000 than it will be to $17,000,000, and that is $8,000,000 more for those who are looking for the opportunity to carry out promises and carry into effect governmental functions.

Concerning the corporate net income tax—and now we are again on the proposition that I shall hear the argument made as it was then, that you can not count on any increase in the corporate net income, because the Federal Government has again increased its taxes, and I say that is how I figured then and found it to be true, and that is how I figure now, that the fact that the Federal Government increases its taxes has not yet in the last four years shown any decrease in the general income tax payments by any corporation in Pennsylvania, nor has it shown any decrease in their profits.

I suggest to you, Mr. President, that the estimated figure here of $63,000,000 for net corporate income taxes for 1943-1945 is just about $20,000,000 too low and I shall stand on this record in 1944, as I stood upon my statements in 1941 and 1942, when I said that the income from Federal net corporate income taxes would be $86,000,000, and when the figures are through and this current biennium is over, I am sure you will find that it will probably be more.

With this $20,000,000 and the $7,000,000 or $8,000,000 that I told you about before, and with the liquor tax income of $18,000,000 estimated—I say that the liquor tax estimate of $18,000,000 will far exceed that, because we have already collected $17,840,000 up until January of this biennium, and we are collecting on the basis of $1,482,000 per month.

I suggest to the members of the Senate, therefore, as a conclusion on these figures, first, that the Governor has underestimated the income. I say that not unkindly. I say it as a fact. I say it based on the figures that are now available, that he has underestimated his income by $23,000,000, that is, for the biennium over which he had no control until now.

Secondly, I say that the Governor has underestimated his income figures for 1943-1945 by at least a minimum of $30,000,000. That is $53,000,000. I say that the Governor estimates that there will be an unexpended balance of $11,900,000 at the end of 1943-1945. That is $53,000,000 and $12,000,000—$65,000,000.

I say very seriously that I may not receive the compliments of the Floor Leader on the other side as making a fair and impartial speech—and I like him very much—but I want to say to him very frankly that does not concern me.

What does concern me, Mr. President, is this: We listened to a candidate for office who said that if he was elected he was going to cut taxes—Nobody can deny he said that and nobody can deny he did not cut them. He did a very ungracious thing, in my opinion; he left office and suggested that while he did not cut taxes at all, he told the next Governor how much he ought to cut them, and I think that was very ungracious and very unusual.

Now we have a Governor who, honestly and sincerely I say, made a promise, and so did the Republican Party, that they would give the teachers more money.

May I suggest this to you: I think teachers are entitled to more money—and I am not urging this because I think it would embarrass the Governor; I am willing to take him on the statement that he has made, that he is willing to be shown. I think he ought to take the figures I have suggested and at least, whether I might be right or wrong, I have the right to say I was up until now and I did guess right—at least give me credit for that and look into these figures—and if he finds I am right, I want to give the Governor credit that he will proceed to carry out the promise if it can be done.

More seriously, and very seriously, I am concerned with two factors; first, certainly in a land of democracy, when everyone has children, brothers and relatives, all working and fighting for democracy, we must stop looking with humor, with nonchalance, upon a condition where men who aspire to public office make promises, and then come in and laughingly ignore them. That is one of the things we are fighting to destroy, and we can not ignore that.

Secondly, how can we state we are getting more pressure from within ourselves than we are getting from without on the teachers' situation?

I had at first approached it in an antagonistic mood, because I said to myself, $36,000,000, why should we give that much money, but I sit here every day seeing bill after bill come in providing increases in pay for people in Philadelphia removing limitations from some assistant assessors whose salaries are fixed by law, so that they can get more money, to give everybody money, but not the teachers, and then I say to myself, as I recall it, that we ourselves sat here in the Legislature, all of us, Republicans and Democrats alike, and voted to decrease the statutory salaries of teachers in 1933—I think many of you here will remember it—by ten per cent. They took the decrease and they were the last ones to get it back, if you will recall, and we made them a promise—I think our platform also contained the same promise—and they made the safrifices to attain the standing that the teachers will get the same consideration as anybody else.

What are they asking for? $300 per teacher, so that a teacher who gets $1,000 or $1,100 will get $1,400. Think of it. There are people in your own homes who get more than that, with board and lodging, and they have not made the sacrifices to attain the standing that the teachers have attained.

I suggest finally, and I shall leave the argument of the teachers to somebody else here who knows more about the school system and conditions in the other counties, because I only know and am in contact with the Philadelphia situation, but this I do know, that if am right in my figures, there is available over $60,000,000; that amount certainly will be available before the end of this biennium, and there will be proof of it, if you do not agree but there is now available $34,000,000 or $35,000,000, and certainly the teachers could be adequately taken care of out of that, and there will be available additional money.

I make this suggestion, that either the Governor has the duty or obligation, under the law, to do one of three things. One of them is to reduce taxes, the second is to give the teachers an increase; and the third is to put it back into the reserve fund, the sinking fund.

Let me touch on that subject. There is $12,000,000 surplus—that means, the Governor says, if we collect all these taxes we will have $12,000,000. Look at the motor license fund. The Governor says that at the end of the 1943 biennium there will be $36,000,000 surplus in that fund.

What has the Constitution to say about that? Let me read to you Article 9, Section 11, Sinking Fund:

"Section 11. To provide for the payment of the present State debt, and any additional debt contracted as aforesaid, the General Assembly shall continue and maintain the Sinking Fund, sufficient to pay the accruing interest on such debt and annually to reduce the principal thereof by a sum not less than two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; the said Sinking Fund shall consist of the proceeds of the sale of the public works or any part thereof, and of the income or proceeds of the sale of any stocks owned by the Commonwealth, together with other funds and resources that may be designated by law, and shall be increased from time to time by assigning to it any part of the taxes or other revenues of the State not required for the ordinary and current expenses of government;" let me repeat that "by assigning to it any part of the taxes or other revenues of the State not required for the ordinary and current expenses of government." That is Article 9, Section 11.

Now let me read to you from the Governor's budget on the surplus, on page 13, in Roman numerals:

"Total funds available for the biennium of 1943-1945—$525,132,840."

"Less: Funds available estimated to be unobligated by May 31, 1945, $11,907,848.83."

Those funds will arise from taxation and will create a surplus. They are now unappropriated in this budget and they must either be appropriated, or, under the section of the Constitution which I have read, they must be turned over, under the Consitution, to the Sinking Fund.

If you will look at the Motor License Fund you will find that the Governor said that the estimated unobligated cash balance—I am reading from page 44—June 1, 1943, would be $36,624,000."

I suggest that, under that constitutional provision, it is the legal duty, it is mandatory, that that money shall be paid in by that Motor License Fund and the unallocated or unobligated balance in cash must be paid into the reserve. I suggest that as the opinion of a lawyer—you could get a dozen lawyers to disagree with me.

I suggest also that could go on ad infinitum—that is right—all those special funds in my opinion which have not been allocated or appropriated, most of them already belong, under that constitutional provision, in the reserve.

There is a reason for that, and the logic of my conclusion is this, that the whole purpose of taxation is to provide funds, and only such funds as are necessary to maintain the government—that is all—no government has the right to have a surplus unless by constitutional provision it is permitted to create a surplus under future planning. That usually is allowed to localities sometimes, but seldom to state governments. Every government goes on the basis that it is not operating for profit—the government is you, myself, all of us, and the government collects from all of us only that which is necessary to run the government. Sometimes the estimate may be wrong and so they may find themselves at the end of the year with some cash left over. If, during that same period or a previous period they have borrowed money, the law says or assumes that since they do not know each one of the particular persons who paid the particular amounts of money, the best and safest way, since it is for the benefit of all, is to relieve all from further taxation, by putting back that money and paying off the debt. That is the logic back of that constitutional provision.

That is why I say that this money belongs in the reserve, unless there should have been a reduction in taxes before the 1943 biennium is concluded. That would be difficult to work out, but it is my contention that undoubtedly you do not have the right to take taxes that you levied in 1943, which you do not need, and put them into the 1945 budget.

And so I say to the Governor, if he is going to do that, at least he should do this, namely, reduce the gasoline tax for 1943-1945 by the $36,000,000 which he will have as a surplus. The people are entitled to that. There is no reason for leaving an emergency tax in the Motor License Fund and at the same time a regular tax of three cents when you are going to have $36,000,000, admittedly $36,000,000, left over.

Now, Mr. President, and members of the Senate, I am ready to hear from now on that I am again one of the fake budget makers, but I suggest that before you make that statement you at least investigate it to the extent which I have, because I am sure that if there had been a little more investigation in 1941, by the people who criticized me, their criticism might have been a little less severe, certainly much weaker. Thank you.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. WATKINS asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President and members of the Senate, I do not intend to criticize the remarks of the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, with regard to the budget. At the outset I want him to understand that I am just as much concerned with solving the problem of salaries for teachers as he is, but the thing I do want to call to his attention is that this is the same speech, or practically the same speech, with different figures, as I heard him make two years ago, and it is always dotted with "I see" and "I expect" and "I hope" and "I predict." That is true of every budget estimate, it is naturally a guess.

The question we have to make our minds up to is this: the Governor, with the assistance of a budget officer, who, I believe, gives his full time to that problem, and heads of departments who give their full time to the problem of taxes, taking their experience of past years, has set up an estimate.

After we get that budget, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, who is a very busy lawyer, sits down for a few nights, and overnight he can set up entirely different figures and entirely different predictions.

And so, Mr. President, it is then a question of whether or not the Governor shall accept the estimates made by those experts who give all their time over a period of months to setting up those figures, or take the snap judgment of the gentleman from Philadelphia.

The question we want to make up our minds about first is, of course, if the Governor's figures are correct, then according to his budget there is no balance there to take care of the problem of the school teachers, and we have to look elsewhere for the money.

If we take the figures of Senator Shapiro, he says there is a way to do it, without looking any further, and I want to cite one example of how loose that kind of figuring is, honest and sincere as Senator Shapiro may be, in giving those figures. First let me read from the budget of the Governor for this year with regard to the Department of Public Assistance in which he says, in his budget "total appropriations for public assistance are recommended in the amount of $89,232,000," compared with $121,023,000 for the current biennium.

The department expects that $5,500,000 of the present appropriation will lapse, so that for public assistance in the current biennium, the difference between $121,000,000 and roughly $6,000,000, would give us $115,000,000 as having been used for public assistance in the current biennium.

Two years ago Senator Shapiro stated, and I am sure that then he was just as sincere with regard to his figures as he is today, he then made predictions and statements with regard to what we were going to spend and I recall that he was very eloquent in his appeal that the amount of money set up, $121,000,000, would not nearly carry us over the biennium and it would be almost no time until we would be back here in special session seeking new funds.

This is what he said then, just two years ago, and I am reading from the Legislative Journal, Page 355, Wednesday, February 19, 1941, in which Senator Shapiro states as follows:

"On the basis of the Governor's recommendations of $5,000,000 per month (made in the face of present expenditures totalling $7,250,00 per month) there will be left but $700,000 per month to provide relief for the remaining unemployed now on the direct relief assistance rolls of the Commonwealth. There are 100,000 cases falling in this classification, according to Mr. Russell."

"On the basis of a shortage of $1,100,000 per month the budget estimate is $26,400,000 short for the biennium; on the basis of a shortage of $1,550,000 per month, the budget estimate is $37,200,000 short for the biennium."

"These figures warrant the assertion that relief expenditures for the next biennium will be anywhere from $146,400,000 to $157,200,000."

And then he says, "In conclusion I suggest that an adequate budget, prepared on an honest and frank recognition of governmental obligations, requires that $146,400,000 or $157,200,000 be provided for."

And, Mr. President, all we spent was $115,000,000, so there is a mistake in Senator Shapiro's arithmetic of some $30,000,000.

I am pointing this out in kindness to Senator Shapiro, just as he was pointing out his figures in kindness to the Republican Senators, and all I want to say is that when I am computing a figure, so far as determining where we are going to get the money for salaries for teachers and making up my mind with regard to financial matters, I think it stands to reason that both Governor James and Governor Martin had expert advice in making up the budgets.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. SHAPIRO asked and obtained permission to address the Senate.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I suggest just as kindly to my friend from Schuylkill that he must understand that if my figures were wrong it was not because I was basing them on any figures that were wrong, but it took the war to change my figures, and they were not mine—they were the department's. In February, 1941, we were spending $7,900,000 a month for relief—and I did not have any inside information that we were going to be at war.

Governor James claimed credit for having taken us off the relief rolls and for having reduced the amount of expenditures. I heard this same talk from Governor James, that he was told by the figuremakers that we were going to have to spend $150,000,000 but we only spent $115,000,000.

That was not anybody's fault. The figures were there. I got the figures from the department and I am quoting figures now from the department. I am not guessing or using anybody else's figures.

I am saying that the same people that furnished Governor Martin with this budget had before them every figure that I have given to you today, upon which I base by estimate, and I say again what happened today, happened two years ago, and I expect it will go on—I do not expect to win my friends over to my view. I am merely making the record in the hope that those who come after us may profit by my humble efforts.

I want to also state that this business about the budget is just as the gentleman from Schuylkill says, the story is the same but the figures are new. The story about those expert budget makers of the Governor who sit down and make budgets was told also in 1941, and you remember how we were then told by the gentleman from Montgomery County, Senator Edmonds, that you could not change those figures. He even got Senator Mallery to read out of the fiscal code of 1929—if you will remember, Senator Mallery was very gracious and read sections showing that the budget could not be changed by the Legislature, but neither can the facts be changed, the figures can not be changed, by either the Governor or the Legislature.

I have read from the present day figures and I say we Legislators have the right, if you agree with those figures, to pass a law increasing the pay of school teachers and to revise those estimates.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. WOODWARD asked and obtained permission to address the Senate.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, I have permission from our Floor Leader to speak for one minute, because he has something to say after me. This also is on the budget.

Senator Carr, who is chairman of a committee that meets sometimes, and sometimes postpones meetings—the wrong men come to committee meetings—has a bill providing for annual sessions, and there is to be a meeting of that committee next week—I hope everybody who is in favor of annual sessions will attend.

Just one further word, Mr. President. I have testimony from Massachusetts and New York on the advantages of an annual session, which might be focused around the question of the budget.

I know that the budget officer, Dr. Logan, in October had the dáta—or the dāta—if you like that better, for the budget in his office, but we were first introduced to the budget, Monday, March 1, and there is quite an interval between October and March 1. I assume that that embarrassment would be overcome, in part certainly, by annual sessions. The objection made by my reactionary friends, who always attend committee meetings, is that business does not want annual sessions, that they think we are a nuisance and hate to have us meet so often. That is an easy thing to say, but I say, in reply, our first business is the business of the state and our first business is to write a correct budget and we can do that a great deal easier for a one year term than we can for a two year term.

Thank you, Mr. Heyburn.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. HEYBURN asked and obtained permission to address the Senate.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, the hour is getting late and I do not want to prolong this discussion. However, I would just like to make a couple of observations in connection with the speech of my brilliant colleague, Senator Shapiro.

I noticed that the gentleman from Philadelphia, in attempting to justify his statement, when challenged by the Senator from Schuylkill, stated that he could not foresee the war. That is just the reason the estimate of Governor James was low—he could not foresee the war.

I notice in his speech the gentleman from Philadelphia talked about the Liquor Control Board not having discounted its bills, causing a loss of a million dollars to the Commonwealth. I have just talked with one of the members of the Liquor Control Board and he assures me that is not the case. Bills were discounted promptly by the Liquor Control Board, excepting for a short period in 1941, when the House of Representatives, then controlled by Senator Shapiro's friends, did not send to the Senate the tax program and the tax anticipation notes could not be floated, and the result was that for a short period of time the state could not discount its bills.

This member of the Liquor Control Board assures me, with all due respect to Senator Shapiro, that the Senator is just a little bit confused.

STATEMENT BY THE CHAIR

The PRESIDENT. The members of the Senate have made so many fine suggestions that the Chair feels impelled to make one. The Senate was to convene today at 3:00 p. m.; it convened at 4:35 p. m. The Chair has been exceptionally reasonable and lenient, and whenever the gentlemen of the Senate desire to hold a caucus or anything of that nature the Chair will always be glad to accommodate them, but there are limits and boundaries to reason. Therefore, in the future the Chair suggests that the Senate convene at the appointed hour.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. BARR asked and obtained unanimous consent to to address the Senate.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I subscribe to what the Chair has said, if the Majority side will enter into that bargain. I came here at four o'clock on Monday and we convened at five o'clock.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Urging investigations of Citizens Water Company of Scottdale.

The Chair cleared his table and laid before the Senate petition urging adoption by the Senate of resolution urging investigation of facts and circumstances surrounding the sale of the Citizens Water Company of Scottdale to the Municipal Authority of Westmoreland County.

Which was committed to the Committee on Judiciary Special.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I move that the Senate now be at ease and the Clerk be requested to announce a meeting of the Committee on Public Utilities to be held immediately in the office of the President Pro Tempore.

Mr. EALY. I second the motion, Mr. President.

It was agreed to.

The Senate was at ease.

The PRESIDENT. The Senate will come to order.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. BECKER from the Committee on Public Utilities to which was referred resolution offered by Mr. DENT, on February 16, 1943, reported the same without amendment as follows:

COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE ACTIONS OF MUNICIPAL AUTHORITIES IN ACQUISITION OF WATER COMPANIES

In the Senate, February 16, 1943.

Whereas, Pursuant to the Act enacted the 17th day of May, 1939 entitled: "To amend sections three, four, five, nine and eleven of the act, approved the twenty-eighth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five (P. L. 463), entitled, as amended 'An act providing for the incorporation, as bodies corporate and politic, of "Authorities" for municipalities, counties, and townships; defining the same; prescribing the rights, powers, and duties of such Authorities; authorizing such Authorities to acquire, construct, improve, maintain, and operate projects, and to borrow money and issue bonds therefor; providing for the payment of such bonds, and prescribing the rights of the holders thereof; conferring the right of eminent domain on such Authorities; authorizing such Authorities to enter into contracts with and to accept grants from the Federal Government or any agency thereof; and for other purposes,' as amended, by omitting the requirement that the resolution or ordinance of the intention to organize an Authority shall set forth the proposed Articles of Incorporation; regulating the publication of such resolutions and ordinances; by including waterworks, water distribution systems, low head dams, and parts of sewer systems as projects; by authorizing the municipalities to limit the projects to be undertaken by an Authority; by authorizing a longer term for the bonds issued by an Authority; avoiding competition with existing enterprises; by including waterworks, water supply works, water distribution systems, and parts of sewer systems as facilities which may be transferred to an Authority by any owner in addition to the Commonwealth and the political subdivision thereof; and authorizing authorities to acquire water and water rights, subject to the approval of the Water and Power Resources Board." and

Whereas, This act contains, among other things the following: "The purpose and intent of this act being to benefit the people of the Commonwealth by, among other things, increasing their commerce and prosperity, and not to unnecessarily burden or interfere with existing business by the establishment of competitive enterprises, none of the powers granted by this act shall be exercised in the construction, improvement, maintenance, extension, or operation of any project or projects which in whole or in part shall duplicate or complicate with existing enterprises serving substantially the same purposes: Provided, however, That the municipality or municipalities organizing such an Authority may, in the resolution or ordinance signifying their intention so to do from time to time by subsequent resolution or ordinance, specify the project or projects to be undertaken by the said Authority, and no other projects shall be undertaken by the said Authority than those so specified."

Whereas, Pursuant to this act of Legislation various county and municipal authorities have been created, and

Whereas, Said authorities have proceeded to purchase water companies, waterworks and water systems among other things, and

Whereas, It has come to the attention of members of the Senate of Pennsylvania that there is a serious question as to whether or not this act is being used contrary to the wishes of the Legislature, and

Whereas, It has been charged by persons affected by the actions of said authorities that the purchases have not been made in the interest of the rate payers and citizens, and

Whereas, With the many opportunities open for acquisition of water companies by the rate payers and citizens of a community and the great possibilities for mutual benefits that will result from revenue from said acquisitions it becomes imperative that the Legislature make it possible for such acquisitions to be made at the lowest possible purchase price, a price based more nearly upon the real value than the present system that uses a value based upon earning power, and

Whereas, In many cases such purchases by Municipal Authorities have become subjects of court litigation and the basis for rumors, and acquisitions, therefore be it

Resolved, That pursuant to the above statement and quotations, that a committee of six (6) members be created for the purpose of interrogation and investigation of the actions of certain Authorities to determine whether or not the said actions have been taken in the public interest and for the welfare of rate payers of these communities and citizens of the Commonwealth, and whether this act has been used for personal and private gain to the detriment of public interest, and be it further which was laid on the table.

Resolved, That this committee shall make a report to the General Assembly as to whether this act shall be amended or repealed. This committee shall have the power to subpoena persons, records and books that have any bearing upon the contents of this Resolution.

RESOLUTION

MEMORALIZING BIRTHDAY OF SENATOR HEYBURN

Messrs. WADE and BECKER offered the following resolution which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, March 9, 1943.

Whereas, Public Records (not substantiated by authentic records of the Bureau of Vital Statistics) reveals that yesterday, March 8, nineteen hundred and forty-three, was the birth anniversary of one of our distinguished Senators, Honorable Weldon B. Heyburn, commonly known as "one of the four horsemen" of the Senate; and

Whereas, The distinguished Senate member on the said day just passed attained the ripe old age of forty years—it being duly recognized that the first forty years are the hardest in war times and in peace; and

Whereas, It has been the common practice and custom in years gone by on such occasions to celebrate by properly dining and other forms of festivities and mirth; and

Whereas, The said member carefully clothed in utmost secrecy these now known facts; and

Whereas, In records previously referred to further reveal that the accused is by occupation a "tiller of the soil" and that the products of his daily efforts are for the most part not rationed by the Federal Government in this critical period.

Now therefore, He is by the adoption of this resolution, severely admonished by his colleagues who previously considered themselves his inner circle friends; and

Be It Further Resolved, That a penalty, prescribed hereinafter, be inflicted and visited upon the said defendant, namely, he is hereby directed and commanded to entertain all of his colleagues and their friends at such a time as is convenient to them, not necessarily to himself.

The PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Delaware have any statement to make.

Mr. HEYBURN. I might say, Mr. President, this is a very fine example of democracy at work—modern democracy—everybody has a hand in it, I will take these fellows on, perhaps only four or five at a time, but if I am here long enough, I will get them all in.

Thank you very much.

RESOLUTION

A DECLARATION OF THE FEDERATION OF THE WORLD

Messrs. FARRELL, CARR and WOODRING offered the following resolution which was twice read and referred to the Committee on Federal Relations.

In the Senate, March 9, 1943.

Whereas, It is necessary at the present juncture of human affairs to enlarge the bases of organized society by establishing a government for the community of nations, in order to preserve civilization and enable mankind to live in peace and be free, the following principles and objectives are hereby enunciated in

THE DECLARATION OF THE FEDERATION OF THE WORLD

Man, the source of all political authority, is a manifold political being. He is a citizen of several communities; the city, the state, the nation and the world. To each of these communities he owes inalienable obligations and from each he receives enduring benefits.

Communities may exist for a time without being incorporated but, under the stress of adversity, they disintegrate unless legally organized. Slowly but purposefully through the centuries, civilization has united the world, integrating its diverse local interests and creating an international community that now embraces every region and every person on the globe. This community has no government, and communities without governments perish. Either this community must succumb to anarchy or submit to the restraints of law and order.

Governments can only be established through the deliberate efforts of men. At this hour two elemental forces are struggling to organize the international community: totalitarianism and democracy. The former, a recent version of repudiated militarism and tyranny, is predicated upon the principle of compulsion, rules through dictatorship and ensalves men; the latter, a proved bulwark of the rights of man as a human being and as a citizen, derives its authority from the consent of the governed, embodies the will of free men and renders their collective judgments supreme in human affairs. The corner stone of totalitarianism is the ethnographic state, whose restricted interests define the scope of its favors; the foundation of democracy is man whose integrity is inviolable and whose welfare is its primary concern. The motivating power of the former is violence; of the latter, freedom. One feeds upon unscrupulous ambition; the other upon an enlightened sense of obligation.

One or the other of these forces will now triumph and govern mankind. The present conflict is irrepressible and decisive. It is the challenge of the ages to the generation of today, and represents those spiritually cosmic forces which visit the world at critical periods in human history to shape the destinies of men. This world cannot remain half-slave, half-free; half-totalitarian, half-democratic. The laws of civilized society prevent intercourse between slaves and free men from being either congenial or profitable. If totalitarianism wins this conflict, the world will be ruled by tyrants, and individuals will be slaves. If democracy wins, the nations of the earth will be united in a commonwealth of free peoples, and individuals, wherever found, will be the sovereign units of the new world order.

Man has struggled from time immemorial to endow the individual with certain fundamental rights whose very existence is now imperiled. Among those rights is man's freedom to worship, speak, write, assemble and vote without arbitrary interference. To safeguard these liberties as a heritage for the human race, governments were instituted among men, with constitutional guarantees against the despotic exercise of political authority, such as are provided by elected parliaments, trial by jury, habeas corpus and due process of law. Man must now either consolidate his historic rights or lose them for generations to come.

The ceaseless changes wrought in human society by science, industry, and economics, as well as by the spiritual, social and intellectual forces which impregnate all cultures, make political and geographical isolation of nations hereafter impossible. The organic life of the human race is at least indissolubly unified and can never be severed, but it must be politically ordained and made subject to law. Only a government capable of discharging all the functions of sovereignty in the executive, legislative and judicial spheres can accomplish such a task. Civilization now reqires laws, in the place of treaties, as instruments to regulate commerce between peoples. The intricate conditions of modern life have rendered treaties ineffectual and obsolete, and made laws essential and inevitable. The age of treaties is dead; the age of laws is here.

Governments, limited in their jurisdiction to local geographical areas, can no longer satisfy the needs or fulfill the obligations of the human race. Just as feudalism served its purpose in human history and was superseded by nationalism, so has nationalism reached its apogee in this generation and yielded its hegemony in the body politic to internationalism. The first duty of government is to protect life and property, and when governments cease to perform this function, they capitulate on the fundamental principle of their raison d'etre. Nationalism, moreover, is no longer able to preserve the political independence or the territorial integrity of nations, as recent history so tragically confirms. Sovereignty is an idealogical concept without geographical barriers. It is better for the world to be ruled by an international sovereignty of reason, social justice and peace than by diverse national sovereignties organically incapable of preventing their own dissolution by conquest. Mankind must pool its resources of defense if civilization is to endure.

History has revealed but one principle by which free peoples, inhabiting extensive territories, can unite under one government without impairing their local autonomy. That principle is federation, whose virtue preserves the whole without destroying its parts and strengthens its parts without jeopardizing the whole. Federation vitalizes all nations by endowing them with security and freedom to develop their respective cultures without menace of foreign domination. It regards as sacrosanct man's personality, his rights as an individual and as a citizen and his role as a partner with all other men in the common enterprise of building civilization for the benefit of mankind. It suppresses the crime of war by reducing to the ultimate minimum the possibility of its occurrence. It renders unnecessary the further paralyzing expenditure of wealth for belligerent activity, and cancels through the ages the mortgages of war against the fortunes and services of men. It releases the full energies, intelligence and assets of society for creative ameliorative and redemptive work on behalf of humanity. It recognizes man's morning vision of his destiny as an authentic potentiality. It apprehends the entitre human race as one family, human beings everywhere as brothers and all nations as component parts of an indivisible community.

There is no alternative to the federation of all nations except endless war. No substitute for The Federation of the World can organize the international community on the basis of freedom and permanent peace. Even if continental, regional or ideological federations were attempted, the governments of these federations, in an effort to make impregnable their separate defenses, would be obliged to maintain stupendously competitive armies and navies, thereby condemning humanity indefinitely to exhaustive taxation, compulsory military service and ultimate carnage, which history reveals to be not only criminally futile but positively avoidable through judicious foresight in federating all nations. No nation should be excluded from membership in The Federation of the World that is willing to suppress its military, naval and air forces, retaining only a constabulary sufficient to police its territory and to maintain order within its jurisdiction, provided that the eligible voters of that nation are permitted the free expression of their opinions at the polls.

It Being Our Profound Conviction:

That man should be forever free and that his historic rights as an individual and as a citizen should be protected by all the safeguards sanctioned by political wisdom and experience.

That governments are essential to the existence of communities and that the absence of government is anarchy.

That there exists an international community, ecompassing the entire world, which has no government and which is destined, as a consequence of the present war, either to be ruthlessly dominated and exploited by totalitarianism or to be federated by democracy upon the principle of freedom for all nations and individuals.

That all human beings are citizens of this world community, which requires laws and not treaties for its government.

That the present conflict will determine the survival of free institutions throughout the world, and that it is morally incumbent upon this generation, as one of the declared objectives of the current war, to federate the nations, in order to make secure, and hereafter unchallenged, freedom for all peoples everywhere, and in order to impart to those who are called to give their lives and fortunes for the triumph of democracy the positive assurance of the incorruptible utility of their sacrifice.

That World Federation is the keystone in the arch of civilization, humanity's charter of liberty for all peoples and the signet authenticating at last the union of the nations in freedom and peace.

That the universal ordeal, through which mankind is now passing, marks the birth of a new epoch that will affirm for all time the indestructible solidarity of civilization and the abiding unity of the human race.

That there are supreme moments in history when nations are summoned, as trustees of civilization, to defend the heritage of the ages and to create institutions essential for human progress. In the Providence of God, such a crisis is this hour, compelling in duty and unprecedented in responsibility—a fateful moment when men meet destiny for the fulfillment of historic tasks.

Now, therefore, Be it resolved by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring:

Section 1. That the General Assembly of Pennsylvania does hereby solemnly declare that all peoples of the earth should now be united in a commonwealth of nations to be known as The Federation of the World, and to that end it hereby endorses The Declaration of the World as is specifically set forth in the preamble hereof, and makes said Declaration a part of this Resolution in the same manner as if same were recited herein, and requests the Senators and Members of the House of Representatives in Congress from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to support and vote for a Resolution in the Congress of the United States, approving the principle of World Federation and requesting the President of the United States to initiate the procedure necessary to formulate a Consitution for The Federation of the World, which shall be submitted to each nation for its ratification.

Section 2. That a copy of this Resolution be sent to each of the Senators and Members of the House of Representatives in Congress from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Section 3. That this Resolution shall be in full force and effect from and after its ratification.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. WOODRING asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. WOODRING. Mr. President and gentlemen of the Senate, I realize that the hour is getting late and I realize that we have all had a long, busy day, attending committee meetings, a delayed session and some lengthy speeches. It is not my intention to take any longer than is required, but I do feel that the resolution introduced by Senator Farrel, Senator Carr and myself is of sufficient importance that we should give to it a moment of consideration at this time.

One hundred and sixty odd years ago our forefathers, citizens of thirteen colonies recognized that they lived in a community larger than anyone of those colonies, the community of North America. They recognized that peace and order arise from law. They united for the common defense. They federated those thirteen colonies into the U. S. A. which has been blessed for a century and a half as a home for those who seek opportunity and freedom. During our formative years, we were inaccessible to, and isolated from the rest of the world. The two to three months time required to cross the Atlantic, and a much greater time across the Pacific, insured our domestic tranquility against foes in foreign countries.

Scientific discovery and industrial development have changed this scene. Modern travel and communication have erased distance and eliminated time. The U. S. is no longer isolated but is part of a world community. That is not a theory or a philosophy, but a fact. A fact which we must recognize; we must recognize it or burrow our heads into the sand like an ostrich and await the coming of some vehicle of war to mangle our bodies For more than 150 years we have known that man is the source of all political authority; and, that man is a citizen of several communities; the city, the state, and the nation. To each of these communities he owes inalienable obligations and from each he receives enduring benefits. For 150 years we have known that loyalty to one's city or state does not transgress against the loyalty to one's nation.

Today we live in a world community. Our conduct and actions in Dauphin County, in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and in the U. S., affect individuals in every nation of the world. In 1941, I introduced in the House of Representatives of our General Assembly, a Bill for the Eastern extension of the Turnpike. Overnight the Turnpike Bonds rose four points. A widow in Wyoming, an orphan in Montana, a pension fund in Arizona were immediately affected by my uncalculating act. Every act of aggression by the Axis Countries—the invasions of Ethiopia, Manchuria, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Poland, Greece, Netherland, Holland, Belgium, France, England and Pearl Harbor—has had its effect, not only upon the peoples of the invaded countries but upon all the peoples of the world. For example, our supply of silk, nickel, tin, coffee, rubber, and many other essential commodities was immediately extinguished or critically lessoned so that undreamed of rationing became the accepted order of the day.

This world community in which we live has no government, and communities without government perish. The last war, World War I, cost the world ten million lives, twenty million wounded, and 340 Billion Dollars. So that you may evaluate the latter figure, the total wealth in the United States in 1937 was only 350 Billion Dollars. Our present war is going to cost many times those figures. Each future war will cost an increasingly greater and greater number of men and dollars. Worse than that, however, those figures do not include, nor is there any means or measure to evaluate the cost in broken hearts, broken families, deranged and disordered minds and the general degrading influence of war. Oh, that we could realize in our hearts and souls the need for some adequate step now by which we could set into motion the necessary machinery to eliminate all future wars. It can be done and for much less than is normally spent for national defense.

I said that we live in a world community, a community which has no government; and without government our world community has no law. Law emanates from government and without law there can be no order. Order is founded upon law and its enforcement. In the Boston Police Strike, the vehicle which started Mr. Calvin Coolidge to the White House, there was a temporary cessation of the enforcement of law in Boston. The result was a terrorizing disorder. Crime was rampant. Riots sprang up everywhere. The center of U. S. culture for more than three centuries was reduced to a state of lawlessness and bestiality. That is exactly the condition of and situation in our world community today. The alternatives which we face are no world law and anarchy, or world law and peace and order.

Treaties? They are merely agreements of the parties. Treaties can be broken by any of the participants in them. without law by which agreements can be legally enforced, treaties can be violated by future Hitlers, Mussolinis or Hirohitos just as they have been broken in the past decade. Without world law, the world and no nation in the world can be secure from the ruthless invasions by totalitarianism. There is no alternative to a federation of nations except endless war.

History has revealed but one principle by which free peoples, inhabiting extensive territories can unite under one government without impairing their local autonomy. That principle is federation, whose virtue preserves the whole without destroying its parts, and strengthens its parts without jeopardizing the whole. Federation vitalizes all nations by endowing them with security and freedom to develop their respective cultures without menace of foreign domination.

The resolution introduced by my distinguished colleagues, Senator Farrell of Philadelphia, Senator Carr of Butler, and myself endorses a declaration of the Federation of the world and recommends the support of a similar resolution in the Congress by the U. S. Congressman and Senators from Pennsylvania. It is not a plan or blueprint but sets forth this principle of federation through which we can establish law and order among the nations of the world. It is an expression of the widespread determination of the people of this Commonwealth to win the peace. We dare not loose it a second time. The resolution can do no harm, it may be the salvation of the nations of the earth. If we adopt it and the Federation is accomplished, we will have done a noble work. If we ignore or refuse it, we will invite the blood of the future wars upon ourselves in the same manner that a certain mob in Judea at the trial of a Galilean cried, "His Blood be on us, and on our Children."

Gentlemen of the Senate, I beg for your interest in this important matter, and for your prayerful and careful consideration.
